ROPER REVEALS RIFT OVER NEW CROP SUBSIDIES

Assails Wallace for Losses Abroad.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—A hushed break in the cabinet over the administration farm program flared into the open today when Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper warned against continuation of crop control through subsidies in two speeches deep in the cotton belt.

Daniel C. Roper.

In an invasion of his home country, Secretary Roper struck at the policies of his cabinet colleague, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, as the latter was engaged in preparing a crop surplus control program for a special session of congress.

Henry A. Wallace.

The clash of the cabinet members, which had been smoldering behind closed doors of the cabinet meeting, burst into flames here when agricultural experts studied advance copies Secretary Roper had left behind of speeches at Charleston, S. C., this morning and Gibson, N. C., tonight.

Challenges Crop Control.

In both speeches Roper challenged Wallace's commodity loans, crop control subsidies through the intricacies of the soil conservation program and the subsidies of the old plow under program of the old AAA and demanded that Wallace "find the substitute for benefit payments that will accomplish the objective of relief without artificial means."

Roper warned of the dangers of carrying farm subsidies too far and urged farmers to look "more to the reduction of trade barriers that affect foreign markets than to financial aid from the treasury."

Commodity loans, he said, "should be regarded as an emergency plan and not a permanent policy." Remembering the tradition of state rights in which he was steeped, he added fearfully, "superimposed controls, except under emergency conditions, have a tendency to thwart the principles of democracy through a form of regimentation that we righteously condemn in other forms of government."

The 70 year old South Carolinian indirectly lent his support to charges that Wallace's policies have lost America's foreign markets and particularly the world cotton market.

Cotton Program Attacked.

Critics of the secretary of agriculture assert that his artificial price pegging has stimulated cotton production abroad so that American cotton exports have tumbled. Before the Wallace policies were adopted the United States supplied 65 per cent of the cotton in foreign markets. Today it accounts for but 45 per cent.

In both addresses Roper stressed the Democratic tenet of the old south that agriculture's salvation, and particularly that of the cotton south, is to be found in ever widening foreign markets instead of in Wallace's "domestic economy." Time and time again he hit at artificial price control through subsidies and crop curtailment rather than exportation of surpluses.

Bring Split Into Open.

The Roper speeches brought out into the open a long suspected split in the official famil. They brought the widest break in the cabinet since the Harding administration when the then secretary of commerce, Herbert Hoover, clashed with Secretary of Agriculture Henry C. Wallace, father of the present secretary, over the control of the foreign services of the two departments.

Undoubtedly Wallace will be waiting for a few words with Roper on his return here. If Roper holds his ground an official reply probably will come from his colleague. If he yields to Wallace's ire, Mr. Roper probably will be called upon to swallow his words in a public statement.

GIANTS AND SOX WIN; NOTRE DAME TIED BY ILLINOIS

The New York Giants defeated the Yankees, 7 to 3, in the world series yesterday, scoring their first victory in four games behind the six hit pitching of Carl Hubbell.

The White Sox hammered four Cub pitchers to score a 14 to 2 triumph and even the city series at two games apiece.

NATION'S TRADE FALTERS UNDER FOREIGN DELUGE

Even Commonest of Crops Brought In.

Amid increasing threats of war, America finds her international farm trade in the most unfavorable situation in the nation's history. This is shown by figures compiled by the same government which is even now undertaking a new drive for political crop curtailment.

Drouths, government crop control experiments, and the administration's so-called reciprocal trade treaties with other countries have opened the frontiers to a flood of agricultural imports in a volume equal to the production of 30 million acres of American farm land. America has come to be dependent in too large a measure upon foreign farms at a time when other nations are striving to increase production to meet their own domestic requirements. Despite this, congress is bound by terms of a joint resolution passed in the closing days of the last session to act promptly on the new crop limitation and subsidy plan devised by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

Lose Foreign Markets.

Normally an extensive exporter of farm products, this country has within the last few years almost completely lost its foreign markets for such important farm products as wheat, pork, and lard. Cotton exports have been dwindling as other nations have increased their production.

At the same time the reverse flow of agricultural products into the nation from abroad has mounted steeply. During the first half of 1937 America's agricultural imports were valued at nearly three times her agricultural exports. Goods produced on farms now constitute more than half of all American imports, amounting to more than a billion dollars last year. And the figure is growing.

Imports on Increase.

Practically every major agricultural product on the import list increased in volume during the first half of this year. Most of these products, or their substitutes, could be produced here.

The value of farm products imported last year was equal to more than 13 per cent of the farmers' 1936 gross income of approximately 9½ billion dollars. During the first half of this year these imports were valued in excess of 900 million dollars, an increase of more than 40 per cent over imports for the first half of last year.

It has been estimated that nearly

Ten Lashes on Bare Back for a Wife Beater

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 9.—(AP)—A convicted wife beater was tied to the whipping post in the New Castle county workhouse today and given ten lashes across his bare back with a cat-o'-nine-tails under a Delaware law of 1717.

It was the first time in a decade that the whip has been inflicted for this crime, said Warden Elwood H. Wilson, who swung the whip. The lash for other offenses is a common occurrence. Women are not permitted to witness the whippings.

James Hart, 30, was sentenced to ten lashes and six days in the workhouse. He was walked to the post in the prison court. His hands were tied to the post and his back bared. As the whip cracked he flinched once or twice.

Picture Taking Is Barred.

When the lashing was over he walked quickly into the prison, attended by guards. Guards mingled with the spectators to prevent the taking of pictures. They intercepted one man who had concealed a small camera under the lining of his derby hat, taking pictures through a small hole in the crown.

Since 1923 there have been 350 persons whipped at the workhouse. Of that number 18 were repeaters.

The first act authorizing whipping was passed in 1717 by the "general assembly of the three counties of New Castle, Kent, and Sussex, upon Delaware, province of Pennsylvania."

The three counties, now the state of Delaware, were a part of Pennsylvania, but made their own laws.

Mandatory in Many Crimes.

Whipping is mandatory upon conviction for robbery, assault, poisoning with intent to murder, arson, burglary, larceny, and horse stealing. The number of lashes may be from five to 60. In some cases the number is fixed by law. In others it is discretionary with the judge.

"The punishment of whipping shall be inflicted publicly by strokes on the bare back well laid on," says the law.

History reveals that whipping as an official punishment dates to 1656.

MOLLISON WILL FLY MRS. DAHL TO SPAIN TO SEE HER HUSBAND

SALAMANCA, Spain, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Harold E. Dahl, Champaign, Ill., flyer for the Spanish government, who was captured, sentenced to death and reprieved by the insurgents, tonight awaited the arrival of his blonde wife, a former American stage singer. Insurgent Gen. Francisco Franco made the visit possible by granting James A. Mollison, noted British flyer, permission to fly Mrs. Dahl from Cannes, France, to Salamanca.

Dahl Faces U. S. Arrest.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Harold E. Dahl, American aviator, reprieved from a death sentence in Spain will be arrested if he sets foot on American soil, detective bureau officials said here today. Warants are ready for Dahl's arrest on three counts of forgery allegedly committed in October, 1932, while he was on parole after having pleaded guilty to a check charge in February, 1936, the officials said.

COURT BRINGS 64 ANGELS TO EARTH IN ELECTION SUIT

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Supreme Court Justice William T. Collins stripped the wings from 64 of Father Divine's angels today. He brought them to earth by refusing to let them register and vote under the heavenly appellations bestowed on them by Father.

No, sir, Justice Collins said. They can give their heavenly names, but they also will have to list their real names and former addresses to election inspectors. They also must furnish all other information demanded by election inspectors.

The angels had refused to give information about their earthly names and addresses in two election districts, and brought suit to register as they choose.

Among names preferred by the angels and rejected by the registrars and Justice Collins were Morning Glory, Missouri Harbor, Wonderful Meekness, Sarah Wilting, Newborn Lamb, Sundial Love and Faithful.

Catholics Split with P.-T. A. on Birth Control

Members of the Council of Catholic Women of the archdiocese of Chicago yesterday voted to resign from the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers unless the P.-T. A. withdraws its recent adoption of a birth control program.

The council, which through its affiliates represents some 200,000 Catholic women in the Chicago area, took the action at its seventh annual meeting, held at the Palmer house. Legislation favoring birth control and the dissemination of knowledge concerning contraceptives were equally condemned.

Plan Adopted on Sept. 21.

The resolution, introduced by the Rev. Father James G. Curry, executive director of the council, pointed out that thousands of Catholic parents and many parochial schools joined the P.-T. A. because its by laws state that it aims to "secure for every child the highest advantages in physical, mental, moral, and spiritual education."

The executive committee of the Illinois P.-T. A., meeting on Sept. 21, adopted a plan to disseminate birth control information among its 130,000 members as a health and economic measure. The program called for publication in the organization's bulletin of a series of articles on the value and advisability of child spacing, family and maternal health, as well as publication of a list of thirteen birth control clinics.

Public Insult Charged.

In this, the resolution of the Catholic women stated yesterday, the parent-teacher group offered public insult to its large Catholic membership. The action, the Catholic women pointed out, is in direct opposition to their religious doctrin, as propounded in the encyclical on marriage of Pope Pius XI.

Religious, social, and medical history through the ages condemns the social effects of contraceptive practice, the resolution stated. Quoting from the papal encyclical, it declared—"For no reason, however grave, may be put forward by which any-

Retaken Felon Admits Double Police Murder

In a surprising development of the capture of three escaped convicts Friday night, police at the state's attorney's office early today apparently solved the cold blooded murder of two Warren avenue policemen four years ago. The solution came, police said, through admissions of James Pogue, 28 years old, one of the recaptured trio.

Pogue named Edward B. Moorehead, second of the trio, as his co-murderer of the policemen. Pogue and Moorehead, with William Hanley, 37, who is not involved in the killings, fled Stateville prison honor farm on Thursday. They escaped, Pogue is quoted as explaining, to avoid the police slaying charge.

Prosecutor's Aids Quiz 2 More.

Also questioned at the state's attorney's office this morning were Samuel [Peg Leg] Turriano, 22 years old, 4314 Van Buren street, now on parole from Pontiac reformatory, and Dr. Harold B. Cassidy, 4802 Broadway, of Dillinger case notoriety. Turriano was allegedly present at the police murders, and was wounded and assertedly given medical aid by Dr. Cassidy.

The murdered policemen were John Skopek and Elmer Ostling. On the night of July 22, 1933, they stopped several men in a car in front of 2838 Washington boulevard. Without warning two of the three men emptied their guns at them. Both policemen, though fatally wounded, managed to shoot the third man, who escaped, however. The third man, according to Capt. Dan Gilbert of the state's attorney's office, was Turriano. The actual killers, he said, were Pogue and Moorehead.

Asserts Killers Were Robbers.

"Pogue fired six shots at Ostling, and Moorehead fired as many at Skopek," said Capt. Gilbert. "In the exchange Turriano was shot above the heart. The men were out on stickups at the time."

Capt. Gilbert indicated that these details were furnished by Pogue. Turriano, he said, refused to talk except to admit he had been wounded several years ago. The captain declared Turriano received medical aid from a north side doctor. This physician, according to Assistant State's Attorneys John Boyle and Emmett Moynihan, was Dr. Cassidy. He signed a statement that he treated Turriano, they added.

Dr. Cassidy was found in his office last night, questioned at the state's attorney's office, and then released. He was arrested in 1935 by federal men for his part in face lifting operations on John Dillinger and Homer Van Meter, outlaws later slain. For this he was convicted of harboring Dillinger, and placed on probation for a year in federal court.

The apparent solution of the Skopek-Ostling murders was speeded with Duce Spurns Parley on "Volunteers"; British Hedge.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 9. — Convinced by Premier Mussolini's answer to the joint Franco-British note that he can never be brought to withdraw Italian troops from Spain "by persuasion alone," the French government tonight decided to apply more strenuous means. Il Duce, in his answer today, turned down an invitation to attend a three power parley on the question of foreign volunteers in Spain.

French determination to use stronger methods does not mean that the Pyrenees frontier will be opened immediately. In any case no drastic action will be taken until further consultations between London and Paris, which probably means next Tuesday.

Doubtless, the British will try to persuade France to hold back a little longer and it is possible that the next step will be limited to a new Franco-British note to Rome, couched in stronger and more threatening language.

France Adamant on Troops.

In no case will France agree to a compromise on an essential issue—the withdrawal of Italian troops from Spain and particularly from the Balearic islands. Nor will she pay any attention to the Italian counter proposal that Germany be invited to participate in the conversations.

This suggestion, like the whole Italian reply, was carefully weighed in a two hour conference of high officials and cabinet members at the Quai d'Orsay this afternoon. Following the conference Yvon Delbos, French foreign minister, talked to French press representatives and dictated to them one of the strongest statements to which this ultra-prudent diplomat ever committed himself.

Claim Italy Was First to Act.

The text of the Italian note as received and released in London and Paris tonight included the usual assurances that Italy is eager to see an end to the friction over Spain, and asserted that Italy was the first, along with the German government, to suggest the withdrawal of foreign volunteers.

French officials were of the view that the note was undiplomatically direct in stating that the Fascist government "has finally the honor to state that it will not participate in conversations . . . to which the German government" is not invited.

Expect British to Yield.

The note said Italy considers that the matter should be laid again before the London 27 nation committee on nonintervention. The note as a whole followed the lines expected.

According to dispatches from London, informed circles there are of the opinion that the British will agree to back down once more if the French do not prevent them, and will hand the matter over to the 27 nation committee, where it is expected to drown in a sea of words.

Sees "Deliberate Challenge."

In accordance with an understanding with the press, no papers or agencies cite Delbos' exact words, but here are some characteristic semi-official paraphrases of his statements.

"Rome could not indicate more specifically a determination not to give up the territorial advantages she has won in Spain, thanks to systematic violations of nonintervention. Italy deliberately is challenging France and England to a test of strength in the Mediterranean.

"Doubtless she is hoping to create a rift between France and England, but this hope is chimerical. If France decided tomorrow to reopen the Pyrenees frontier and follow the Italian example in Spain, there is no doubt that the French government would be supported by the British government and the opinion of most of the world.

Disclaim Any Sentimentality.

"France is not acting from sentimental sympathy with one side or the other in the Spanish war. The only thing that matters to Paris and London is that whoever wins the war in Spain wins it without foreign intervention.

"It is really a question of security in France and England. Neither of us would be master of his destiny any longer if we let a third power install itself in the Balearics under cover of a government imposed on Spain by foreign arms. There can be no capitulation on that point.

"As far as Germany is concerned, it is to her credit that France and England do not invite her to confer on Spain.

Call Answer "Mocking."

"If Reichsfuehrer Hitler had sent a whole army corps to Spain, if he had sent congratulations to Gen. Francisco Franco [Spanish rebel leader] for victories won by German troops, if he had sent naval squadrons and regiments and aviation to the Balearics, then he would have received the same invitation sent to Mussolini.

"The Italian answer has a mocking, ironic tone which passes over the bounds of the permissible. The peaceful conciliatory desires manifested by France and England are scoffed at by a state which seems to consider itself sure of immunity.

"This perhaps is the gravest thing in the Italian reply which, without this dangerous bravado, would be just one more useless scrap of paper."

Political observers suspect this extraordinary violence of language is due to fears that Italy is planning to grab the naval base, Port Mahon, on the Island of Minorca.

Port Mahon is the only first class base in the Balearics and once installed there, Italy could cut the French communications with Africa at will.

An expedition against Minorca was reported in very high circles in the last two days, but the best opinion is that it is another Italian bluff for the very reason that France would send her fleet against the Italian fleet to prevent it should that appear necessary.

Duce Calls Up Conscripts.

ROME, Oct. 9.—[U. P.]—Premier Benito Mussolini, formally rejecting Anglo-French invitations to parley on foreign volunteers in Spain, was reported tonight to be mobilizing army conscripts to meet any reprisals which France or Britain may undertake.

Il Duce has called three classes of conscripts—those of 1907, 1908, and 1909—to the colors. They are being mobilized quietly in readiness for "eventual action anywhere," officials said.

Diplomats believed they would be sent to Spain to augment the insurgent forces of Generalissimo Francisco Franco if France throws down the barriers along the Franco-Spanish frontier.

Shortly before the answer was turned over to Lord Perth, the British ambassador, and Jean F. Blondell, French chargé d'affaires, Il Duce talked by telephone with his son Bruno, who has joined the insurgent air forces in Spain.

Young Mussolini spoke with his father from Palma, Mallorca, rebel base in the Balearic Islands. They conferred, supposedly, on the progress of the war.

Italy sent thousands of troops of the metropolitan army corps to northern Africa and was reported to have arranged to concentrate as many as 50,000 there along the Libyan frontier.

Mussolini apparently intended to keep the troops in North Africa, facing Egypt, British Sudan, and French Tunisia, in order to be in a position to strike at the British or French territories if necessary.

Charge France Aids Valencia.

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York Times.]

ROME, Oct. 9.—Obviously using data furnished by the secret service, Virginio Gayda, the editor, published in the Giornale d'Italia today a detailed documentation regarding French and Russian intervention in loyalist Spain during June, July, and August.

His object, he says, is to prove the hypocrisy of France's nonintervention policy.

The supply of men, arms, and munitions is being carried on, he writes, in three ways—overland, across the French border; by sea, through the creation of shipping companies operating smuggling ships to the number of 154, of which he gives names and other characteristics; and by air, through a recently formed French company which he said recruits and trains pilots and also buys planes in France and other countries, then resells them in loyalist Valencia.

During June, July, and August, Gayda says, Spanish loyalists received 11,234 men, 2,068 trucks and chassis, 43 automobile ambulances, 450 motorcycles, 51 armored cars, 240 carloads of unspecified war material, and about 950,000 gallons of gasoline.

TEXT OF ITALIAN NOTE REJECTING PARLEY

LONDON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The text of the Italian note replying to the Franco-British proposal of a conference on withdrawal of foreign volunteers from the Spanish civil war follows:

The royal ministry of foreign affairs has the honor to refer to the communication of his Britannic majesty's embassy, dated the second instant [Oct. 2].

The Fascist government willingly takes note of the assurance furnished by the British government regarding the political independence of Spain.

For themselves, they [the Italian government] need not recall the assurances furnished on repeated occasions, in the most solemn fashion, regarding the political independence and, consequently, the territorial integrity, of Spain, its mainland, its islands and its colonies.

Pledges Good Will.

The Fascist government fully shares the hope expressed by the British government that the internal struggles of Spain may cease to be a cause of suspicion and friction between other nations and that the situation may evolve in such a manner that in other fields, also, progress may be realized toward a general detente [lessening of tension].

They [the Italian government] are ready, with every possible good will, to examine, as they have always done in the past, all means which may be thought suitable to render the policy of nonintervention effective.

Among the elements constituting this policy, the British government lays particular emphasis upon the question of volunteers and their withdrawal.

Cites Early Italian Stand.

Nevertheless, in order to indicate clearly individual political positions and responsibilities deriving from them and not for any untimely emphasis of polemic, it is opportune to recall how it was actually Italy, together with Germany, who was the first to draw attention to the question of volunteers and to insist that their dispatch should be forbidden and, subsequently, that provisions should be taken for their withdrawal.

The Italian government claims for itself and for the German government the merit of initiative directed toward consideration of this question as one of the indispensable elements of any policy of nonintervention.

Declarations Recalled.

In so far as they themselves [the Italian government] are concerned they recall the explicit declaration made to the French ambassador by the Italian foreign minister so long ago as August, 1936; to the declarations obtained in the verbal note of Jan. 7, 1937, addressed to the embassies of Great Britain and France; to that of Jan. 25, 1937, addressed only to the embassy of Great Britain and, finally, to the repeated declaration made by the Italian representative on the committee of nonintervention in London on the occasion of the last discussion of this question.

The Fascist government has the honor to confirm that in so far as concerns the whole question of nonintervention in its various aspects and elements, it maintains the same order of ideas as that which emerges from all the above mentioned declarations.

Doubts Practicability of Parley.

In its communication of the second instant, the British government suggests that conversations be initiated between the three governments of France, England and Italy for the purpose of reaching, if possible, an agreement of measures designed to insure the application of the policy of nonintervention.

The British government suggests such procedure with the intention of obviating difficulties which have occurred to the London committee.

The Fascist government appreciates in all its value the British suggestion but doubts whether the difficulties in question can be overcome by way of ingenuities or device of procedure, above all by that proposed.

Wants Rebels to Have a Hand.

They [the Fascist government] draw attention of the British government to the fact that the matter under discussion does not regard some state alone but, on the contrary, interests other states besides France, Britain and Italy. The further fact should not be overlooked that without the adherence of Burgos and Valencia [the two Spanish factions] any decisions of the question would fail to lead to practical results.

All the more so when one remembers the attitude of the representative of Valencia [the Spanish government], who by his specious pretext excluded in his speech at Geneva any possibility of evacuation of volunteers enrolled in the armed forces of his government.

The proposed discussion, in the absence of other states, would lack elements indispensable to the reaching of an agreement.

Demands Rôle for Germany.

It is the conviction of the Fascist government that the adoption of procedures—even if only preliminary—outside the London [nonintervention] committee and its organs, would in the present situation result not only in not diminishing but increasing the possibility of misunderstanding and complications and in retarding instead of hastening the attainment of a general agreement, an agreement which the Fascist government regards as supremely necessary.

The Fascist government is, therefore, of the opinion that the question of nonintervention should continue to be dealt with by the London committee.

The Fascist government has, finally, the honor to state that it will not participate in conversations, meetings or conferences to which the German government has not been formerly invited and in which it does not participate.

SPANISH REBELS FIGHT TO BLAST A PATH TO GIJON

Losses Reported Heavy in Intensified Drive.

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Spanish insurgents hurled their full strength into battle today in an effort to blast a path for a final advance on Gijon, the government's last stronghold on the bay of Biscay coast.

Driving at an eastern gateway to Gijon, insurgents fought for Cangas de Onis, strategic town thirty-one miles southeast of their main objective. Capture of the town would free the principal highway to the coast. Beyond Cangas de Onis, Villaviciosa remained the last town of importance before Gijon itself.

Insurgents reported the battlefield today was littered with the bodies of more than 1,000 loyalist soldiers; government sources countered with the assertion that insurgent casualties were heavier than their own.

Asturian defenders of the sole remaining patch of government held territory in northeastern Spain braved repeated assaults by infantry, tanks, and airplanes to hold their ground after a "strategic retreat" yesterday.

The insurgents carried "hill 430" near Cangas de Onis last night after what government reports described as some of the heaviest fighting of the fifteen month civil war.

Twenty-eight insurgent bombers escorted by pursuit planes launched an attack which was followed by troops surging up the hill in five consecutive assaults.

Retreat to "Save Lives."

Government reports said the drive was repulsed until dusk, when staff officers ordered a retreat in order to avoid further loss of life.

Although the government believed it had damaged insurgent airplane concentration of the Island of Malloraca in extensive bombing operations, the rebels struck back quickly with raids on Barcelona, on the east coast, and Lerida, inland to the west of Barcelona. The government reported no serious damage resulted.

SHERIDAN VETS WARNED TO SHUN FOREIGN SNARES

Brig. Gen. James A. Ryan, chairman of the Fort Sheridan reunion, last night told 500 world war veterans that they and the nation would do well to heed Washington's farewell advice to avoid entangling alliances with foreign powers. He advocated an adequate defense program to protect the United States from any enemy that might wish to try the nation's strength.

Gen. Ryan spoke at a banquet in the Hotel Sherman which closed the two day reunion of men who attended the first and second officers' training camps at Fort Sheridan. They revisited the post yesterday, watched a review of troops stationed there, and lunched at Camp Leonard Wood, the summer camp. Friday they toured the city and held company reunions.

In addition to advocating a hands off policy in foreign troubles Gen. Ryan indorsed military training for the youth of the land.

"Take all your hoodlums, all your gangsters, give them extensive military training, and you may decrease the number of jails and prisons throughout the land," he said. "For the young men who are not criminals, three months' training between the age of 17 and 21 will be a lesson in democracy that will be of benefit to them all their lives.

"They will live and work with young men of their own age, whom they never would have known but for such training. Sons of employers and sons of employés would camp together, would stand shoulder to shoulder in ranks and respect each other for the good traits discovered.

"Such a system of training will knit this nation into one great family, whose common aim would be the preservation of peace."

Madrid Reported Storing Food Supplies for Winter

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York Times.]

MADRID, Oct. 9.—For the last two months Madrid has been receiving three times as much food staples as it ordinarily consumes and has accumulated a good stock for the winter, according to tonight's Heraldo. The transport situation is well in hand, the newspaper asserts, and adds that by the end of October there should be enough reserve food to carry through the winter.

318 ITALIANS DIE AS TRIBESMEN IN ETHIOPIA REVOLT

ROME, Oct. 9.—[U. P.]—Armed bands of Ethiopian rebels massacred 318 Italian officers, soldiers, officials, and natives in Italy's newly acquired African empire during the latter part of September, Italian colonial officials revealed tonight.

Two Ethiopian rases [princes] named Chebbede and Ailu, who led the uprising of thousands of warriors and occupied the important center of Socota, were captured by native troops and beheaded. Viceroy Rodolfo Graziani ordered his Fascist Black Shirts and native troops to "show no mercy" in putting down the revolt. Bombing and pursuit planes were used against the rebels.

IL DUCE PLEDGES TOKIO SUPPORT, JAPANESE CLAIM

Aligns Self Against U. S. and League of Nations.

TOKIO, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Japan was represented as firmly determined tonight to stay away from a projected conference of world powers on the far eastern war, even though unwilling at present to denounce the nine power pact it is accused of violating.

The Japanese stand was set forth by reliable sources after the foreign office, replying to the condemnation of Japan by the league of nations and the United States, accused China of provocative acts which forced the war on Japan. The foregin office denied Japan had violated any treaties or had territorial ambitions.

Italy Backs Japan.

Coincident with the foreign office statement, Domei [Japanese] News agency said the Italian ambassador, Giacinto Auriti, voiced Italy's approval of Japan's action in China and "will never spare general support to Japan."

Domei said Auriti conveyed Italy's views to Kensuke Horinouchi, Japanese vice minister of foreign affairs, and authorized the vice minister to let the whole nation know how Italy stood.

[In Rome an official said the Italian government viewed developments in the far east with "complete comprehension" of the aims of the Japanese. This official said he did not know details of the conversation between the Italian ambassador at Tokio and the Japanese foreign office, but he added that the conversation must have been based on "harmony of viewpoint." The official expressed agreement with recent press articles in Italy condemning the stand of the United States in calling Japan the aggressor in China.]

Japs Soften Tone.

"Something," they said, changed the government's attitude within twelve hours. It was learned that the original plan was to comment separately on the United States' and league of nations' actions. Separate statements were said to have been ready for release last night.

This plan, this source said, was abandoned at the eleventh hour for the foreign office statement and no reason was given for the change.

Japanese newspapers were inclining more to view President Roosevelt's Chicago speech on world affairs as aimed for home consumption "and to take the people's minds off the Black-Ku Klux Klan controversy and the slumping stock market."

Sees Nations as "Brothers."

Yosuke Matsuoka, president of the South Manchuria Railway company, gave his view of Japan's cause in the conflict.

"Without Japan there can be no China," he wrote. He alluded to "Red communism eating into the heart of China" and "the drunken orgy of China's war lords and politicians."

"China and Japan are two brothers who have inherited a great mansion called eastern Asia," Matsuoka said. "The ne'er do well elder brother turned a dope fiend and a rogue. After many scraps the younger finally made up his mind to stage a showdown fight and that is the fight now raging along the North China and Shanghai fronts."

He termed "absurd" any contention that Japan "fights for loot." He said Japan's financial outlay for the war would not bring back even meager interest.

"She is simply footing the bill which the leadership of Asiatic races calls for," he said. "The all-absorbing question is: Can she bear the cross?"

Fears War, So He Leaps 50 Feet to His Death

LONDON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Dread of war was blamed today for the death of Frank Whiffen, 68 years of age, who plunged 50 feet from an apartment.

HOMELAND FLAGS GREET JAP INVADERS

With Rising Sun flags of Japan conspicuously displayed, residents of Machang, China, greeted Nipponese troops with conciliatory cups of tea. Machang, a few miles southwest of Tientsin, was overswept in the advance of the Japanese forces fighting in North China, in which territory the Nipponese army has scored its greatest successes. CHINA'S DICTATOR CALLS ON NATION FOR FINISH FIGHT

Says War with Japan Will Be Long One.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 10 [Sunday].—(AP)—While a million youthful soldiers under Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, dictator of China, and a quarter of a million of Emperor Hirohito's Japanese warriors were squared off today on all fronts the rest of China observed the nation's most important holiday—the "Double Tenth."

The anniversary—on the tenth day of the tenth month—marks the revolution 26 years ago which resulted in the creation of the Chinese republic.

The celebrations, subdued because of the war, came as there was a comparative lull in the fighting at Shanghai due to torrents of rain.

Japs Advance in North.

Despite a lessening in activities along some of the battle fronts the Japanese advanced along the Tientsin-Pukow railway, carrying the war well into Shantung province as the invaders pressed southward to Tehchow.

Reports received at Peiping said Japanese forces opened a drive yesterday against Chinese lines along the Huto river in an effort to reach Shihchiachuang in Hopei province.

Young and old throughout the nation observed "Independence day" by solemnly pledging redoubled efforts to prevent Japan from extending its domains in China.

The central figure in the celebrations was Gen. Chiang. In a nationwide broadcast from Nanking he said China would fight Japan to the last man. He said the war would be long and exhaustive and warned the people not to expect others to fight China's battles.

Predicts Greater Hardships.

"We must visualize ever increasing hardships and afflictions and be prepared to face situations and experiences ten times more difficult and harrowing than those faced today," he said.

Both the Japanese and Chinese watched with apprehension the dawn of the national holiday. The Chinese have boasted they would celebrate with a successful drive against the Japanese in the Shanghai sector; the latter hoped to make the day one of humiliation for their adversary.

Reports from Tsinanfu said the Japanese had pressed their battle line to within forty miles of that point. The dispatches said heavy Japanese bombing of the railway caused an exodus of the Tsinanfu populace eastward to Tsingtao.

A Hongkong dispatch said twelve officers and 200 men from the British cruiser Capetown, who had been stranded between Canton and Lokchong, arrived by train at Hongkong, as did twelve civilians. The British naval men, whose ship is bottled up in the Yangtze river, arrived after a four day journey from Hankow.

The government of the British crown colony at Hongkong appointed a commission to investigate the alleged sinking of Chinese fishing junks by Japanese warships. Reports said hundreds of fishermen died when submarines and destroyers sank their craft off the China coast.

GERMANY EXPANDS ITS FIGHTING FORCE; ADDS ANOTHER CORPS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 9.—The rate at which the German fighting forces are growing is far beyond the scope originally planned when conscription was introduced by Reichsfuehrer Hitler. This was indicated tonight in a three line message issued by the official German news agency.

The message announced the appointment of General of Cavalry Baron von Weichs as commander of a newly formed army corps. It is the 13th, with headquarters at Nuremberg.

This is the first time the existence of the new army corps has been made known to the public. Heretofore the strength of the German army was given as 12 army corps of three infantry divisions each, and three mechanized divisions.

POLICE SURGEON TURNS SLEUTH; SOLVES PUZZLE

Some rare detective work on the part of Police Surgeon Frederick Hanmore of the Central station helped to solve the identity of a young woman suffering from amnesia early today.

The woman called Police 1313 from a loop drug store at midnight, and told Policeman John Stieb in radio headquarters that she did not know who she was. Stieb sent police after her. She was 21 years old and comely.

There were no cards or usual means of identification in her purse. But there were a Milwaukee avenue street car transfer and three pieces of paper. Dr. Hanmore pieced these three scraps and found that they were torn parts of a medical prescription. He could make out the letters, "M. D.," and the last letter, "Y," of the doctor's name.

Dr. Hanmore reasoned from the Milwaukee avenue transfer the woman lived on the northwest side and that the physician who wrote out the prescription also lived in that section. So he looked up northwest side doctors whose name ended in "y," and located Dr. Casimir Przypyszny, 1174 Milwaukee avenue. The doctor quickly identified the woman as Mrs. Loretta Jawlowski, 1539 Cortez street.

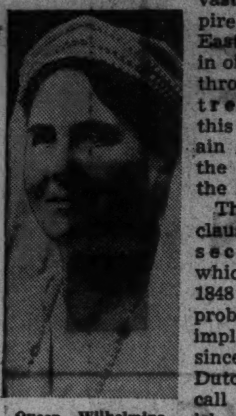
BRITAIN PLEDGES SELF TO PROTECT HOLLAND IN EAST

Fears Japanese Grab of Indies Oil Fields.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 9.—Dutch statesmen rely on British protection of their vast colonial empire in the Dutch East Indies, rich in oil and rubber, through a secret treaty. Under this treaty Britain guarantees the neutrality of the islands.



Queen Wilhelmina.

Through the clauses of this secret treaty, which dates from 1848 and which probably has been implemented since then, the Dutch are able to call on the British to defend their far-eastern possessions should they be attacked.

Dutch to Increase Armament.

Not relying entirely on this treaty, however, Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands recently announced to the Dutch parliament that further provision will be made for increasing armament in Holland and the Dutch East Indies in view of Japan's onslaught on China.

The British-Dutch treaty is interesting because it provides another back of the scenes political slant on what is going on in the far east. For it is generally known that Japanese expansion in China, and perhaps later on toward the Dutch East Indies and points southward in the Pacific routes, will require a grabbing of Dutch oil.

Japan's purchases of Dutch East Indies oil supplies are increasing by leaps and bounds. For this reason there long has been a tacit deal between the Dutch and British for pooling their defensive interests in the island waters east of Singapore.

If the islands, in which 60,000,000 people live, are of paramount commercial interest to the Dutch, they also are of paramount strategic interest to the British imperial defense schemes.

Strategists say that the islands are the first barricade against Japanese aggression against New Zealand and Australia. If Japan gets the islands it not only gets a jumping off point for moves southward, but also enough oil to supply its military needs for a bigger jump.

For a long time the spreading shadow of Britain's Singapore base gave the people of Java a sense of security, but since the Italian conquest of Ethiopia and the British preoccupation with European problems, the desire took shape, as one newspaper in Java put it, "to organize defenses for a much longer term of effective, unaided resistance against a foreign enemy than formerly was regarded as necessary."

Mine Island Waters.

The Dutch defense expenditure this year was one-eighth of the sum to be expended next year. Many preparations are too secret to be made public, but it is known that the Dutch are mining the island waters, erecting coastal artillery defenses, and developing submarine defense plans.

Four new mine sweepers recently left for Java. All shipyards are busy building vessels. A new armored cruiser, the Deruyter, was launched and commissioned.

Under future plans the Dutch home fleet will get another cruiser, three flotilla leaders, and twelve mine sweepers. The East Indies fleet will be reënforced by three cruisers, eighteen submarines, twelve destroyers, and seventy-two airplanes. Merchant ships will be armored for coastal defense.

Plan to Increase Conscripts.

More than that, Hendrikus Colijn, Dutch prime minister, who once was governor of the Dutch East Indies, announced a plan to provide for increasing the number of Dutch military conscripts from 19,000 annually to 32,000, with a longer period of training.

One thing could stop the Japanese bombings and expansion and that is to cut off their gasoline supply. That is why the Nipponese want the Dutch islands for their military needs. They now get most of their oil and gas, ironically enough, from Russia.

Just a year ago they induced Moscow to renew a permit to exploit the oil field in northern Sakhalin island for another five years. In 1935 they took 75,000,000 gallons of gasoline from Sakhalin.

Japan Buys from Dutch.

Dutch exports to Japan for commercial purposes already are high. Last year Japanese oil takings from the Dutch Indies in four months were as much as for the whole of 1935.

Freighter lines between Japan and the Dutch Indies are more than ordinary commercial considerations would seem to warant. The Dutch say these freighters are partially manned by Japanese military officers and troops ordered to acquaint themselves with the waters and conditions in the East Indies.

Reliant as they are on the British for protection, nothing would please the Dutch more than that the United States after all had decided not to give up the Philippines.

QUARRELS WITH WIFE; KILLS HIMSELF.

After a quarrel with his wife because he had lost part of his week's wages gambling, Walter Mueller, 4505 North Francisco avenue, an interior decorator, shot and killed himself in his home last night.

SERBIAN PREMIER FORCED TO DROP VATICAN TREATY

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York Times.]

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Oct. 9.—The publication today of an agreement between the Croat and Serb oppositions was promptly followed by a declaration by Premier Milan Stoyadinovitch that the government had abandoned the idea of concluding a concordat with the Vatican. The proposed concordat will not be submitted to the senate for ratification. The two opposition parties in a joint statement demanded that a new government be installed composed of represntatives of all political parties and a new and democratic constitution drawn up.

JAPS AIM TO WIN VAST RICHES BY NORTH CHINA WAR

Survey Reveals Enormous Wealth at Stake.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Oct. 9.—Wealth from mine, factory, farm, and sea is at stake in north China as Japanese and Chinese armies continue to fight. Coal, iron, textiles, cotton, foodstuffs, and salt will be prizes for Japan if it wins.

What China stands to lose economically in the five northern provinces when and if Japan establishes control there is indicated in a pamphlet published this summer by the council of international affairs in Nanking. In it the author, Tien-tsung Sih, a research fellow of the council, undertook to present an economic picture of Hopei, Shantung, Shansi, Chahar, and Suiyuan provinces.

Embraces Huge Area of China.

These areas, embracing about 17.6 per cent of all the people in China and Manchukuo and about 9 per cent of the total area, were lumped together by the Japanese, Sih said, "not because they constitute a distinct political or economic unit."

Rather, he said, they were grouped because the Japanese tried unsuccessfully to detach them in 1935 and "evidently have not yet abandoned hope of ultimately detaching them."

"These five northern provinces are closely linked with and inseparable from the other parts of China, both economically and politically," Sih said. "The future development of heavy industries in China will depend on the iron ore available in these provinces, but, on the other hand, manganese and tungsten necessary for steel manufacturing must be obtained from the southern provinces. In textile industries these provinces produce a large quantity of cotton and wool to supply the demand of the factories in the south, which in turn supply tea and various types of manufactured goods to the north.

A Wide Range of Products.

"The eastern part of these North China provinces may be regarded as a low, level plain, well adapted to agricultural development. Since they border on the sea, large quantities of salt and fish are obtainable. The hilly lands in the western part are particularly rich in coal deposits. In the northern part the pasture lands are suitable for raising sheep and cattle. Modern industries are growing up in Hopei, Shantung, and Shansi, but are little known in Chahar and Suiyuan. The utility of the railways has been greatly increased in recent years through the construction of highways to serve as feeders."

Coal is an important item of North China's potential mineral wealth. The pamphlet said this region has an estimated coal reserve of 132,759,000,000 tons, or 53.91 per cent of the estimated total reserve of China and Manchukuo.

Shansi province is by far the richest of the five in this reserve, being credited with 36,471,000,000 tons of anthracite coal, 87,985,000,000 tons of bituminous coal and 2,671,000,000 tons of lignite, a total of 127,127,000,000 tons. Despite the vast reserve, however, production lags and Shansi province in 1933 produced less than Hopei or Shantung, the pamphlet showed. The three together in that year turned out but 12,600,000 tons.

Foreign Capital Involved.

A large proportion of coal mines in the north are under the joint control of China and foreign interests, including British, Japanese, and German.

China's iron ore reserve was greatly reduced when Japan established Manchukuo in what formerly was Manchuria, Sih's pamphlet asserted, since that area is rich in iron. The remaining supply "is found largely in the North China provinces, particularly Hopei." The North China deposits are credited with containing 12[illegible],645,000 tons, compared with 872,181750 tons in Manchukuo and 136,975,000 tons in the rest of China.

[The Statesman's Year-book says Shansi province alone is estimated to have 300,000,000 tons of iron ore.]

Gold, gypsum, asbestor, fluor spar, and clay, with "comparatively small" production values, also are found in the five provinces.

Cotton Industry Important.

Textile industries, the manufacture of foodstuffs and beverages, chemical industries and machine making are found in North China. Sih's discussion deals only with modern industries, since handicraft industries "are gradually being displaced."

"The cotton industry is generally regarded as the most important in the north," he asserted. "About one-fifth of the spindleage and looms in China are located in Hopei, Shantung, and Shansi."

Wheat Principal Foodstuff.

The north has, the pamphlet said, 18 woolen mills with modern equipment.

"Wheat is the principal foodstuff in North China and its manufacture into flour forms a very important industry," Sih said. Of the 157 mills in China and Manchukuo, 32 are in the North China provinces. Two of these are Japanese.

Due to the raw materials available in Hopei, Shantung, and Shansi provinces, the chemical industries of North China produce chiefly alkali, acid, refined salt, dyestuffs, paper, lether, pottery, porcelain, glassware, cement, and matches, Sih said. North China produces more than one-third of the total Chinese output of salt.

[Salt is a Chinese government monopoly, but foreigners hold office in the salt administration because many foreign loans are secured on salt revenues. On Aug. 8 the Japanese co-commissioner of the Chinese salt administration took charge in the Tientsin district.]

Defends Jap Invasion

Prince Fumitaka Konoe, the Japanese premier's son, a student at Princeton university, reads university paper publishing his views on the Chinese-Japanese conflict.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Prince Fumitaka Konoe, son of the premier of Japan, admits his country has violated the Kellogg peace pact but claims Japan's course in China necessary for her national interests. His views are contained in an interview in the Daily Princetonian, student newspaper at Princeton university, where he is a senior. Konoe describes President Roosevelt's recent Chicago speech as "nothing much," and says, "The President thought he had to say something to reëstablish American prestige." Konoe is majoring in politics and will write a thesis on Chinese-Japanese relations since the world war. He is captain of the varsity golf team.

WEAK DEFENSES PERIL AUSTRALIA, NEW ZEALAND

Navies Helpless; Delay Long Range Arms Plan.

BY QUENTIN POPE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Oct. 9.—Despite the long range program of British empire strategists to keep Japan in bounds north of the equator, Australia and New Zealand are admittedly almost helpless, should the Japanese suddenly strike south.

Both have elaborate plans for new defenses to reinforce existing ones, but as a result of the arms race, delays in delivery of armaments during the last year have left these plans unfulfilled.

Australia and New Zealand are weak in naval forces. Their combined fleets total only two 10,000 ton cruisers, the Australia and the Canberra, the 7,000 ton cruiser Sydney, the 5,000 ton cruisers Dunedin, Diomede and Adelaide, the last mentioned being obsolete; the flotilla leader Stuart with no flotilla to lead, the destroyers Vendetta and Waterhen, and a few sloops.

Main Ports Well Fortified.

These would be quite ineffective, in a major conflict, even if backed by the 5,000 ton seaplane carrier Albatross, which now is being recommissioned. Behind this light naval screen the principal strongholds of both countries are at the main ports, which now are well fortified.

Schemes were evolved in 1934 to protect the coasts against raiders by means of heavier guns and more airplanes. Since the visit that year of Sir Maurice Hankey, secretary of the British committee of imperial defense, the Australians and New Zealanders have grown progressively more air minded. Today they have a large and excellent ground organization and have ambitious programs for air armaments. The programs, however, have suffered much delay because British factories are filled to capacity with orders for Britain's own rearmament, and few modern planes have reached here.

Australia did, however, manage to obtain several squadrons of Avro Avian planes, threatening to purchase American planes unless these were released.

Plane Strength Less Than 100.

New Zealand has only one squadron of Vickers Vildebeest torpedo bombers and recently was reduced to accepting a consignment of obsolete Blackburn Baffins.

The total of modern military machines possessed by both countries is less than 100.

Militia Highly Mechanized.

The military position is similar. The two dominions are busy reorganizing in this field. Until recent years strong citizen armies backed the rickety first line defenses, but prior to the depression the compulsory training system then in use was abolished by both governments and militia substituted.

Today this militia is only 30,000 strong in Australia and 8,000 in New Zealand, though it is somewhat more formidable than numbers would appear to make it. This is due to the great fire power and high degree of mechanization, the forces being splendidly equipped, quite well trained and of exceptional physique.

The main reliance for local defense has been on the new airplane scheme, and New Zealand and Australia are coördinating closely in a plan which would make the seas about their coasts subject to patrols of high speed, long range bombers.

U. S. Specimen Obtained.

Australia now is importing several new squadrons and has obtained a specimen American NA-16S for use as a pattern in building planes at a new factory with a yearly output of 300 ships. Airplane equipment, however, still is far below the needs.

Australia and New Zealand are not less vulnerable in their trade position, since 54 per cent of all of New Zealand's production and 45 per cent of Australia's went abroad last year.

SOVIET TO SPEND 150 MILLIONS FOR WARSHIPS IN U. S.

Speeds Fighting Program; Wants Huge Guns.

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The soviet government is ready to spend up to $150,000,000 for modern warship and naval equipment in the United States, qualified spokesmen said today.

The state department's disclosure this week that Russia has obtained licenses so far to spend $10,057,920 for navel vessels, armor plate, guns, and munitions was described by these authorities as "only a drop in the bucket" to what may be spent in the course of the next year.

Permitted Under 1936 Treaty.

For several months Russian agents here have been negotiating with shipbuilding companies for prefabricated construction of two or three battleships and for 16 inch guns. This caliber gun is the largest permitted under the London treaty of 1936, signed by the United States, Britain, and France and reportedly approved by Russia as long as Japan adheres to its principles.

The maximum size in battleships now under construction or projected by major powers is 35,000 tons and their cost is about $50,000,000 each. It was indicated by the spokesmen that this type of warship is desired by the soviet government.

Soviet Agency Active.

They said the Carp Export and Import corporation of New York, representing the soviet union in the purchase of navy materials in this country, has made no contract to date. Heading the company is Samuel Carp, an American citizen and brother-in-law of the Russian premier, Vyacheslaff Molotov.

It was understood that expenditures of up to $50,000,000 have already been authorized by Russia, but at least three times that amount may be spent if satisfactory contracts are obtained.

NYE WARNS U. S. NEAR 'HYSTERIA' OF 1917'S BRAND

Rutland, Vt., Oct. 9.—(AP)—United States Senator Gerald Nye of North Dakota declared today the United States was rapidly approaching the same "hysteria" over the same causes which 20 years ago carried this nation into the world war.

Speaking at the concluding session of the Vermont Education association the senator said: "We won the war but every cause for which we fought stands demonstrated as a lost cause. We fought a war to end war but we have no guarantee of peace in the future; we fought for freedom of the seas but we have not gained freedom."

SPEED SCRAP IRON TO GERMANY

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Scrap iron, the material used largely in the manufacture of armaments, was shipped from New York to Germany by passenger liner last week for what was said to be the first time. Here is the S. S. Hamburg at the 46th street pier in the metropolis to be loaded with 1,000 tons. In addition, 4,000 tons was to be loaded upon the S. S. St. Louis.

Shipment on 3d Liner.

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Rush orders of scrap iron for Germany—so "special delivery" that the metal is being crammed into the holds of Hamburg-American passenger vessels—lent an ominous aspect to the North river water front here today.

The liner Hamburg was no sooner in her berth than magnets and cranes began dangling over the hills of scrap cubes at Hamburg-America's pier. The liner St. Louis put out for Bremen and Hamburg today with 4,000 tons of scrap cramming her hold to the exclusion of all other freight. The liner New York sailed Wednesday with 1,000 tons of scrap.

RETAKEN FELON ADMITS DOUBLE POLICE KILLING

Names Wounded Pal as Fellow Slayer.

the seizure of Pogue, Moorehead, and Hanley Friday night. They were trapped in a basement flat at 1806 West 22d place by Detectives Thomas O'Connell and Frank Kehoe and other policemen. Moorehead resisted and was wounded, and is now in a critical condition in the Bridewell hospital. It is impossible to question him now.

At the time Capt. Gilbert had information that Moorehead and Pogue were involved in the police murders. He also had information that Turriano was involved. Turriano, who had been sentenced to prison in June, 1934, for robbery, was paroled last December. For the last nine months he has been under surveillance. He is known as "Peg Leg" because of a slight limp in his walk.

Throughout that long surveillance Turriano, police said, was a model of rectitude. And in prison Pogue and Moorehead were comparable models. But recently, police declared, the two became fidgety. Then they escaped.

Flight Seems Foolhardy.

On the surface their flight from prison seemed foolhardy, for they had served three years of a robbery sentence and were eligible to parole in ten months. Any serious violation of prison rules would mean seventeen more years, the actual maximum under the sentence.

Capt. Gilbert had secret evidence seeming to link Pogue and Moorehead with the police killings, but he pretended he could not understand why the convicts would risk 17 more years in prison by escaping when freedom was only a short time away for them.

Finally Pogue saw that the jig was up, police said, and told about the killings. He and Moorehead knew, he said, that police were waiting to seize them as soon as they were released from prison and to charge them with the slayings. For that reason, Pogue said, they made what seemed a senseless escape from prison. The information that they were wanted came to them, police said, through the prison grapevine.

Pogue's story was related to Turriano, but at 4 o'clock this morning he was still denying any knowledge of the murders. He will be questioned again this afternoon. If possible, Moorehead will also be questioned. Yesterday a former sweetheart, Miss Verna Thomas, 27, swallowed poison in her apartment at 4759 North avenue on learning of his arrest.

MAPPING POLICY OF AMERICA FOR 9 POWER PARLEY

Hull Directs Work Laid Out by Roosevelt.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—The state department today was rushing development of an American policy for the nation's delegates to the conference aimed to curb Japan's invasion of China under the nine power pact and the Kellogg-Briand peace pact. The task was being directed by Secretary of State Cordell Hull along lines laid out by President Roosevelt.

Plans "Onlooker" Rôle.

Just how far the United States will go in collaborative action against Japan's aggression in China, it was said, probably will not be revealed until the conference. Because the conference is sponsored by the league of nations, even though it concerns chiefly the nine nations who guaranteed China's territorial integrity, the United States representatives will most likely play the "onlooker."

State department officials dodged questions as to whether this country will urge the laying down of the "quarantine" President Roosevelt suggested against aggressor nations in his speech at Chicago Tuesday. Just what procedure under "quarantine" would be has not been revealed.

Formal convocation of the parley is expected within a few days. The date and place of the meeting and other pertinent matters were discussed yesterday and last night and today by Hugh Wilson, assistant secretary of state, and V. A. L. Mallett, charge d'affairs of the British embassy.

Thus far in the negotiations the United States has withstood efforts of Great Britain and France to push this country into assuming the lead in the parley. Bearing in mind warnings of isolationists that "it's Britain's war," this country has served notice it will join in the league's parley merely as a signatory of the nine power pact.

With the United States bent toward a moderate course, the other nations will have to advance proposals for dealing with the situation. It is expected that the question of an economic boycott against Japan will be one of the first raised at the parley.

Japan has indicated she will shun the conference. Italy also may not attend.

BRITAIN IS SEEN USING ROOSEVELT AS ITS CATSPAW

Still Follows Old Policy of "Balance of Power."

BY SAM BREWER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 9.—If President Roosevelt follows up his Chicago speech with any real action to curb the Japanese in China, or against Europe's dictators, as the British hope he will, he will run the serious risk of finding nobody behind him when the critical moment comes. This was indicated tonight by Great Britain's first reactions to Premier Mussolini's refusal to discuss the withdrawal of "volunteers" from Spain with the English and French. Italy's note was received here tonight.

Through all of history the British have survived and dominated by following a "balance of power" policy, and it is that policy which they are following now. Whether in Spain or the far east, they are not interested in any policy which would result in definitly arraying one group of powers as against another.

Speech Delights British.

President Roosevelt's speech was perfect for them, as it threw a scare into the aggressive group that has been running things lately. The British delight was illustrated by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain last night in his address to the Conservative party. Chamberlain applauded Roosevelt's move, but did not offer to lead the way.

The British government knows well that the United States will not try to lead the way after the results of experiments in that direction, when nobody followed, as the situation once more is "balanced," as the British like it.

Foreign office officials were reported tonight to be "in contact with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who is "in attendance" on King George VI. of Great Britain at Balmoral, Scotland. Actually, Prime Minister Chamberlain is understood to have taken foreign affairs pretty completely out of Eden's hands.

Eden "On the Shelf."

Eden's absence from the capital at such a critical period as this indicates the extent to which that has been done. It is an important point of Chamberlain's policy to insure that nothing will be done to ruffle the Mussolini-Hitler combine. Eden in the past has ruffled Mussolini frequently.

Valencia issued a statement through its embassy here tonight that it was informed Italy was preparing an "unprecedented campaign of provocations" and would make gas attacks on the chief Spanish cities. The statement said the Italians also planned to hoist the Spanish republican flag on commerce raiding submarines to discredit the loyalist government.

BUICK CARRIES THE BANNER FORWARD

WITHIN a few days formal announcement will be made of the new Buick cars for 1938.

When you examine these cars you will see they are sharply set apart from all others by two major engineering advances.

One is an outstanding improvement in Buick's valve-in-head straight-eight engine that sets a new milestone on the long highway of engine design.

The other is an outstanding improvement in the ride which adds vastly to driving ease and safety as well as to riding comfort.

* * * *

Both of these are engineering advances of the first rank, and both are exclusive to Buick—no other car to be announced this year will have them.

They represent Buick's working out of engineering principles uncovered in the great Research Laboratories of our parent corporation, General Motors.

For many years General Motors has studied the action of fuels in the gasoline engine, and these studies supplied the clue that let us make the first major engine improvement in a generation.

When you remember that Buick's valve-in-head engine was already 10% more efficient than other engines of the same size, the importance of this improvement is obvious.

Similarly, General Motors research into riding qualities has developed much new data in this field. Advantaged by this, we are now able to give Buick a new form of spring suspension which lends an entirely new and delightful character to its ride.

* * * *

When you see what these two spectacular engineering advances mean to you as a car-owner, you will agree that either is of sufficient importance to make history.

So Buick is doubly proud to be able to offer you both in the same year.

We invite you to ride in a 1938 Buick at the earliest opportunity and experience for yourself the benefits derived from these twin advancements.

You will say they brilliantly carry forward the banners of Buick and General Motors to new heights of engineering pre-eminence.

913 EXECUTED IN 8 MONTHS OF RUSSIAN PURGE

One of History's Greatest Blood Lettings.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Oct. 9.—Josef Stalin's campaign to crush all opposition to his soviet Russian dictatorship has turned into one of the most extensive peace-time blood lettings in history. So far this month firing squads have killed 153 persons, including eight high officials of one of the constituent soviet republics. Since Feb. 1 of this year at least 913 have been put to death.

The latest victims were 28 persons shot to death today for anti-government activity. These included fourteen shot in southern Russia, four in Leningrad, four in the far east and six in Kazakstan.

Among the purge victims were generals, railway executives, collective farm and grain officials, industrial chiefs, and dozens of men who formerly were high in soviet state councils.

This total of 913 in a little more than eight months includes only those executions reported in Russian newspapers. Unofficial reports place the number of victims as high as 1,500.

Many Commit Suicide.

The executions are only part of the story. Several bigwig reds have suddenly committed suicide or have met death under mysterious circumstances. Thousands have been imprisoned and other thousands have been kicked out of big political jobs.

Readers of the official Pravda [Truth] have no idea of the extent of the purge. Most news of mass executions is printed only in obscure local newspapers in the districts where they occur.

Soviet sympathizers insist that the Moscow press is not trying to hush the story. They declare that the metropolitan papers publish little about executions because the papers lack space, and because, anyway, those executed were worthless fellows.

Here Today, Gone Tomorrow.

No effort is made by Russians to explain the system under which a man on one day is high in soviet state councils and on the next day is a "Trotzkyist," wrecker, or counter-revolutionary.

Experienced observers, however, advance several theories. One theory is that the Stalin régime, frightened at a growing wave of unrest and disloyalty, is using mass executions to stop a possible counter-revolution.

These observers point to the sudden invoking of censorship, in contrast to the strenuous efforts made to publicize the two spectacular "old bolshevik" trials in August, 1936, and in January of this year.

Another theory is that Stalin wishes to make sure of no dissenting votes in the first parliamentary elections soon to be held under the new constitution.

Some commentators have suggested that the exiled Leon Trotzky, now in Mexico, is being used by Stalin as an excuse for removing any "old bolsheviks." These observers believe Trotzky has escaped assassination because Stalin needs him as a bogey man.

Another suggested explanation of the purge is one advanced recently in Moscow by an editorial writer for Izvestia, who daringly accused communist officials of hiding their own inefficiency under a campaign against "saboteurs."

STALIN'S PURGE SPREADS DEATH OVER SOVIET RUSSIA

(Story in adjoining column.)

Figures on map indicate the number of persons shot to death in cities or adjoining districts of the soviet union since Feb. 1 on charges involving "spying, wrecking, treason," and other crimes. During this period, a little more than eight months, at least 913 persons have been executed in what is declared to be one of the most extensive blood purges in history. These are executions reported in the official soviet press. Many observers believe the number is far greater than this.

POPULAR DECEPTIONS

By CALEB

WE are tempted to quote a few words from a timely sermon of Leonard Withington, who was talking on certain "Popular Deceptions."

"We talk of religious delusions," he said. "They have been many and are much to be lamented. . . . But who would think that the love of money would impel men to embrace impossibilities in their pecuniary greed? . . . For many ages in Europe it was believed that some people had the secret art of transmuting the baser metals into gold. . . . But there is another way in which men have been deceived and that is by those extravagant projects which have been swallowed time on end by credulous people to their ruin. These also have existed in every age. . . . An impostor appeared in Judea about the time of our Saviour. . . . A very strong delusion prevailed in the days of Nero that treasure was to be found—but alas, when the search was made it was not found. In Sir Walter Raleigh's days, he pretended he had found a gold mine and the King was prevailed upon to outfit an expedition. . . . You all have heard of the bubbles which arose in Europe between the years of 1718 and 1720. It was a remarkable time. Mammon seemed to be the God they worshiped; and an age of wealth and luxury seemed to prepare the way for every excess." Came the South Sea scheme, and John Law, with his Mississippi scheme in France. "The whole nation was drunk with anticipated riches. Rumors diffused by Law's emissaries acted like a contagion. All distinctions of party, religion, sex, character, and circumstances were swallowed up in the universal concern. . . . But soon the bubble burst. Many that thought themselves lords of thousands found all their property gone and ended their days in want and despair if they did not commit suicide.

"We read these accounts with wonder. The infatuation appears to us almost incredible. But the question is whether the world has profited by its experience and grown any wiser."

CUSTOMS and manners change, but human nature never. We are particularly intrigued by the words of the Reverend Mr. Withington since they were spoken, not as one might believe, a week ago, or a year ago, but one hundred years ago at Newburyport! We, too, wonder if the world has profited by its own experience.

If thousands of people would spend more money for the things which will bring lasting happiness to them in their homes instead of devoting their funds to efforts endlessly to make more, it is barely possible that the sum total of human happiness in a city like Chicago might be materially increased.

DUKE AND WALLY WILL BE PRIVATE GUESTS OF HITLER

Ducal Couple Is Due in Berlin Tomorrow.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 9.—THE TRIBUNE correspondent learned today from a most authoritative source that the duke and duchess of Windsor are coming to Germany as private guests of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler and not as guests of Robert Ley, chief of the Labor Front, as declared in official quarters.

Ley will be responsible only for the choosing of factories and settlements for inspections by the former King Edward VIII. of Great Britain and his duchess, and therefore is working out a program for the visit of the duke and duchess.

Members of the foreign office will be attached to the Windsors' party in an "unofficial capacity."

Reach Berlin Tomorrow.

The abdicated king and his American wife will arrive in Berlin Monday morning. Hitler's aids made hotel reservations for the Windsors today, taking a grand suite for the couple and arranging quarters for other members of the party. No reservations were made for Edward's detectives and it was assumed the German police will guard him.

Though their visit is termed strictly unofficial, a program for the visit has been worked out as carefully as was done for the recent five day visit of Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy.

Armament works, factories, breweries, and workers' settlements are among the centers included in the ducal tour of social investigation, Ley asserted.

The start will be made on Monday with the inspection of a tools and machinery factory in Marienfelde, a suburb of Berlin, while the afternoon will be devoted to a visit to the Olympic stadium and nearby Mayfield where Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Premier Mussolini recently addressed an audience of a million persons.

Tuesday's Program Outlined.

Thereafter they will have tea with Ley, with only a few other guests present.

On Tuesday they will be fully engaged, first with a visit to the headquarters of the Nazi Welfare association, followed by an inspection of the Schultheiss-Patzenhofer brewery. That afternoon will be spent at a settlement at Staaken near a big airport for training officers of the air force.

A big "strength through joy" demonstration will be made for the ducal couple in the evening, with country dances by picturesquely dressed performers.

[The "strength through joy" movement is sponsored by the Labor Front to provide recreation for workers.]

To Inspect Brunswick Plants.

Their first experience with Germany's national automobile roads will be gained on Wednesday when the duke and duchess motor over the new road to Stettin. They will call at Kroessinsee, training center for young Nazi functionaries, and proceed to the island of Ruegen, where the "strength through joy" movement is constructing a vast holiday resort for workers.

Returning to Berlin, they will travel on Thursday over the motor road to Brunswick, inspecting various plants there and stopping for the night in Bielefeld.

Then on Friday comes one of the most interesting features of the tour—an inspection of the Krupp arms factory at Essen, which Hitler personally showed to Mussolini.

Details of the remainder of the tour have not been fixed, but other towns will be visited.

Duke Bans All Press Talk.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

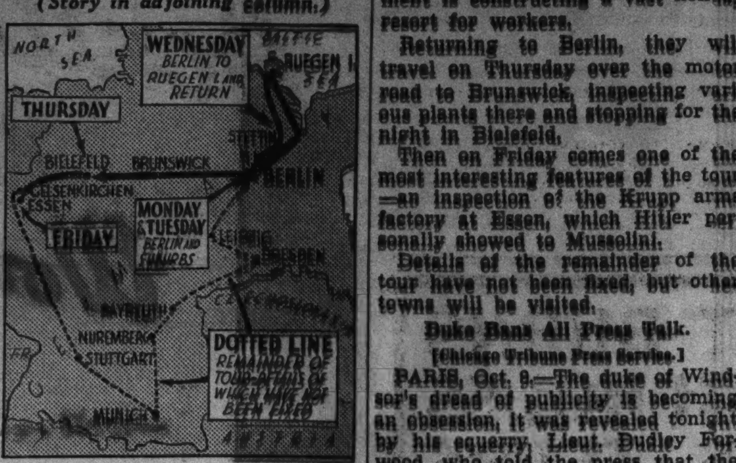
PARIS, Oct. 9.—The duke of Windsor's dread of publicity is becoming an obsession, it was revealed tonight by his equerry, Lieut. Dudley Forwood, who told the press that the duke gave emphatic orders that neither Forwood nor any person in his entourage hereafter was to speak to the press.

The duke's view, according to Forwood, is that he is now a private individual entitled to privacy and that his daily doings cannot possibly have interest for any one. The big events in his life he will announce by communique.

The Windsors' party will leave Paris at 6:15 p. m. tomorrow by the smart international train, Nord Express, direct for Berlin.

Windsor Itinerary

(Story in adjoining column.)



Heavy solid lines in this map of Germany indicate the route to be followed by the duke and duchess of Windsor, beginning with their visit in Berlin and vicinity tomorrow. Their route after they reach Essen on Friday has not been decided definitly, but will include cities shown on dotted lines.

16 Die, 100 Hurt as Brazil Is Pounded by Windstorm

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Provincial dispatches tonight reported that sixteen persons were killed and more than 100 injured in windstorms which pounded the southeastern Brazilian coast. Hamlets near the town of Santa Maria were damaged and many homes destroyed. Winds churned the waters of Rio Plata at Buenos Aires, Argentine capital, crippling navigation and threatening the city water supply.

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 9.—Gen. Saturnino Cedillo, chief of the last private army in Mexico, whose forces had two clashes with government supporters last week, has purchased six new fast planes in the United States to replace those seized from him by the government after he was forced to resign as secretary of agriculture.

The new acquisitions bring Gen. Cedillo's fleet to fourteen planes. Gen. Cedillo has his own landing field and radio station on his ranch in San Luis Potosi.

The first clash between Cedillistas and government-backed unionists occurred last Sunday in the town of Valles, San Luis Potosi. Four were killed. Last Thursday a deputy in congress who had forsaken Gen. Cedillo for President Lazar Cardenas' party, was shot in the streets of the state capital. Federal troops are being moved toward San Luis Potosi.

KILLED BY AUTO ACCIDENT.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Roy Fulton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Fulton, died after an auto ran into a ditch and turned over several times.

SON OF MUSSOLINI IN WASHINGTON FOR VISIT WITH PRESIDENT

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Vittorio Mussolini, son of the Italian dictator arrived in Washington today for a "purely unofficial" visit that will include a call on President Roosevelt.

The blonde, ruddy cheeked Italian, who is 21 years old, was the guest of the Italian embassy. Embassy officials said he would leave for Italy some time next week. He is scheduled to visit the President on Monday.

Young Mussolini has been in Hollywood studying the moving picture business. He replied with a quick "no comment" when asked whether he believed American girls prettier than Italian girls.

SPEECH ASSOCIATION TO MEET.

The three day annual convention of the American Speech Correction association will open tomorrow at the Palmer house. Tuesday night the association will meet jointly with the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology.

TEST POPULARITY OF FRENCH RULE IN BALLOT TODAY

PARIS, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Hoarse political orators tonight ended nationwide cantonal election campaigns which they consider a test of the strength of the people's front government.

Newspapers and politicians agreed that ballots cast in tomorrow's voting for local officials would be a barometer of national sentiment in regard to Premier Camille Chautemps' government. Only Paris and the Seine department will not vote tomorrow. Their local elections come later.

Scattered skirmishes between right and left elements resulted in one death and at least 16 persons wounded 24 hours before the balloting began.

SUPREME COURT PONDERS RIGHT OF BLACK TO SIT

Challenge Is Considered in Secret Session.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—When Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes of the United States Supreme court thumbed the long list of cases under consideration in secret conference today, he came to one called "Ex Parte Levitt." Immemorial usage decreed that Justice Hugo L. Black, as the court's junior member, be asked to give his views on the merits of the case before any of his brethren were heard.

Immemorial usage likewise decreed that Mr. Black get up and excuse himself at that juncture, because "Ex Parte Levitt" challenges his title under the constitution to a seat on the bench of the Supreme court. No justice, if he adheres to the court's standards of ethics, participates in the consideration of a case in which he is or has been even remotely interested, but it could not be ascertained today whether Black left the closely guarded conference when "Ex Parte Levitt" was called.

Decision Expected Tomorrow.

Today's secret conference was the last before the court's meeting on Monday, when it is expected to announce whether it will entertain the petition filed by Albert Levitt, former federal judge in the Virgin Islands, which seeks to remove Black from the bench.

Mr. Levitt contends [1] that Black's appointment by President Roosevelt was unconstitutional, since the voluntary retirement act for Supreme court justices increased the emoluments of the office and made members of congress ineligible thereto during the term for which they were elected, [2] that the retirement of Justice Willis Van Devanter, while retaining the status of a justice, left no vacancy, since the size of the court is fixed by law at nine members.

Second Suit Goes Farther.

Patrick Henry Kelly, a Boston lawyer, also has filed a motion challenging Black's eligibility. He goes even farther than Levitt, contending that the Sumners-McCarran act is unconstitutional in that congress has no right to relieve the justices of their duties unless they resign.

Most constitutional authorities agree that the propositions of law as advanced by Attorneys Levitt and Kelly are sound, but the predominant opinion is that the Supreme court has no original jurisdiction in such matters. Many lawyers believe, also, that the court will be forced to dismiss the petitions on the ground that the challengers haven't sufficient interest in the action.

Cummings Holds Whip Hand.

The common law writ of quo warranto, which demands "by what right," would be the proper course, legal experts believe, but only the attorney general or perhaps some state could bring such a suit. Certainly Attorney General Homer S. Cummings has no intention of filing a quo warranto suit, and most lawyers doubt that a mandamus proceeding to force his hand would have any standing in court.

Interest in the court's meeting on Monday is expected to be as great almost as it was on the opening day, last Monday, when Black took his seat. The furious controversy over the Ku Klux Klan, which culminated with Black's confession that he joined the bigoted hooded order fifteen years ago, still is fresh in the public consciousness. Also there is great interest in the disposition to be made of the petitions challenging Black's eligibility, which Chief Justice Hughes permitted to be filed at last Monday's session.

Newspaper reporters and cameramen have great difficulty following Black's movements. He has himself driven to the rear of the magnificent new court building, in his own automobile, and enters by a private door from a passageway forbidden to reporters. His office help refuses to give out any information concerning him, usually refusing to answer the telephone.

Black is the temporary guest of Brig. Gen. Wallace DeWitt at the Army War college while Mrs. Black is visiting in Birmingham, Ala., their old home, pending their location in a new house in Washington.

Black's office staf has notified the society editors that he is not accepting social invitations for the time being and will not do so until he and his wife get settled. However, it transpires that he has purchased a silk hat and a frock coat, something he did not affect as a senator. Last Monday, after the Supreme court adjourned, and wearing the new silk hat and frock coat, Mr. Black took his wife and made a round of calls on all the other justices and their wives.

Fellow Justices "Not at Home."

Although a new justice is expected to make a courtesy call on his brethren at their homes, and the wives of Supreme court justices hold regular "at homes" on Monday afternoons, Justice and Mrs. Black were not expected so early in the season. As a result they found some, but not all of the other justices at home.

Justice and Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone were at home, but not having expected callers, they were not prepared to offer Justice and Mrs. Black any tea.

Raped and Beaten

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Betty Jane Rush, 10 years old, Columbus, O., who escaped from moron and returned home early today, several hours after she had been abducted.

Columbus, O., Oct. 10 [Sunday].—(AP)—Detective William Murphy reported early today that Betty Jane Rush, 10 years old, had been returned home after being kidnaped from a street last night and held captive for several hours by a degenerate who beat and raped her.

Murphy said the girl was seen running along the street shortly before 1:30 a. m. by William Love, an uncle by marriage. He said Love took the sobbing girl to the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Jennie Rush, 68, where the fourth grade schoolgirl lived with three other children of Mrs. Lela Dillon of Kalamazoo, Mich., their mother.

Police began an intensive search of the modest residential neighborhood where the kidnaping occurred as the girl was returning home from a confectionery store with her brother, Billy, 11.

Safely home, the girl sobbed out a story of how a man about 30 years old had grabbed her by the throat, taken her to the basement of a dwelling and raped her. She said she escaped while her abductor was in another part of the house and kept running until she heard her uncle call to her.

SLAYS FIANCEE WHO IS ENGAGED TO ANOTHER MAN

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Worth Clements, 37, a grocer's clerk of Miami, Fla., arrived here today to marry Lucille Register, 27, but found her engaged to another man. Tonight she was dead and Clements was seriously wounded.

Detective Lieutenant Thad Brown said Miss Register had asked protection from Clements, but he had agreed to leave town. Later, Brown said, Clements met his former fiancée, shot her through the head, and then fired two bullets into his chest. Hospital attendants said Clements may recover.

A witness to the shooting was Stanley Register, 8, brother of the slain woman, whom Clements had adopted in Miami.

GROWING FARM IMPORTS STIFLE HOME MARKETS

Congress Ready for New Crop Cuts.

three-fourths of the imported products, or their substitutes, could be produced on American soil. The millions of dollars paid to foreign farmers if turned into the pockets of American farmers would have amounted to about $150 per farm family last year.

How Soil Dominates.

Economists with government figures to back them up have estimated that all primary purchasing power in this country originates in the soil, excepting that obtained from fisheries and mines, and that farmers lead prosperity parades of the nation. They show that the gross farm income goes ahead of factory pay rolls year after year when the country is on the upswing and goes down ahead of pay rolls in less prosperous times.

America is expected to continue to look to foreign producers for such products as coffee, tea, cocoa, spices, silk, and certain kinds of tobaccos used in manufacturing cigars and cigarets. These products had a total valuation last year of about 850 million dollars. This still leaves 900 million dollars' worth of imports that could be produced largely in this country.

In planning a long time agricultural program, America has the land, men, machines, horses, money, and climate with which to grow and manufacture at home under an adequate tarif most of the long list of farm products now imported, including major crops. This list would include such products as cattle, hogs, sheep, dairy products, wheat, corn, oats, rye, barley, buckwheat, rice, hay, fruits, vegetables, sugar, vegetable oils, cotton, wool, flax, and hemp.

Good Crops May Help.

High prices and the present tarif rates may encourage a continuation of foreign imports of farm products. A big crop of corn, small grains, and other feeds produced this year may aid, however, in reducing imports.

American farmers could easily have produced most of the 100 million dollars worth of cattle, hogs, sheep, goats, and poultry and their products brought into this country during the first half of this year. The animal products include fresh and cured meats, oils and fats, hides, skins, and lether. The value of the imported animals alone amounted to more than 10½ million dollars and meat products totaled more than 21 million dollars in the six month period.

This does not include cream, butter, cheese, and milk worth between 8½ and 9 million dollars brought in from foreign lands in the first six months of 1937. Dairymen here have the cows, equipment, and the land on which to grow hay, silage, and grain needed to produce these dairy products.

Much of the imported hides and skins taken from cattle, sheep, and goats could be produced in the United States. This item exceeds 41½ million dollars for the first half of this year.

Pork Imports Soar.

Figures on pork imports for 1937 and previous years portray graphically the trend of America away from self-sufficiency. Last August the amount of pork brought in was 6,773,856 pounds. The corresponding, and contrasting, statistics for this month in other years were: 1936, 3,572,979 pounds; 1935, 1,346,463 pounds, and 1934, 134,000 pounds.

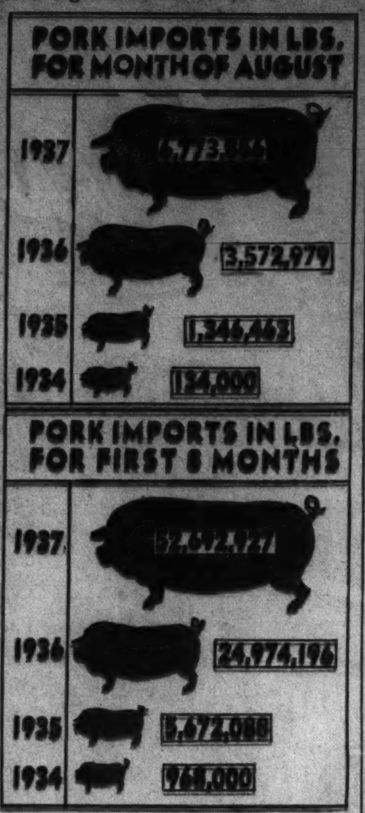
Comparison of increase in last four years. The volume in the single month of August, 1937, was nearly seven times the total for the first eight months of 1934.



In eight months ending Aug. 31, 1937, total pork imports were 52,692,927 pounds. The total for the same period in 1936 was 24,974,196 pounds; in 1935, 5,762,088 pounds, and in 1934, 968,000 pounds. The whole year 1936—which furnished a record never before approached, saw pork imports of 41,848,011 pounds. Already 1937 is far ahead of this and going at a rate that may mean the doubling of last year's pork intake from foreign parts.

Home Lether Production.

Farmers and manufacturers in this country could take over the job of manufacturing much of the lether now imported. The United States paid foreign producers more than 10 million dollars for the lether brought in during the first six months of this year.

Grain and grain preparations make up the biggest item on the import list, totalling more than 66½ million dollars up to the end of June. Grain growers are well equipped to raise these crops including corn, oats, wheat, barley, rye, rice, and buckwheat. All, excepting rice, are commonly grown in the central west where there is plenty of room to raise more.

Common Crops Brought In.

Vegetable growers say that this country does not need to go abroad for such common crops as beans, peas, potatoes, turnips, onions, and tomatoes, because they are easily raised at home. Importers brought in more than 15 million dollars worth of them during the first six months of this year.

American manufacturers could save the nation a big transportation bill and create jobs for thousands of workers by taking over the spinning and weaving of cotton imported annually. In excess of 43½ million dollars worth of manufacturers, unmanufactured and semimanufactured cotton came in from January 1 to June 30 of this year.

Much more cane and beet sugar, as well as molasses, could be grown in the United States. The big field for home producers is indicated by the fact that more than 117½ million dollars' worth of these products were brought in during the first half of this year.

Fibers a Big Item.

Fibers make up one of the big items on the agricultural import list. These include hemp and flax which can be raised successfully over a wide area in the United States. Hemp and flax could be raised to be used as substitutes for imported fiber crops that cannot be raised here. This would include jute, used in making sacks and similar products. America's imports of hemp, flax, and ramie totaled more than 19 million dollars for the first six months of this year; jute imports exceeded 32 million dollars.

Wool and mohair imports went above 85½ million dollars. Farmers, with sufficient encouragement, might find a way to adjust their wool production program. The domestic consumption of mutton could be increased by a nation-wide educational program which, it is believed, would be particularly effective in certain regions of the middle west and west where the per capita consumption of mutton has always lagged behind that of the eastern metropolitan areas. This would help the farmers turn out a bigger and more profitable wool crop.

FATHER COUGHLIN CANCELS HIS 26 RADIO LECTURES

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, reproved by his new archbishop for using "unfortunate words" in a criticism of President Roosevelt, cancelled a projected series of 26 radio broadcasts today after failing to obtain approval for publication of a reply to the archbishop.

Archbishop Edward Mooney objected to the priest's use in an interview of the words "personal stupidity" in describing the President's appointment of Supreme Court Justice Hugo L. Black.

Father Coughlin issued the following formal statement:

"Father Coughlin presented to Archbishop Mooney, for approval for publication, his reply to the archbishop's statement. This approval was withheld. Father Coughlin therefore has no comment to make.

"Father Coughlin will cancel his contract for a series of 26 broadcasts over 35 national stations, scheduled to start Oct. 31."

Enjoy a Carefree Comfortable Winter

Let TEMPLUX

PUT AN END TO YOUR HEATING WORRIES

Yes!

AUTOMATIC COAL HEATING IN YOUR OWN FURNACE or BOILER WITHOUT SMOKE, ASHES or BOTHER

What a wonderful winter this could be for you if there was no running down stairs to look after the fire,—if the fire would never go out,—if the house would never become overly hot or unbearably chilly! How nice it would be if you could go right on burning coal without handling bushels of dusty ash,—and without volumes of black smoke going up the chimney!

You can start—right now—to make these wishes come true. In just a few hours' time TEMPLUX can be installed,—without altering your heating system in any way. This beautifully engineered stoker will instantly take complete charge of your heating job, and do it so competently, so automatically, and so quietly that you'll hardly realize you have a furnace in the home. You'll always have the exact temperature you want, without any of the chilly periods that come from off-and-on firing;—just a steady, even warmth that is electrically kept under accurate control. Your heating plant will be fed its coal by electric power, and from now until late Spring you'll never have to worry about the fire getting too low, too hot, or going out. Imagine the luxury of all this; think of the pleasure that can be yours!

Don't worry about the cost;—completely modernizing your heating plant with TEMPLUX can be more than paid for out of actual cash savings. Thousands of people are installing this de luxe automatic coal burner for the economy alone! For with TEMPLUX you no longer burn the premium-price coal; you use the dustless, lower-priced stoker grade fuel. All of it is turned into heat,—even the smoke is consumed by the efficient under-feed method of firing! So thorough is the combustion that there is no loose ash to bother with,—just a few burned-out surface clinkers to remove.

There are ever so many other advantages to TEMPLUX, so many mechanical reasons why TEMPLUX is the outstanding automatic heating achievement, that we urge you to get all the details. Call Delaware 6887—or send the coupon—for free copy of the interesting new book, "Coal Heating Goes Modern." Do as thousands of others are doing—act now—and face the winter with your heating problem licked.

ONLY A FEW CENTS A DAY — INSTALL NOW — PAY LATER

THE REMARKABLE, NEW ELECTRICALLY OPERATED TEMPLUX WILL GIVE YOU CLEAN, STEADY, HEALTHFUL HEAT . . . at a saving

Let TEMPLUX convert your furnace or boiler into the modern heating plant you have always wanted. It's the wise thing to do, because TEMPLUX allows you to keep on burning the solid fuel which your heating plant was designed, built, and installed to burn.

Everything is under electrical control — even to seeing to it that the fire does not go out on you, or get too hot. TEMPLUX responds to this control perfectly, because of the exclusive mechanical refinements which make it the outstanding stoker of the age. Years of developing, of testing, and of making dead sure that TEMPLUX would have no peer in the stoker field, with all of the talent and resources of the huge Borg-Warner Corporation at its command, assure you of getting carefree, trouble-proof service years beyond the protective TEMPLUX Guarantee.

TEMPLUX is the only stoker with an infinite coal-feeding adjustment. With the gearless "roller-clutch" Templus transmission, you can set the feed screw to deliver as much as 50 pounds of coal per hour down to as little as a pound a day! No other stoker has this great advantage! And the TORIDIZER—what a marvelously efficient burner it is! The coal is fed to it, automatically, A SPOONFUL AT A TIME—the truly efficient way of extracting all the heat from the coal. Don't delay—investigate now!

MIGHTY BATTLE IN CONGRESS ON TAXES IMPENDS

Stiff Levies Are Blamed for Market Fall.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Lines are being formed for a mighty battle in congress over taxes, economy, and balancing the budget.

Everybody is going to be in favor of balancing the budget and the controversy will arrive over the method of doing it. On the one side will be ranged the economizers in congress who would curtail expenditures so drastically as to bring the budget into balance without increasing taxes. On the other side will be the spenders who would increase expenditures and obtain the necessary additional revenue from an income tax boost to bring income up to outgo.

Strategy of President.

President Roosevelt has disclosed his strategy, which is to hold out the prospect of a balanced budget without increasing taxes if congress votes him the crop control and wage and hour legislation he is seeking. His argument is that such legislation would increase purchasing power and decrease unemployment to such an extent that increased tax revenue from improved business would exceed expenditures decreased by lessening of the relief load.

Those who oppose the President's scarcity economics contend that such legislation would produce precisely the opposite effect, that it would retard recovery of prosperity, as did the similar NRA experiment, and depress business to such an extent as to throw the budget still farther out of balance.

Roswell Magill, undersecretary of the treasury, recently disclosed that the treasury tax experts are working out a proposal to boost the income taxes of those in the brackets between $5,000 and $50,000. No widening of the base to bring persons with small incomes now exempt into the tax structure has been considered up to date.

Terms Taxes Inequitable.

Morris S. Tremaine, a friend of the President's and controler of the state of New York for ten years, asserted, following a call on Mr. Magill that taxes are already too high and inequitable. To the Roosevelt tax legislation he attributed the recent stock market slump and declared the country to be in danger of a business recession traceable to the same source. Mr. Tremaine blamed the stock market slump directly upon the federal capital gains and losses tax, and the undistributed profits tax.

"I'd like to get more money from the rich man," said Mr. Tremaine, "but you can't get it under our present tax structure. Our taxes are based on a soak the poor principle—not soak the rich. We've got to get more money from the rich and you can't get it under the present system."

Hits Capital Gains Levy.

Repeal or drastic modification of the capital gains and undistributed profits taxes would result next year in a $10,000,000 increase in taxes derived by New York state from Wall street, and a $50,000,000 increase in tax returns from other sources, due to the general increased velocity of business which would result from such a revision, he stated.

Speaking of results to the federal government, he said that the proposed revision would increase net revenues by 5 per cent, or more than 250 million dollars.

"The capital gains and undistributed profits taxes are responsible for the present thin market," he said. "It gives the bear a great opportunity when he knows the bids are thin to sell short. No new business of any account has started in the last five years. There is no new enterprise."

Blames High U. S. Taxes.

The lack of enterprise, like the stock market stagnation, was due to the high federal taxes, which tend to penalize business enterprise, he said.

"People won't move their investments," he declared, "because they won't pay the heavy taxes. They get pig-headed about it and you can't blame them.

"The worst thing is that the present taxes do not get the large corporations, which can fund their debts and carry on with capital obtained from the banks. They prevent the little fellow from developing a reserve sufficient to expand his business.

"Just think, Ford started with a capitalization of about $28,000 and built up his business from earnings. Practically all of the large corporations today were built up from earnings, yet the undistributed profits tax prohibits the small business man from applying his earnings constructively. It is killing the intermediate business man."

Oppose Boosting Levies.

A canvass of those members of congressional committees having to do with taxes who are in Washington revealed a strong aversion to all proposals for increasing existing levies.

Agreeing with his colleagues that reduction of government expenditures should be the first step toward a balanced budget, Senator Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.], an ardent exponent of economy, declared that before an increase in existing levies is considered congress should plug up the biggest loophole in the tax structure—tax exempt securities and the salaries of some 850,000 federal employés and some 4,000,000 state and local government employés.

Elaborating in great detail a contention he has been making all along that federal, state, and local securities and government employés should bear their share of taxation, Senator Byrd estimated that the tax free income from such securities and government pay rolls constitutes one-tenth of the national income. To let this part of the national income go tax free, he argued, is a nullification of the theory of taxation in accordance with ability to pay.

Senator Byrd estimated that tax exempt pay rolls of government units total 7 billion 500 million dollars, of which 1 billion 500 million represents the compensation of some 850,000 federal employés. Income from seven units, wholly or partially tax exempt, accounts for another 2 billion dollars.

Senator Byrd cited his own involuntary tax dodging because of the failure of the government to tax government salaries.

"Despite a willingness and readiness to pay a just share of taxes," he said, "my salary for eight years—four years as governor of Virginia and four years as a member of the United States senate—has been exempt by one government or the other from income taxes.

Tenth Escapes Taxation.

"The personal reference is made better to illustrate how more than one-tenth of the annual American income escapes possibility of taxation, at one source or another, or both."

Senator Byrd computed the total of government securities wholly or partially exempt as $54,489,000,000, of which $31,629,000,000 were federal securities, $5,270,000,000 securities of federal corporate instrumentalities, and $17,590,000,000 obligations of states and local governmental units.

The loss of revenue from tax exempts held by corporations alone, according to the Virginia senator, probably runs as high as 180 million dollars, to say nothing of the unestimated sum to be derived from tax exempt salaries on all government pay rolls.

CLEANING UP

Mrs. Thomas E. Dewey, wife of New York's racket buster, gives their son, Thomas Jr., 5, a bath.

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—While Thomas E. Dewey is busy cleaning up rackets—and, incidentally, running for district attorney—Mrs. Dewey busies herself with household cleaning. This includes, of course, baths for the children. The Deweys have two sons—John, 2, and Thomas Jr., 5. Born in Owosso, Mich., Dewey became ace racket-buster for the big city, and now at 35 seeks the office of district attorney. He was at one time soloist in a church choir.

PRESIDENT TO MAKE FIRESIDE CHAT ON HIS TRIP TO COAST

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt will go on the air in a "fireside chat" next Tuesday night to report to the nation on his recent transcontinental inspection trip to the northwest coast.

It was believed possible that Mr. Roosevelt will reveal in his address whether he will summon a special session of congress about Nov. 15.

It was learned from the broadcasting companies that the address will be delivered between 8:30 p. m. and 9 p. m., Chicago time. Within an hour after the address Mr. Roosevelt will leave the White House to board his special train for his family home at Hyde Park, N. Y., where he plans to spend a week.

WIFE DEAD; HUSBAND HELD.

Marion, Ill., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Henry Moore, 75 years old, is in jail here. He is waiting the verdict of a second coroner's jury investigating the death his blind wife, Eliza, 73. She was found dead this morning. Her skull was fractured. Her husband said she fell off a porch. The first coroners jury could not reach a verdict.

Today's best sellers in Persian Rugs are
PASTEL KERMANS
For many years the predominating background colors of Persian Rugs were dark reds and blues, but today the trend is definitely toward the lighter and softer pastel tones . . . especially in Kerman Rugs. This is due, no doubt, to the ever-increasing interest in 18th Century decoration with which the refined, graceful patterns and subdued shades of Kerman Rugs are particularly appropriate . . . and in perfect keeping with furniture designed by Chippendale, Sheraton, Hepplewhite, and Duncan Phyfe.
See Pushman's Complete Display of Persian Kerman Rugs in Pastel Shades
In 2 x 3 to 4 x 7 ft. scatter sizes for the hall, over Broadloom Carpet, between rooms and in odd corners . . . or in large room sizes from 9 x 12 ft. to 30 x 15 ft., Pushman's collection of Persian Kerman Rugs in the exquisite new light shades is the most impressive in the Middle West. Any comparison of quality and price will convince you that Pushman's Kerman Rugs are highly dependable and lowest in price . . . quality considered.

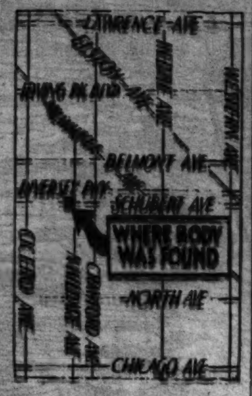
MATE IDENTIFIES WOMAN FOUND SLAIN IN ALLEY

Missing from Home Since Friday Night.

The body of a woman who was found beaten to death early yesterday in an alley in the rear of 2701 North Kildare avenue, was identified last night as that of Mrs. Caroline Schenke, 37 years old, 2856 North Hamlin avenue, mother of a small son. Her skull had been fractured by repeated blows.



The identification came as the first definite step in the efforts of police to solve the crime. Earlier, Capt. Albert Mikes of the Cragin station, had said that little could be done toward solution without knowing who the woman was.

Knows of No Motive.

William Schenke, 37, a machinist, identified the victim as his wife. He knew of no motive for her murder, but he revealed that she had "gone out on several dates," as he put it, since summer, and that this had led to talk of a divorce.

He last saw Mrs. Schenke about 7 o'clock Friday night. She wanted him to stay home with their son, Robert, 6 years oold, because she wanted to go out. Schenke went to a relative's home, however, and when he returned home several hours later he found that his wife had placed Robert in the care of a neighbor, Mrs. Joseph Simieleck, and had gone out.

Because, he said, his wife had stayed out late on other occasions, he did not become greatly alarmed, and even went to work as usual yesterday. Yesterday afternoon, however, when his wife was still absent, he began a search and in the evening notified police. Police sent him to Pedersen's undertaking rooms at 4338 Fullerton avenue where the victim's body lay, and Schenke identified it.

Watchman Hears Car.

Up to a late hour last night, police had uncovered no clews to the slayer or the motive. The scene of the murder is ten or eleven blocks from the Schenke home. The only witness was Samuel Russo, 30 years old, 924 Sedgwick street, night watchman at the Wells-Gardner Radio factory in back of which Mrs. Schenke was found.

Russo said he heard an automobile pull away from the rear at about 1 a. m. yesterday, but did not investigate. Five hours later he discovered the body. The scene of the slaying is in the center of an industrial area.

Coroner's Physician Paul Schmitt examined the body, but could not say that Mrs. Schenke had been raped. The police theory is that she was killed by being hit on the head several times or that some one beat her head against a bumper post behind the radio plant.

3 ROBBERY SUSPECTS HELD.

Popular Bluff, Mo., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Two men and a girl were arrested here today by U. S. agents for questioning on the $2,900 robbery of the state bank at Bayville, Mich., Oct. 6. They are Raymond Pile and Marshall Raisin, both 26, and Elvida Bessinger, 19, all of Flint, Mich.

IRVING BERLIN'S SISTER-IN-LAW TO SUE FOR DIVORCE

Reno, Nev., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Mrs. Katherine Mackay O'Brien, wife of Supreme Court Justice Kenneth R. O'Brien of New York and a daughter of Clarence H. Mackay, president of the Postal Telegraph and Cable company, has come to Nevada to file divorce proceedings, it was disclosed today.

Mrs. O'Brien is a sister of Mrs. Irving Berlin. Mrs. O'Brien's case is to be based on a charge of mental cruelty.

The O'Briens were married in September, 1922. A papal blessing was conveyed from Rome at the time of the ceremony. A reception for 3,000 guests, including many notables in society and business and political life, was held afterward.

Mr. O'Brien, son of former Supreme Court Justice Morgan J. O'Brien, was appointed to the Supreme court bench in 1932 by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, whose campaign manager he had been.

OUR CYCLES AND THE CHINESE.

We roll our cycles in thirty or forty years—prosperity, a war, prosperity, a high fever, a dance macabre mistaken for a new era, a boom, a bang, hard times, fear, gloom, discouragement and despair, and a rash of major and minor prophets. The planners always appear. Each time they seem to be new and each time they vouch for their own inspiration.

China, land of the oldest and most experienced culture in the world, counts about 400 years to its cycles. You need not go back further than 1122 B. C. to see a cyclic beginning. Plenty of evidence of a cyclic phase is now being offered in Hopei, Chahar, Shantung, and in and about Shanghai. The invader, the barbarian, is in again, conquering. This present cycle began about the time of the Cromwellian revolution in England—1644—when the Manchu invaders came in and the Ming dynasty was overthrown.

Chinese cycles carry the people from a flourishing period of their own rule, when the arts and the virtues bloom, into a decline with the reappearance of the barbarian and the subjugation of the land. There is a period of foreign rule during which the invader is slowly drawn into the Chinese digestive processes and absorbed. Then there is a resumption of Chinese government ended by the new invader.

The present cycle, if you concede the Chinese scholars their own view of their own history, began when the Manchus came in. It revolved to a familiar phase when the Chinese republic disposed of the Manchu empire in 1911, the process taking part of the seventeenth, and the eighteenth, and the nineteenth centuries. Most of the world threw itself against fate and predestination in the twentieth century to make the Chinese clock behave differently. The world, armed with pacts, armored in agreements, and carrying the banners of treaties, declared that the Chinese cycle was broken. Chinese integrity was insured. But the invader is in again.

Patience is required to deal with life in cycles of 400 years. The Chinese have patience. They must endure the major calamities of life—famine, floods, brigandage, violent and unreliable government, crushing taxation, overpopulation, injustice, pestilence, and invasion—and remain patient. Invasion now has new terrors. It has a new swiftness and new destructiveness, but what pacts and treaties cannot do 400 years will do if patience goes with them.

Every scholarly Chinese is a very old man, living in cycles of 400 years. Patient as the Chinese are, it would be astonishing if they had not tried to find their own way out instead of seeking consolation in what good things they can enjoy, and in alternating between addiction to the Puritan precepts of Confucius and the realistic cynicism and roguery of the Taoism of Laotse. They have tried to find their way out for centuries. They found a prophet two thousand years ago and repaid him with the Socratic death sentence of poison. He was Hanfeitse, who, becoming disgusted by Confucian moralizing, demanded a government of laws and not of men. A modern, Dr. Lin Yutang, reverts to the old teacher in his "My Country and My People."

"The Chinese people," says Dr. Lin, "can always govern themselves. If the thing called government can leave them alone they are always willing to let the government alone. Give the people ten years of anarchy when the word government will never be heard and they will live peacefully together, they will prosper, they will cultivate deserts and turn them into orchards, they will make wares and sell them all over the country, and they will open up the hidden treasures of the earth on their own enterprise and initiation."

A constitution, Dr. Lin observes, presupposes that rulers might abuse power and violate rights. In China's political life there is no constitution and no idea of civil rights. The Chinese conception of government is paternal, one supposed to look after the people's interests as parents look after their children.

"The fact that so many people persist in talking of moral reforms as a solution for political evils is a sign of the puerility of their thinking and their inability to grasp the political problems as political problems. They should see that if moralizations would do any good China should be a paradise of saints and angels today. I suspect that the reason why moral reform talks are so popular, especially with our officials, is because they know that such talks do nobody any harm. Probably all our moral uplifters have a bad conscience."

Americans rather sympathize with the Chinese when they are badly run around. In some respects we look alike.

A MANDATE THAT FAILED.

The sweeping victory of Premier Hepburn in the Ontario election seems to suggest that the people of that province do not share the C. I. O.'s understanding of its mandate. On this side of the line the C. I. O. assumes that the election of 1936 in the United States endowed it with powers of government, but a very large majority of the citizens of Ontario seem to feel that such powers ought not to run over the Canadian border. We suppose they still want to be governed by the representatives they elect and by the laws they make.

THE CORPS MARCHES ON.

The striking growth of the Reserve Officers Training corps in the Chicago high schools is something for which this city should be and is very proud. In a time when American youth has been subjected to persistent efforts to discredit military service, to disparage the duty of the citizen to be ready to defend his country, this evidence of manly devotion, of a fine morale in keeping with the splendid patriotism American youth has shown in all past times of danger and sacrifice, is the most reassuring sign of the strength of the republic.

And this is no regimentation forced upon our youth by a dictator, supported by sensational propaganda with the threat of coercion at its heart. It is the free choice of an American citizen.

We have watched year by year these young men of the corps in review. It has been a recurrent inspiration to us as we know their service has been to them. Our republic cannot live without the spirit these young Americans show. It is a spirit demonstrated on every battlefield of the republic, and while it endures our democracy will continue to be a living and triumphant reality—fearless of any foe from without or within.

The R. O. T. C. of the Chicago high schools has now been granted an enrollment of 6,650, an increase of 1,010 over last year. That is a tribute from the war department to the youth of Chicago. We are confident the quota will be more than made up. It is the highest honor to be a member of this splendid corps and our youth in increasing numbers are showing their appreciation of it.

Loyal citizens will be glad to know that the superintendent of schools, Dr. Johnson, is giving his coöperation and support for a maximum enrollment.

THE HELIUM MONOPOLY.

The giant hydrogen filled airship Hindenburg caught fire and burned as it neared its mooring at Lakehurst. Because there was loss of life there arose a cry, "The vessel should have been filled with helium." It was painted as a crime that the Zeppelin development by Lufthansa should be crippled because of our selfishness in prohibiting export of this noninflammable gas, of which America controls the world's supply. A bill was introduced in both houses of congress. It has now been passed and in the future exportation will be permitted.

Few have taken the trouble to examine the various clauses of the bill. "The secretary of the interior is hereby directed . . . to acquire all properties constructed by private parties . . . for helium production." "The bureau of mines . . . is authorized to maintain and operate helium . . . plants." The government is going into the helium business—in fact, it has the authority of congress to proceed with the establishment of a helium monopoly—our first thoroughly socialized industry. If helium is required for scientific or medicinal use in the United States it must in future be purchased from the government. It may be argued that no great commercial use for the gas has yet been found, but the same statement was true of gasoline fifty years ago.

It is a safe guess that the government plants will not be operated at a profit. No government institution is. The American taxpayer will support a series of nonpaying refineries to manufacture the gas so that foreign aviation companies may derive profits from transporting American tourists between our shores and those of foreign countries. In this field the dirigible is a direct competitor of our own Pan-American Airways on both oceans, and while not so fast as the airplane it has made the quickest trans-Pacific crossing because of its ability to fly nonstop. It also will be in competition against us in South America.

Other nations possess advantages that enable them to do practically all of our foreign work for us on every ocean. Here is a case where America had the whip hand and has surrendered it. It apparently never occurred to congress that the possession of helium deposits might make it necessary for the airship industry to move to America. We prefer to send a natural resource abroad for exploitation by and profit to the foreigner.

MACHINERY AND LABOR.

The old time printer was a man not only of skill and intelligence but frequently of learning. It was generally believed that his work made him that way. When the linotype was perfected and a technology which had changed little since the 16th century became largely outmoded the thought at first prevailed that the unskilled and the uninformed would throw out of employment the intelligentsia among workmen.

Any one who has had contact with the composing room of a large newspaper must be convinced that the introduction of machines has not degraded the work of setting type nor adversely affected the character of men who do that work. It is true that the new technology does not make necessary the same kind of skill which was required of men engaged in the hand process. But great skill of a different sort is called for. Added to that is the responsibility of being in charge of a machine of considerable value.

In the pressroom the change which the machine has brought about is even more noticeable. The physical labor of the modern pressman is not to be compared with the drudgery resulting from manual-fed or hand presses. The pressman now is in charge of an intricate machine of exceedingly large value. The knowledge that indifference or carelessness may lead to the wrecking of equipment of large cost has added more to the job of printers than was taken away by the reduction of physical exertion when the equipment became semi-automatic.

So in the clothing factories the electric cutting machine has increased the responsibility of the modern cutter without reducing the previously existing requirement of skill. The reduction in physical exertion has made the job simpler, but the increase in responsibility has more than offset that.

That, however, is not always the consequence of the mechanization of industry. When, as in the automobile plants, the work has become divided into minute subdivisions, and each subdivision has become so simple that its performance requires little strength, intelligence or skill, a different situation arises. The job of each of the 11 machine operators who combine to produce a spring is much simpler and easier than was the job of the machinist who made springs unassisted. The workman on the assembly line who has but a few of the simplest tasks to perform has an easy job, but its very ease means a monotony which oppresses him.

The workman in the automobile industry is generally considered well paid for what he does. The rest of society benefits from the production of good cars at a minimum cost. What, if anything, can be done to make a repetitive job more interesting to the workers is a question for which psychologists may have to find the answer.

MORE ABUNDANT FEARS.
[Danville (Ill.) Commercial-News.]

There has been no more startling departure from the Roosevelt New Deal bandwagon than that of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, one time commander in chief of the NRA and personal friend and admirer—with reservations—of the President.

Gen. Johnson believes as firmly as any one in the "more abundant life" for the masses; he went wholeheartedly along with the President in the early days of the New Deal. He approves all the general objectives the President has in mind.

But readers of his public statements are left in no doubt as to what he thinks of the results to date of some of the President's policies. He is particularly impatient with the President's continual baiting of successful business men, as if it were a crime to make money. Instead of encouraging business to expand and put idle dollars to work, the President, with his talk of Tories and economic royalists, has helped to stifle initiative and to spread a blanket of fear over industry.

This characteristic of the President has been one of the fatal weaknesses of the New Deal from the beginning. He has gone out of his way repeatedly to brandish a club over the head of business. To add irony to the situation he has then blandly besought industry to go ahead, to absorb the unemployed, to forget its fears. He has been reminded many times that his own policies were responsible for the uncertainties that have held back business and that have slowed up recovery behind the pace set by practically all other nations.

Gen. Johnson bluntly lays the recent collapse of the stock market to the President's belligerent attitude toward business. All the relief funds, all the "soak the rich" schemes, all the sweet sentiments in the world will not produce the more abundant life. Normal business expansion alone will do it. After four and a half years of experiment the nation is back to a fundamental truth.

YOUR DAILY CONSTITUTIONAL.

PHRENOLOGISTS claim to be able to read character, talents, disposition, temperament, etc., from the bumps on the skull. Likewise, students of physiognomy who analyze the profile as well as facial expressions have classified individuals as foxy, dogged, leonine, etc., asserting that the entire mental makeup can be interpreted from the contour—the mountains and valleys—of the human face.

Nearly every one has certain individual characteristics. We walk, sit, and employ postures and gestures which are perhaps our own. The manner of using the legs is influenced by physical handicaps, occupation, and custom or habit.

Dr. Conan Doyle, in his Sherlock Holmes stories, made use of this fact on numerous occasions. It had been called to his attention by Joseph Bell, one of his teachers at the University of Edinburgh. Thereafter, as applicants entered the clinic, Doyle endeavored to observe the gait closely, later correlating what he saw with the facts disclosed by the patient. He relates that it was a simple matter to detect at a glance sailors, soldiers, farmers, and those who had been inmates of prisons. He was able to deduce much additional information about each subject—the fop with his mincing, prancing steps; the determined, forceful chap who kicked his legs forward and planted his heels heavily, etc.

We recommend walking unreservedly as the best form of exercise for every one, but the whole procedure may be made a chore because the person has never learned to use his muscles with ease and facility. Place some ten or fifteen persons in front of you and ask them to step toward you. How many will point the toes straight ahead or turn them inward slightly—which, by the way, is the right position? Some will rotate the legs outward so that the foot travels in a curved line instead of a straight one.

We realize when we move that the muscles of the toes provide an impulse which pushes the body onward. This is the beginning of the act of falling and unless the supporting column [the leg] advances to approximately the center of gravity the individual will stumble. If the toes are not straight there is no adequate push from the foot. Try an experiment. Watch the natural movements of a few of your male friends and you will note some who turn the feet outward—duck fashion. As a result the trunk, the shoulders, even the head are used to pull the body forward. Those afflicted with obesity may waddle. Fat may become so heavily padded over leg muscles that correct locomotion is impossible.

I often have wondered why one person will proceed smoothly in his pedestrian exercise while another will hop up and down as though something were biting him at every step. Evidently the effort of the toes, instead of 80 per cent to the front, is at least half upward. Such a custom is a waste of good energy with nothing gained.

I once saw Weston, the great heel and toe champion. His stride was steady and graceful. There was little up and down motion as he used his legs—not his trunk. The swing of the arms was not extensive. In other words, he was not obliged to counterbalance himself with a wide forward and backward throw of the arms.

There is, I am sure, much backache and muscle distortion due to improper habits. If you hike for exercise and recreation—and every one should—cultivate good form, even though it is necessary to visit an expert physical trainer for a few lessons.

FIBROIDS.

J. J. K. writes: My wife, 46 years old, has had a diagnosis of fibroids. What is the cause? Is there any cure except operation? She has a weak heart.

REPLY.

The cause of fibroids is unknown. Many are harmless, but others grow to an inconvenient size and cause pressure symptoms. The only sure cure is surgery. In skilled hands the operation is not necessarily dangerous even to women with weak hearts. Small fibroids may be left alone. Only when they show signs of increasing in size or cause pressure or bleeding should removal be considered.

CONSUMPTION.

M. C. writes: Are tuberculosis and consumption the same thing? Are they always accompanied by a cough? What are some of the other symptoms?

REPLY.

Consumption is tuberculosis of the lungs. The disease may exist without the slightest sign of a cough. The principal symptoms are afternoon fever, loss of weight, and fatigue.

PROTRUDING EARS.

J. G. writes: My 5 month old baby has protruding ears. I have tried taping them back with adhesive tape, but this irritates the skin. I have also used the caps advised for the purpose, but find that they do not stay in place because of his squirming. Have you any suggestions?

REPLY.

A snug cap can be made of strips of muslin which will not exclude air, at the same time retracting the ear shells. A dressmaker or tailor can help you.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TALLIN, Estonia.—Young Americans, traveling alone in Europe, are being carefully watched by the political police of a number of European countries who suspect them of espionage. Both the German and soviet governments are known to have a number of youthful Americans in their employ collecting information in all the countries bordering Russia.

Most of the beginners in the spy industry are graduates fresh from the university who come to Europe on a one way ticket with the hope of earning a living which will permit them to spend a year or two touring Europe and seeing the sights before they return home to seek a regular job and settle down.

The assignments given to the apprentice spies are not difficult. They are told to wander around certain countries and take photographs, some of which may prove valuable to the general stafs of the country for whom they are working. Some of the Americans do not realize they are being used by the friends they have made for spy work.

A large number of bolshevik agents traveling in Europe and Asia are equipped with genuine American passports. Many Russians who had lived for many years in America and acquired American citizenship decided during the depression years to try their luck in Russia and applied to a soviet government employment office in New York who instructed them to take out a passport. These passports they surrendered before leaving for Leningrad equipped with only a certificate entitling them to enter Russia. Once in Russia they are considered under soviet law. The New York employment office of the soviets is believed thus to have provided Moscow with many passports which are now being carried by communist spies in foreign countries.

After a long period of quiescense international espionage activity has obtained a new lease on life through the bitter relations prevailing between Germany and Russia. Finland, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, and Rumania all have a large spy population who are again busy trying to obtain documents, and incidentally manufacturing them, for which fancy prices are being paid by many governments.

Germany and Russia like espionage so much that their agents run into the thousands. Both employ a large number of women spies, but Poland is the country which shows a preference for women as her leading agents.

England scorns promiscuous employment of spies. One of her local chief agents confided, "We employ only specialists and our spies are the highest paid in the world. A really good spy earns £2,000 [$10,000] and more per year. By employing talented workers and paying them better than any one else we are getting the best information it is possible to obtain through such channels."

Russia has the advantage of all other countries in espionage. Through her Intourist organization she rigidly controls every person crossing the frontiers of the soviet union for a visit. Foreigners are not permitted to travel about in Russia without reporting to the police at each city they visit and they must have special permission from the central authorities in Moscow before they can leave the bolshevik capital.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problem a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self addressed envelope will expedite handling.

PROPERTY CONVEYANCE.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. What is a quit claim deed?

2. What are the routine documents necessary for the sale of a house and lot in Chicago when there are four owners and one of them cannot be located?

3. Will a delegation of authority in the form of power of attorney by three of the owners to a fourth one allow the fourth to act for the others in any way and as sole owner of the property?

4. Why is a quit claim deed required by some agents before they will undertake to sell real estate? W. B. C.

1. It is a conveyance in which the grantor merely transfers such title that he has without making any undertaking that the title is good.

2. Depends on whether the price is paid in cash, on whether the property is improved and other facts that are not before us.

3. You do not finish your question. The matter could be handled through power of attorney if that is what you mean to ask.

4. Presumably to protect them against the owner changing his mind. The real estate broker would be the best source of information as to his reasons.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SAFEGUARDING WILL.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A widow, living at the present time in Indiana, owns some real estate there.

1. She wants to know if she dies without leaving a will, can her grandchildren of a deceased son claim any share of the estate?

2. Or would her two living sons only share in the estate?

3. If she decided on a will must she mention her grandchildren of the deceased son? E. R. K.

1. Yes.

2. See 1.

3. Where heirs are being discriminated against it is a good practice to mention them in some way so as to guard against any presumption that they have been overlooked which with other facts might support a finding that the testator lacked mental capacity to make a will.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DOWER INTEREST.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A man passed away several years ago leaving a will which divided his house into equal parts; one half to belong to his daughter and the other half to his son. The son was married and [1] as I understand it, one-third of the son's share of the house automatically became his wife's. Now his wife has obtained a divorce.

2. Does she still own one-third of the property?

3. Can she force the sale of that property to collect her share? M. L.

1. You are mistaken. She acquires merely a dower interest, which amounts to nothing unless she survives him. Dower is a one-third life interest in realty which the deceased owned at any time during the marriage [if not already released, as by joining in a deed].

2. She still has dower if the divorce was obtained for his cause and the decree is silent as to the property interest.

3. No. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TINSHOP NOISES.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—[Friend of the People.]—Just recently a tinshop moved in at No. 3112 of our street. There is constant pounding from 7 o'clock in the morning until midnight. My wife is ill and the tenants in my building have threatened to move away. Please advise me what to do or to whom I should report this nuisance. G. A.

The owners of the tinshop operating at the above address have agreed to discontinue night work and to eliminate excess noise. Upon their failure to comply with their agreement we will proceed according to law.

MARINE BRIDGE.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—We have a Navy pier and a Soldier's field, but nothing to commemorate that great body of enlisted men who fought so gallantly throughout the war and especially in what figured to be the turning point, while the enemy were within striking distance of Paris—the United States marines.

We now have a new link bridge [unnamed] joining driveways to Navy pier and Soldier's field. The name Marine bridge would be very appropriate.

With a marine bridge at the mouth of the Chicago river "the situation would be well in hand. JACK MURPHY, Ex-marine.

ADVICE RECALLED.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—I have been wondering if any one recalls Franklin D.'s words when he was running for reëlection. "My friends, do not look on the front page of your newspaper; look in the financial section." Well, since his reëlection I don't recall his advising people to look in the financial section of their newspapers, so I don't suppose people have been bothering to look. Of course, the boys in Washington all say that they aren't worried about the recent slump in the stock market and I quite agree with them. They're worried only to the extent of pumping $300,000,000 in the banks of the country, but what the heck is $300,000,000 to the New Deal?

LOUIS FISHMAN.

THROWAWAYS.

Chicago, Sept. 22.—Can something be done about the nuisance that confronts me every night when, upon my return from work, I have to wade through an avalanche of locally issued newspapers, attached to my door knobs, hanging from my mail box, stuck under my house number, and poised among my flower boxes? On one occasion I counted nine different issues. They all are a pain in the back to me and all land in the garbage can. Neighbors share my views.

MRS. MARY RYAN.

HABITS OF IDLENESS.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—In one of your columns yesterday you had an article on the reluctance of industry to take men from the relief rolls.

There is a reason for that. The so-called charity or relief workers have learned to do nothing but stall or kill time. They haven't at any time ever earned one-tenth of what money they draw as pay; all they did was stall because they were told they weren't supposed to work. There is your answer.

B. MARTIN.

RADIO SCHOOL FORGOTTEN.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—While the schools were closed on account of the epidemic I would rush home from work in order to help my child get his lessons over the air, that he might get the credits for them. He has been back to school for one week and the teacher has not asked any one of them in his room for their radio lessons. I think it is a shame. In some public schools in Chicago education is a joke. LEWIS ADAMS.

MR. BLACK'S WORDS EXAMINED.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—Justice Black said: "Before becoming a senator I dropped the klan. I have had nothing whatever to do with it since that time. I abandoned it. I completely discontinued any association with the organization. I have never resumed it and never expect to do so."

Why didn't the man come out in the open and say: "and I never will do so"? Or is this a veiled or "hooded" threat, whose implication is that if he is not kicked out of his high office or impeached, he will continue to repudiate the organization, without whose support he would still be an obscure lawyer in Alabama—but should he lose the job and the fat salary that goes with it he can still rejoin his old companions, simply repudiate his oath to the United States, as he did with the klan after it had served his purpose, and with publicity he has received possibly became Supreme, Stupendous, Wondrous Wizard or any other tom fool title which he or his pals can think of—and profit by?

ALL-AMERICAN.

SILENT GH.

Dubuque, Ia., Sept. 29.—Your editorial on "Silent gh" will be of real value if it leads the users of English to consider that the silent letters are the greatest handicap to the foreigner who wishes to learn our language. English is well on the way to becoming a world language, and the removal of this difficulty would make its progress still more rapid. Any one who has taught English to foreigners knows how much easier the task would be if we could write "tho," "thoro," and "thru."

HERMANN S. FICKE,
Dept. of English, University of Dubuque.

JOBS.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—It would seem if some action were taken to have industries, farmers, etc., needing help leave their requirements with the relief boards all over the country, and then request those on relief to either take the jobs offered or get off relief, it would assist both in reducing the relief rolls and aiding the farmers, etc., who are short of help. If jobs are offered those on relief and they do not care to work they should automatically be taken off.

TWO WEEKS PASS WITHOUT CLEW IN ROSS ABDUCTION

Fate of Elderly Victim Lost in Silence.

Two weeks ago last night Charles C. Ross, an elderly retired business man, was kidnaped in Wolf road near the entrance to the Westward Ho golf course. Since then hundreds of policemen and government agents have been searching for him, but if they have any clews to his whereabouts or the identity of his kidnapers, they have kept them secret.

There have been rumors that negotiations have been opened between the captors and Mrs. Ross, who has waited patiently in her apartment at 2912 Commonwealth avenue for a message demanding ransom. But her denials have been clear, if carefully worded.

Appeals to Kidnapers.

"Everything is just the same," was her last comment. Earlier she had issued an appeal to the kidnapers, informing them through the press that "the coast is clear."

Ross, who is 72 years old, was returning from Sycamore, where he had dined with his former secretary, Miss Florence Freihage, when his car was forced to the side of the road. A single man took him from his car into another and after asking Miss Freihage if he were a man of wealth, drove north with him. Miss Freihage, remaining in the Ross car, drove to a filling station and notified the police.

Investigators Are Puzzled.

Many things about the case have puzzled the investigators. First, they said, it was unusual for only one man to approach the victim. They have tried, also, to fathom the reason Miss Freihage was permitted to retain the ignition keys of the Ross car, enabling her to give the alarm quickly.

One guess, that of Capt. Daniel Gilbert of the state's attorney's police, was that the kidnaping was the work of amateurs, probably young men. The captain's guess was that experienced gangsters would not attempt such a crime because kidnaping is too difficult to perform successfully, while the penalties are too certain.

Suffers from Heart Disease.

Ross' record was searched, and showed him for what he was, a pleasant old gentleman, in health not too good [he suffers from heart disease], who had no known enemies. He is comfortably fixed, but not of great wealth.

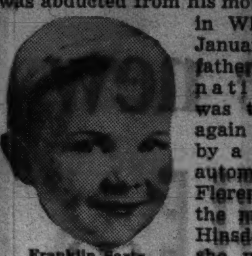
In recent years all other kidnapings for ransom in the Chicago district have had as victims persons identified with gambling or other activities that made them figures well known to the underworld. Ross was a quiet, retiring sort, who played bridge with his friends and minded his own business.

Fear for Victim's Life.

In his circle of friends the fear has been growing that Ross may have died of shock. "He needs medicine daily for his heart," said one of these. "But he is such a good fellow that I believe he could get the kidnapers to procure it for him. He'd get along all right if he had half a chance."

Mrs. Ross, Miss Freihage, Ross' associates when he was president of the George S. Carrington company, manufacturers of valentines, all have assisted the investigators. They have told what they knew of him—and nothing, apparently, of their knowledge pointed toward a solution.

BOY IN CUSTODY FIGHT DISAPPEARS; MOTHER BLAMES EX-HUSBAND



Franklin Sartr.

Franklin Sarty, 5 years old, who was abducted from his mother's home in Wheaton last January by his father, a Cincinnati dentist, was taken away again yesterday by a man in an automobile. Mrs. Florence Sarty, the mother, told Hinsdale police she was certain the boy's father, Dr. Frank O. Turner, whom she divorced three years ago, had taken him.

Mrs. Sarty and her present husband, Floyd, moved to 327 North Forest road in Hinsdale two months ago. Since their divorce Dr. Turner and Mrs. Sarty frequently have been in court over the custody of Franklin. After Dr. Turner took the child in January Mrs. Sarty went to Cincinnati and obtained custody with a proviso that she must remain in the jurisdiction of the court.

She returned to Wheaton with the boy and Dr. Turner later had the custody order reversed because she had disobeyed the court in taking Franklin out of that jurisdiction. Dr. Turner was arrested April 18 on a kidnaping warrant when he appeared in Wheaton to visit the boy, but the charge was dismissed.

N. Y. CAB DRIVERS LAUNCH WAR ON C. I. O. UNION

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—An unestimated number of unorganized taxicab drivers and some union drivers, all opposed to the taxicab division of the C. I. O.'s Transport Workers' union, will attempt to disrupt the union's final drive for membership Monday. That was learned tonight.

The members, who charge they have been "sold out" by the C. I. O., and the nonmembers, who say that working conditions have become almost intolerable under the C. I. O.'s influence, will seek to prevent union drivers from leaving their garages.

A telegram was sent today by Michael J. Quill, president of the Transport Workers' union, to Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine appealing for additional police surveillance.

4 MORE KILLED ON CROSSINGS; 11 IN TWO DAYS

Three in One Car Victims at Cary.

Four men were killed in train-auto crashes in the Chicago area yesterday, making a total of eleven grade crossing deaths in two days. Seven died Friday in a crash near Gary.

Three of yesterday's victims were Chicagoans on a fishing trip to a summer cottage on the Fox river. An eastbound North Western passenger train struck their automobile on the main street crossing in Cary, McHenry county, as they drove northwest in Highway 12. All were killed outright.

Watchman Waves Lantern.

The driver of the car was Alfred H& Courtois, 55 years old, 3233 North Troy street, a jewelry engraver at 159 North State street. His passengers were S. O. Berentson, 62, of 2633 North Francisco avenue, and Andrew Anderson, 55, of 2517 Belden [Coyne] avenue.

Chief of Police Fred J. Krenz of Cary said Courtois disregarded a watchman who waved a lantern and a stop sign as the train approached.

Commission Merchant Killed.

Paul W. Wilson, 73 years old, a stock yards commission merchant, was killed yesterday when his new automobile stalled on the Milwaukee railroad tracks in Pingree Grove, west of Elgin.

Witnesses said he apparently saw the freight train approach just as he reached the crossing and in his confusion stalled the automobile. Mr. Wilson lived at 8341 Sangamon street. He was vice president of the firm of Filler, Wilson & McClelland.

Mr. Wilson is survived by his widow and four children. He had lived in Chicago since childhood.

Inquest to Be Saturday.

An inquest over the seven persons killed Friday by a train near Gary was set for next Saturday by Dr. Michael Shellhouse, Gary coroner, yesterday. The victims were in two automobiles which collided on the Nickel Plate railroad tracks an instant before a train bearing 600 Civilian Conservation corps workers came along.

All the victims were residents of Gary. Among them were Mrs. G. Edward Schoon, 25 years old, 4029 Johnson street; Mrs. Arthur Cass, 33 years old, 4069 Johnson street, and Mrs. Cass' son, Robert, 4. They and Mrs. Cass' daughter, Judith, 18 months old, were in one of the cars. The infant was reported recovering yesterday. The others killed, passengers in the second car, were PWA workers returning from work on a project near Schererville, fifteen miles southwest of Gary.

Bound for Chicago to visit their son, Paul Potter, executive secretary of the Associated Milk Dealers, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Potter of Ames, Ia., were killed Friday when their car went into a ditch near Clinton, Ia. Paul Potter lives at Bannockburn, near Deerfield.

Boy Killed by Oil Truck.

John Foley, 4 years old, 1962 South Trumbull avenue, was killed while playing in the alley in the rear of his home where he was run over by an oil truck. Sam Levin, driver of the truck, which is owned by the Douglas Oil company, 3238 Ogden avenue, did not know of the accident until neighbors caught up with his truck a block away.

Antonia Arrigo, 65 years old, 732 North Christiana avenue, was fatally injured yesterday in front of 3600 Chicago avenue by an automobile driven by Frank Czak, 826 North Campbell avenue.

Kasimer Rinkus, 57 years old, 3327 North Kildare avenue, was killed last night by an automobile in Milwaukee avenue at Kedvale avenue. The driver, Edward Gorski, 3016 North Christiana avenue, a chauffeur, took Rinkus to the Belmont hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

Ernest Garland Robertson, 40 years old, advertising representative of the Holland Magazine of the South, 75 East Wacker drive, was killed early yesterday when his car and another collided near Monroe, Mich. He was returning to Chicago from a convention at White Sulphur Springs, Va. He did not maintain a Chicago residence.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday, 825 persons had been killed in automobile accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 625 were killed in Chicago, where 17,558 were injured in the same period.

See editorial page for the massacre clock.

AGED MAN DIES FROM FALL.

HUSBAND'S UPROAR OVER ALIMONY PLEA LANDS HIM IN JAIL

Nicholas Klemchuk was sentenced to 30 days in jail for contempt by Judge Philip J. Finnegan yesterday for shouting protests when his wife's attorney was making a request for temporary alimony. His wife, who lives at 2140 Trumbull avenue, filed suit for divorce Wednesday on grounds of cruelty. Klemchuk, a window washer, lives at 1714 21st place. While Mrs. Klemchuk's attorney was addressing Judge Finnegan her husband suddenly pounded on the bench, waved his arms, and shouted "I won't pay anything!"

Poison Death of Husband Is Charged to His Widow

South St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 9—[U. P.]—The state tonight charged that Beatrice Johnke, 41 year old widow, killed her husband by administering poison in his food and drink over a period of several months. The woman was charged with first degree murder and will appear for arraignment Monday.

47 STATES BAR SLOT MACHINES.

Slot machines are now outlawed in every state except Nevada, it was announced yesterday by the International City Managers' association. Florida's ban on the "iron burglars" became effective Oct. 1.

'I'LL KILL AGAIN!' WARNING SPURS HUNT FOR SLAYER

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—"I will kill again!"

This message to police today revived belief that "3-X," inactive for seven years, may be the slayer who branded two victims a week ago with red circles.

Remembering the technique of 3-X, Deputy Chief Inspector John J. Ryan ordered 137 policemen to emergency night patrols in the Hollis woods section near Queens village, Long Island, where last Sunday morning a stroller found the bodies of Lewis Weiss, 20 years old, and his sweetheart, Frances Kajek, 19, in Weiss' automobile.

The youth and the girl had been shot twice through their foreheads. In addition the girl had been stabbed seven times. On the forehead of each was a crude circle, drawn with lipstick taken from the handbag of the girl.

Seven years ago 3-X prowled the woods near Queen's village and slew two men, found with girls in parked automobiles.

Fire Causes $10,000 Loss in S. Side Factory Building

Fire last night caused damage estimated at $10,000 in a five story building at 2285 Blue Island avenue housing the Morgan Sash and Door company, the Chicago Trim and Plywood company, and the Oregon and Washington Plywood company. The fire started in the east basement and burst through the first floor, but was prevented from spreading further by firemen. Marshal Michael Corrigan, who directed the fire fighters, said the fire probably started spontaneously. Trafic was tied up for thirty minutes in Blue Island avenue.

60 JOLTED WHEN CHICAGO AVENUE TROLLEYS CRASH

Sixty passengers aboard two Chicago avenue street cars were shaken last evening when the two cars, which were bound in opposite directions, collided on Chicago avenue at Clark street. The accident occurred when the rear trucks of the eastbound street car jumped a switch at the intersection and started on a curve southward. This swung the front of the car far enough north so that it rammed a west bound street car which had just started after a stop on the east side of Chicago avenue. Both cars were derailed.

Only one man was taken to a hospital. He was Paul Roeder, 25 years old, an employé of the International Harvester company, whose left arm was broken. W. J. Lokofka, 28 years old, 6000 Seminole avenue, the motorman of the eastbound car, was cut about the forehead by broken glass.

Quiz Girl, 9, About Killing of Suspect, Policeman

Ashland, Ky., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The only eye-witness, a girl 9 years old, was questioned today by police seeking to learn the identity of a robbery suspect slain last night in a gun fight also fatal to Radio Patrolman James Lane, 34 years old. The girl is Wanda Holt, who was in the room in which the shooting occurred. Lane wanted to question the man in connection with the theft of four guns.

• Perhaps you have already installed automatic heating. But you haven't made your ultimate switch until you install an Iron Fireman automatic coal burner. If you are still using a hand-fired furnace, we ask you to consider this ultimate step immediately.

For truly your best bet today is to heat with coal via Iron Fireman, the machine that made coal an automatic fuel, and which now fires coal directly from the coal bin, doing away entirely with coal handling.

Coal, as you know, is America's permanent fuel supply. It is sold competitively. You are independent of any monopoly. Coal always has been safe and economical. Today it is also clean and convenient—and more economical than ever.

Stoker sizes of coal which Iron Fireman use cost less per ton for the same quality than ordinary lump coal.

Iron Fireman combustion is so nearly perfect that Iron Fireman firing efficiency ranks in the top bracket of automatic fuels. Lower priced fuel coupled with higher firing efficiency, make Iron Fireman cost even less than hand-firing—far less than any other kind of automatic fuel.

But get the whole story. The undersigned Iron Fireman dealers are ready to give it to you. Ask for illustrated literature, prices and free survey of your own heating plant.

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

EPISCOPALIANS SOON MAY PICK BISHOP IN CHIEF

Stewart of Chicago Among Possible Choices.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Activities in the two legislative houses comprising the 52d general convention of the Episcopal church in session here, settled down today to the clearing away of routines for action Monday on controversial issues involving remarriage of divorced persons and the centralizing of church administration in a primate.

Suggested for High Office.

The bishops most frequently mentioned for the primacy are:

EDWARD LAMBE PARSONS of San Francisco, Cal.

EDWARD MAKIN CROSS of Spokane, Wash.

JAMES E. FREEMAN of Washington, D. C.

HENRY WISE HOBSON of Cincinnati, O.

HENRY K. SHERRILL of Boston, a liberal.

GEORGE CRAIG STEWART of Chicago.

WILLIAM G. McDOWELL of Birmingham, Ala.

Bishops of Distinction.

Bishop Parson's name came into prominent discussion following his delivery of the convention sermon last Wednesday. Bishop Freeman's strength arises from the fact that many believe the headquarters of the Episcopal church should be at Washington, D. C., where an imposing cathedral is in process of construction. Bishop Stewart of Chicago has advocated Bishop Freeman's election, despite the fact that the Washington prelate is 71 years old, a year older than compulsory retirement age planned in the proposed administrative reorganization.

Bishop Hobson Younger Leader.

Bishop Hobson is one of the younger bishops of the church. Only 46 years old, he has come into national prominence as leader of a forward movement which has published and distributed more than nine million pieces of religious literature during the last three years. The latest of these publications is a pictorial journal, "Go," which resembles recently developed secular pictorial magazines.

The informal proposals of the names of Bishop Cross and Bishop McDowell arise from the demands of certain groups that the primate should know mission areas at first hand.

Address Council of Catholic Women

CATHOLICS SPLIT WITH P.-T. A. OVER BIRTH CONTROL

Women Vote to Resign if Action Stands.

thing intrinsically against nature may become conformable to nature and morally good."

Not only must the P.-T. A. withdraw its birth control program to retain Catholic membership, the council specified, but also it must repudiate its approval of any program of birth control.

Father Curry introduced the resolution following the address of the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen of the Catholic university in Washington.

"We've plowed under the third row of cotton," Msgr. Sheen said, "and I suppose we think it logical to plow under every third child. If we go on encouraging that kind of legislation it will surrender humanity to mere economic laws and make man a mere creature of the state."

The chief argument advanced in favor of birth control, Msgr. Sheen continued, is the economic argument.

"Why is such an argument serious?" he asked the 2,500 women. "It's because it is pitiful, this subjection of human interests to the economic interests.

"Up to this time the economic element has been bent to the interests of man. Now man is bending to the economic. This way we will eventually surrender all our own rights."

Bishop Bernard J. Sheil and Mayor Kelly spoke briefly. Mayor Kelly did not touch upon the matter of birth control.

Policeman Shows Comrade His Gun; One in Hospital

Stephen Kolony, 37 years old, a Chicago park district employé, was shot accidentally in the body and critically wounded yesterday by Park Police Sergeant Thomas Thompson in the Avondale park fieldhouse, 3516 School street. He was taken to the Belmont hospital. Sergt. Thompson told Albany Park police his pistol was discharged as he was replacing it in his holster after showing it to Park Policeman Edward Graf and George Smith, the park director.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

BRUCE BARTON IN N. Y. RACE FOR CONGRESS

Runs on 'High Cost of Living' Issue.

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Bruce Barton, who earned his way through high school in Oak Park, Ill., by peddling maple syrup and who wrote a fast selling book a few years ago, is the Republican nominee for congress on the "high cost of living" issue.

Bruce Barton.

The author of "The Man Nobody Knows" is telling his constituents that the "forgotten man" of the Roosevelt administration is the small business man squeezed between high prices and high taxes.

The contest is the only election for a congressional seat in New York City this year and is being staged in the so-called "silk stock" district which surrounds Central Park in the shape of a horseshoe. The election is to fill the vacancy left by the death of Congressman Theodore Peyser, Roosevelt and Tammany Democrat elected last year.

Running against Barton is the regular Tammany candidate, Stanley Osserman, and George Backer, who wears the label of the Labor party.

Chicagoans of Norwegian descent gathered last night at the naval armory to honor the memory of the Viking voyager, Leif Eriksen, Mayor Kelly was principal speaker.

"The Leif Eriksen Cantata" composed by Oskar Borg, was sung by the Norwegian Glee club, a male chorus of sixty voices directed by Knut Hansen. The cantata and a prologue depicting the travels of the great Viking were part of a festival sponsored by the Norwegian National league of Chicago.

Senator Harold G. Ward, Representative Benjamin Adamowski, Mrs. Bertha C. Petersen, Illinois vice president of the Leif Eriksen Memorial association; Sigurd Maseng, Norwegian consul, and Alex Berg, vice consul, were guests.

CITY ATTORNEYS ATTEND MEDICAL EVIDENCE SCHOOL

Fifty city attorneys and investigators went to school yesterday to learn how to combat medical testimony in the thousand personal injury claims filed against the city each year. Their instructor was Dr. Philip Lewin, head of the Chicago Orthopedic society and author of textbooks on surgery. The classroom was the civil service trial board chambers in the city hall.

Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes said the school is to help his staf separate the true from the false in injury stories told juries by plaintifs in suits against the city.

Dr. Lewin showed lantern slides of bone fractures and answered questions relating to such injuries. Among other specialists who will teach similar classes during the next two months are Dr. Ralph Bettman, Dr. Walter Priest, Dr. Daniel Leventhal, Dr. Alfred Kobak, and Dr. Adrian Verbruggan.

Admits Killing Brother, Found in Burned Home

Northwood, Ia., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Klinert Lindley was sentenced to 40 years in the state penitentiary at Fort Madison today. He pleaded guilty to a second degree charge of murdering his brother, Ellert, whose body was found in the ashes of his home here last July 22.

RICH EX-PLAYBOY ASKS WIFE'S SUIT BE MORE SPECIFIC

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Millionaire Phil Plant, once a Broadway playboy, now a gentleman farmer, has filed a motion in Superior court asking that his wife, Edna Dunham Plant, be more specific in her divorce charges of cruelty, intemperance, and misconduct.

Mrs. Plant neglected a similar order June 11, two months after her divorce action began. Her counsel said that a "detailed statement" would follow Plant's second request.

Though past plans to arrange a $1,000,000 settlement for the wife were scuttled by agreement of both parties on June 24, it is understood high alimony will still be sought.

10 COWS PRODUCE 50 TONS OF MILK EACH; AT SHOW

Columbus, O., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Ten cows which have produced more than a million pounds of milk are entered in the twenty-eighth annual national dairy show which opened here today.

Each of the ten cows in the special display has produced more than fifty tons of milk during its life, compared with a production of 4,000 pounds a year for the average cow.

Value of all the exhibits is estimated at more than $1,000,000. Judging starts Monday, when prize cattle and horses will compete for $25,000 in prize money. The show closes Friday.

Ohio Professor Is Killed, 2 Students Hurt by Crash

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Gordon James, 41 years old, professor in the school of business administration of Miami university, at Oxford, O., died and two students were injured, one seriously, in a collision late today between James' automobile and a truck trailer a few miles northwest of Cincinnati. James, driver of the car, died of a skull fracture. Jack Brown, 19 years old, Lorain, O., also suffering from a skull fracture, underwent an emergency operation. Leo Meyer, 18 years old, of Elyria, O., was injured slightly.

Chester Levine Is Elected Mayor of Boys' Republic

Chester Levine, 17 years old, 1508 South Lawndale avenue, was elected mayor of the Boys' Brotherhood republic at the annual election last night in the boys' city hall at 1530 South Hamlin avenue. Levine defeated Ben Millman by a vote of 266 to 233. The winner ran on a platform proposing a junior division of the brotherhood for boys from 12 to 14 years old. The organization now is composed of boys from 14 to 18.

Plane Hits Trees, Army Flyers Only Are Bruised

Rhinelander, Wis., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Second Lieutenants Richard Kukel, [illegible] years old, and John Hodgin, 27, army pilots stationed at San Francisco, only were bruised when a twin motor bombing plane they were flying from Minneapolis to San Antonio, Tex., crashed into a grove of trees near the airport here tonight. The plane, a Martin B-12, was considered a loss except for salvage purposes.

Fight Over Mussolini Ends in Death for 1, Jail for 1

Midland, Mich., Oct. 9.—[U. P.—A fight over Italian Fascism and Premier Mussolini ended fatally tonight for one man and sent another to jail. The victim was Alphonse M. Thorsberg, 40, oil dealer and former school commissioner, who died two hours after he was shot. In jail was George Spagnuclo, fruit dealer, in whose store the fight took place.

MOTHER FACES JAIL IN FIGHT TO KEEP DAUGHTER

Sentenced for Contempt in Jurisdictional Mixup.

Overruling a novel plea which involved a conflict of jurisdiction between Illinois and South Dakota courts, Judge Philip J. Finnegan yesterday sentenced Mrs. Vincentia Mavric, 30 years old, 532 Deming place, to six months in the county jail for contempt of court.

Formal entry of the contempt order was delayed until tomorrow, however, after Mrs. Mavric's attorney, William A. Bither, announced he would file an appeal. Meanwhile Mrs. Mavric is to remain in technical custody of the attorney.

In a divorce decree of April 25, 1932, Mrs. Mavric, who is an instructor in a fashion arts school at 75 East Wacker drive, was granted custody of her daughter, Antonia, then 5 years old. It was provided in the decree that Alois Mavric, an attorney, father of the child, could file a petition for a share of the custody at some future time.

Father Files Petition.

Mavric took advantage of this provision two months ago. Judge Finnegan ordered that the child be brought into court Sept. 13. This was not done. The case was continued and the mother was ordered to bring in Antonia or face a jail sentence for contempt.

"Why is the child not in court?" demanded Judge Finnegan when the hearing was resumed.

"I can't bring her," said Mrs. Mavric. "My hands are tied."

Attorney Bither then explained that Antonia has been living in the home of her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Pauline Mastrovich of Lead, S. D., who has filed a request that she be allowed to adopt the youngster.

Court Order Conflicts.

The South Dakota court, Judge Finnegan was informed, had ordered that Antonia be kept in its jurisdiction.

Mrs. Mavric admitted she had consented to the adoption by her mother. Attorney William Cullen Burns, representing the father, declared that this was a violation of the original court order here. When Judge Finnegan upheld the validity of his contention, Attorney Burns agreed to the delay in sending Mrs. Mavric to a cell.

BUREAU OF AIR COMMERCE WILL ASK $31,000,000

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Director Fred D. Fagg Jr. said today the bureau of air commerce will ask for about $31,000,000 for the next fiscal year.

Hearings start Tuesday before the budget bureau to work out the appropriation that will be recommended to congress.

Fagg said this amount—virtually double the appropriation for the current fiscal year, ending next June 30—"will be needed because of the tremendous strides in civil aviation, which it is this bureau's responsibility to foster."

About $12,000,000 of its $15,000,000 allotment for this year, Fagg stated, will go into "promotional activities" and the rest to carry out the bureau's regulatory supervision of civil aviation.

NAVY DAY FETE TO EXTEND FOR WEEK OR MORE

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Plans for a nation wide celebration of Navy day, Oct. 27, the birthday of Theodore Roosevelt, were announced today from different quarters.

The schedule of radio speeches, parades and dinners will begin a week before the day itself and may continue until the Saturday following it.

On Navy day there will be ceremonies throughout the nation. The vessels of the fleet will be distributed to various ports along both coasts and a submarine and a number of other small vessels are expected to visit New York for the occasion. The Navy yard and other naval shore stations in the Metropolitan area will hold open house.

Daredevil War Flyer Falls to Death Fixing an Aerial

LONDON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Commander S. D. A. Grey, 48 years of age, a wartime flyer who was called "Daredevil Grey," fell to his death from a ninth floor window today while fixing a radio aerial.

DIES OF INJURIES IN FALL.

Nicholas Kremer, 55 years old, died yesterday in St. Francis hospital, Evanston, of injuries incurred in a fall Thursday night down a flight of stairs in his home at 6422 Ridge avenue.

ANN C. HEWITT, HEIRESS, WEDS A GARAGE WORKER

Secret Marriage in Oregon Revealed.

Grants Pass, Ore., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Courtship so secret that only a few friends knew their intentions resulted in the secret marriage of Ann Cooper Hewitt, San Francisco heiress, and Ronald Gay of Oakland, Cal., here yesterday, County Judge Grant W. Mathews revealed today.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Gay. [AP Wirephoto.]

Gay, a garage foreman, 32 years old, was on a business tour of the Pacific northwest. Miss Hewitt, 23, was accompanied here by a party of friends to meet her fiancé. They obtained a marriage license quickly and were married in a civil ceremony by Judge Mathews.

Fortune Hinges on Heir.

Miss Hewitt became a central figure in news stories in 1936 when she testified before a grand jury in San Francisco that her mother, Mrs. Maryon Hewitt McCarter, had caused her to be sterilized when she was 19 years old in a plot to prevent her from bearing children.

She told the jury that under provisions of her father's will a large part of his fortune would go to her mother if she did not have an heir.

Legitimacy Established.

In 1923 Mrs. McCarter, then the Baroness d'Erlanger, rushed to the United States from Paris to defend her daughter in a suit brought by Hewitt's brothers to prevent her sharing in a trust fund. They charged the girl was not of legitimate issue. It was not until 1927 that the Supreme Court of New York upheld legitimacy of Ann, born four years before her parents were wed in 1918.

WOMEN JURORS TONE UP PANELS, JUDGES ASSERT

Wisconsin Looks Back on 16 Years' Service.

BY THORNTON SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Wisconsin has had women jurors for its civil and criminal courts since 1921 and the impression among members of the bench and bar is that while they have not set the world on fire, they have toned up the standard of juries and altogether improved the dispensation of justice.

The improvement apparently has been general, not specific. Pinned down to an exact description of any change in juries that followed the advent of women, the judges and attorneys in Milwaukee find it hard to answer.

Hold Women Accountable.

"Women on juries are unpredictable," said Circuit Judge Daniel W. Sullivan, present calendar judge of the Milwaukee courts. "They apparently react to evidence just the same as men do." It is not true, Judge Sullivan commented, that women are apt to be a little more sympathetic to women on whose cases they sit. On the contrary, they are a little more apt to hold women to strict accountability, he said.

Pressed further to explain his position that women jurors probably have improved the standard of Wisconsin justice, Judge Sullivan offered the conclusion that the presence of women on juries had tended to ginger up the attention of the men who served with them.

"The men are not only a little more alert in following the evidence, but they are more careful of their own appearances and are a little more conscious of their civic duties and responsibilities because the women are there," Judge Sullivan said.

A similar opinion was expressed by Milwaukee attorneys generally.

Equal Rights Bill.

The right to jury service was won in Wisconsin soon after the adoption of the suffrage amendment. It was included in what is known among women as the equal rights bill, a law defining that women shall have the same rights and privileges under the law as men. These rights included and duly specified suffrage, freedom of contract, choice of residence for voting purposes, jury service, holding office, holding and conveying property, care and custody of children, and equality in all other respects.

The women, thus having attained their purpose after a long drawn crusade, some one attached a section to the law providing special privilege for the woman juror. She can serve on juries, but she doesn't have to, the law says in effect, the section reading that in the event of a woman asking to be excused from jury service for any purpose the court shall excuse her. This provision constitutes what suffragists call permissive jury service and is objectionable to the real women's rights advocates.

DISCOVER BODY OF SCOUT LEADER MISSING 90 DAYS

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—The body of Morris B. Close, missing Rochester scoutmaster, was found tonight by two hunters in a patch of woods at East Henrietta, Rochester suburb.

The body was identified by his mother, Mrs. Roy Close, through the clothing and a belt buckle. A nationwide search had been carried on for Close after he disappeared on June 19, his twenty-third birthday. He vanished after a visit to the home of his fiancée in Albany.

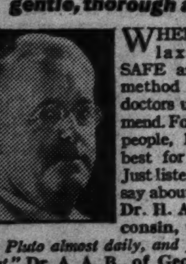
Five days after Close's disappearance a new angle was added to the mystery when the body of a man slain by a gun was found in Missouri. He was wearing a coat belonging to the missing man. Two days later Close's roadster was found in Memphis, Tenn.

DIES OF BULLET WOUND.

Willie Evans, colored, 38 years old, 724 East 37th street, who was shot in the abdomen early yesterday morning by William Hardrow, also colored, following a quarrel, died late last night in the County hospital.

Need A Laxative? DO AS DOCTORS DO

This is what over 50,000 doctors have used and recommended for gentle, thorough action



WHEN you need a laxative, play SAFE and follow the method thousands of doctors use and recommend. For doctors, of all people, know what is best for constipation. Just listen to what they say about Pluto Water: Dr. H. A. O., of Wisconsin, writes: "I prescribe Pluto almost daily, and find it a trusty servant." Dr. A. A. B., of Georgia, advises: "Pluto Water is the best purgative I have found in 40 years." Dr. M. W. J., of Mississippi, says, "I use Pluto in my practice and take it when I need a laxative."

Easy To Take This New Way

Simply mix 1-5 of a glass of Pluto Water in 4-5 of a glass of water. You'll find this new mixture pleasant. There's no overnight waiting. No painful griping. You get quick yet gentle, thorough action.

So when you need a laxative, be sure—take Pluto Water. Your own doctor will tell you there is nothing better than this non-habit forming saline mineral water, bottled at famous French Lick Springs, Indiana. Get Pluto Water from your druggist, and you'll feel worlds better quickly.

REHERSE AT O'LEARY BARN SITE

Members of the cast of the spectacle, "Light of Ages," who will present the 1871 fire scene rehersed yesterday at 558 De Koven street, where the conflagration started. The pageant will be presented for the first time next Friday in the Civic Opera house.

MAYOR KELLY PLACES A BRONZE MARKER AT SITE OF TRADING POST

Mayor Kelly yesterday placed the first of 85 bronze tablets that will mark locations of historical interest in the city. The Chicago Historical society, in coöperation with the Chicago Charter Jubilee committee, selected the sites.

The first marker is on the public library building at the southwest corner of Michigan avenue and Randolph street, where Jean Baptist Beaubien had his mansion and trading station in 1817. It reads in part:

ROBBERS SHOOT 4 MEN IN RAIDS ON TWO TAVERNS

Four men were shot early today by a bandit mob in two raids on taverns on the northwest side. In the first holdup three gunmen, one masked, ordered twenty-five patrons in John Mazurek's tavern at 2156 Division street into a back room, emphasizing their commands with shots into the floor.

Mazurek, who is 48 years old and lives at 2053 Augusta boulevard, fired at the bandits. The two others blazed back wildly, hitting Mazurek below the heart, in the abdomen, and in the right shoulder, and also wounding Barloss Borguczioski, 54, of 4838 George street, and Stanley Backezowski, 30, of 2438 Walton street, patrons.

Then they fled and a few minutes later visited a saloon at 1935 Thomas street. The procedure was similar to the first except that John Kmicek, 24, of 2043 Crystal street, a customer, tried to get away and was shot in the left leg. At this Chester Sroga, bartender, fired at the gunmen, driving them away. They got $50. Only Mazurek of the four shot was seriously wounded.

Landslide Kills Trucker as He Is Loading Limestone

Quincy, Ill., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Caught beneath a landslide while loading a truck with limestone, Ralph Rigney, 23 years old, of Fishhook, was killed yesterday. His companion, Wayne Martin of Bayliss, Ill., was seriously injured. They were working on a farm near New Canton, Ill.

WOMEN MAY HELP TO DECIDE MONTAGUE FATE

Elizabethtown, N. Y., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Women, thus far shunned by handsome and once mysterious "John Montague," pal of Hollywood movie stars and a golfer extraordinary, menace his future. Four women are included in a panel of thirty-six persons from whom a jury will be chosen to try him on a seven year old robbery charge.

"Montague" was called a modern "Jean Valjean" by Supreme Court Justice O. Bryon Brewster. The trial is to start on Wednesday.

"Montague," in a preliminary pleading, admitted he is Laverne Moore, who spent his boyhood in Syracuse, won local acclaim by his golfing and other athletic feats, and disappeared after the $700 holdup of a roadhouse near Jay, N. Y. in 1930. The prosecutor said today his case "can be heard in a day and a half at the most after the jury is selected."

RICH INVENTOR, WIFE SPANKER, LOSES IN COURT

Elizabeth, N. J., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Samuel W. Rushmore, who once spanked his young wife with a hairbrush, was forbidden in the New Jersey Supreme court here to give her a legal spanking.

The millionaire Plainfield, N. J., inventor, whose marital troubles have intrigued his neighbors for years, permanently was restrained from proceeding against his ex-mate, Mrs. Hazel Rushmore, in a $285,000 damage suit.

Rushmore had charged she and her attorney, Merritt Lane of Newark, conspired against him by instituting a long series of lawsuits which cost him $85,000 counsel fees. He said he was "financially and socially embarrassed."

Vice Chancellor Alfred A. Stein upheld the arguments of Lane that no conspiracy or fraud had been practiced.

Defense Claims Dr. Garr's Mind Has Become Unsound

La Grange, Ky., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Dr. E. S. Garr, indicted this week with his brothers, Roy and John Garr, for the slaying of Brig. Gen. H. H. Denhardt Sept. 20 at Shelbyville, Ky., will be placed in a hospital for mental treatment "in a day or so," his physician, Dr. H. B. Blaydes, said today. He did not appear in court at Shelbyville Friday with his other brothers.

CHICAGO PONDERS FIRE HAVOC OF 66 YEARS AGO TODAY

Honor 3 Veterans Who Fought Holocaust.

Sixty-six years ago today Chicagoans looked over the ruins of their city—and started plans to rebuild it.

The great fire of 1871 started at 8:15 on Oct. 8. It raged all through the 9th, which is now observed as Chicago day, and even into the early hours of the 10th before it died for lack of fuel.

This afternoon the three surviving firemen of the 225 who fought the conflagration, will be honored at a smoker to be held in the Great Northern hotel under the sponsorship of the Retired Firemen's association. They are Isaac M. Adler, 96 years old; George Leady, 91, and Charles Schroeder, 90.

Official Services Friday.

No other formal observation of the importance of the holocaust in Chicago's history will be made today. Next Friday, however, it will be officially commemorated when the Chicago centennial festival of religion, "Light of Ages" opens at the Civic Opera house.

On the stage will be placed a replica of the city as it was then. The Chicago Historical society coöperated to make the representation authentic, and the claim has been advanced that the stage setting is the most elaborate ever constructed. All this has been done that the fire scene, the climax of the performance, may be accurately shown in all its terrible grandeur.

The O'Leary Cow Story.

The great fire started in a cow shed in the rear of 558 De Koven street [present address]. For years there has been a legend that it originated when Mrs. O'Leary's cow kicked over a lamp. This story has never been given full credence by historians and most of the experts now hold that drunken roisterers using the shed as a rendezvous were the real authors of the damage.

As a result of the holocaust, 98,000 of Chicago's 306,000 inhabitants were made homeless. It was estimated that 200 to 250 persons perished in the flames.

$196,000,000 Property Loss.

Property valued at $196,000,000 was destroyed. In all, an area of three and a half square miles was burned over.

Residents of other cities and other countries contributed a relief fund of $5,000,000. Chicagoans who had never lost heart began at once to rebuild, and three years later the whole burned over area had been restored to habitability. It was even related that the structures that took the places of the old ones were more spacious and worth twice as much money.

Wife Awarded $75 Weekly from Director of Brewery

Mrs. Martha Hofmann, 7608 Cornell avenue, was awarded $75 weekly temporary alimony yesterday by Judge Philip J. Finnegan in Circuit court on her suit for separate maintenance against Henry Hofmann, 6721 Cregier avenue. Hofmann, she said, is a director of the Monarch Brewery company and owns a restaurant at 821 West 69th street. In previous hearings Attorney Norman Becker, who represents Mrs. Hofmann, said Hofmann has an annual income of $25,000 from his restaurant and has real estate holdings valued at $200,000.

A. F. OF L. MEETING IS CALLED MOST BITTER IN HISTORY

Only Weak Voices of Peace Heard in Denver.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

Denver, Col., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—This convention of the American Federation of Labor probably is the most warlike the organization ever has held. But amid the roars for the blood of the rebel unions which followed John L. Lewis into the Committee for Industrial Organization, there also is the still weak voice of peace.

Such peace talk as emanates from Lewis sympathizers who remain within the federation is unimportant at the moment, for the war party has all the votes it needs to cast the C. I. O. unions out of the federation. But the person who has the most cause to wish an end of labor's civil war is President Roosevelt, and it is from him, directly or indirectly, that the two factions might expect in time the offer of an olive branch.

Causes Political Embarrassment.

The A. F. of L.-C. I. O. fight already has caused him tremendous political embarrassment. Furthermore, it is a threat to his recovery drive, and will become a greater threat as the fighting becomes more severe.

Politically, the President finds it hard to present himself as a friend of labor when each of the two labor camps is demanding that he show his friendship by joining the attack on its enemy. That he has failed to satisfy either camp has been amply demonstrated.

There was the snub administered his secretary of labor, Mme. Frances Perkins, when the federation failed to invite her to address the convention and subsequent repulses of her efforts at reconciliation.

Labor Board Is Target.

There has been the bitter castigation of his labor relations board, almost daily during the convention, as a C. I. O. ally. There have been the numerous expressions of distrust of too much legislation and burocratic control as means of attaining labor's objectives.

None of these attacks has been as direct, however, as John L. Lewis' biting retort to the President's "plague on both your houses" statement during the steel strike. The A. F. of L. has handled some of the President's appointees and policies roughly, but it has had only fair words for Mr. Roosevelt himself.

There already have been some serious industrial stoppages as a result of the labor war, particularly on the Pacific coast during the fight between A. F. of L. teamsters and C. I. O. longshoremen. These interruptions of production may be expected to grow more serious if, as seems probable, the convention here expels the C. I. O. unions, the latter form a rival labor federation at their Atlantic City meeting this week, and both sides start wholesale raids and reprisals on each other's membership.

Would Be Recovery Blow.

Jurisdictional disputes within the federation long have been a source of strikes of the bitterest sort. If A. F. of L. unions start a nation-wide boycott of materials produced by C. I. O. unions, as they are threatening to do, and the C. I. O. retaliates in kind, industrial recovery would receive a tremendous blow.

The President has representatives here, but the members of the convention who quietly have been keeping eye on the peace situation regard them as intelligence agents rather than ambassadors. Actual peace proposals, they predict, will be made at a later date, and secretly by Mr. Roosevelt himself on the basis of information from his field representatives.

James Dewey, department of labor conciliator, has been a constant attendant at convention sessions. There are no labor disputes in Denver which require his attention, nor has he been asked to address the delegates. Therefore there has been some mystery as to why he traveled two-thirds of the way across the country to attend.

Senator Addresses Convention.

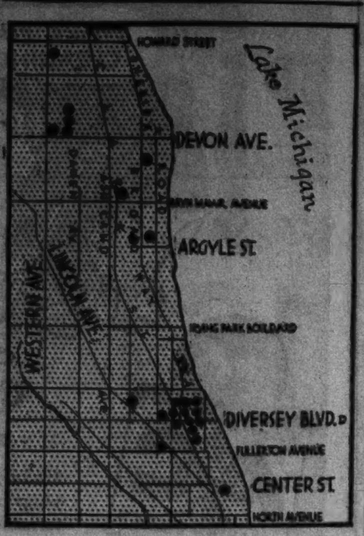
Senator George L. Berry of Tennessee, a loyal New Dealer who on one hand has kept his printing pressmen's union loyal to the A. F. of L. and on the other was associated with Lewis until recently in labor's nonpartisan league, appeared yesterday and addressed the convention.

Winding up his speech, Senator Berry wished success to the A. F. of L. organization campaign and also to the labor organizing offorts "of others," expressing the hope that both would be carried out on American principals, and then said:

"I hope our statesmanship will assert itself to the point where we again will have a happy united trade union movement in the United States."

In the present storm of bitter personalities there are few responsible labor leaders who will predict, even off the record, the possible basis of a peace settlement.

Where Firebugs Prey



Every dot on this map of the north side represents a fire set by pyromaniacs in recent weeks. Fire patrols were established yesterday to capture an incendiarist in Rogers Park.

Firemen and policemen patroled the Rogers Park district last evening in an effort to capture the firebug, believed to be a boy, responsible for many recent incendiary fires on the north side. Four such blazes were set Friday evening.

Since Aug. 22 there have been at least twenty-one and possibly twenty-four incendiary fires, most of which were extinguished with little damage. Capt. Thomas Duffy of the Sheffield avenue police station said no fires of this sort have occurred in his district since the arrest of John Chaky Jr., 16 years old, 2764 Hampden court, son of a janitor, who now is being held in the juvenile home. He confessed, then denied, setting half a dozen fires.

The new fires on Friday caused Capt. Charles Essig of the Rogers Park police station to proceed on the theory that he had to look for another pyromaniac in that neighborhood. He ordered the patrols to go through alleys and side streets every evening until the firebug is caught.

STRIKE THREAT BY BUS DRIVERS DELAYED 3 DAYS

A threatened strike of about 1,300 Greyhound Lines bus drivers, scheduled for this morning, was averted last night, at least for three days, through a telephone agreement between Ivan Bowen, attorney for the lines, who was in Chicago, and S. R. Harvey, an official of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, in Cleveland.

"The union has agreed to postpone the strike until Wednesday at least," Bowen announced at the Greyhound office, 1157 South Wabash avenue. "The continuance will permit further negotiations."

In Cleveland, Harvey said that he and Bowen and others would meet at a hotel there tomorrow morning in an effort to prevent the strike which threatens to tie up all Greyhound buses east of the Mississippi river.

Wages and working hours are not at issue in the negotiations. The brotherhood is seeking a joint contract binding upon all five Greyhound companies in the eastern territory, but the companies refuse to sign except as individual companies.

TURNS TO CRIME AS WAY TO GET SYPHILIS CURE

But City's Campaign Makes That Unnecessary.

A new prospect of a happy and useful life opened yesterday for William Carbo [it's the name he is using but not his real one] as he was preparing to commit a felony.

Nervous and melancholy, he walked into the chambers of Municipal Judge Samuel Heller and asked abruptly what crime he could commit that would insure him three years in prison. After questioning the youth briefly Judge Heller sent him to Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, with a note of explanation.

"Tell me your story," commanded Dr. Bundesen. "I don't think you have to be a criminal to get what you want."

Told He'd Go Crazy.

"I am 21 years old and I live in a midwestern town," said Carbo. "It doesn't matter which one. Three months ago I became afflicted with syphilis and went to a doctor there. He said it would take three years to cure me and that it would cost a lot of money; that I'd go crazy if I didn't take treatments right away.

"I earn only $15 a week and I couldn't pay very much. I've got a new stepfather and I didn't dare let him or my mother know the trouble I was in. So I made up my mind to get sent to prison long enough to be cured. But when I reached Chicago I don't know what sort of crime I'd have to commit, and I went to the city hall to ask a judge—just any judge—about that. Nothing seemed to me as bad as going on until I'm crazy."

Best Treatment Ordered.

Dr. Bundesen sent Carbo to the Municipal contagious disease hospital, ordering the best treatment for the youth, who is to do odd jobs around the place to pay, in a measure, for his keep.

"With proper treatment," the doctor said, "you will be cured. There is no reason you should not become a good citizen."

Later Dr. Bundesen asserted the case was typical. "The victim is driven to distraction by fear and, lacking facilities for treatment, turns to criminality as a solution," he said. "This instance shows the real value of Chicago's campaign to wipe out syphilis. Any syphilis sufferer who appeals to the board of health as this man did will receive sympathetic attention and information on what to do. Our facilities should have more use."

G. O. P. NOMINATES WILLIAM PIERCE FOR JUDGESHIP

William L. Pierce of Woodstock was nominated yesterday by a Republican convention at Woodstock as a candidate to fill the 17th judicial Circuit court vacancy caused by the death of Judge Edward D. Shurtleff of Marengo. The election will be Dec. 7. Pierce's opponent is expected to be George R. Lyon of Waukegan. The Democrats are to have their convention in Waukegan. Pierce, a member of the house of representatives in 1923, introduced a resolution calling for an investigation of the use of the state fair grounds in Springfield by the Ku Klux Klan.

Cheats Machine; Sends Nickel to Balance 'Wrong'

Hartford City, Ind., Oct. 9.—A woman who said she "cheated" a penny weighing machine, mailed a nickel to A. E. Goldreich, department store manager, to relieve her conscience. The woman explained in a letter that she and four others had weighed "all for a penny" on the scales. She said she had been converted recently and realized her "wrong."

LEAPS TO DEATH

[TRIBUNE Photos.]
MISS FLOSSIE A. CASTOR.

A verdict of suicide while temporarily insane was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday in the death of Miss Flossie A. Castor of Champaign, who killed herself earlier in the day by jumping from a thirteenth story window at the Stevens hotel.

The jury was told that Miss Castor, who was 27 years old, was depressed because of overwork. Her body, wrapped in a bed sheet, was found on the roof of a court at the fourth floor of the hotel.

Miss Castor's uncle, Fred B. Campbell, 49 years old, with whom she lived at 509 South 4th street, Champaign, told the jury she had been working hard lately and that her family feared she might have a nervous breakdown. She was a bookkeeper in a grocery store.

DOCTORS DISCUSS NEW SPINAL TEST FOR NERVOUS ILLS

Crystal Formations Give Clew to Diseases.

A recently discovered laboratory technique to aid in the detection of certain nervous diseases was discussed yesterday by members of the faculty of the Northwestern university medical school at a meeting of the Central Pneuropsychiatric association in Thorne hall on the McKinlock campus of the university. The new method consists of an analysis of crystal formations obtained by diluting spinal fluid with a table salt solution.

Members of the university medical school department of nervous and mental diseases explained that an extract of spinal fluid is taken from a patient, combined with the salt solution, and then evaporated in an oven to produce the crystal formations. It has been discovered that when the spinal fluid is taken from normal, healthy persons there are spaces in the evaporated crystal drops.

Lack of Spaces Indicates Disease.

But when the fluid is extracted from persons known to be suffering from general paralysis and in some cases epilepsy, dementia præcox [a common form of insanity], and other nervous diseases, the crystals are found to have no spaces between them.

The microscope reveals that in the latter cases the crystals take the form of thin-lined geometric figures, while in normal cases the lines of the crystal are thick and irregular.

This method of crystal analysis was discovered in 1925 by Ehrenfried Pfeiffer, a Dutch biologist. He had noticed that in cold weather when ice crystals formed on windows of butcher shops the shapes were irregular, while crystals forming on windows of florist shops in the same weather were organized in symmetrical designs.

Tests Theory with Crystals.

Pfeiffer concluded that the difference in the crystal formations was due to the presence of minute amounts of plant extract in the florist shop and the presence of animal extract in the butcher shop. He tested his theory by adding small amounts of extracts of plant and animal tissues to copper chloride crystals and observed the difference in the center and outer radiations of the crystals.

Pfeiffer further discovered that seedlings from healthy trees gave regular crystal patterns, while those from diseased trees gave irregular formations. His deductions led to the field of detecting disease in humans. In 1930 he added minute amounts of diluted human blood to his crystals and was able to observe clear patterns peculiar to different diseases.

NUDE TARGET SHOOTER HELD FOR SLAYING HIS NUDE SWEETHEART, 15

Emmett, Idaho, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Because his sweetheart was left handed, Audie James Robnett, 21, of Kansas City, Kas., was held on a murder charge in a Boise hospital under armed guard today.

Robnett, a former CCC enrolee, was ordered held after a coroner's jury found Anna Jean Phipps, 15 years old, eighth grade student, was slain on a desolate hilltop Tuesday.

Dr. W. K. Bullock, county physician, testified the girl was left handed, but the shot through her heart appeared to have been fired by the right hand more than a foot from her body.

Robnett is recovering from a chest bullet wound. He drove with the dead girl's nude body to a farmhouse near where Miss Phipps and he, both unclothed, had been target shooting, testimony disclosed. The Kansan said the girl shot him and then committed suicide.

SEARS, ROEBUCK AND CO.

"We wanted a place of our own for the children"

MRS. JOSEPH RAGO, [illegible] Wellington Ave., tells how Tribune want ads helped her find it.

"We have a boy of nine and a girl of seven. We decided we ought to have a place of our own, where they could have a big back yard and a basement to play in on rainy days.

Follows Tribune Want Ads

"Several months ago, when we felt we were ready to buy, we started reading the want ads in the Tribune. After we had followed up ads and looked at houses for about two months, I saw an ad one day which described a bungalow at 6943 Wellington Ave. Albert F. Keeney, Realtor, 5612 North Ave., was the advertiser. We called up and Mr. Mars of that firm showed us the house.

"It was a six room, octagon front bungalow on a 35 foot lot. The place was only seven years old. It had been finished in 1930 and had cost the original owner $13,500.

Close to Park

"The rooms were unusually large. Walls were canvased and the bath tiled. And a good electric refrigerator went with the house. There was a hot water and coal heating plant, with thermostatic control.

"The house was near both the Belmont and Diversey bus lines, the Grand Ave. street cars and the railroad station. Not two blocks away from the house is a little park with a swimming tank, tennis courts and a playground for the children. We decided that it was as nice a house as we were likely to find. So we bought it and we are glad we did.

"We got the house for slightly more than half the original cost. The Tribune want ad section is the place to find a home."

★ ★ ★ ★

Are you looking for a house, a bungalow, a building site or a piece of real estate for an investment? No matter what type of property you want, Tribune want ads can help you find it, as they have helped thousands of families.

The quick, easy way to find what you want in a home is through regular reading of the Tribune want ad section. The property you are looking for may be described in today's Tribune want ad section. Today, as for more than 20 years, the Tribune prints more real estate want advertising than any other Chicago newspaper.

ALBERT F. KEENEY, Realtor, 5612 North Ave.

"Repeated checks of response to our advertising in the classified columns of the various newspapers have shown that we receive a larger percentage of response to our advertising in the Tribune, and that the percentage of sales resulting from such inquiries is substantially greater than through other mediums.

"Our experience has been that the Tribune classified columns are the best possible market place for those wishing to buy or sell real estate."

POLICE CALLED TO KEEP ORDER IN LEGISLATURE

Wild Scenes Mark Wisconsin Special Session.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Riding with relentless power in the wake of a blistering night session in the senate that broke up at 1:15 a. m. today, La Follette administration forces early tonight had hammered one of the governor's "emergency" bills through the house and pushed two others beyond the amendable stage in the senate before permitting adjournment for the week-end.

Capitol police were summoned to the senate chamber late today when one of the countless parliamentary squabbles resulted in a threatened contempt proceeding against Senator James Callan [D., Milwaukee]. The explosion came without warning, although the atmosphere had been charged for hours.

Refuses to Sit Down.

Callan, one of five senators yelling for recognition by Lieut. Gov. Henry A. Gunderson, the presiding officer, refused to heed the gavel to "sit down." Gunderson called the sergeant at arms, then a member of the capitol police force.

Callan finally sat down after shouting at Gunderson, "I'll sit in respect to the sergeant at arms, but not in respect to you." Gunderson retaliated by ruling Callan in contempt for "uttering words disrespectful to the chair," but indicated later he would not push contempt proceedings.

It was breathed around the corridors that a move was under way to draw up a resolution asking Gunderson's impeachment for alleged unfair tactics, but it had not been presented when the senate quit work until Monday.

How Administration Scores.

When the gavels' fall before weary legislators in the two houses the administration had obtained:

1. House passage of a bill liberalizing the present old age pension laws.
2. Senate engrossment of the Wisconsin Agricultural Authority measure, proposing for the farm industry in Wisconsin the same sort of a structure that the Wisconsin Development Authority known as the "little TVA," and passed by the regular 1937 session, proposes to do in the utility field.
3. Senate engrossment of a bill creating a state department of commerce, 21 to 7, after killing off 15 of 17 proposed amendments.

Riding roughshod over the opposition amid charges of "dictatorship" and "another Huey Long era," administrative leaders expressed confidence tonight they will be able to pound through to final passage before Oct. 16, the date set for adjournment, a substantial part of the governor's expensive program, dropped into the laps of the legislature two days ago.

Passage of important bills, or even engrossment which shoved them beyond the amendable stage by either house without the formality of a public hearing, has few precedents in Wisconsin legislative history.

Insisting they were being forced to vote "blindfolded" and without a chance to even read some of the bills tossed suddenly on their desks, three Democratic senators climaxed the wild night of rough and tumble battling by refusing to vote yes or no on one of the many roll calls. Both sides whipped out their rule books and wild disorder prevailed for five minutes with half a dozen senators on their feet shouting their demands to be heard.

Lieut. Gov. Gunderson, a Progressive, ruled that the senators had to vote since the senate was under call and they were thus "present." Even then they refused.

Likened to Dictatorship.

"What kind of a bunch of damned fools do you think we are, voting on something we don't know anything about?" shouted Senator Callan, a Milwaukee Democrat. Senator Joe Clancy, Racine Democrat, and also one of the three recalcitrants, denounced the whole procedure as a disgusting exhibition unmatched by even Hitler, Mussolini, or Stalin.

"Hitler and Mussolini are nothing more than wilted geraniums compared to what we've got here tonight," Clancy yelled in concluding a furious tirade directed at the governor's efforts to "railroad" an expansive program through the legislature under "gag rule and without public hearings."

The business of the senate might have stopped right there had it not been for a unanimous vote overruling the chair and permitting the three senators to vote "present."

The house waded through today's session with nearly 40 of its members absent and frequently a quorum was endangered.

Fire in School Basement Under 200 Tons of Coal

Rochester, Minn., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Helen Keller, the famous blind author and lecturer, is expected to leave a hospital here soon, but her physicians have advised her not to resume lecturing until next year. Miss Keller, who now is 57 years old, came here from San Francisco a month ago and underwent an abdominal operation.

MAYOR'S SECRET OF SUCCESS: READ HORATIO ALGER!

Kelly Tells All to Mark Library's 40th Year.

The Chicago public library is one of the city's most valuable agencies for molding the minds of young people toward good citizenship, Mayor Kelly declared yesterday to a group of about 1,000 persons at the fortieth annual celebration of the present main library building.

"The library isn't as completely equipped as the city administration wants it to be," said the mayor, "but it is being improved rapidly.

"The library is a place of mental recreation as well as education. As a boy I was a daily visitor to the library and read every Horatio Alger book on the shelves. I got much of my ambition from those books."

Carl B. Roden, chief librarian, remarked that the Alger books were taken from the library shelves thirty years ago. He said the youngsters of the last few years are no longer interested in such stories, calling them too tame.

Sherif John Toman, who was a page boy in the library in 1890, told the group that his academic education stopped at the third grade and he continued his education in the library. He resigned from the library in 1916 when he was principal library assistant.

Two old timers present at the commemorating exercises were Thomas F. Scully, 47 North Lorel avenue, who was a page boy when he was 14 years old in 1879, and Chris Ullrich, 3252 Southport avenue, who was employed as a watchman in 1893. Ullrich resigned his watchman position in 1935. Scully left the library in 1880 to enter the postal service, from which he resigned in 1932.

Further celebrations in honor of the library building's fortieth anniversary will be held this week in the branch libraries throughout the city.

LOCUSTS IN NICARAGUA HIDE SUN, EAT CROPS AND IMPEDE TRAFIC

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York Times.]

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Oct. 9.—Locusts have arrived in such great numbers that they obscure the sun and impede trafic. Travel on the road near La Luz and El Domingo has been slowed to ten miles an hour. Motorists have been advised to use chains to pass through certain sections because cars become stuck in mangled locusts reaching almost up to the hubs.

Half of Nicaragua's cotton crop has been destroyed and the locusts are now destroying rice and beans.

TWO WOMEN KIN OF COOLIDGE ARE ROBBER VICTIMS

Watertown, Mass., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—A gunman broke into the home of the Misses Elsie and Rosamond Coolidge, sisters and distant relatives of the former President, early today, robbed them of $100 in cash and $400 in jewelry and cut the telephone wires. He threatened the women with death if they gave the alarm.

Warned by the burglar that a confederate would remain on guard outside, the sisters and their maid cowered in the house in terror until daybreak, when they notified neighbors. Watertown police withheld details of the robbery until tonight.

The robber entered the Coolidge home by forcing a window in the library. He is believed to be the so-called "human fly" who already is sought in connection with a score of burglaries.

IERC Receives Potatoes and Prunes for Needy

Leo M. Lyons, executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, yesterday said that 1,320,000 pounds of dried prunes and 7,560,000 pounds of potatoes have been received from the federal surplus commodities corporation for distribution to Illinois needy. He said the food will aid in offsetting the shortage of more than a million dollars in state relief funds this month. Distribution will start immediately.

32 SEIZED IN GAMBLING RAIDS.

Thirty-two persons were arrested yesterday by the gambling squad in raids on eleven alleged handbooks. They will be arraigned tomorrow in South State Street court.

OPEN COMMUNITY FUND $3,550,000 DRIVE TOMORROW

$150,000 More Asked to Aid 23 New Agencies.

The community fund drive for $3,550,000, largest objective since the emergency years of 1931 and 1932, will be launched tomorrow night at a massmeeting of 2,000 volunteer workers in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel. Gen. Robert E. Wood, campaign chairman, will take over formal command of the drive, explaining its plans and procedure to the committee members.

Bishop Bernard J. Sheil will deliver the principal address. Edward L. Ryerson Jr., president of the community fund, will discuss private charities, and Mayor Kelly will give a short talk. John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor; R. Douglas Stuart, James A. Cathcart, and Roy C. Ingersoll are other vice chairmen participating in the campaign.

23 New Agencies Aided.

"The goal this year," Gen. Wood announced yesterday, "is $150,000 more than in 1936. The increase covers the additional expenditures assumed by the fund because of twenty-three newly affiliated agencies, as well as increasing costs of commodities and services required for the functioning of the welfare units.

"There are 177 social agencies which depend on the fund at present. They comprise the major organized units in the field of privately supported charities. The list includes Catholic, Protestant, Jewish and nonsectarian organizations. The funds raised by the campaign are equitably distributed among them all.

"Generally speaking, the work of the major agencies has to do with human betterment endeavors. Primarily, the object is to help unfortunates to help themselves—restore to normal living those who have lost their grip, and to lead youth toward healthier and more useful lives.

Seek to Build Up Unfortunates.

"In contrast to the work of the privately supported agencies, the relief work of federal, state and city governments occupies an entirely different field. In the latter's scope, the regimented feeding, housing and clothing of victims of economic reverses is the main objective. The private agencies endeavor to give such personal service to unfortunates as will help to build them up so they again may take their places in the normal walks of life."

The campaign, fund officials said, will involve intensive solicitation of more than 700,000 employed citizens of Chicago. The volunteer workers' organization will be augmented during peak operations to some 5,000.

ANDREW SALLEN, RETIRED CHICAGO MINISTER, DIES

The Rev. Andrew Sallen, retired Swedish Methodist minister, died yesterday afternoon in the Geneva Community hospital, Geneva, after an illness of two months. He was 73 years old. Before his retirement from the Hyde Park Swedish Methodist church ten years ago, the Rev. Mr. Sallen had served as pastor of the old Emmanuel Swedish church, and the Moreland Swedish Methodist church in Chicago. He also held pastorates in Aurora, Geneva, Rockford, Batavia and St. Charles.

Surviving are his widow, Lavinnia, and two daughters, Miss Ruth, who lives in Geneva, and Mrs. Joseph E. Mills, Chicago. Funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at the Emmanuel Methodist Episcopal church in Geneva. Burial will be in Geneva cemetery.

MUSEUM TABLET TELLS 4,000 YEAR REALTY BARGAIN

Six and five-sixths shekels bought a house and lot in a choice location 4,000 years ago in Babylonia, according to a clay tablet on display at the Field Museum of Natural History. A shekel would be worth about 25 cents now, but metals and coins were rare in the dawn of recorded history.

The tablet is one of a collection of documents unearthed by the Field museum-Oxford university joint expedition to Mesopotamia. Richard A. Martin, curator of near eastern archæology at the museum, came upon the tablet recently in the collection and translated it with the aid of Samuel I. Feigin of the University of Chicago.

It was the record of a purchase by a woman named Amtiia of a house and lot from Shat-Numushda, the daughter of Sin-malik, and Ummi Waqrat, her mother. The parties involved swore to the sanctity of the contract in the names of the gods Zababa and Marduk. Names of several witnesses are included on the tablet.

RATES ON OCEAN PASSENGER SHIPS GO UP $5 NOV. 1

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Effective Nov. 1, trans-Atlantic passenger fares will be increased by $5 in all classes. Another advance will be made when the 5 per cent differential separating the summer and winter seasons will be increased 5 per cent, according to advices received here tonight from Paris, where the trans-Atlantic passenger conference principals have just ended a two day meeting.

Higher operating costs afloat and ashore were responsible for the decision to increase the fares on ships operating between the United States and Europe, it was explained.

The present minimum cabin class off season one way fare on the Normandie and Queen Mary is $282. This will be increased to $287 on Nov. 1 and will be continued until the opening of the eastbound summer season on May 24, when, as a result of the 10 per cent higher differential, the fare will be increased to $315. The previous rate was $297.

Edward Belasco, Brother of David, Dies in West

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Edward Belasco, 63, San Francisco and Los Angeles theatrical producer and brother of the late David Belasco of New York, died tonight. Ill for some time, his death was hastened by a stroke. Belasco was credited with bringing many New York actors and actresses to the west coast, where they eventually became screen stars. The list included Edward G. Robinson, Fredric March, Lionel Barrymore, Edward Arnold, and Boris Karloff.

Miss Mary Weldon, Long a Chicago Teacher, Dies

Miss Mary E. Weldon, 70 years old, for many years a teacher in the Komensky Elementary school until her retirement five years ago, died suddenly from a heart attack yesterday in her home, 165 North Pine avenue. Miss Weldon, who was born here, devoted almost all her life to school affairs. She was an active member of the Chicago Teachers federation and at one time was assistant principal of the Komensky school.

LACK OF CANCER DATA CURBS WAR, SAYS MAUD SLYE

If cancer is to be conquered, accurate human records are needed. This was the theme of Dr. Maud Syle of the University of Chicago, made last night in an address before Montparnesse, a Saturday night forum at the Medinah club. Her subject was "Of Mice and Men." For 30 years she has been breeding cancer out of mice in her renowned cancer research laboratory. Last night she suggested, a little tartly, that a few of her methods be used on men.

"If I had no accurate records of mice, I could do nothing about eliminating cancer or any other disease," she said. "We have no adequate human records."

Mrs. Mabel Wingate Swift Dies; Funeral Tuesday

Mrs. Mabel Wingate Swift, wife of William B. Swift, retired International Harvester company purchasing department manager, died yesterday morning at her home, 10327 South Seeley avenue, after a brief illness. Mrs. Swift was born in London 65 years ago and came to this country in 1899. She married Mr. Swift in 1906. Besides her husband, three daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth S. Coyle, Mabel Swift and Dorothy Swift, now Sister Mary Wilfred, and a son, William B. Swift Jr., survive. Funeral services will be at 10 a. m. Tuesday from the home to St. Barnabas church, the interment at the Holy Sepulchre cemetery.

Explosion on Ship Kills 2; U. S. Coast Guard to Rescue

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 10 [Sunday].—(AP)—Coast guard headquarters here early today reported receipt of a distress call at 1:30 a. m. from the American tanker Caloria saying that two of the crew were "injured or dead" following the bursting of a steamline 60 miles east of Charleston, S. C. The accident, the message said, occurred yesterday. The Caloria is owned by the Standard Navigation corporation of New Orleans. The cutter Yamacraw, which left Savannah, Ga., yesterday, was directed to proceed to the tanker, coast guard headquarters here said.

Funeral Tomorrow for Mrs. Concettina Lagattuta

Funeral services for Mrs. Concettina Lagattuta, 66 years old, 1949 Hudson avenue, wife of Policeman John Lagattuta of the Sheffield avenue station, will be held at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow at St. Philip's church, Oak street and Cambridge avenue. She died Friday. Mrs. Lagattuta was born in Italy and came to America 40 years ago. Besides John four other children and a sister, Mother Superior Maria Angela Cavadi, survive. Mrs. Lagattuta will be buried in Mount Carmel.

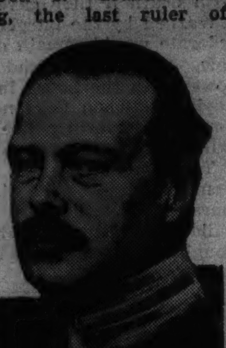
DEPOSED RULER OF GRAND DUCHY IN GERMANY DIES

Ernst Ludwig Was Kin of Kaiser and Czar.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 9.—Grand Duke Ernst Ludwig, the last ruler of Hesse-Darmstadt, died today in his hunting castle, Wolfsgraben. Death followed an attack of influenza. The grand duke would have been 69 years of age on Nov. 25.



Grand Duke Ernst Ludwig.

Ernst Ludwig was close to the courts of former Kaiser Wilhelm II. of Germany and of the late Czar Nicholas II. of Russia. He was a relative by marriage of both, as well as a grandson of the late Queen Victoria of Great Britain through his mother, Princess Alice of England. He disliked court formality, and was dubbed the "red duke."

A Patron of Arts.

Much of his time before and after his abdication in 1918, when the German revolution swept away crowns and Hesse-Darmstadt became a free state, was devoted to the protection of the theater and other arts which made his little capital, Darmstadt, an important art center.

The grand duke married twice. His first wife was his cousin, Princess Victoria of Saxe, Coburg, and Gotha. After the grand ducal couple was divorced in 1901 the grand duchess married Grand Duke Cyril of Russia, now pretender to the Russian throne.

Son Is Aid of Ribbentrop.

The second wife of Ernst Ludwig is Princess Eleonore of Solms-Hohensolms-Lich. Their second son, Prince Ludwig, now is a member of the staf of Joachim von Ribbentrop, German ambassador to London.

Two of the grand duke's sisters married into the ill fated house of Romanoff. Princess Alexandra was murdered in 1917 together with her husband, Czar Nicholas. Another sister, Princess Elizabeth, was married to Grand Duke Sergius of Russia, who also was slain. A third sister married the former kaiser's brother, Prince Henry of Prussia.

British Rulers to Receive 100 American Legionnaires

C. V. WILLIAMS, CHILD WELFARE LEADER, IS DEAD

Clarence Voorhees Williams, superintendent of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society and known as a pioneer leader in child welfare work, died of heart disease last night in the Evanston hospital. He lived at 2235 Sherman avenue, Evanston, and would have been 65 years old on Oct. 20.

Mr. Williams became head of the society in 1922, coming from Boston, where he was superintendent of the Boston Children's Aid society. Previously he had served as director of the child welfare department of the board of state charities in Ohio and state superintendent of the New Jersey Children's Home society.

He was a member of the Illinois committee on child welfare legislation, the advisory committee of community child welfare under the social security act, a director of the Chicago community fund, and secretary and treasurer of the National Children's Aid association. His widow, Elizabeth; a daughter, Elizabeth, and a son, Edwin, survive. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the First Presbyterian church, Evanston. The body will be sent to Frenchtown, N. J., for burial.

HOPKINS RITES ARE ATTENDED BY PRESIDENT, WIFE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—The President and Mrs. Roosevelt today attended funeral services for Mrs. Barbara Duncan Hopkins, wife of WPA Administrator Hopkins, who died Thursday morning.

Accompanied by other mourners they sat in a pew with their son, James, and his wife, Betsy, and other members of the White House staf. Dr. Russell J. Clinchy conducted brief services in Mount Pleasant Congregational church.

The services cut short the President's activities for the day. His callers included Señor Don Felipe A. Espill, Argentine ambassador. The envoy left a message from his government which included congratulations on the President's Chicago address. This was the first expression received from Latin America on the address assailing aggressor nations and urging a "quarantine" against them.

A SHIP WITH PULL FINDS GOOD GOING IN GERMAN TRIALS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 9.—What was claimed to be the world's first ship with propellers in the bow instead of the stern was tested out successfully today on the Rhine-Neckar canal.

German papers said the new ship, named the Badenia 92, almost completely eliminated waves, indicating that river and canal ships which pull instead of push can increase their speed considerably without damaging canal beds and embankments. The present speed of ships on German canals is limited to three miles an hour.

The Badenia 92 can carry a cargo of 934 tons. Its two Diesel engines generate 135 horsepower each to drive two screws protruding from the right and left sides of the bow.

This announcement of our Sixty-Second Anniversary Sale presents an opportunity to review, with the four million residents of Chicagoland, the history of The Fair.

As we look back over the past sixty-two years we see a little one story building known as The Fair grow into a structure of great commercial strength. The original store, opened in 1875, was started with a capital of less than a thousand dollars. It was a very unpretentious little store sixteen by eighty feet . . . built on new hopes and ambitions. It represented the founding of a new kind of store, for it operated on new principles which changed existing retail practices.

As we watch the growth of that little one story store, we see building after building added to it . . . until the present structure was completed, eleven stories tall, covering half a city block . . . a monument to a priceless ideal.

Eight years ago two other stores were added, one in Oak Park, the other on Milwaukee Avenue, and last Spring the Oak Park Store was doubled in size. Likewise the last few years have seen countless improvements added to the State Street Store.

Now, though sixty-two years are behind us, we are still planning for the future . . . holding rigidly to our reputation for Reliability, Courtesy and Honesty.

So, to celebrate this 62nd Anniversary, we have prepared a sale of great importance to everyone and the preceding and four following pages list but a few of thousands of special features.

TAKE ADVANTAGE OF OUR CONVENIENT BUDGET PLAN

The above figures . . . Commerce, Progress and Service . . . were originally published in the announcement of our 36th Anniversary Sale in October, 1911.

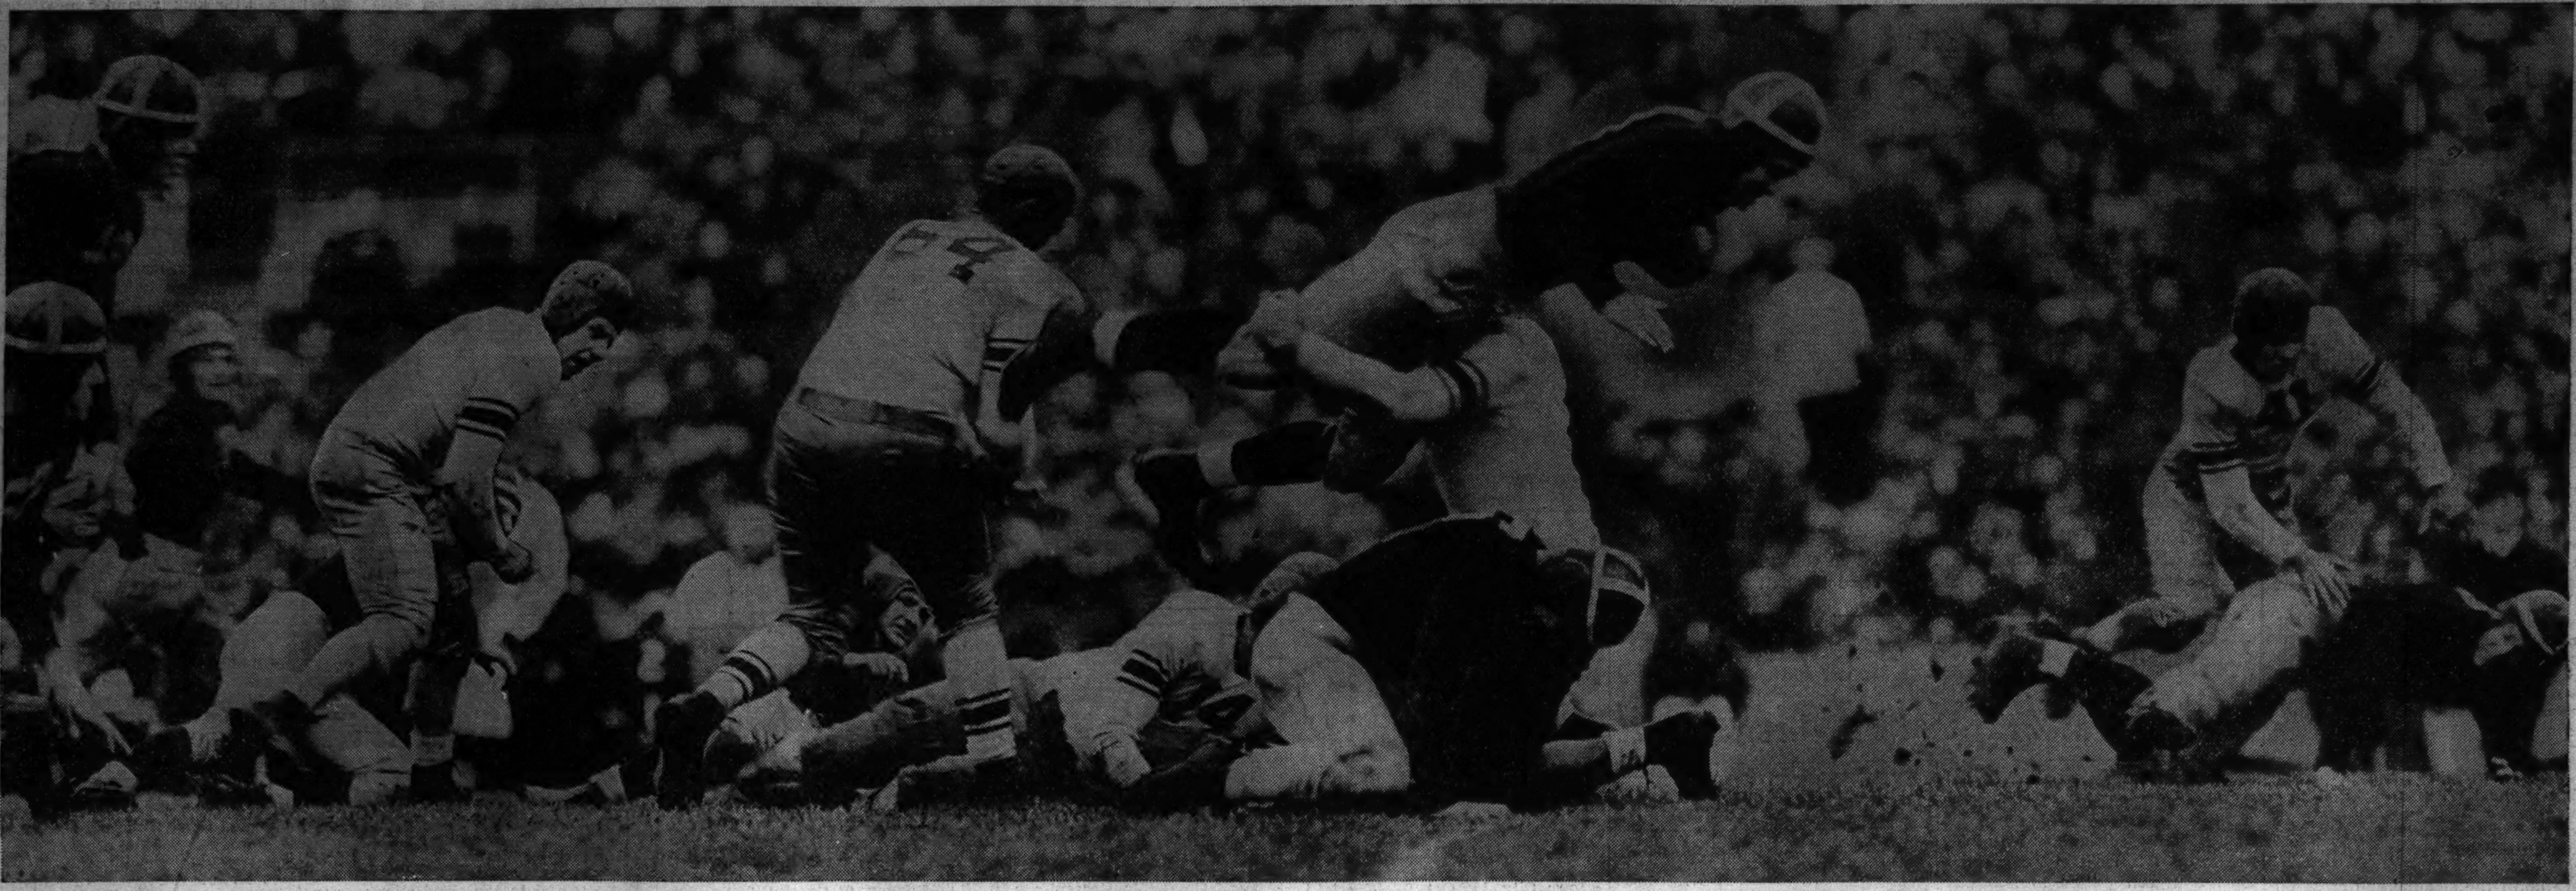
ILLINOIS TIES NOTRE DAME; N. U. WINS, 7-0

GIANTS WHIP YANKS, 7-3; SOX EVEN CITY SERIES, 14 TO 2

GOING OVER THE TOP, BUT NOT FAR ENOUGH TO PREVENT DEFEAT



Ed Stanton of Michigan is stopped by Fred Vanzo after picking up three yards against Northwestern in opening Western conference game for both schools at Dyche stadium yesterday. No. 64 is Nick Cutlich (No. 14), Ervin Wegner, and Jack Ryan (No. 41), all of the Wildcats. Northwestern won, 7 to 0, by scoring on a forward pass in the third period. The Wolverines gave Northwestern fans a scare by marching to the Wildcat 21 yard line in the fourth quarter, but the Evanston boys braced. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

GIANTS' SIX RUN BLAST IN SECOND CHASES HADLEY

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 9.—It's King Carl in Gotham once more. King Carl Hubbell, his crown sadly battered in the opener of the world series last Wednesday, pulled his rattled and collapsed court together this afternoon and licked the Yankees, 7 to 3, in the fourth game of the world series at the Polo Grounds.

Hubbell may be king for only a day. The series may end tomorrow under the impetus of Lefty Gomez's wizardry. But Hubbell saved the 1937 world series from being baseball's all-time grandest flop. Cliff Melton will oppose Gomez on the mound.

True, the Yankees may have spotted the Giants something when they started Bump Hadley instead of again putting Gomez against Hubbell, as they did in the opener. But as the game was played it was the most pleasing show of the four games to date, if the response of the crowd of 44,293 can be taken as a guide.

Clinch Victory in Second.

In the first three games, the spectators sat silently, perhaps bored to tears, as the Yanks trampled the frightened Giants into virtual insensibility.

Today the panicky underdogs tore into the bullies and the crowd, except those who bet the Yankees would sweep the series, loved it.

Hubbell allowed the strong men only six hits, two of which, including a homer by Lou Gehrig, came in the ninth, when the Giants had the game in hand.

Six of the Giants' runs, twice as many as their grand total in the first three games, were tallied in a second inning outbreak.

Seven of the Giants' 12 hits were socked in this precipitate awakening of the palsied National leaguers, including two singles by Hank Lieber, whose poor fielding judgment had given the Yanks a run in the first inning and Hubbell an early handicap.

Giant Infield Wabbles.

The Yanks, though they had a crushing edge in the series, screamed and showed signs of confusion during the Giant awakening, but they continued errorless throughout the game and series. While the Giant hitters came to life, their once vaunted defense made things tough for Hubbell even after the big second inning. In the third inning a less calm man than King Carl would have been blown out of the ball park.

Dick Bartell twice threw the ball away on successive plays, one of them a two base bobble. And immediately thereafter Mel Ott cut loose with a two base wild throw that let a run get home and put the batter on second. But King Carl battled on despite the clownishness of his infield jesters and until Gehrig smacked that one in the ninth should have had a shutout as the reward for his skill.

Gehrig hadn't got the ball out of the infield before he crashed the second homer of the series. He had fanned his last previous time at bat

Hammer Four Cub Pitchers for 16 Hits

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The White Sox got their dander up yesterday at Wrigley field and evened up the twenty-second city series at two games apiece by defeating the Cubs, 14 to 2, amid what sometimes are described as scenes of the wildest confusion. A well chilled gathering of 12,947 found the bleak afternoon brightened by the amusing aspects of the contest. The White Sox bats, which had been definitly quieted during the first three games of the series, exploded with terrific force in the faces of four Cub pitchers. Pinched down to an aggregate of eighteen hits in the first three games of the north and south strife, the Sox yesterday blasted their north side foes with a total of sixteen wallops, including four for extra bases.

While the Sox were lambasting the four Bruin pitchers, Bill Lee, Clay Bryant, Roy Parmelee, and Clyde Shoun, their man John Whitehead was quelling the Cub attack on a seven hit allowance. The fourth of these did not appear until the sixth inning. Meanwhile Lee, the Cub starter, gave up four runs and five hits in the two and one-third innings. Bryant was treated even more unkindly, being touched for seven runs and seven hits in his three innings of employment. Parmelee issued nothing in his two and two-thirds innings, but Shoun was nicked for three runs and four hits in the ninth, one of them being Zeke Bonura's home run at the outset of the inning.

That Chaplin Touch.

The comic complexion of the game was heightened by a disorderly melange of mistakes which included eight errors, four to the side; three hit batsmen, a wild pitch, and a passed ball. Fortunately no spectators were injured.

Bonura, who had been in a batting coma throughout the opening three games, having collected one hit in ten times at bat, awakened yesterday with a crash highly disturbing to his north side hecklers. Zeke amended a contribution to the Sox error column with his homer, a double, and a single, driving in four of the Sox's runs.

Mike Kreevich, who also had been frustrated by the Cub hurlers, came through with three singles, Jackie Hayes supplied a triple and single, and Luke Appling had a double and a single.

Cavarretta Stands Alone.

North side customers are beginning to surmise that Phil Cavarretta will return to first base for the Cubs next season. Yesterday the Italian youth drove out four singles in four appearances at the plate and fielded well. The other Cub hits were made by Stan Hack, Billy Herman, and Clay Bryant, the last named coming up with the only Cub extra base hit, a double to the left field corner in the fourth.

The fifth game will be played at Wrigley field today, beginning at 1:30 p. m. The sixth contest will transpire at Comiskey park, which also will be the scene of the seventh game, if necessary.

GOPHERS BEAT NEVER-SAY-DIE INDIANA, 6 TO 0

BY HOWARD BARRY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 9.—Followers of the Gophers like to see their favorites referred to as the Mighty Men of Minnesota. For years sports writers have used this term—and used it aptly. Today the Mighty Men started confidently in quest of the Big Ten championship, with the Hoosiers of Indiana university as their opponents. The Gophers started with assurance and ended in desperation, knocking down a Hoosier pass in the end zone as the final gun went off. The score board read: Minnesota, 6; Indiana, 0.

Football fans had been inclined to feel sorry for the Hoosiers during the week of preparation for the game. For the Gophers had been thoroughly aroused by a defeat at the hands of Nebraska. It was recalled how Minnesota had crushed Iowa, 52 to 0, last year on the Saturday following the unexpected defeat by Northwestern. So the concensus was: "This is going to be tough on poor Indiana."

Did Discipline Help?

As a gesture of discipline, several members of the Gopher first string who had failed against Nebraska were kept on the bench as the game began. The sophomores who replaced them could get nowhere against the belligerent Hoosiers. In the second quarter Andy Uram, Larry Buhler, and Rudy Gmitro joined Wilbur Moore in the back field, while Capt. Ray King took his accustomed place at end.

Immediately the Gophers became the Mighty Men. Gmitro took a punt on the Hoosier 40 yard line and dodged his way to the 20 before he was thrown. Uram slanted off his right tackle for 5 yards and repeated at the same spot for 4. Buhler hammered center to the 9 yard line. Then Moore went off left tackle for a touchdown. Horace Bell failed to kick the extra point, but no one thought it mattered.

Again the Mighty Men went on the march. Uram ran the kickoff back to the Indiana 42 yard line. Running, plunging and passing with relentless power and accuracy, the Gophers made first down on the 13 yard line. But Indiana held and took the ball on its 4 yard line. That was the end of Gopher aggression.

Hoosiers Dominate Last Half.

The intermission came a few minutes later. The Hoosiers returned to dominate the game throughout the second half. During this time they made five first downs to Minnesota's one. With Frank Filchock and Bill Anderson throwing passes on the dead run; with George Fowler and Corby Davis catching them on their shoe-tops, over their shoulders and on their finger tips, the Hoosiers hammered at the Gopher goal line and returned to hammer again.

They made first down on the Minnesota 10 yard line in the fourth quarter, advanced to the five yard line and then grounded a fourth

Illini Hold Irish Scoreless; Miss Victory When Kicks Fail

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 9.—The fighting Illini did it again. This time it was the vaunted host from Notre Dame which hammered in vain against the defense of an inspired Illinois eleven and after 60 minutes of a gruelling, futile struggle in Memorial stadium saw its hope of a victory march to a national championship broken by a scoreless tie.

Forty-five thousand watched the battle, the second in history between the universities. And there was none in that throng, despite the parity of the score, who did not realize that Illini had gained the decision by their sturdy defiance of Notre Dame's power. Twice Melvin Brewer missed field goals that would have given Illinois victory. Only once, in the second period, did Notre Dame threaten, reaching Illinois' 12 yard line.

By statistical measurement Notre Dame was superior. This had been expected. But although Illinois yielded more yards, it held firm when its goal was menaced. That persistent and successful defense must be written in Illinois' gridiron history along with other stirring battles by which Illinois has won deserved fame.

Brief Spurts Founder.

Perhaps Notre Dame was the victim of public opinion which overestimated Irish strength. Yet, throughout, Notre Dame showed flashes of coherent attack which threatened to sweep all defenders before it. Those brief spurts, however, foundered against a line which asked no aid and rose to meet Notre Dame assaults with brilliant charges and fierce tackling.

The line was supported by an alert secondary, which permitted only three pass completions in seventeen attempts and was impenetrable when those passes threatened defeat. Foremost in every scrimmage were Jim McDonald and John Berner, who supported Illinois' line. Joe Klemp, at left end, time and again crashed past Notre Dame blockers to smash ball carriers for losses or hurry passers.

Howard Carson, Melvin Brewer, Capt. Lowell Spurgeon—the list might be extended to include all the twenty-two Illini. But at times, and here was the font of Illini inspiration, there was tumultous thunder of encouragement from the Illinois stands.

Banked in serried rows, a section of 1,200 student soldiers roared their cheers. There was a continuous wave of sound, rising now to booming crescendo, as Notre Dame threatened, and then applauding tumultously as Illinois stemmed each drive.

Illini Tackle Hard.

Under the lash of this organized cheering Illinois' men threw themselves in desperate hard tackles which Notre Dame's blockers could not prevent. Here was Illinois' superiority.

Notre Dame was disheartened by failure to score. But Notre Dame fought to the end. Three times the Irish linked together first downs in marches and while all failed to reach the goal the team did not become disorganized nor accept scoring failure until the final gun.

From the battle may come players to lead Notre Dame in subsequent games. Louis Zontini, at left half, drove at the Illinois line with a determination which made him an outstanding player. Bunny McCormick, always in the way of Illinois' sharp thrusts, was another leader on attack. And Earl Brown, substitute at left end for Leonard Skoglund, seldom was checked in his charges into the Illinois back field.

Notre Dame outrushed Illinois from scrimmage, 118 yards to 50. In total yards gained Notre Dame led, 170 yards to 89. But it must be added that there were five Notre Dame fumbles, two of which were recovered by Illinois, and that Illinois retrieved all three of its misplays.

Spurgeon's Play Inspires.

Spurgeon's play today, despite the handicap of an injury which may keep him on the side lines in other games, was inspiration to his mates. Spurgeon was unable to practice this week. The growth on his left ankle, the result of a high school injury, made every step agony. Yet Spurgeon, captain of the team, asked to play, and his accurate handling of Notre Dame punts helped create Illinois' first period scoring opportunity.

Illinois chose to kick off and with this advantage kept Notre Dame deep in its own territory. Spurgeon's returns of Jack McCarthy's kicks, backed by Berner's accurate punts, eventually gave Illinois the ball on its 41 yard line. Spurgeon spun inside right tackle for three yards, and Howie Carson smashed at the center of Notre Dame's six man line for a first down on Notre Dame's 46 yard line.

After Bob Wehrli had failed to gain, Spurgeon twisted through the THIRD QUARTER PASS TO DIEHL BEATS MICHIGAN

BY ARCH WARD.

Northwestern had what it takes in the pinch at Dyche stadium yesterday afternoon and it squeezed out a 7 to 0 victory over Michigan in the first defense of its Big Ten championship.

As far as the scoring was concerned, the Wildcats' triumph was more or less a solo endeavor by Cleo Diehl, junior end from East Chicago. It was his aggressiveness in spearing a forward pass, which apparently had fallen into hostile hands, that accounted for the game's lone touchdown.

Unable to gain consistently through Michigan's rugged line, Northwestern, in the third quarter, lifted its attack to the air. Bernard Jefferson, right half back, shot a pass to Don Heap, who was brought down on Michigan's 30 yard line after a 14 yard gain. Jack Ryan, son of a former Northwestern coach, made a first down in two cracks at the Wolverine line.

Diehl Is a Fine Fielder.

Here Michigan's defense braced as it had done repeatedly against Michigan State a week previous, and on fourth down the Wildcats still needed four yards. Heap faded back and hurled a pass to Diehl in the end zone. Douglas Farmer, Wolverine quarter back, leaped into the air and seemed to have the ball in his hands. Diehl, who went up in the air with him, pulled it away from him and fell to the sod with the lether under his chest. Ryan placed kicked the extra point.

Michigan's line play improved almost unbelievably between its opening game with Michigan State and the Northwestern battle. Its tackling was of the sort that snaps backs and loosens teeth. It was smart against reverses, cutbacks, and laterals.

Weakness in forward pass defense was responsible for the Wolverines' defeat.

Michigan had an advantage of seven first downs to four by rushing, which is evidence of its superior line play, but Northwestern's margin in the air was even more pronounced. The Wildcats completed eight of their thirteen forward passes for a total gain of 128 yards, while the Wolverines made good on only four out of sixteen tosses for 70 yards.

They're a Pair of Aces.

Michigan's sophomore backs, Trosko and Renda, gave a brilliant demonstration of expert running, but neither was in a class with Northwestern's Don Heap. Heap had trouble getting under way in the first half because Michigan linemen came riding into plays as if on motorcycles and they usually denuded him of interference before he leveled off with the scrimmage line. Don Siegel's work at left tackle was outstanding in the Michigan line, and John Kovatch, whose catching of passes and intelligent end play caused the Wolverines constant dis-

So. California Defeats Ohio State, 13 to 12

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 9.—One successful kick for the extra point out of four which were attempted gave Southern California a 13 to 12 victory over a gallant Ohio State team this afternoon. Seventy-two thousand fans saw Ralph Stanley, 186 pound Trojan end, kick the important placement which decided the contest in the fourth quarter after Ohio State's Al Schoenbaum saw one such try tipped into the air by Amerigo Tonelli of the Trojans, and Schoenbaum's alternate at left tackle, Joe Aleskus, had sent another kick wide of the goal posts.

The Trojans scored first in the second quarter when Ambrose Schindler engineered a thirty yard goalward march in nine successive line plays, on all except three of which he plugged the Buckeye line himself. For the time being it looked as if Ohio was tough, but Schindler was tougher. The Buckeyes made this a matter of debate in the second half, however, when Schindler was forced out of play temporarily by injuries.

Rabb Runs 56 Yards.

After being halted short of Southern California's 40 yard line all through the first half, which ended 6 to 0 for the Trojans, John Rabb broke through the Southern California line for a 56 yard run on the third play in the third quarter. It was the longest run of the game. Rabb broke through over his own left tackle for his gain, after a neat hole had been opened. He wheeled through the broken field, needing to evade only three tacklers. One of the defenders was Safety Man Schindler, whom Rabb neatly sidestepped, but as he neared the goal line he was overhauled by Stanley. The Trojans managed to stop Rabb and Zadworney on the 2 yard line after Ohio made four line smashes from the point where Stanley downed Raab.

Two Marches Fall Short.

Schindler was forced to punt out from behind his goal, but Rabb and Mike Kabealo smashed right back to the goal line, where Morgan's interception of Wasylik's pass ended a second Ohio march. A third march was taken up by Wasylik and likewise fell short, after he had caught Schindler's second punt out, and returned it ten yards to Southern California's 27 yard line. On this occasion Ohio penetrated to the 7 yard line, but Tonelli tackled Wedebrook behind the scrimmage line and Wasylik's pass on fourth down grounded in the end zone.

Ohio manufactured still a fourth march within three more plays when a punt by Keller, alternate quarterback for Southern California, was partly blocked by Fred Crow, end, and bounced around until Ralph Wolf, Ohio's co-captain, recovered it on the Trojan 23 yard line. The Ohio touchdown was scored in the next two plays. Rabb broke through the right side of the Trojan line and went over for an apparent touchdown standing up, but officials ruled he had stepped out of bounds in the corner of the field. On the next

After they had made a punching bag out of Chicago's Maroons while scoring an easy 27 to 0 victory they were very much in the thick of the title fight. A roughness in both attack and defense, evident in the early stages, had been completely smoothed out late in the struggle. They had the Maroons entirely baffled in the final minutes of play.

The work of the Badgers was methodical. They made their task look easier by scoring a touchdown in the first half dozen minutes of play. They put the game on ice by another one late in the third period. They ran completely away from the Maroons—not as hapless as some people have painted them—in the last quarter.

Maroons Fight On.

As a spectacle it was of interest only to those in the crowd of 12,000 who were Badgers' adherents. The stubborn fight of the Maroons, the untiring runs—most of them for gains—by Solly Sherman, a Chicago kid who played half back, did give the Maroon followers false hopes at times.

Still, the sad lack of reserve power to relieve such fellows as Sherman, Fink, Fitzgerald, Greenebaum, Wasem, Letts and the others who carried on to the limit of their physical ability, made it evident early that the Maroon cause was hopeless. It took more than Sherman's last stand to turn back the fighting Badgers on this occasion.

The statistics are the evidence that the Maroons were not pushovers in any sense of the word, although the score does indicate as much.

The Badgers made but four more first downs than the Maroons, ten to Chicago's six. On the running plays the Badgers made 142 yards in 51 thrusts. Chicago was held to 50 yards in 32 attempts. Wisconsin completed 6 passes in 19 attempted and made 108 yards by that route, with three interceptions. Chicago tried 18 passes [15 of them by Sherman], completed 7 for 76 yards gain, and had 5 intercepted.

The Badgers averaged 30.5 yards on 10 punts and Chicago averaged 29.5 yards on nine.

Sherman Tries Hard.

Wisconsin's blocking was brilliant at times and bad at other stages of the game. It was good enough, however, to keep the Maroons on the retreat.

The Badgers didn't wait long to demonstrate their superiority. The Maroons had displayed grit for five minutes. At the same time the Wisconsin attack was not clicking as it should have clicked.

Finally the Badgers did start moving smoothly. They pushed the Maroons gradually back. In an ex-

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Gallant defensive stands by Purdue's line shared honors with third quarter offensive fireworks featuring Cecil Isbell and Lou Brock as the Boilermakers defeated a stubborn Carnegie Tech eleven, 7 to 0, today. A homecoming crowd of 18,000 saw the game.

Purdue's touchdown came midway in the third quarter, with Brock's accurate punting presenting the scoring opportunity. After one of Brock's punts had been downed on Carnegie's 8 yard line, Condit kicked out to Cecil Isbell, who returned the ball to the Tartan 49 yard line.

Purdue promptly opened up. Juska, in two smashes, made thirteen yards and, after a lateral from Cecil Isbell to Brock had picked up three yards, the Isbell family put on its aerial act as Cecil passed to Cody for first down on the 26 yard line.

Brock Scores.

On the next play Brock, hard running sophomore, turned in a spectacular run for the winning touchdown. Starting off tackle, Brock reversed his field three times and twice squirmed out of tacklers' grasps to race down the sideline and cross the goal line. Cecil Isbell, who performed heroically for Purdue throughout the game, place kicked the extra point.

Purdue's line provided the next thrill shortly after the fourth quarter opened when it staved off a dangerous Carnegie drive. Interference on a forward pass had given Carnegie the ball on the Purdue 5 yard line.

On the first play Ingalls hit the center of the Purdue line for three yards. Carnelly followed with a yard inside end. On third down, with Capt. Martin Schreyer leading the charge, the left side of Purdue's line stopped Zawacki a foot short of a touchdown, and on fourth down Clem Woltman threw Zawacki for a yard loss. Thus Carnegie's most serious threat ended.

Isbell, Brock Share Honors.

Cecil Isbell and Brock shared offensive honors for Purdue. Little Jerry Matelan, Carnegie half back, made the longest run of the day when he raced 41 yards to the Purdue 25 yard line in the middle of the third quarter. Purdue's line, however, stiffened at this point to repulse the drive.

The first half ran true to form as far as Purdue-Carnegie games have been concerned, with neither eleven making a serious scoring threat. It marked the sixth straight game in the series in which the halfway mark was reached with a scoreless tie. Carnegie made nine first downs against eight for Purdue, and gained 165 yards by rushing as compared with 153 for the Boilermakers.

DETROIT PASSES TO 34-0 VICTORY OVER TEXAS TECH

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 9.—(AP)—University of Detroit relied on passes today to defeat a heavy Texas Tech team, 34 to 0, before 11,000.

Detroit scored in the first two minutes when Ed Palumbo passed 14 yards to Alex Chesney for a score.

In the first minute of the third period Palumbo passed to Al Olivito for 16 yards and touchdown. A 23 yard pass, Palumbo to Farkas, took the ball to Tech's 1 yard line later in the period, Farkas crashing over on the next play.

Detroit scored twice in the fourth period, once on a 19 yard dash by Roger Hayes, substitute half back, who ran when he could find no receiver for a pass, and again when Ed Slaviski, reserve full back, passed to Olivito for 21 yards.

Tech got to the Detroit 8 yard line in the first and fourth periods. Score:

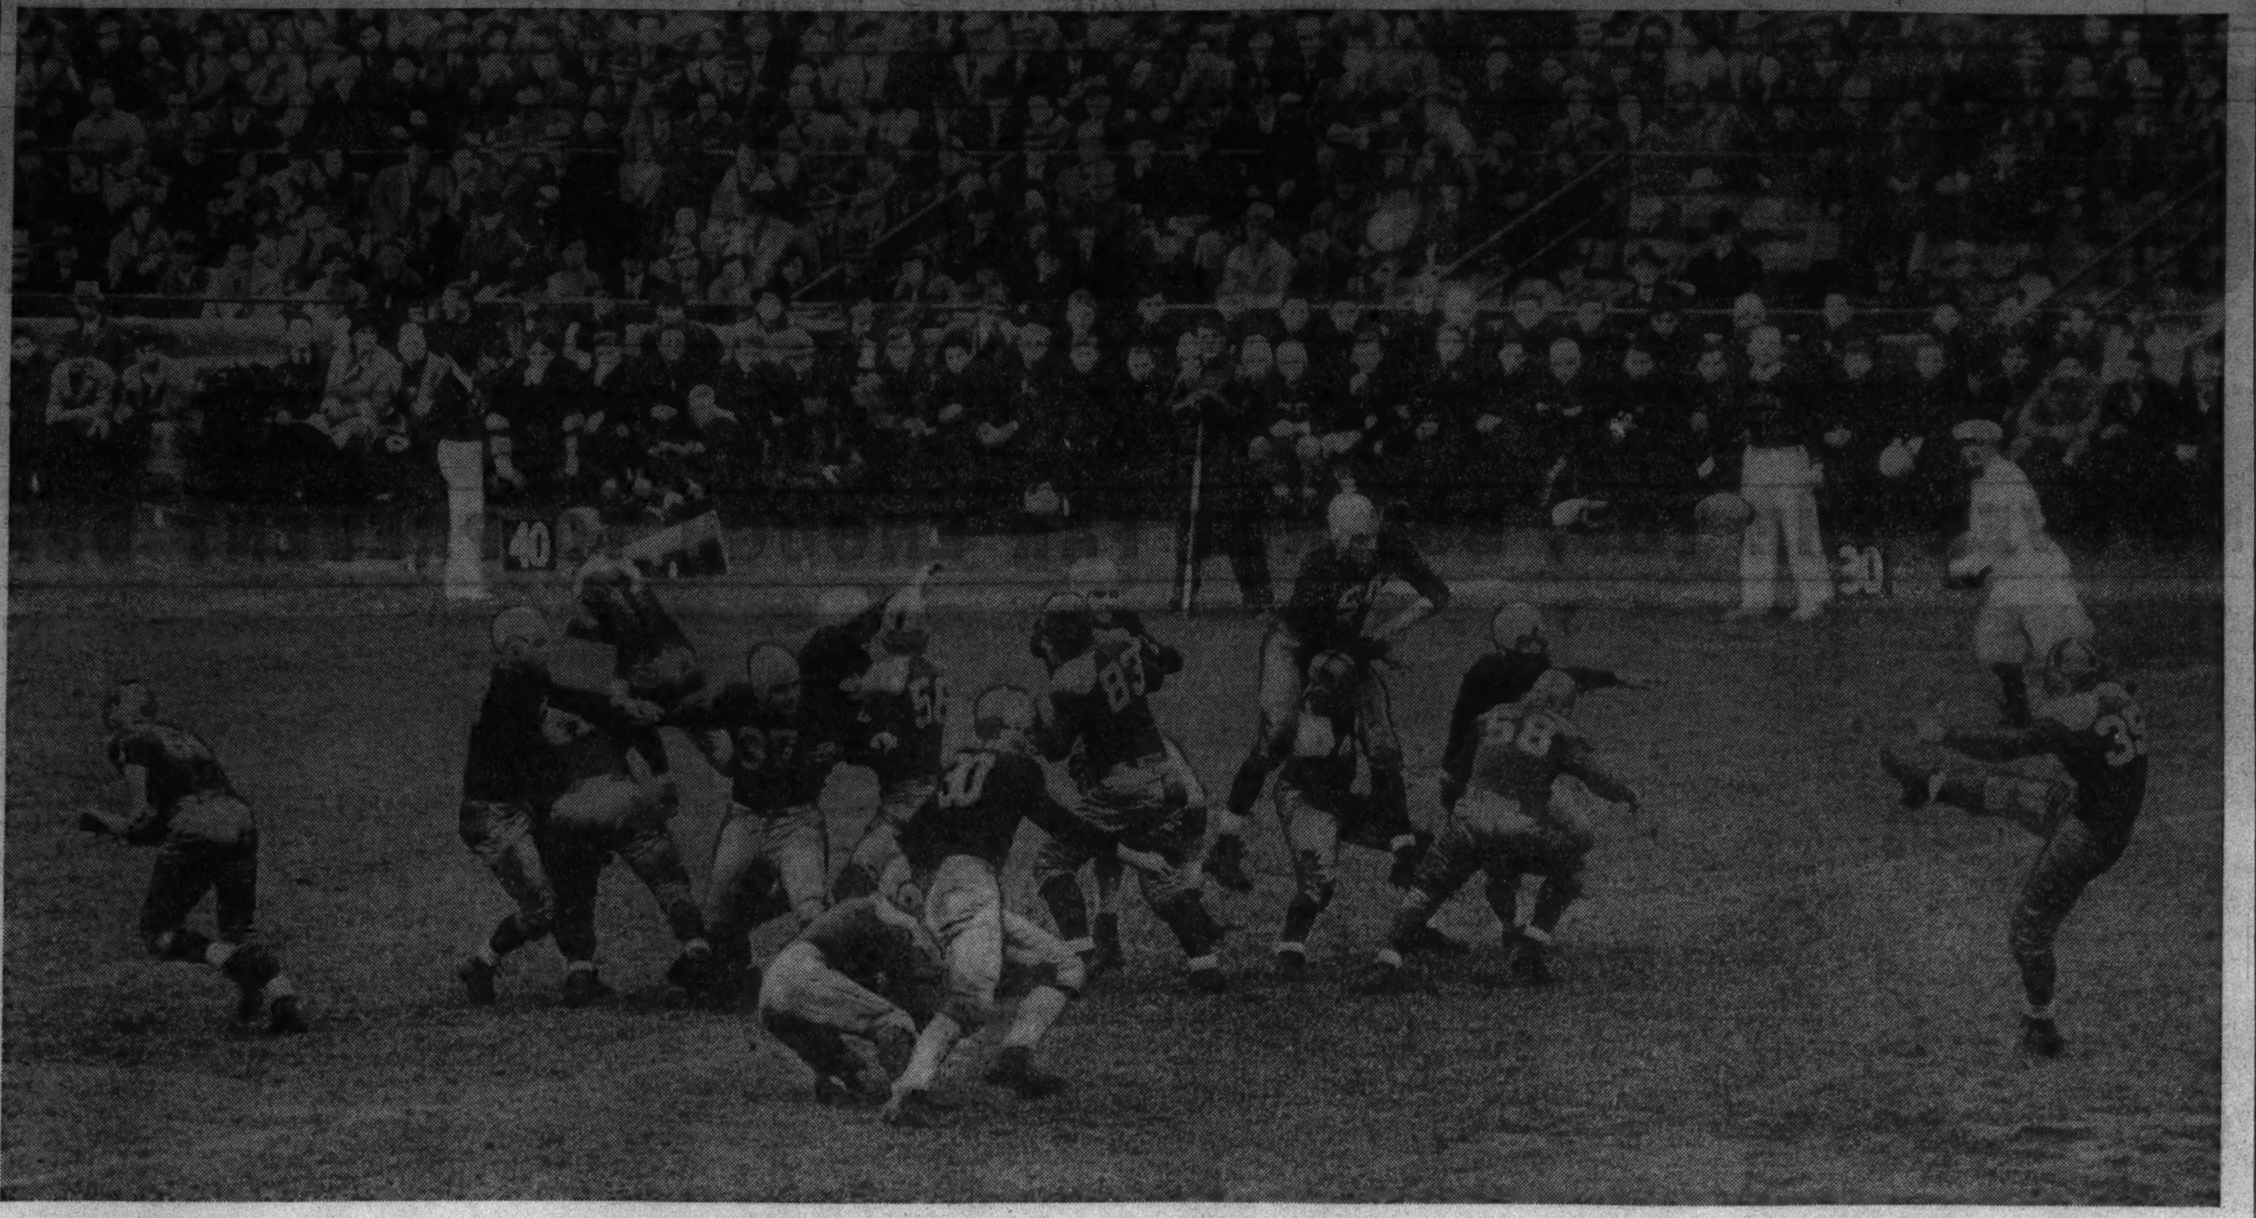
DePauw Overpowers Franklin Eleven, 41-6

Greencastle, Ind., Oct. 9.—[U. P.]—DePauw unleashed a powerful attack that swamped Franklin, 41 to 6, today in an Indiana conference game. DePauw scored in each period, making 13 points in the first, seven in the second, 14 in the third, and seven in the final quarter. Franklin scored its lone touchdown in the third on a long pass.

AWAY THE BALL GOES TOWARD ILLINI TERRITORY



Nevin M'Carthy punts from the Notre Dame 15 yard line in first quarter of yesterday's scoreless battle with Illinois at Champaign. It was in this period that the Illini made their best advance, only to miss a short field goal. Notre Dame carried the ball to Illinois' 12 yard line in the second quarter, but was stopped. Among the players whose numbers can be seen are: Fay (37) of Illinois, Cramer (30) of Illinois, Shellogg (83) of Notre Dame, Lasater (54) of Illinois, and Tonelli (58) of Notre Dame.

Illini Hold Irish Scoreless; Miss Victory When Kicks Fail

Irish line on a cut back inside of Joe Beinor, at left tackle for six yards. Then Spurgeon passed to Bob Castelo down the center of the Irish secondary for a first down on Notre Dame's 20 yard line.

Spurgeon and Carson picked up six yards and then Spurgeon failed at the line, but he placed the ball in front of the goal posts on Notre Dame's 14 yard line. Brewer, one of eight sophomores who played for Illinois today, replaced Jim Hodges ine the line. Brewer went back and, with Wehrli holding, attempted a placement from the 21 yard line.

The kick was low and the ball shot into the end zone for a touchback. Illinois had missed its best opportunity to score.

Notre Dame's fartherest advance came in the second quarter after Andy Puplis returned Ken Zimmerman's punt 18 yards to midfield. Both teams substituted eleven men at the start of this period. Puplis, Joe Gleason, Zontini, and Ed Simonich composed Notre Dame's back field. Sharp line play, in three downs, rushed the ball to Illinois' 39 yard line. Then, after a pass had failed, Zontini shot the ball to Brown up the center of the Illini secondary and Brown, tackled as he caught the ball, had a first down on the Illini 24 yard line.

Illini Change Tactics.

Illinois immediately shifted its secondary into a 2-1-2 formation and sent its first line back into the game. In so doing it took a fourth time out for which it was penalized five yards. With this aid, Simonich, in three plays, hammered through to the Illinois' 12 yard line for another first down.

Unexpectedly, and this may have cost Notre Dame victory, Puplis shifted his attack to the air. Zontini's pass to Skoglund in the flat was incomplete. Another pass to Skoglund down the center was high over the end's hands. Then Simonich lost a yard on the third down smash at left tackle.

Puplis had no choice except to call for a pass on fourth down. This time Zontini's throw to McCormick in the Illinois end zone was knocked down for a touchback.

Early in the second half Notre Dame gathered its forces for attack, but after two successive first downs had carried from the 34 yard line into Illinois territory McCarthy, attempting to pass, was chased back to his own 35 yard line and thrown. Spurgeon's subsequent punt return of sixteen yards carried the ball out to Illinois' 36 yard line and averted the danger.

Notre Dame worked to midfield again in the last period, but this time Zontini's third pass, which Brown barely touched, was intercepted by Wehrli, who ran wide and returned 15 yards before being downed by Charley Sweeney on Illinois' 49 yard line.

Penalty Ruins Long Run.

To make certain that Notre Dame never again would theaten after Illinois had been checked on Notre Dame's 40 yard line, Berner kicked high and Castello downed the ball on Notre Dame's 1 yard line. The Irish never recovered from this loss of yardage.

Late in the fourth period Brewer attempted another field goal, this time from the 34 yard line, but the effort fell short.

Notre Dame made ten first downs, Illinois made five. One of these was by penalty. Notre Dame lost thirty-five yards on three penalties, and one of these, an offside, nullified a thirty-two yard run by Zontini in the third period. Illinois was penalized twenty-five yards.

Notre Dame completed four passes in seventeen attempts for fifty-two yards. Illinois attempted twelve passes, completed three for thirty-nine yards, and like Notre Dame, had one pass intercepted.

Each team kicked twelve times. Illinois averaged 34½ yards and Notre Dame averaged 34 1-6 yards.

SPARTAS BATTLE MACCABEES IN SOCCER MATCH

The soccer schedule for today is limited to nine matches. Most important on the list are the Sparta-Maccabees clash and the Mayor Kelly cup semi-finals. The Spartas and the Maccabees meet for the first time this year in the new Chicago Intercity league at the Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue. The Maccabees, who hold first place, will rely on last year's players with the exception of Molvie, who was transferred to Sparta. The Spartas also can put their strongest team on the field, since Tomik has signed and Fidler has returned from Vancouver, B. C. Tom Scott has returned to right back. The match will start at 2:30 p. m.

The International league will hold the first of the year's major matches today in the Mayor Kelly cup semi-finals. In the first match, at 12:30 p. m., the Norwegian-Americans oppose the Germans. Following this game the Swedish-Americans and the combined Bohemian and Italian elevens will meet. The matches are scheduled for the Norwegian field, at 4600 Fullerton avenue.

The Chicago league second division has four games scheduled, with the Union Bakers and Bratislava holding chief interest. Today's schedule:

INTERCITY LEAGUE.

American Nickeloids of Peru, Ill., vs. Peoria Sport club at Columbus park, Dalzell, Ill.

CHICAGO LEAGUE.

Second Division.

Union Bakers vs. Bratislava at Olympia field, 19th street and Kilpatrick avenue, 3 p. m.; referee, D. Strahorn.

American Eagles vs. Slovaks at 2600 West Grand avenue, 3 p. m.; referee, E Korer.

Hakoah vs. Sparta II. at 18th street and Keeler avenue, 3 p. m.; referee, J. Best.

Calumet Park vs. Necaxa at 100th street and Avenue N, 3 p. m.; referee, G. Svenson.

EXHIBITION GAME.

Iowa Teachers Can't Stop Track Star; They Lose, 21-0

Cedar Falls, Ia., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Horace Johnson, North Central conference dash champion, put on a sprinting exhibition at the expense of the Iowa State Teachers football team today as the University of North Dakota rolled up a 21 to 0 victory. Johnson broke loose for two touchdowns and between these sorties Kahl whipped a 27 yard pass to Left End Gainor for another score.

IOWA USES LINE PLAYS TO BEAT BRADLEY, 14 TO 7

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—The Iowa eleven met a stubborn foe in Bradley Tech of Peoria this afternoon, but scored a 14 to 7 victory after trailing for most of the second quarter. The game was played on a slippery field. The Hawkeye team, making its first appearance before the home rooters, accomplished its victory by playing conservative football.

Tech Takes the Lead.

Full Back James Molnar of Bradley intercepted a pass from Frank Balazs of Iowa and scampered down a clear field for seventy yards and a touchdown early in the second period. McClarence place-kicked the extra point and Bradley led, 7 to 0.

The Hawkeyes took the ensuing kickoff and, after a punt exchange which gave them the ball on the Bradley 27 yard line, smashed through for the tying score on a series of short gains, Balazs, reserve full back, carrying the ball over from the one yard line. Eicherly place-kicked goal to tie the score.

Iowa started another march late in the third period and counted the winning touchdown early in the fourth. Thrusts at the guards and tackles by Balazs and Russell Busk, sub for Kinnick at quarter back, gave Iowa a first down on the Bradley 2 yard line. After Balazs had advanced the ball to the 1 foot line in three attempts, Busk finally carried it over. Bill Gallagher, sophomore half back, place-kicked the point.

Bradley Threat Fails.

Bradley threatened late in the fourth period, when Molnar passed to McClarence, who lateraled to Theus for a 28 yard gain, but the threat was ended on the final play of the game when Bill Gallagher intercepted Robbins' long pass on Iowa's 12 yard line.

The Hawkeyes made fifteen first downs, while Bradley made two. Lineups:

McIlravy of Nebraska Is Improving; No Fracture

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 9.—[U. P.]—X-rays revealed tonight that Eldon McIlravy, University of Nebraska sophomore full back injured in the Minnesota game last week, did not suffer a skull fracture. Dr. K. S. J. Hohlen, a brain specialist, said McIlravy's condition was improving steadily.

Whistle Stops Auburn on 3 Inch Line; Score, 0-0

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 9.—[U.P.]—Villanova and Auburn played to a scoreless tie before 15,000 today. Fumbles and severe penalties took a heavy toll of touchdown opportunities. Auburn lost a chance to score from the three-inch line when the first half whistle blew before the ball could be put into play.

TEACHERS WIN, 32-0.

New Britain, Conn., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Paced by Gerry [Tud] Flood, the Teachers college of Connecticut swamped the Wagner college eleven of Staten Island, 32 to 0, today.

GIANTS DEPRIVE BLACKHAWKS OF THEIR MANAGER

Muskegon, Mich., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Eighteen Chicago Black Hawks arrived here tonight to begin training for the 1937-'38 hocky season.

In the absence of Manager Bill Stewart, who is umpiring in the world series, and who had planned to fly to Muskegon after yesterday's game, the squad took to the ice for a skating drill under the direction of veterans.

Knox Defeats Lake Forest in 3d Period, 7-6

Knox defeated Lake Forest, 7 to 6, yesterday at Lake Forest. Lake Forest scored in the third quarter after Caruthers blocked a punt and Wiiken tossed a pass to Towsley over the goal line. Knox also scored in the third quarter when Tevor blocked Boyle's punt and Wiltsie passed to Stevenson for a touchdown. Stevenson kicked the extra point.

Late in the second quarter, after an exchange of punts, Christiansen of Knox passed to Stevenson who ran 30 yards to the Lake Forest four yard line where Wiiken threw him out of bounds. On the first play the ball was carried to Lake Forest's two inch line where Lake Forest's line held for two more downs. The gun ended the half before a fourth attempt could be made.

In the first part of the fourth quarter McAllister of Lake Forest received a lateral from Boyle and took the ball from Lake Forest's ten yard line to Knox's eighteen yard line. The pass was ruled a forward and the play was called back. Lineups:

LAKE FOREST [6].		KNOX [7].

MONMOUTH, 6; COE, 6.

Monmouth, Ill., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Monmouth and Coe battled to a 6 to 6 tie in a Midwest conference game today. Scoring was confined to about three minutes near the end of the first quarter. Monmouth scored on a fake punt on its own 20 yard line when Howe passed to Finn near the side line. He crossed the goal line untouched. The attempt for extra point was low.

On the kickoff Cisler took the ball on the 22 yard and ran through the Monmouth team, but fumbled ten yards from the goal line. The ball was recovered by Kinch of Coe on the two yard line. Bazos carried it over on the third attempt. His try for the extra point was blocked. Lineup:

MONMOUTH [6].		COE [6].

NORTH CENTRAL WINS, 12-7.

North Central defeated Wheaton college, 12 to 7, yesterday at Wheaton. Neither team scored in the first three quarters. Then North Central made two touchdowns in the fourth and Wheaton scored one. Patterson scored for Wheaton and Ibsen kicked the extra point. The second North Central score came on an intercepted Wheaton pass. Wheaton made fourteen first downs to North Central's 7.

Winnetka Cricket Club Plays Lake Shore Team

The Winnetka Cricket club will meet a Lake Shore team in the final round of the Charter Jubilee tournament for the K. A. Auty trophy at 48th street and the outer drive this afternoon. The game is being presented under the supervision of the Illinois Cricket league.

Lake Forest Academy Defeats Onarga, 34 to 0

Lake Forest academy won its first conference game by defeating Onarga Military academy, 34 to 0, yesterday. Bill Kennety starred for Lake Forest with four touchdowns on runs of 5, 45, 43, and 15 yards.

WESLEYAN KICKS EXTRA POINT TO BEAT DE PAUL, 7-6

Demons Score Quickly Then Are Checked.

De Paul's Blue Demons who a week ago held powerful Illinois to a scoreless tie were defeated by Illinois Wesleyan, 7 to 6, at Mills stadium yesterday. The Demons scored quickly in the opening quarter, but Capt. Paul Mattei failed for the extra point. They dropped behind—to stay there—when Wesleyan scored and added the kick from placement in the second quarter.

During the week Coach Ben Connor of De Paul had tried to convince his team that the Titans were set for them. The team remembered his warning yesterday after Le Roy Kaska had slashed through tackle early in the second period for a touchdown and Dick Folk had kicked goal.

Demons Start Fast.

At the outset De Paul was impressive. The first time the Demons had the ball they marched 70 yards in four plays to a touchdown.

With the ball on his own 30 yard stripe Capt. Mattei made 15 yards. Pat Howlett got clear for a 45 yard run through tackle to the Wesleyan 20. Then Harry Postaer carried the ball twice, making 10 yards on each trip, to go over for a touchdown. Mattei's kick was blocked.

Illinois Wesleyan's touchdown march, from the De Paul 45 yard line, was made at the expense of the second stringers. Dick Folk on a delayed line buck picked up 15 yards. Warren Godde added 2 on a fake and Co-Capt. Ken Chittum went around his right end to the Demon 8 yard line. Here De Paul's regulars reentered the game.

An Offside Helps.

On the first play Chittum was thrown for a yard loss, then De Paul was offside which moved the ball to the 4 yard mark. Dick Folk battered his way to the 2 yard line and then Kaska broke over his right tackle for the score.

De Paul threatened twice in the third period and again in the last quarter, but Wesleyan's great pass defense stopped the Demons at the goal line. Lineups:

DE PAUL [6].		ILLINOIS WESLEYAN [7].
Cederberg	L. E.	Soeka
Roberts	L. T.	Oliver
Jenkevicius	L. G.	Rasmussen
Chesney	C.	Hoppers
Eastlund	R. G.	Egdorf
Gagliardo	R. T.	Lusiana
Kelly	R. E.	Campbell
Corrigan	Q. B.	Chittum
Postaer	R. H.	Kaska
Howlett	L. H.	Anderson
Mattei	F. B.	R. Folk

Touchdowns—Postaer, Kaska. Point after touchdown—R. Folk. Substitutes—De Paul: ends, O'Keefe, Johnson; tackles, McInerny, Chaddock; guards, McGown; backs, O'Brien, Norris, Hinckley, Klein.

Illinois Wesleyan—Tackles, T. Folk, Bremner, Oliver; guards, Lam, Johnson; backs, Goode, Sinischalchi.

Referee, George Larie. Umpire, Ike Craig. Head linesman, Bob Blake.

STATE NORMAL WINS.

De Kalb, Ill., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Scoring two touchdowns in the first quarter of play State Normal university today ruined the De Kalb Teachers' homecoming, 14 to 2, in a drizzle.

State Normal executed a 15 yard pass, Secord to Kavanagh, who ran turn lateralled to Skinner who ran fifteen more yards for the first touchdown. A second pass, Secord to Covill, made the extra point.

A few minutes later a punt by Davis of De Kalb was blocked by Skinner and on an attempted pass De Kalb was ruled as interfering with the pass receiver, giving Normal the ball on the one yard line. Van Huss plunged over for the touchdown and Covill plunged for the extra point.

De Kalb's safety came in the final quarter. Normal intercepted a De Kalb pass and then suffering penalties for clipping and coaching from the sidelines. With the ball on the one foot line Ganaro took a bad pass from center and was forced to step out of the end zone to punt, automatically giving De Kalb two points.

ST. VIATOR TRIUMPHS.

Kankakee, Ill., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—St. Viator successfully opened defense of its Little Nineteen co-championship tonight by whipping Carbondale, 14 to 0. A brilliant aerial attack in the first quarter, Roy Dusenbury and Dan Blazevich carrying passes 40 yards over the goal line, completed the Viator scoring.

Thirty-four Show Horses Die in California Fire

San Mateo, Cal., Oct. 9.—[U. P.]—Thirty-four blooded show horses were burned to death tonight when fire destroyed the stables at the Gymkana club. Damage was estimated at more than $100,000. Of the 44 horses in the stable only 10 were saved.

BUCKEYES WILT IN FOURTH QUARTER AND LOSE ON COAST—After making 5 yards through the Ohio State line, Bill Sangster (27) of Southern California is halted by Jim McDonald (8) in yesterday's battle at Los Angeles. At the right Boyd Morgan (35) of U. S. C. appears to have put a tackle on Keith Bliss of the Buckeyes and partly knocks Howard Wedebrook of Ohio out of the play. Ohio State gained a 12 to 6 lead in the fourth quarter, but the Trojans came back to win, 13 to 12.

SMASHING OVER FOR TOUCHDOWN—Lou Brock of Purdue wrests away from a tackler and races away for 26 yards to give Purdue a 7 to 0 decision over Carnegie Tech yesterday in the Boilermaker homecoming game at Lafayette. The score came in the third period.

ONE MORE POINT TOWARD BADGERS' TOTAL—Howard Weiss kicks the point after the first touchdown in Wisconsin's 27 to 0 rout of Chicago in Big Ten opener at Stagg field yesterday. Players who can be identified by their numbers are Moeller (89) and Brodhagen (95) of Wisconsin, Kelley (40) of Chicago, Dorsch (81) and Benz (77) of Wisconsin, Johnson (28) of Chicago, and Weiss (70). The Badgers scored in the first, third, and fourth periods.

DE PAUL GIVEN UNEXPECTED SETBACK—Leroy Kaska of Illinois Wesleyan plunges over in second quarter of game with De Paul university yesterday at Mills stadium. Dick Folk subsequently kicked the extra point, something De Paul failed to accomplish in the first period, and the north siders suffered a 7 to 6 defeat. Last week De Paul held Illinois to a scoreless tie.

COME ON AND SMASH IT OVER!—A section of the crowd of 45,000 which gathered in Memorial stadium, Champaign, yesterday, to watch Illinois and Notre Dame meet on the gridiron for the first time since 1898. Many expected the Irish to win, but the Illini put up such a sturdy battle that Notre Dame made only one scoring threat. Illinois missed a short field goal in the opening period and a long one in the final quarter. The score was 0 to 0.

GIANTS PROLONG SERIES; DEFEAT YANKEES, 7 TO 3

Rout Hadley with 6 Run Blast in Second.

and Hubbell had two strikes on him when Lou finally functioned.

Holds DiMaggio Hitless.

Joe DiMaggio had no homer to spare his feelings. The youthful star failed to make a hit today, which perhaps came under the head of revenge, for it was Joe's second hit that drove in the tying and winning runs against Hubbell in Wednesday's opener.

Harry Danning was the hitting star of the day with two singles and a double. His first single drove in the tying run in the second inning, and, of course, otherwise contributed to the merriment of the big session. His second single was a surprise bunt and his double drove in the comfort run in the seventh.

Hits Twice in One Inning.

Hank Leiber contributed two singles in the second inning, one which started the pyrotechnic display and the other a scratch effort with the bases full, good for Giant runs Nos. 5 and 6. Every Giant made at least one hit except Hubbell, and but for a spectacular catch by Myril Hoag with the bases full in the seventh Carl would have had a triple or perhaps a homer.

The teams will play in the Polo Grounds again tomorrow. Melton, perhaps inspired by the victory today and eased of self-consciousness by appearances in the games Thursday and yesterday, may give Gomez an argument. Gomez will be trying for his fifth world series victory and the Giants doubtless are figuring it is high time he suffered his first world series loss.

Single Blossoms Into Triple.

Leiber's overzealous playing of a normal single into a tainted triple led to a Yankee score in the first inning. After Crosetti had popped to Whitehead, Rolfe lifted a fly to short center and Leiber tried for a shoestring catch. He fell and though he blocked the ball it bounced toward the infield so far that Rolfe was able to stretch the effort to a triple. DiMaggio then shot a 460 foot drive to right center which Ripple speared with one hand after a hard run. Rolfe trotted home after the catch.

A double play nipped the Yanks in the second. With one down, Hoag singled to center and Selkirk walked. Lazzeri then lined to Whitehead and Hoag was doubled off second, Whitehead to Bartell.

And here is the way the Giants came to life for the first time in the series: Leiber opened the home second with the first of his two singles in the inning and stopped at second on McCarthy's single to right. Danning singled to right, Leiber scoring and McCarthy reaching third. Whitehead was credited with a single when his grounder hit Danning. Danning was out and McCarthy had to stay on third. Hubbell sent a slow roller to Lazzeri, who apparently lost his bearings and threw to the plate after McCarthy had scored. Whitehead stopped at second and Hubbell reached first on the fielder's choice.

Andrews Relieves Hadley.

Moore singled to center, Whitehead scoring. Hadley was excused and Andrews entered the arena. Bartell singled to center and Di Maggio got the ball to Dickey in time for a play at the plate. Hubbell, however, evaded the Yankee catcher to score. Dickey yelped that Hubbell had run out of the line and was joined by a coterie of vociferous protestants headed by Manager Joe McCarthy and Coach Art Fletcher. But Umpire Stewart chased them away. Ott fanned, but Ripple walked, filling the bases. Leiber then dropped a blooper in short left center, scoring Moore and Bartell and putting Ripple on third. Lazzeri threw out McCarthy.

Hubbell squirmed through the third at a cost of only one run despite the utter collapse of the Giant infield. Andrews was safe on Bartell's high throw. Crosetti forced Andrews, Whitehead to Bartell, but in an attempt to complete a double play, Bartell threw to the boxes, Crosetti reaching second. Moore made a circus catch of Rolfe's short liner. He slipped and grabbed the ball while skidding on his shoulder blades. Di Maggio bounced to Ott, who threw to the boxes, Crosetti scoring and Di Maggio reaching third. Gehrig grounded to McCarthy, who didn't have to throw the ball to make the putout.

Danning Beats Out Bunt.

Danning beat out a bunt to Rolfe to start the Giant third, but was forced by Whitehead. Whitehead stole second and reached third on Hubbell's out. Moore popped to Crosetti.

The Yanks went out in order in the fourth, and a pass to Ripple with two out was all the Giants could develop in their half.

Lazzeri opened the fifth with the third Yankee hit, but Andrews fanned and Crosetti hit into a double play, Hubbell to Whitehead to McCarthy. McCarthy, Danning, and Whitehead went out on grounders in the Giant half.

Rolfe opened the sixth with a single and was forced by Di Maggio. Gehrig whiffed and Dickey fouled to McCarthy. Andrews again retired the Giants in order in the sixth.

In the Yank seventh Hoag fanned. Selkirk bounced to McCarthy, and Bartell made a brilliant stop before throwing out Lazzeri.

Giants Score Again.

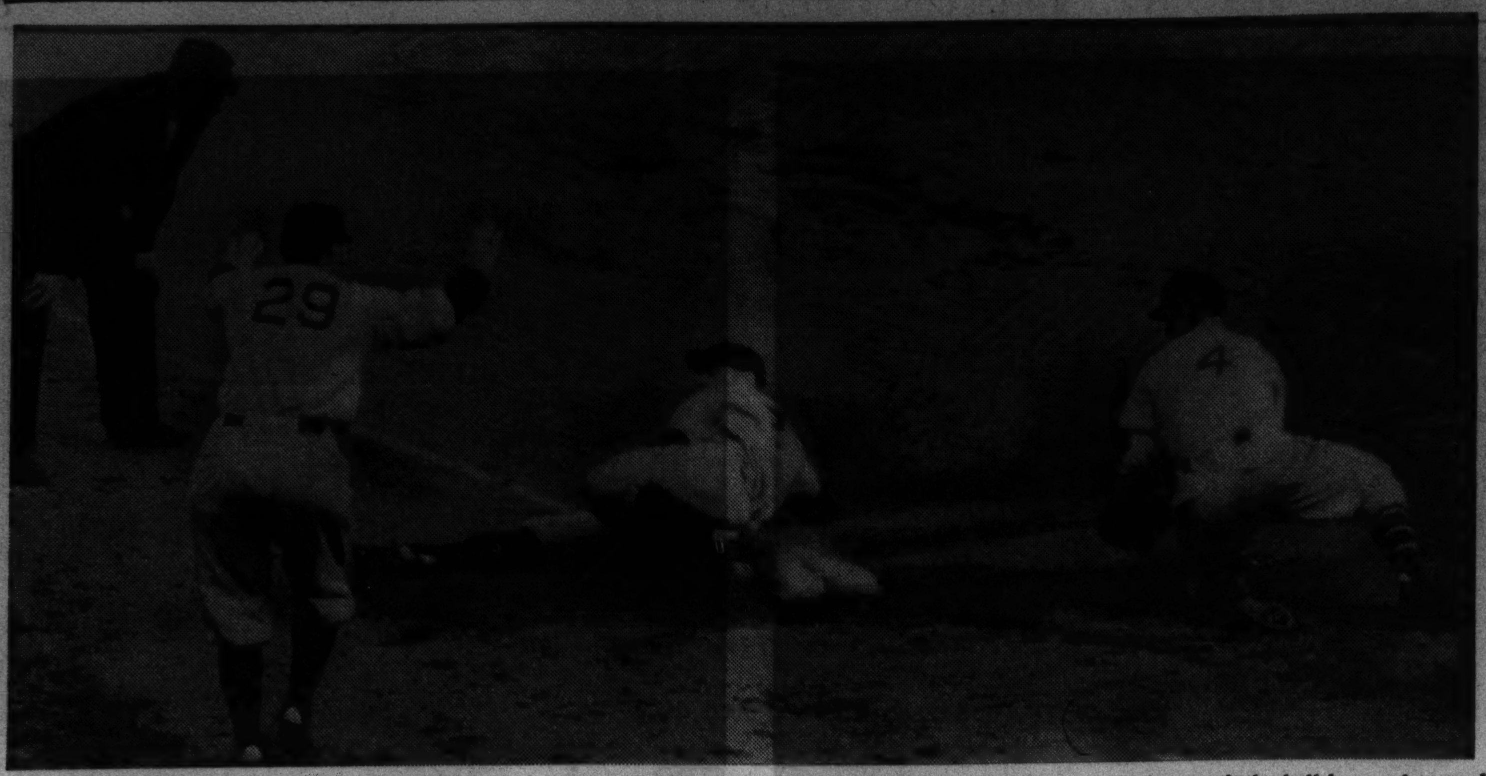
The Giants busted through for a run in the seventh. Ott fouled to Dickey. Then Ripple singled and was out trying to steal second. Leiber walked and stopped at second on McCarthy's single. Danning doubled to the right field wall, Leiber scoring. Whitehead was given an intentional walk, filling the bases. Hoag made a great run before pulling down Hubbell's line drive to deep left center.

Jake Powell, batting hero of the 1936 series, made his first appearance in this year's series when he batted for Andrews at the start of the Yankee eighth. He fanned. Bartell threw out Crosetti and Hubbell threw out Rolfe.

Wicker pitched the last of the eighth and Lazzeri took care of Moore, Bartell, and Ott on one grounder and two fliees.

In the ninth Di Maggio fouled to Ott, but Gehrig drove a homer into the stands in deep right center after being fooled on two strikes. Dickey flied to Ripple. Hoag singled to right for the sixth and last hit off Hubbell. Selkirk flied to Leiber.

AT FOURTH BATTLE OF WORLD SERIES



Red Rolfe of Yankees slides into third base with a bargain triple in first inning of yesterday's forth game of the world series. The Yankee third baseman hit a normal single to Hank Leiber in center, but when the Giant outfielder attempted a shoestring catch the ball bounced toward the infield, permitting Rolfe to stretch the hit. Art Fletcher is the Yankee coach, Mel Ott is No. 4, and the umpire is Steve Basil.

During that six run second inning that gave the Giants their first victory over the Yankees Carl Hubbell, the National league's star left hander, scores after eluding Catcher Bill Dickey. Umpire Bill Stewart calls Hubbell safe and precipitates a storm of protest from the Yanks. The final score was Giants, 7; Yankees, 3.

Yanks' Owner Laughs at Deal with Senators

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 9.—Clark Griffith, the Washington club owner, buttonholed Col. Jake Ruppert of the Yanks today. Foxy old Griff, probably thinking it a good time to interest the colonel in a trade, lauded several players now on the Washington roster. Jake listened politely and then replied, "What are you talking about? I give away better ball players than you got."

National league club owners have been so scarce here the last few days that the baseball writers considered asking the police to conduct a search. The owners probably went into hiding to avoid embarrassing questions about the feebleness of their champions.

Joe Di Maggio's first inning drive, on which Jim Ripple made a glove handed catch, came down 450 feet from the plate. Yesterday Di Maggio hit a fly of similar distance into dead center. So did Bill Dickey.

The fact that it was Saturday, a half holiday, helped the attendance a bit. However, the players, who share in the first four games, were slightly disappointed to see there were numerous bare spots in the bleachers.

For the first time since the series started the Yanks showed a little excitement while they were being bruised in the second inning. When Hubbell scored he ran around Dickey just as the latter was getting the throw from Di Maggio. The American leaguers surrounded Umpire Bill Stewart and squawked their heads off. Stewart insisted that Hubbell had run behind Dickey merely to avoid a fielder and not to avoid being tagged.

Clarence Rowland, the Cub representative who has been here trying to feel out rival clubs on possible trades, started back to Chicago this evening. He didn't make any head way with his propositions, but one or two of them may be cooked into reality later in the winter.

When the baseball writers held their meeting this morning, some of the members wanted to know how Mike Jacobs, the local fight impresario, happened to have a press room button, entitling him to free feed. What irked the boys is that when they ask Mike for a press ticket to one of his big boxing shows they usually have to cough up $6.60 for tax and service charge.

Wabash Beats Evansville, 19 to 0, on Three Passes

Crawfordsville, Ind., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Wabash college scored its first victory of the season today defeating Evansville college, 19 to 0. Wabash scored two touchdowns on passes from Marciniak to Gilbert, end, in the third quarter and added a third in the final period when Rutledge intercepted an Evansville pass and raced 40 yards to the goal.

Baseball Writers Elect Vaughan of Tribune President

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 9.—Irving Vaughan, for eighteen years a member of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE sports staf, today was elected president of the Baseball Writers' Association of America at the annual meeting of the organization held in connection with the world series.

Paul Shannon of Boston was elected vice president and Henry P. Edwards of Chicago was reëlected secretary-treasurer.

Edward Burns, also a member of THE TRIBUNE sports staf, was elected one of the board of four directors. The others are Jack Mulaney of Boston, Charles Ward of Detroit, and Al Horwits of Philadelphia.

COALS TO PLAY MAJOR, MINOR LEAGUE STARS

Bob Weiland of the St. Louis Cardinals will pitch against the Spencer Coals this afternoon at 4200 North Central avenue in the eleventh annual post-season game between the Coals and major and minor league players who formerly wore Spencer uniforms. The game will start at 2:30 p. m.

Weiland, who won fifteen games for the Cardinals during the season, is scheduled to work nine innings, but the fans also may have a look at Ed Linke of the Washington Senators, another Coals alumnus. Ken Silvestri of Dallas, property of the White Sox, will catch for the homecomers.

M'KECHNIE SIGNS 2 YEAR CONTRACT AS RED MANAGER

Leaves Boston to Replace Dressen.

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds announced the appointmen of Bill McKechnie, Boston Bees manager since 1929, as manager of the Reds for a two year term.

McKechnie, whose contract with Boston expired Oct. 3, takes the place vacated three weeks ago by Chuck Dressen, who was replaced after he had insisted upon learning whether the club intended to renew his contract for 1938. Bobby Wallace, former scout, served as temporary manager of the Reds after Dressen's release.

Winner of Two Pennants.

The Bees, under McKechnie, finished fifth in the National league during the 1937 season. Before going to Boston, McKechnie managed the St. Louis Cardinals and Pittsburgh Pirates, winning National league pennants with both clubs, the Pirates in 1925 and the Cards in 1928.

Appointment of McKechnie came after Warren Giles, general manager of the Reds, had surveyed a long list of applicants which included Rogers Hornsby, ousted manager of the St. Louis Browns; Jim Bottomley, who was picked to succeed him at St. Louis this season ,and Casey Stengel, former Brooklyn manager.

Regarded as one of the astute judges of baseball material, McKechnie never was able to lift Boston above fourth place. At Pittsburgh from 1922 to 1926, his clubs never finished below third. He went to St. Louis as coach in 1927 and the next year was appointed manager to succeed Bob O'Farrell.

Wins, Then Loses.

After winning the pennant in his first season with the Cardinals, McKechnie was released. Dissatisfied because of four straight defeats by the New York Yankees in the world series, the Cardinals' management decided to send nim to Rochester. The following year he signed as Boston's manager, beginning with the 1930 season.

Twice McKechnie built up the Braves or Bees to contenders for a first division berth and in 1933 and 1934 landed them in fourth place. During the last season he took what appeared to be a hopeless club and landed it in fifth place largely through the development of a fine pitching staf around the discovery in the minor leagues of two 31 year old rokie moundsmen, Lou Fette and Jim Turner, each of whom won 20 games.

DRESSEN TO NASHVILLE.

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Charles [Chuck] Dressen, recently ousted as manager of the Cincinnati Reds, returned to his old job as manager of the Nashville team on the Southern association today. Dressen said he had signed a one year controct as Nashville manager at a salary of $10.000. He managed Nashville before he moved up to Cincinnati at the beginning of the 1935 season.

Giants Honor Hubbell with Silent Tribute

When Carl Hubbell came into the Giant clubhouse after pitching his six hit masterpiece over the Yankees the room was silent. There was no cheap back slapping, no hilarity. Instead, his teammates thanked him quietly.

From the bat boy to Bill Terry there was only one subject—Carl Owen Hubbell and the game he pitched today in baseball's greatest show. It was Hubbell himself who finally broke the silence of an impressive tribute.

Felt He Was Right.

"You see," he told reporters who crowded about him, "the worms have eaten up my pecan crop down about Meeker, so I'm in no rush to get home. I'd like to stay around this series for three more games."

Half out of breath, Carl told how it felt to silence the Yankee siege guns and give the Giants their first triumph in four games.

"I thought I had stuff when I was warming up," he said. "And I was sure of it when the boys got me those six runs in the second inning. After that I knew if I couldn't hold them, why, I might as well go home and forget all about pitching." He lit a cigaret and took a drink from a bottle of pop. "I had to bear down the hardest in the sixth inning and knew I was safe when that was over. Gehrig's home run ball was a fast one about waist high. That fellow can hit most any pitch, I guess."

Catchers Gus Mancuso and Harry Danning, who caught Hubbell today, were of one accord.

"Ever see anybody like him?" demanded Mancuso. "With only two days' rest he comes back to pitch one of the greatest games of his career."

Even Terry Smiles.

"And that control," cut in Danning. "It's a pleasure to catch him. Even when he threw one into the dirt he looked good. My sore hand was better today. I was able to grip my bat with two hands for a change."

Wearing his first smile since Wednesday, Terry congratulated Hubbell and Hank Leiber and then announced Cliff Melton as tomorrow's starting pitcher, with Leiber remaining in the lineup.

"I can do it," promised Melton.

There were no tears or groans in the Yankee clubhouse, though Bump Hadley was blue because he couldn't last. Even the Yanks know it's no disgrace to get licked by Carl Hubbell.

"We'll come back with Gomez tomorrow," said Joe McCarthy. "He's well rested and okay."

WORLD BASEBALL TITLE TO YIELD $5,836 PER MAN

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Victory or defeat to the Yankees and Giants will be worth a difference of $1,945.61 apiece when they share the third largest player's pool in world series history. The total pool of $417,305.97 has been exceeded only by those of 1928 and 1936.

Based on splitting both the winning and losing money into twenty-nine shares, each share for the winner will amount to $5,836.84 and each share for the loser to $3,891.23. The Yankees voted 26 individual full shares and the Giants 27.

The Chicago Cubs and Detroit Tigers, runners-up in the flag races, will receive a total of $33,797.94 for division. The Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago White Sox each get $22,531.96, and the St. Louis Cardinals and Cleveland Indians $11,265.96 each.

excitement of the first inning. The Sox customers then were regaled with two runs in the second inning, based on three of the cleanest hits of the series. Appling organized the foray with a single to center. Luke then stole second while Bonura was striking out on the fifth pitch. Hayes came through with a triple down the right field line, sending Appling home with the first run. Jackie himself scored on Sewell's single to left before Whitehead hit into a double play.

Cubs Get One.

After taking two strikes Hartnett walked on four pitches in the Cub half. Cavarretta then beat out a limpid roller down the first base line. Phil was forced by Marty, Hayes to Appling, with Hartnett moving to third. Gabby scored while Hayes was throwing out Galan. Frey was purposely passed. Piet fumbled Lee's grounder after a near collision on the base path with Marty, filling the bases, but Hack forced Lee, Appling unassisted.

The farcical Sox third began with Piet's being hit by Lee's first pitch. Tony moved to second on a balk. Kreevich then came up to sacrifice, laid down the bunt, and went to second while Lee's throw to get Piet at third sailed into left field, Piet scoring. Herman tossed out Walker, Kreevich going to third. Radcliff was all set to take a walk on the fourth pitch, but Umpire Babe Pinelli ruled it a strike. Rip replied with a ringing single to center, scoring Kreevich. Lee was relieved by Bryant. Appling made himself known with a double down the right field line, Radcliff scoring, and Appling continued to third on Herman's poor relay to the plate. Bonura fouled to Hartnett, and Hack threw out Hayes.

Herman lined to Walker for the first Cub out in the third. Demaree was safe when the Bonura limbs failed to bend for a grounder. Hartnett flied to Walker. Cavarretta then drove a single into right, sending Demaree to third. The latter scored the Cubs' second and last run when Piet developed the Bonura complex on Marty's single, but Marty was out, Radcliff to Hayes, trying for second.

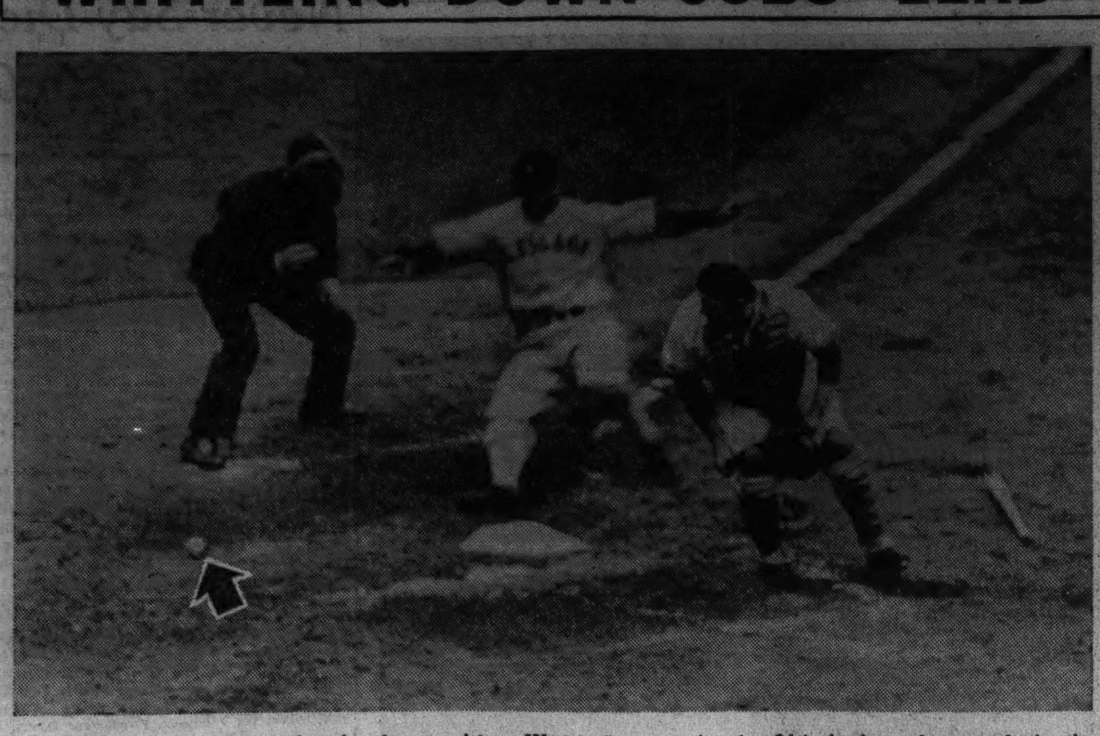
Bryant's Charm Fails.

Bryant struck out the side in the fourth, but Kreevich started the Sox's fifth with a single to left and went to second on Walker's sacrifice bunt. Radcliff singled to right, scoring Kreevich. Appling was hit by a pitched ball. Bonura sent a hit into right, Radcliff scoring and Appling moving to third. Hayes bunted and beat it out for a hit, then when Bryant threw the ball wild to Hartnett, Appling scored, Bonura went to third, and Hayes took second. Sewell was purposely passed, filling the bases. Whitehead flied to Demaree, Bonura scoring after the catch. Piet forced Sewell, Frey to Herman.

The Sox picked up two runs in their side of the sixth, sending Bryant away in the process. Kreevich singled to center, moved to second on Walker's sacrifice, and to third on a passed ball. Radcliff and Appling both drew walks, filling the bases, and Bonura then sliced a double down the left field line, sending home Kreevich and Radcliff. Appling stopped at third. Here Parmelee replaced Bryant. Herman tossed out Hayes and Sewell flied to Mary.

Shoun was pitching for the Cubs at the start of the ninth. The young man was gretted by the Bonura homer, a wallop which landed in the center field bleachers, just to the right of the 400 foot mark. Following this, Hayes walked and Sewell singled to right on the hit and run play. Whitehead then dropped a single in right center, scoring Hayes. Sewell went to third and Whitehead to second on a wild pitch. Piet beat out a slow roller to Frey, filling the bases, and Kreevich drove a deep fly to Galan, scoring Sewell after the catch. Walker popped to Hack and Radcliff struck out.

WHITTLING DOWN CUBS' LEAD



Luke Appling comes charging home with a White Sox run in the fifth inning of yesterday's city series game in which the Sox evened the series at two victories apiece with a 14 to 2 triumph. Minter Hayes bunted and Pitcher Clay Bryant, attempting to nail Appling, threw wild to Catcher Gabby Hartnett.

STRATTON FACES CARLETON, CUBS FOR SOX TODAY

Monty Stratton, star of the White Sox pitching staf until he came out of the early August series against the New York Yankees with an ailing arm, will be the starting hurler in today's fifth game of the city series at Wrigley field. Stratton finished the American league season with 15 victories and 5 defeats. Manager Charley Grimm will send Tex Carleton against the south siders for the second time. Tex won the opener by holding the Sox to five hits. He won 16 and lost 8 in the regular season.

Mathematicians last night figured out that if the Sox win the series each players' share will be $549.54, while victory for the Cubs will give each man $590.24. Each south sider will collect $366.35 if the Sox are beaten, while the Cubs will go away with $393.49 in the event of a Sox victory. The Sox voted 29 shares; the Cubs, 27.

Manager Jimmy Dykes of the Sox yesterday conducted a one man lecture tour of the bases in the Cub half of the second inning, preaching a sermon to each umpire on the near collision between Tony Piet and Joe Marty, but without effect.

Even the stoutest Cub fans accorded Zeke Bonura, their favorite target, a hand when the big man drove out his ninth inning homer. It was the hit of the game, a smash which sailed into the center field stands, just off the 400 foot sign.

Piet is the most abused player in the series. In the first game he was stunned in a head-on crash with Billy Herman. Yesterday he nearly collided with Marty after fumbling Lee's grounder. In addition he was hit by Lee and Parmelee.

WEST VIRGINIA WINS, 6 TO 0, OVER WASHINGTON-LEE

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 9.—[U. P.]—West Virginia triumphed, 6 to 0, over its traditional football rival, Washington and Lee, today.

Heavy rain restricted play to straight football. A fumble by Audia gave W. & L. the ball on West Virginia's seven yard line in the second quarter, but it failed to gain.

Clark, substitute back, carried the ball over in the final period for West Virginia's score.

Verona's 731 Series Sets Windy City Major Record

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

Seven hundred series are not everyday occurrences at the difficult Windy City alleys in Cicero. That's why the 731 recorded by Mike Verona while participating in the Windy City Major league is noteworthy.

Verona, anchor man for the Blazek Tailor quintet, started his brilliant series with a 233, followed with 279, the league's highest game of the season, and finished with 219. His 731 total was another league record, but despite this performance Verona's team lost two out of three games to the J. M. Kralovecs, one of the league's first division teams.

After four weeks the Whitecaps and the Serrano Cigarros share first place with nine victories and three defeats apiece. The Budweisers, the O'Keefe Coals, and the Kralovecs come next with eight won and four lost.

Continuing their surprisingly inept work, the champion Mineralites lost another series, this one to the De Young Fuels, who scored victories on games of 908 and 921. There was a time when it took 1,000 games to beat the Mineralites, who came to life in the final game and rolled up 1,048 for their only triumph of the set. The Mineralites have lost nine of their 12 engagements.

In becoming the first Windy City Major leaguer to crash into the 700 class Verona beat his nearest rival, Jilek of Soper Brothers, by 51 pins.

North End League.

Four teams, the Michelobs, Birk Brothers, Pepsi-Colas, and Burweiser Gold Coast, again are tied for first place in the North End Traveling league at ten won and five lost. High individual honors went to Eddie Kraft of the Pepsi-Colas with 236, 265, and 192 for 693. Other leading individuals were Lloyd Strouse, 663; Joe Traubenik, 660; Rudy Boedecker, 650, and George Geiser, 648.

On South Side Alleys.

The Wagner Beers blasted out a 3,228 series on games of 1,057, 1,084, and 1,087 in the Bruck Major league. Leading individuals were: Don Pinc, 709; Otto Boehn, 701; Ad Plunge, 697; Stanley Kellogg, 657; Bill Harper, 656; Joe Scardina, 654; Fred Berghaus, 652; Harry Herman, 638; Joe Harris, 637. . . . In the Swift & Co. league Hank Kluge scattered the pins for 748 on games of 267, 235, and 246. Next were Harry Priess, 616, and Harry Donoho, 601.

Here and There.

The Atkinsons, with seven won and two lost, top the Tribune Night Hawk league, followed by the Wattses with six and three. John Smith's 194 average and Ed Herbeck's 267 game are the best individual efforts. . . . Richard Baker of the Pure Oils helped himself to a 635 series in the Petroleum league. Walter Dau of Sinclair Refining had 624, and Robert Young of Gilbert & Barker shot 601. Shell Petroleum leads the team standing with nine won and three lost. . . . E. Fortman holds high game with 239, and A. Wharton, with 618, had high series in the Peoples Gas Club league. Meter Reading No. 1 has won eight of nine games and is leading the league.

On North Side Alleys.

Two season records were set in the Gold Coast Major league when Fuller Press rolled 1,177, 1,021, and 975 for a 3,173 total and Bill Hardagon, the team's leadoff man, shot 256, 233, and 222 for 711. Ike Kresek helped with 690. Capt. Les Fuller was low with 579. As a result of the big series the Fullers tied the Jolly Jacks and Virginia Club for first place. . . . The Chicago North Side Traveling league had six 600 series, with Ed Early getting 660, Joe Retman 640, Stanley Pasciak 634, Leo Reininger 617, Tom Chwala 612, and Ed Urban 607.

About the Women.

Charlotte Ehrns' 620 and Berenice Kemph's 601 provided the fireworks in the Congress Women's league, which witnessed 47 series over 500 at the last session.

MRS. PAGE BEATS PATTY BERG FOR U.S. TITLE, 7 AND 6

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—At 10 o'clock this morning Patty Berg, 19 year old Minneapolis golfer, stood before the cameras and missed several three foot putts. A few minutes later Patty stood on the first green in the woman's national golf championship match and missed another three-footer.

That poor putting, coupled with one of the greatest finishes ever seen in the 41 year history of the tournament, meant the second defeat in the finals in three years for Miss Berg and a 7 and 6 victory for Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page of Greensboro, N. C.

Patty Never Has a Chance.

After Patty missed that first short putt she never had a chance with the sharpshooting southerner, who was tournament medalist, and who succeeds Pamela Barton of England as the American champion.

Mrs. Page held a 3 up lead at the halfway point in the scheduled 36 hole final. When they started the afternoon round Mrs. Page parred the 19th, and from there to the finish at the 30th a gallery of 1,000 saw a magnificent short iron and putting exhibition.

A 12-footer on the 20th was the beginning, and before the match ended Mrs. Page, who is 30 years old, carded six more one putt greens. Four of these resulted in birdies.

Her Fourth Attempt.

Mrs. Page's medal for the first nine holes this afternoon was 36, three strokes under par. Patty had a 40.

Mrs. Page, who has played in the national tournament four times, negotiated the first nine holes this morning, most of which were played in a drizzling rain, in a medal 38.

NEW HAMPSHIRE WINS.

Orono, Me., Oct. 9.—(AP)—A hard running New Hampshire university eleven overwhelmed the University of Maine, 13 to 0.

Smokers' test shows that White Owls are at least 25% easier on your breath...

LIFE is sweeter when your breath is clean as a breeze. It pays to smoke cigars that are easier on your breath.

New scientific discoveries show that White Owl's Vintage tobacco is low in the substances that cause unpleasant breath. Tests with a delicate osmoscope prove that this tobacco leaves less odor.

White Owl is a better cigar because it always has a Vintage-tobacco filler. Nature—not artificial factory processing—made this tobacco very mild, mellow.

We maintain a vast crop-inspection system—the only known organization of its kind—to locate Vintage tobacco. Even in Vintage years, we classify all filler tobacco into seven grades—and buy only tobacco of the quality of the top three.

Next time buy White Owls. You'll enjoy their milder tobacco—and stay friends with the world.

The Metallic Nose Knows

Scientists use a sensitive osmoscope to measure odor . . . to record its intensity and lasting power. Ten different brands of 5¢ cigars were tested by this machine. White Owl was at least 25% easier on the breath than all the others. After 30 minutes, all trace of tobacco odor disappeared from the breath of White Owl smokers.

FRANK RACES 55 YARDS AS YALE BEATS PENN, 27-7

Passes to Wilson for First Touchdown.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Two backs, Capt. Clint Frank and Al Wilson, led a powerful Yale football team to a 27 to 7 victory over Pennsylvania today. Between them they accounted for three of Yale's four touchdowns—one in each period.

More than 25,000 persons watched Penn, threatened several times before, finally crashing through in the last period. It rolled up twice as many first downs as Yale, 16 to 8, but Yale was just too good.

Frank Breaks Away.

Wilson scored twice and Frank and Bob Platt, a tackle, once each. Bob Schuenemann, end, accounted for Penn's touchdown.

One of Wilson's scores came late in the final period on a sixty yard run around his right end. Frank ran fifty-five yards for a touchdown early in the second quarter.

Frank's passing and running was responsible for the first score. His thirty yard run a few minutes after the opening kickoff placed the ball deep in Penn territory, from where he passed ten yards to Wilson for the touchdown.

Platt Scores on Kick.

The other Yale touchdown came early in the third period when Platt picked up a blocked Penn kick on the 12 yard line and charged across the goal line.

A Penn drive started late in the third period, brought the ball fifty-one yards to Yale's 9 yard line, where Bob Dougherty of Overbrook, Pa., passed to Schuenemann for the touchdown.

ARMY, 21; COLUMBIA, 18.

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Army's light backs, strong in the tradition of Cagle and Meyer, charged down field three times today to give the Cadets a 21 to 18 triumph over Columbia.

More than 20,000 fans packed Michie stadium beneath wintry skies to watch a game in which the lead changed hands five times.

Although Columbia lost, Sid Luckman, its triple threat half back, salvaged plenty of glory from the defeat. He bombed the Army secondary, bucked the line, slashed off tackles and capped the remarkable performance with an 80 yard return of a kickoff for the final Columbia touchdown.

The throng was still cheering Army's second touchdown, scored by Woodrow Wilson in the third period when Luckman took Isbell's kick and dashed through the Army team, putting Columbia ahead, 18 to 14.

At that stage it appeared to be Columbia's game. The Lions were driving to the Cadet goal again when Luckman shot a long pass to Radvillas. The ball bounced off Radvillas' hands and Frontczak picked it out of the air on his own 2 yard line, to return 94 yards to Columbia's 4 yard line before Radvillas pulled him down from behind. Jim Schwenk smashed off the weak side tackle on the second play to win the game. The lineup:

MICHIGAN STATE LOSES.

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Half Back Ed Kringle gave Manhattan its first major victory of the season today when he kicked a field goal from the 12 yard line in the third period to defeat Michigan State, 3 to 0, before 10,000 at Ebbets field.

Michigan State, conqueror of Michigan last week, charged thirty-two yards in the fourth period, apparently headed for a touchdown, but the drive halted when a pass, Pingel to Nelson, was knocked down on the 5 yard line and Manhattan took over on downs.

Then Manhattan unloosed a drive which carried within a foot of the touchdown, before the State line braced and took the ball.

W. and J. Scores 24th Victory Over Bethany

Washington, Pa., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Washington and Jefferson defeated Bethany college, 9 to 0, today in the twenty-fifth game of their series. It was the twenty-fourth victory for the Presidents. Frank Biss, sophomore half back, plunged four yards for a touchdown in the second quarter and Brit Patterson place kicked the extra point. In the final period after holding W. and J. on the 2 yard line, Bernard, Bethany kicker, had a punt blocked back of the goal and recovered for a safety.

MARCHING ALONG TO VICTORY WAY DOWN EAST

Albert Wilson (No. 15) plunges over Pennsylvania's goal line for Yale's first touchdown in its 27 to 7 victory at New Haven. Wilson outran Kirkleski (No. 6), Connell (No. 8), and O'Neill (No. 33) to score. No. 53 is Hoxton, Yale end. Clint Frank, Yale captain, was the star of the game.

Capt. Charles Toll stops Left Half Back George Peck of Cornell, but it was a rare occasion in yesterday's game at Princeton where Cornell whipped the Tigers, 20 to 7. No. 68 is Full Back William Lynch and No. 27 Quarter Back Eddie Givens of Princeton.

Cornell's Second Half Attack Defeats Princeton, 20 to 7

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—There no longer is any doubt about the Cornell football team of 1937. With 40,000 people sitting under leaden skies in Palmer stadium today, Cornell defeated Princeton, 20 to 7, to definitly establish itself as one of the strongest elevens in the east.

Princeton fought on even terms through the first half to lead, 7 to 6, at the intermission. But in the third and fourth quarters the Big Red took command and left no doubt as to the outcome. Cornell's touchdowns came in the second, third, and fourth periods, but Princeton made it work for them.

Tigers Score First.

The Tigers scored first, Jack White taking Hooper's punt at midfield in the second quarter and, aided by fine blocking, going 50 yards for a touchdown. Givens kicked the point. Cornell launched its first scoring drive a few minutes later as Stahl intercepted White's pass at midfield. The Big Red marched right down, with Brown going over.

The second half, in which Princeton was held to one first down until the final minute, saw Cornell's second touchdown come with lightning suddenness to completely reverse a picture which was all Princeton's at that moment. Mountain's fine quick kick to Cornell's 12 yard line had been downed by Vruwink, and Cornell was back on its heels. But not for long.

Baker took a lateral flip from Peck and dashed on down the Princeton sidelines all alone. He outraced Vruwink, who made a desperate dive at the 20 yard line, and went on to score. Rose kicked the point.

Score in Seven Plays.

It was well into the fourth period when the last touchdown came. Another Cornell attack had been stopped at the Princeton 19, but when Givens tried a pass Stahl intercepted on the 25. From there they crossed in seven plays, Rose and Baker combining on reverses and Rose plunging over, then adding the final point.

PITT, 6; DUQUESNE, 0.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Pitt shook loose Marshall Goldberg for 77 yards and a touchdown in the first three minutes of play against Duquesne today and then rode out this margin for a 6 to 0 triumph over their crosstown rivals.

Every seat in Pitt stadium was sold, but a drizzling rain which continued all afternoon held the crowd to 55,000.

Goldberg's run came on the second play after Pitt stopped Duquesne's driving backs on its own 23. He sprinted through right guard, deserted his interference and reversed his field twice as he sped goalward. Frank Souchak missed a placement try for the point.

HARVARD, 34; BROWN, 7.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Harvard passed Brown's inexperienced team to a 34 to 7 defeat today before 15,000.

Three of the Crimson's five touchdowns were the results of long aerials. The last two, made during the final period, were the rewards of fine running by back field replacements, and an enemy pass interception.

Rangy John McLaughry, sophomore son of Brown's veteran coach, scored his team's only touchdown on a plunge from Harvard's 1 foot mark after Atwell had run back a punt to that mark.

N. Y. U. IS BEATEN.

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Crowell Little, quarter back, personally engineered three touchdowns today to conduct his ball hawking southerners from the University of North Carolina to a 19 to 6 victory over the previously undefeated Violets of New York university.

Little, co-captain of the Tar Heels, snagged a New York university pass on the first scrimmage play and raced to the Violet 4 yard line from which spot he scored a moment later. Ed Williams, a 217 pound back, spark plugged a Violet drive from his own 26 yard straight down the field 74 yards to tie it up. Late in the third quarter Little slipped through from the 3 yard line to put the Tar Heels ahead for good and in the final minutes he slipped over for a final touchdown.

NAVY, 40; VIRGINIA, 13.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Virginia threw a scare into Navy today before the Middies took advantage of late breaks to win, 40 to 13, before 18,000.

Tied at the half and only a single touchdown ahead at the three-quarter mark, Navy had to call on all its reserve strength for a grand goal line stand early in the fourth period to keep the Virginians from pushing out in front.

With that storing threat halted, Virginia had nothing left. Navy blocked two of the Southerners' kicks to score and then drove to another to turn a tight game into a rout.

Navy gained 305 yards by rushing against Virginia's 61 and made 19 first downs to 5 for the Cavaliers.

BOSTON U. WINS.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Scoring twice within the first four minutes, Boston university coasted to a 20 to 0 victory over Slippery Rock today before more than 5,000 at Fenway park. It was B. U.'s second straight triumph.

PENN STATE, 20; BUCKNELL, 14.

State College, Pa., Oct. 9.—[U. P.]—A four yard touchdown plunge by Johnny Patrick, Penn State quarter back, in the final minutes today, gave State a 20 to 14 victory over Bucknell university.

Harrison of Penn State opened the scoring in the first period, racing 20 yards for a touchdown. Bucknell went into the lead when Bill Lane plunged six yards for a touchdown and kicked the point. In the second period a pass, Wear to Addessa, put the ball on the one yard line and Metro scored to put State back on top, 13 to 7, Pollock adding the point.

Bucknell again took the lead in the fourth period when a pass, Jones to Wenner, was good for a touchdown and the point was kicked. With four minutes left to play, State then staged a 41 yard drive to Bucknell's 6, from where Patrick plunged over.

DARTMOUTH WINS, 42-0.

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Playing second and third stringers throughout the second half, Dartmouth whipped Springfield's football team, 42 to 0, today.

SYRACUSE, 40; LAWRENCE, 0.

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 9.—(AP)—A much improved Syracuse university eleven flashed a neat aerial attack today to defeat St. Lawrence university, 40 to 0. Passes accounted for four of the six touchdowns. Marty Glickman, speedy half back, led the attack with two touchdown runs of 73 and 58 yards.

HOLY CROSS WINS, 27-6.

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Holy Cross defeated Georgetown, 27 to 6, today before 12,000 in a renewal of football relations after a lapse of fifteen years.

FORDHAM TRIUMPHS, 48-0.

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Fordham today concluded its final practice game, defeating Waynesburg, 48 to 0, then settled back to await the invasion of Pitt next Saturday.

COLGATE WINS, 34-0.

Hamilton, N. Y., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Rebounding from the Cornell defeat, Colgate's Red Raiders showed drive and spirit today as they combined laterals, forward passes and a powerful running game to rout St. Bonaventure, 34 to 0, before a crowd of 4,000.

Butler Opens Conference Schedule with 33-0 Victory

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 9.—[U. P.]—Butler won its opening Little State conference game season today, defeating Valparaiso, 33 to 0.

Akron Pass Defeats Geneva Eleven, 7 to 0

Akron, O., Oct. 9.—(AP)—A 27 yard forward pass from quarter back Frankie Zazula to end Don Cook in the first quarter gave Akron university a 7 to 0 victory over Geneva college today.

TENNESSEE, DUKE ELEVENS BATTLE TO SCORELESS TIE

Durham, N. C., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Tennessee and Duke battled to a scoreless tie this afternoon. Tennessee crossed the goal line in the first quarter on a 29 yard forward pass, but the officials called an offside penalty to nullify the play.

Duke threatened twice, a fumble proving costly in the first quarter and a stalwart Tennessee defense checking an advance on Tennessee's 16 yard line only three minutes before the game ended. Tennessee came close midway of the second period, but the drive was checked on Duke's 12 yard line.

L. S. U., 13; RICE, 0.

Houston, Tex., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Louisiana State university beat Rice institute, 13 to 0, today. The Louisianans scored touchdowns in the second and thirds quarters, Kavanaugh, L. S. U. end, turning in the day's most spectacular run. He ran the length of the field after catching a Rice fumble on the Texas goal. Anderson scored the first touchdown after L. S. U. carried the ball to the Rice one foot line on line plunges.

MISSISSIPPI WINS, 21-0.

University, Miss., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Ray Hapes led Mississippi to a 21 to 0 victory over St. Louis university today with scoring runs of 78 and 28 yards.

VANDERBILT WINS, 17 TO 6.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Vanderbilt defeated a stubborn Southwestern eleven, 17 to 6, today, before a crowd of 10,000.

GEORGIA TECH, 32; KENTUCKY, 0.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Scoring on the first play of the game, Georgia Tech defeated the University of Kentucky football team, 32 to 0, on a soggy field today.

ALABAMA, 20; S. CAROLINA, 0.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Alabama's power overcame South Carolina today for a 20 to 0 victory. The invaders grew stronger as the game progressed, but could not pierce the Alabama line.

GEORGIA, 14; CLEMSON, 0.

Athens, Ga., Oct. 9.—(AP)—A 28 yard pass for a touchdown early in the first period and a third quarter, 52 yard run by Vandiver gave Georgia a 14 to 0 victory over Clemson today.

TULANE WINS, 84 TO 0.

New Orleans, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Tulane overwhelmed Mississippi college, 84 to 0, today before a crowd of 12,000.

MEXICAN ARMY POLO TEAM BEATS ARGENTINES, 11-6

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 9. — (AP) — A rough riding Mexican army polo team defeated the San Jose of Argentine, enroute home from the United States, 11 to 6, in a driving rain today in the first game of a three game series.

The Argentines, obviously hampered by the rough field and unfamiliar mounts, did not begin to click until the fifth period. Thereafter they played on even terms, but could not overcome Mexico's 6-1 lead.

Luis Duggan scored three goals for the Argentines, Heriberto Duggan two, and Hugo Backhouse one. Andres Gazotti was the fourth member of the team.

Iowa Star Misses $131 Ticket Money from Locker

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—John Graves of Cherokee, Ia., track star, reported to Police Chief W. H. Bender today that $131.45 in cash was stolen from his locker in the basement of the Iowa Field house before noon today. Graves said $60 in checks was left untouched. The money, Graves said, had been collected from sales of season tickets to Iowa's games.

Bobby Pacho Beats Vincent Pimpinella in 8 Rounds

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Bobby Pacho, veteran California welterweight, hammered out an eight-round victory over Vincent Pimpinella of Brooklyn in the main bout at the Ridgewood grove tonight. Pacho weighed 148, Pimpinella 147½.

play Co-Capt. McDonald went around the Trojan left end for a touchdown.

Tonelli partly blocked Schoenbaum's attempted kick, leaving the score tied at 6 to 6. Phil Gaspar of the Trojans had missed the first try for the extra point when the ball bounced back after striking the cross bar.

Buckeyes Come Right Back.

The Buckeyes came back with another touchdown. Early in the fourth period Kabealo passed over the center to Half Back Dick Nardi for the score. The play started on Southern California's 26 yard line after Joe Aleskus had blocked Schindler's quick kick from his own 23 yard line, deflecting it to Esco Sarkkinen, Ohio end. Aleskus' kick went wide, however.

With Schindler again in the lineup the Trojans rallied to score the winning points in a sharp, swift thrust.

Wayne Hoffman, blocking back, started the reprisal by returning Aleskus' kickoff 14 yards to his own 41 yard line. Schindler carried the ball on the next five plays, completing two first downs to Ohio's 27 yard line.

On the sixth play of the sequence Schindler faded back and passed to Anderson, who had cut straight upfield after going around Ohio's right end. Anderson needed only to get around Kabealo, the safety man, inside the 5 yard line, to complete the touchdown. Stanley then kicked the point that won the game.

Ohio reached Southern California's 32 yard line on a flurry of passes by McDonald and Wasylik as the end of the game neared, but Tonelli intercepted one by McDonald and Sangster intercepted a pass by Wasylik on the final play of the game.

The Buckeyes totaled 268 yards from scrimmage against 155 for the Trojans. Ohio State punters outkicked the Trojans, averaging 41½ yards per punt against 35 yards per kick on the part of Southern California.

Trojans Effective in Air.

Although Ohio State gained 63 yards from passes against 34 for U. S. C., the Trojan aerial attack was effective enough to win the game, however. Southern California completed two out of five throws attempted, one for a touchdown. The Buckeyes threw 20 passes to complete six. In addition, four Ohio State passes were intercepted. Only one was intercepted against Southern California.

On first downs U. S. C., showed a superiority, 9 to 8.

BAYLOR DEFEATS ARKANSAS, 20-14, IN LAST MINUTE

Waco, Tex., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Sam Boyd sneaked into the end zone 30 seconds before the close of today's Baylor-Arkansas southwest conference football game, gathered in a short pass from Billy Patterson, and Baylor had a 20 to 14 victory.

Patterson, whose running, passing, and kicking stood out, had punted to the Razorback 20 yard line. Swight Sloan fell on the ball, but it slipped from under him and Boyd recovered. Patterson and Brazell ran to the 9 yard line. Then Patterson flipped the touchdown pass.

Arkansas scored the first touchdown as the first period ended, then kicked off to the home team's 29. On the first play, Patterson found a big gap in the left side of the line and run for a touchdown. The lineups:

ARKANSAS [14].		BAYLOR [20].
Benton	L. E.	Boyd
Lallman	L. T.	Blue
Gilmore	L. G.	Kriel
Woodell	C.	H. Williams

Touchdowns — Sloan, Fletcher, Patterson, Boyd, Burns [sub for Evans]. Points after touchdowns—Owen, 2; B. Gernand, 2.

TEXAS, OKLAHOMA TIE.

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 9.—[U. P.]—Texas and Oklahoma universities, playing the 32d game since they opened their southwestern intersectional feud in 1900, battled to a 7 to 7 tie today before 25,000.

Oklahoma scored first, in the second period, when Huddleston, led a drive down the field to the Texas one yard line and bucked through center for the touchdown. Boudreau added the point. The Sooners made eight tries for the goal inside the 8 yard line before scoring, keeping the ball on penalties against Texas.

A pass, Gray to Atchison, enabled Texas to score near the end of the second period. Gray kicked the point.

S. M. U., 14; WASHINGTON, 0.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Southern Methodist university concentrated its scoring in the second period today to defeat Washington university, 14 to 0.

A short pass from Jack Morrison to Pete Acker accounted for the Texans' first score and a 70 yard run by Bill Dewell brought the other. John Stidger and Bob Belville kicked the extra points.

The S. M. U. forward pass touchdown caught the Bears flatfooted. Wally Bearden made three unsuccessful plunges after the Mustangs had reached the 5 yard line on a long pass from Stidger to Chelsea Crouch. With the ball only one yard from the goal Washington was set for another line play, but the pass came instead.

Near the end of the second period, after a Washington punt rolled over the goal line, Belville started around end from his 20 yard line. After 10 yards he fumbled. Dewell grabbed the ball in the air, broke loose from tacklers, and outdistanced pursuers to the goal line.

TEXAS AGGIES TRIUMPH.

Tyler, Tex., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Texas A. and M. scored a 14 to 0 victory over Mississippi State today.

Virgil Jones, Aggie guard, gave his team its first scoring chance when he pounced on a Mississippi fumble on the 8 yard line in the second period. Ken Mills passed six yards to Dick Todd, and Bob Nersta went over for the touchdown on the second try. Todd kicked the extra point.

Later Mississippi State punted to Todd. He ducked past two tacklers and headed for the corner and a touchdown. Again he kicked the point.

TEXAS CHRISTIAN WINS.

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 9.—(AP)—David O'Brien and Johnny Hall led Texas Christian university to a 20 to 13 victory over Tulsa university today.

V.M.I. Scores in 2d Period; Defeats Davidson, 7 to 0

Lexington, Va., Oct. 9.—[U.P.]—Virginia Military institute today defeated Davidson, 7 to 0. Paul Shu led the V. M. I. offensive and scored the only touchdown of the game early in the second period.

down pass in the end zone with six minutes to play.

Minnesota then got a fresh start on its 20 yard line, but a few minutes later the Hoosiers were back again with first down on the 9 yard line and a minute to play. An end run was stopped and a pass over the goal line failed as the gun went off.

Indiana Gains More Ground.

Indiana outgained Minnesota in total yardage, 174 to 172. This advantage was due to passes, the Hoosiers completing 12 out of 29 for a total advance of 110 yards, while the Gophers completed one out of three for twelve yards. On the other hand, Minnesota gained 160 yards by rushing to Indiana's 64. Statistics:

First Hoosier March.

Filchock took a Minnesota punt on his own 40 yard line early in the fourth quarter. Then the Hoosiers started on the first of their two stirring marches toward the Gopher goal. After Anderson had failed by inches to make the first down at midfield, Fowler punted out of bounds on the Gopher 11 yard line.

On the first play thereafter, Minnesota was penalized to their 1 yard line for holding. A punt was faked and Buhler got through center for eight yards. He repeated at the same spot for one, after which King punted out to Filchock on the Gopher 46 yard line.

Filchock plunged for three yards. Anderson took Filchock's pass for a four yard gain, then hit center for another two. On fourth down Anderson passed to Paul Graham, who was thrown on the 32 yard line.

After a pass had failed, Anderson made two yards at right end, then took Filchock's pass for seven more. Davis ploughed through center for first down on the Minnesota 20 yard line. Filchock plunged for three and Anderson passed to Davis for six. Davis then hit center for first down on the 10 yard line. Filchock made a yard after which Anderson took Filchock's pass on the 5 yard line.

A pass failed. Then Filchock's fourth down toss was grounded in the end zone.

Six Minutes to Play, and . . .

Six minutes remained to play. Taking the ball on its 20 yard line, Minnesota advanced on running plays to the 31. Three attempts netted a two yard loss and King punted to Filchock, who was downed on his 34 yard line.

After two passes had failed Dale Tanner took Anderson's long throw on the Gopher 28 yard line. Two more passes failed. Then Tanner took another toss from Anderson on the 9 yard line. Tanner lost two at right end. Indiana was penalized for too much time out. Then Jimmie Zoeller's southpaw pass over the goal line was grounded as the game ended.

Concordia college scored a 12 to 0 football victory over Morton yesterday at Oak Park. The touchdowns were scored by R. Gersenehal and Kahling in the last quarter.

NEBRASKA BEATS IOWA STATE, 20-7, IN HARD BATTLE

Kischer Hurt After Long Touchdown March.

Ames, Ia., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—A startled Nebraska squad, forced to battle every inch of the way, capitalized on two long runs and an intercepted pass to defeat Iowa State, 20 to 7, today. Ten thousand saw the game.

The Cyclones, receiving Nebraska's opening kickoff on their 22 yard line, marched 78 yards to a touchdown. Everett Kischer, 150 pound quarter back, was the spark plug of the offense. A tricky maneuver in which Gordon Reupke, full back, lateraled to Kischer and the latter sent a forward pass to Charles Heilman, gained 31 yards and placed the ball on the Nebraska 2 yard line. Kischer smacked left tackle for a touchdown, then placekicked the goal.

Nebraska Ties It Up.

The Huskers struck back shortly before the period ended. They received a Cyclone kick on their 20 and on the first play Paul Amen whirled around from end to take the ball from Quarter Back Bill Andreson and raced 80 yards for a touchdown. Jack Dodd kicked the extra point.

Kischer then was removed from the game with an injured shoulder and Iowa State never was able to gain after that.

Shortly after the fourth period opened Morin's punt sailed over Plock's head, but the Nebraska safety raced back to his 25, picked up the ball and sped down the sideline for a touchdown. Richardson missed the kick for the point.

In a desperate effort the Cyclones took to the air again. Richardson intercepted a Cyclone pass on Iowa State's 11 yard line and the Huskers drove over in three plays with Harris Andrews charging seven yards for the touchdown. English added the point. Lineups:

MISSOURI WINS, 14-7.

Columbia, Mo., Oct. 9.—(AP)—A touchdown on a break in the final period broke a 7 to 7 tie and gave Missouri a 14 to 7 victory today over Kansas State in their opening Big Six football game before 8,000.

Missouri punched over a touchdown in the first quarter after a sustained march, and Kansas State tied the score in the third period on a 62 yard drive. In the final period a long Missouri punt struck Howard Cleveland, Kansas State safety, as he tried to avoid it, and the ball rolled over the goal where Center Houston Betty of Missouri fell on it for a touchdown.

WITCHITA, 18; KANSAS, 7.

Wichita, Kas., Oct. 9. —(AP)—Wichita university scored a startling 18 to 7 football victory over Kansas university in an interconference game today before 10,000.

PURDUE DEFEATS WABASH, 15-40, IN CROSS COUNTRY

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—In its first home start under Coach Herman Phillips, Purdue's cross country squad made a clean sweep of the first five places this morning to defeat Wabash college, 15 to 40.

Art Bodeau, repeated his first place triumph against Pittsburgh of last week, followed in order by Knapp, Long, Marozick, and Bell of the Boilermaker squad. Bodeau's time, over a three and a half mile hilly course, was 19 minutes 26 seconds.

tress, was the torch bearer for the Wildcats.

Michigan carried the ball from its own 24 yard line to the Purple's 39 almost at the start of the game, but here Mr. Heap, of whom you have read before, checked the march by intercepting Trosko's pass to Nicholson on Northwestern's 18 and returning to the 35.

The Wildcats showed their first offensive spurt in the second quarter, when they mixed a running and aerial attack that moved the ball from their own 45 to Michigan's 22. A fumble by Ryan, which was recovered by Nicholson of Michigan, ended the touchdown threat.

Wildcats Fight Back.

Northwestern lost no time coming down the field again. Ryan's 23 yard pass to Kovatch placed the ball on Michigan's 25. Farmer came through for Michigan at this juncture by intercepting a pass from Jefferson and lugging the ball out of the gloom of his own goal posts to the brighter precincts of midfield. Farmer almost broke away for a touchdown, but he was crowded out of bounds by Heap, the last man in his path near the 50 yard line.

Calvano of Northwestern, a few plays later, grabbed a Michigan pass on his 47 yard line and the Wildcats then put on their best drive of the first half. Jefferson whipped a pass to Heap, who was chased out of bounds on Michigan's 21. Heap passed to Ryan in the flat zone and Ryan cut back behind interference to the ten. Heap then tossed one to Ted Grefe, 6 foot 4 inch sophomore end from Des Moines, and the ball was on Michigan's 4. Ryan was stopped in his tracks at right guard. His attempted place kick was wide of its mark and Michigan took the ball shortly before the second period ended.

Then Came the Score.

The third quarter produced the winning touchdown as described earlier in this piece.

Michigan threatened twice in the fourth quarter, but lacked the punch to capitalize on its opportunities, the first of which came when Jefferson's punt was partly blocked, Michigan getting the ball on Northwestern's 35. Trosko and Renda moved it to the 25 on plunges and a five yard penalty. Two more plunges netted only four yards and then the ubiquitous Mr. Heap speared a pass intended for Farmer, who was standing near the goal line, and ran the ball back to the 15.

Northwestern Line Holds.

Jefferson's punt sailed out of bounds on Michigan's 41. Ritchie flipped a pass over center to Farmer, who ran to Northwestern's 25 before he was dumped. Here Northwestern's line, which was improving as play progressed, held for downs and Michigan's last chance went glimmering. The statistics:

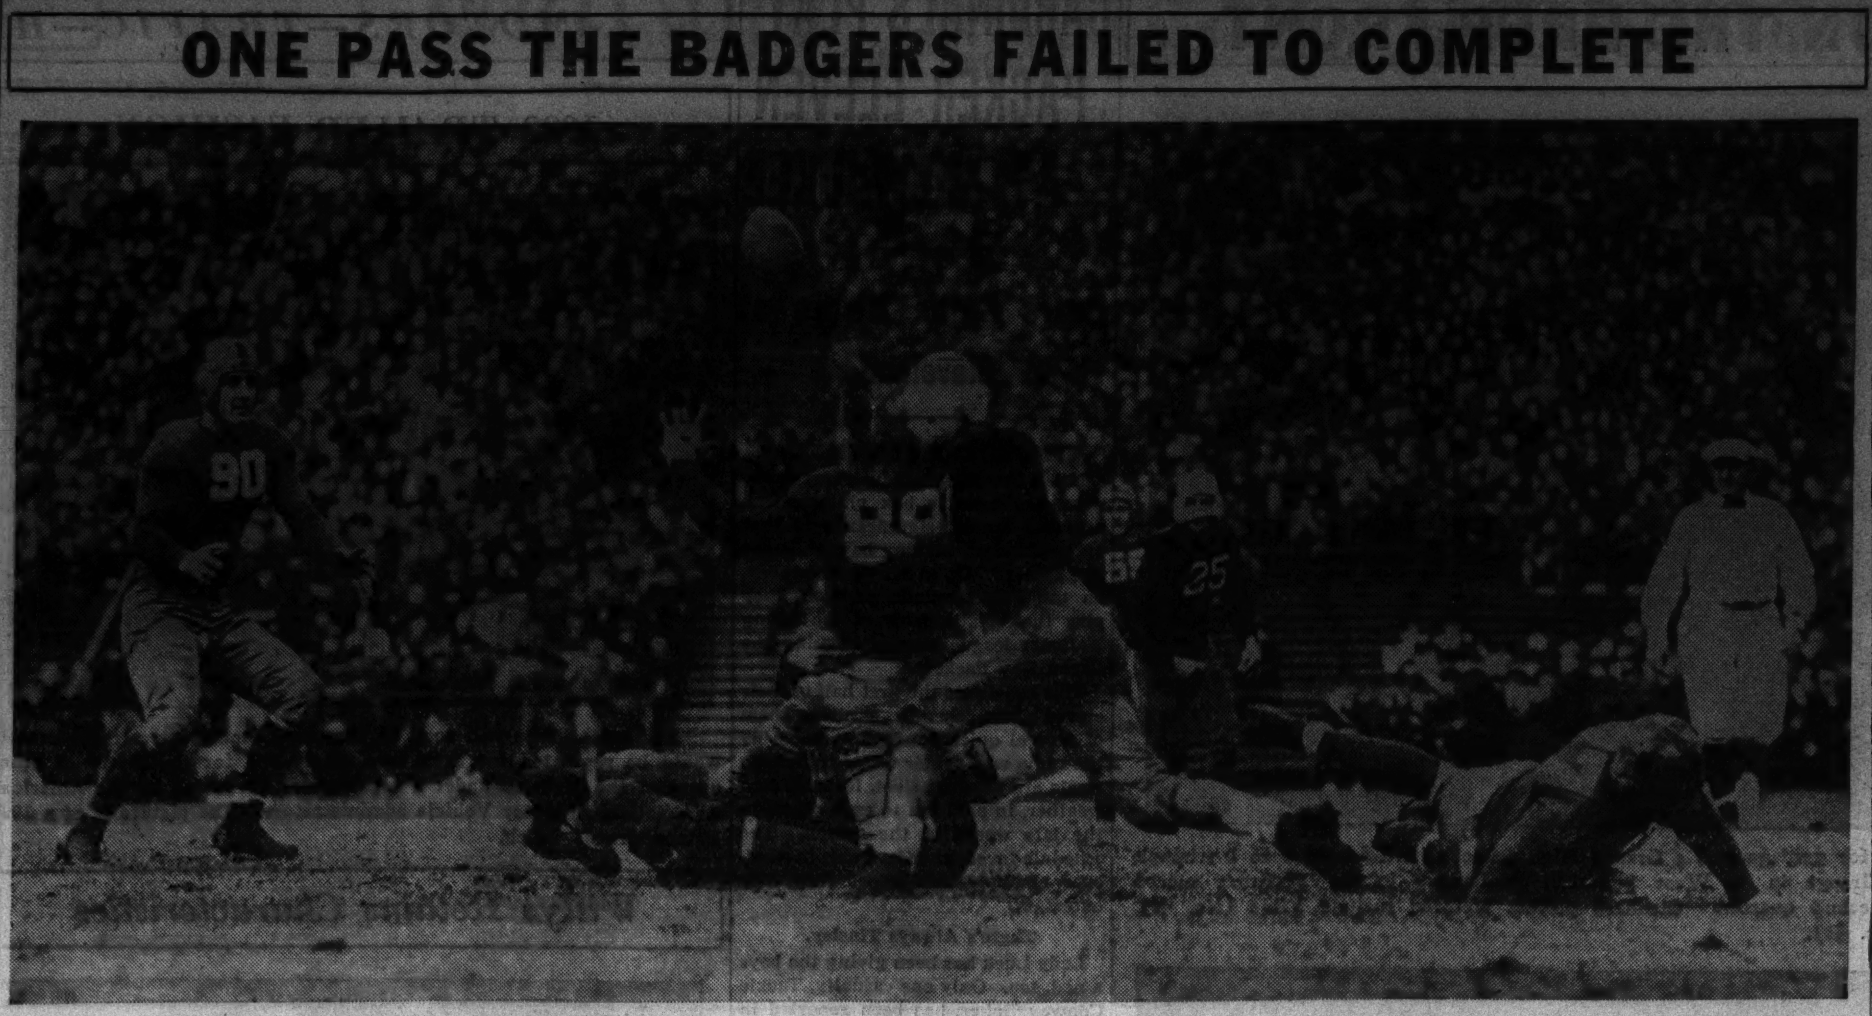
CARROLL SCORES EARLY TO DEFEAT ST. NORBERT'S, 14-7

Waukesha, Wis., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Carroll college won its thirteenth consecutive victory today, defeating St. Norbert's, 14 to 7. The Pioneers scored both their touchdowns in the first five minutes.

Carroll profited by a short St. Norbert punt which rolled out of bounds on the 45 yard line. Fritz Wolf plunged over for a touchdown from the 2 yard line, after Buck and Callahan had advanced the ball.

The second touchdown came after an exchange of punts which followed the next kickoff. Buck went around his right end from the 17 yard line. Buck place[illegible] points.

ONE PASS THE BADGERS FAILED TO COMPLETE



Moller of Wisconsin attempts to grab a pass in the second quarter, but a Maroon rushes up in time to spoil the play. The Badgers completed several other aerials and gained ground on running plays to score a 27 to 0 victory over Chicago at Stagg field in the opening Big Ten game for both schools. No. 90 is Murray of Wisconsin, No. 55 is Schmitz of Wisconsin, No. 25 is Grenebaum of Chicago, and No. 77 is Benz of Wisconsin, who is on the ground at the right. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Terpsichore 1st in Great Lakes Purse

The folks who study the form charts closely were kicking themselves plenty today, deploring the fact that a filly named Terpsichore could win right under their noses and pay off at almost 20 to 1.

It happened at Sportsman's Park yesterday, where a crowd of more than 10,000 filled the little enclosure to watch the $1,200 Great Lakes handicap run.

The majority in that turnout could see only Witan, the 5 year old which races in the Blue Ridge farm silks of Billy O'Toole. Hadn't he won his last six starts?

It mattered not that this same Terpsichore had landed closest to Witan in their last meeting, in the Inaugural handicap on opening day. There was Witan with the same impost as in his last victory. The only fly in the ointment was that Witan's regular rider, T. P. Martin, was not present, being relegated to the status of a spectator for some rough riding earlier in the week.

She Pays $40.60.

The betters must have figured that Terpsichore had a lucky race in her system when she landed second to Witan opening day, for they let her go to the post the longest priced horse on the board. A moan went up, then, when she rambled home in front of Miss Saxon by one length, with Veeks a fast closing third. The payoff read $40.60.

In defense of those who had helped make Witan the favorite, it must be admitted that the O'Toole racer tried to make it seven straight successes. He had the misfortune of having Black River beat him out of the gate, then raced head and head with the latter for more than a half a mile. The pace setters gave up the task completely in the drive, with Terpsichore, which had been racing close at hand, going to the fore under the handling of the veteran jocky, L. Lake.

Miss Saxon reserved all her running for the stretch drive, where she finished with giant strides, but unable to get near the filly out in front. Veeks, which had only one horse beaten during the early stages, also came up fast to earn third money.

Her Fifth Victory.

It was the fifth victory of the year for the filly, owned by A. Gizzo of Kansas City. She has been a busy campaigner on all of the local tracks, often in the money, but with her winning races far apart.

The players who follow the fortunes of the Blue Ridge farm collected in the second event, when the veteran Mr. James romped in front all the way to score by six lengths over Hammel. Mr. James was the favorite, paying $6.80. Most of those earnings undoubtedly went back on Wise Princess in the fourth race. Miss Princess failed to show her customary speed, landing out of the picture. Barbara S. took down this event with Howdoino collecting the place and Sun Aloha getting third money.

Although the early races were run over a slightly dull track, the oval dried out enough to be called fast for the featured Great Lakes and the races which followed it.

RHODE ISLAND STATE WINS.

Medford, Mass., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Playing wide open football, Rhode Island State defeated Tufts, 14 to 7, today, all the scoring being accomplished in the first half.

CORNELL ELEVEN TRIUMPHS OVER BELOIT, 32 TO 14

Mount Vernon, Ia., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Cornell college marched to its fourth consecutive win today by defeating Beloit, 32 to 14, in a Midwest conference contest.

Beloit matched an early Cornell touchdown, but a neatly executed forty-one yard forward pass, Ben Petersen to Franklin Cole, handed Mount Vernon a half-time lead of 14 to 7.

An eighty yard Cornell drive for a touchdown in the third period was answered by Beloit's passing attack, which crossed the Cornell goal to make the score Cornell, 20; Beloit, 14, early in the fourth quarter.

A forty-seven yard sprint by Deal Brand led to the fourth score, and a pass from Don Pease to Bob Maloney accounted for the fifth touchdown.

BADGERS' POWER ROUTS MAROONS IN 2D HALF, 27-0

Chicago Has Courage but It's Not Enough.

change of punts by Bellin and Fitzgerald the ball finally landed on Chicago's six yard line. The gallant Sherman tried to make some headway but before he could start a run he was tossed back. He was downed by Doyle on the Wisconsin three yard line.

Fitzgerald punted from back of his own goal line to Schmitz who was downed on the Maroon 40 yard stripe. Two drives by Weiss through the left side of the Maroon line netted him nine yards. Once more he plunged through the same hole, it was good for four yards more. The teams then traded offsides.

Schmitz Passes to Benz.

Then came the first scoring play of the game. Schmitz took the ball. He faded back and to the left. He tossed a pass to Benz, who took the ball on the Maroon 18 yard line. Benz eluded two tacklers then drove on until he crossed the goal line for the first touchdown. Weiss' kick for the extra point was good.

The Maroons got mad at this sudden turn of the battle against them. During the remainder of the first quarter and all through the second they held the Badgers at bay. The Maroons were getting the breaks, however. Wisconsin played rough, hard football. It brought numerous penalties.

The third quarter was nearing completion before Wisconsin showed another scoring punch. Pohl ran 68 yards after he had intercepted Sherman's pass on the 38 yard line. He was on the Maroon 3 yard line when Goodstein came up from behind to bring him down. It was easy for Weiss to dive over the left side of the Chicago line for a touchdown. The kick for the extra point was blocked.

A Busy 4th Period.

The Badgers were busiest in the fourth quarter. A run of 50 yards by Jimmy Martin, Wisconsin half back, started the late retreat of the Maroons. He took Fitzgerald's punt on his own 40 yard line and dodged a half dozen Maroon tacklers to gallop to the Chicago 10 yard line before he was finally brought down. The long run had no effect on him. A few seconds later he broke off right tackle for a touchdown. Eckl was called in to make the extra point from placement.

On marched the Badgers because the Maroons were in a panic by this time. Eckl kicked off to Goodstein, who fumbled after a five yard advance, but his teammate, Davenport, recovered for the Maroons on their own 21 yard line.

The next Chicago play was a long pass by Lehnhardt. It never reached its destination. Cibik of Wisconsin grabbed the ball then loped unmolested to the fourth Wisconsin touchdown. Eckl place kicked the extra point.

Stanford Beats U.C.L.A., 12-7, in Coast Upset

Palo Alto, Cal., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Stanford's Indians, twice beaten in previous games and rank outsiders as they lined up today, scored one of the most amazing upsets of the season with a 12 to 7 victory over the University of California.

A crowd of 15,000 saw the rebuilt Standford eleven crash over touchdowns in the first and second periods, stave off U. C. L. A. rallies time and again by pass interception, and finally yield a score in the last quarter of a loosely played game.

OREGON STATE WINS, 6-3.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 9.—(AP)—A crimp was put in the championship hopes of the University of Washington today when Joe Gray and Joe Duncan worked a short pass that gave Oregon State college a 6 to 3 victory over the Huskies in one of the major upsets of the day. Washington was the defending champion and unscored upon in three games this season.

OREGON, 40; GONZAGA, 6.

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Oregon's football team crushed Gonzaga university today 40 to 6.

Oregon piled up a yardage total of 356 from scrimage, including 75 from forward passes, to Gonzaga's 3 and completed 4 forward passes out of 12 to Gonzaga's 1 out of 3.

ST. MARY'S, 42; NEVADA, 0.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 9.—(AP)—St. Mary's Gaels galloped over University of Nevada's football team, 42 to 0, today.

Beaten decisively by California and tied by Gonzaga, the Gales had little trouble with the lighter Nevada outfit and scored almost at will. St. Mary's scored three touchdowns in the first quarter, two in the third, and another in the fourth.

CALIFORNIA WINS, 27-0.

Berkeley, Cal., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Sheer power of the University of California Golden Bears crushed Washington State, 27 to 0, today.

California's first score came late in the first period. Chapman, Bear half, had caught the Washington State backs napping with a bounding kick that Right End Schwartz stopped on the one yard mark. Bayne, Cougar kicker, got his punt out to the 40 yard line and Bottari brought it back 10 yards. Then he sailed the ball to Chapman over the goal. Chapman kicked the goal—and two more before the half ended. California scored again in the last quarter.

LOGANSPORT WINS.

Logansport, Ind., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Logansport High school completed its home football schedule last night by defeating the Indiana State School for the deaf team, 20 to 0.

St. George Meets Weber Today in Catholic League

St. George, leader in the north section football race of the Chicago Catholic High School league, will seek to move another step toward the championship of the division when it meets Andy Pilney's Weber eleven at St. George's field in Evanston this afternoon. St. George is undefeated, winning two games, while Weber lost one game and was tied by St. Mel.

St. Mel, coached this season by Al McGuff, will make its second start against De Paul at Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue. De Paul lost its opening game last Sunday to Fenwick, 1936 champion, which drew a bye in this week's schedule.

Three games will be played in the south section. St. Ignatius, tied for the lead with St. Rita and Leo, will oppose Mount Carmel at St. Philip field, at Van Buren and Albany streets. Leo will face St. Philip at Shewbridge field, 74th and Aberdeen streets. In the other game, De La Salle will open its league campaign against Catholic High of Joliet at St. Rita field, 63d street and Claremont avenue.

Leo will meet St. Mel in the annual game for the Sisters of Mercy fund at Soldiers' field on Oct. 24. Chief Justice Cornelius Harrington has been chosen as general chairman of the committee.

Hunters Rent Blinds Early for First Day

BY BOB BECKER.

Illinois duck and goose hunters are reserving blinds and decoys at daily fee hunting places for their first hunt of the year, which the law says may start at 7 o'clock in the morning, Nov. 1. The waterfowl flocks in the north have begun to move southward. Hunters in Wisconsin and other states included in the northern zone are in the marshes this week-end booming away at the teal, mallards, and other ducks that are in the advance guard of the waterfowl migration. Thus the 1937 waterfowl hunting season, the time that thousands of hunters have been waiting for, is under way and in the ranks of the shooters there is much talk of guns, equipment, and plans for the first hunt of the year.

Wisconsin opened its season yesterday. The Poygan marshes, Puckaway, Buffalo lake, the marshes around Lake Wisconsin [the big flowage], and other suitable southern Wisconsin waters are going to hear the big cannonading this week-end. Many mallards, teal, and mudhens have been congregating on these waters, so the hunters ought to have some fun.

Two Types of Shooting.

By starting the season this week-end in Wisconsin hunters are going to enjoy two types of shooting that Illinois shooters will miss this year. Due to the Nov. 1 opening date for this state there will be little, if any, teal hunting and jacksnipe shooting. When we were on southern Wisconsin marshes a few days ago we saw many flocks of teal whizzing over the flyways. These birds [bluewings] are early migrants. They doubtless will have gone south by Nov. 1. If October is cold and wintry the main flight of the jacksnipe also will move on before Nov. 1, leaving comparatively few birds here by that date.

Illinois shooters already have made many registrations at the daily fee duck shooting places along the Illinois river for the opening day, which comes on a Monday this year. In the course of making our annual survey of places to go duck hunting in Illinois [a listing of daily fee hunting places which has been completed] we found that most of the marshes already have been reserved for opening day.

Lacon, Ill., Blind Sold Out.

For example, a large duck marsh near Lacon, Ill. [about 140 miles from the loop], where one may rent a blind for $15 per day [two men to a blind], advises us that it has sold out for the opening day. Two of the old established goose hunting places near Miller City, Ill. [above Cairo, Ill.], also report that they have leased every blind for opening day.

The Nov. 1 opening date for the state of Illinois should find the sloughs and marshes along the Illinois and Sangamon rivers full of pintails and mallards. These birds usually sweep into the Illinois duck country the latter part of October.

CARDINALS PLAY PACKER ELEVEN AT MILWAUKEE

Bears Battle Rams at Cleveland.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Milan Creighton's industrious Cardinals, like cracker box philosophers, attach a special significance to that old platitude "making hay while the sun shines." Up at Milwaukee today, on the Fair Grounds gridiron, they play their sixth game of the young National league season, meeting the Green Bay Packers.

This concludes the first half of their eleven game schedule, assuring them of several quiet Sundays at home by the radio while their western division rivals are battling sleet, ice, and zero weather, in addition to each other, in the late weeks of the season. The schedule favors the Cardinals in whatever championship hopes they may entertain.

There's Always Tinsley.

Lady Luck has been giving the boys a nod, too. Only one casualty, Tackle Conway Baker, has been reported in the five contests to date. In splendid condition, and with Green Bay's decisive victory over Detroit last week to spur them to greater effort, the Cardinals should be prepared to reach the heights this afternoon. Then, of course, there is always Tinsley.

Gaynell Tinsley, end on THE TRIBUNE's All-American team and star of the collegians' victory over the Packers last month, has become one of the most feared players in the league. Since his switch to left end, his position at Louisiana State, after an unsuccessful trial at right end, he has augmented his sensational offensive play with defensive performances that have made him a bane to opposing quarter backs.

Herber Back with Packers.

Green Bay, at no time considered as weak as its three consecutive defeats indicated, now has the stimulus of its victory over Detroit and the return of Arnie Herber to the lineup to carry it up hill in its defense of the league championship. Herber will be ready to take an active part in the attack today. He played against Detroit last week, but did not pass.

While the Packers are attempting to remain in the race by cutting down the Cardinals the Bears will be at Cleveland. The Bears, who preserved their perfect record at Pittsburgh last Monday when Bronko Nagurski made a one man show of the Pirate game, should not have a great deal of trouble with the Rams, although Coach Hugo Bezdek boasts a group of excellent ends and tackles.

Pittsburgh Meets Lions.

Pittsburgh, which surprised the Bears with its deceptive and highly geared offense, meets the Lions at Detroit. The Lions may find Tuffy Thompson, the former Minnesota half back; By Haines of Washington, who was a member of the All-Star team, and John Karcis, the Pirates' battering full back, a very obstreperous bunch, but, with Coach Dutch Clark directing the attack, the Lions remain the favorites.

Washington, surprised by the Cardinals, will attempt to improve its place in the eastern division at the expense of the Philadelphia Eagles. The game will be played at Washington.

Harold Brown, Salvadore Top Marigold Card

Harold Brown, 1934 Chicago Intercity Golden Gloves alternate, will step into the limelight twice this week—tomorrow in a ten round bout against George Salvadore at Marigold Gardens and next Sunday, when he will marry Miss Janet Smith at her home on the south side.

The meeting with Salvadore is important at the moment, for victory tomorrow will pave the way to bigger and more profitable matches. Brown is undefeated this year, he having recorded seven triumphs in a row. Even so, Salvadore is one of the strongest opponents Harold has been asked to face. George, who comes from Houston, Tex., has won two of three Chicago appearances. After losing by a close margin to Milt Aron July 19 he stopped Eddie Carroll Aug. 9 and whipped Gordon Wallace Aug. 16.

Other shows during the week are scheduled at White City tomorrow, St. Pius parish and Cicero stadium Tuesday, Rainbo Fronton Wednesday, and White City Friday.

This week's boxing and wrestling schedule includes the following bouts:

SEEKS SHARE OF JEFFRA'S PURSES IN COURT SUIT

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Harry Jeffra, newly crowned world's bantamweight champion, was named in a suit today in which J. L. Rosenfeld, contending he became Jeffra's co-manager in 1936, asked a share of the champion's earnings since March 3, 1936.

Wheaton Beats North Central in Freshman Game

Wheaton college freshmen defeated North Central's first year team, 22 to 8, yesterday at Naperville. Wheaton scored two touchdowns in the third quarter, one in the fourth, and a safety in the first half. North Central made a touchdown in the second quarter and a safety in the final period.

Trailerites, who will soon be launching their winter travel season, would be regulated for their own safety and for the safety of other users of the highway under a set of rules advocated by the American Association of Motor Vehicle administrators. The picture is of a 1938 Palace Travel Coach.

Willys Retains Characteristics

This is the 1938 Willys, retaining style characteristics that enabled this company to return to the automobile market in 1937.

ACCIDENT TOLL IS HEAVIEST IN AUTUMN SEASON

Motorists Warned to Be Alert for Hazards.

Autumn is the season of the highest automobile accident rate. October and November are usually the months of heaviest fatalities on the streets and highways. Last year, with a late winter, the heavy accident rate continued into December.

"The seasonal loss of daylight accounts for the seasonal increase in accidents," said Sidney Williams, a director of the National Safety council. "The big jump in deaths and personal injuries is in the first hours of darkness, hours that are day in September and night in November."

Standard Time Causes Change.

The big and sudden change in light conditions was two weeks ago, when clocks were moved back an hour in the switch from daylight saving time to standard time. Motorists in the evening rush hours, driving at speeds habitual during daylight saving time, were driving too fast for their visibility at the same hours under standard time.

Leaves on pavements contribute a bit to the seasonal hazards. When wet they are as slippery as snow. And in a drift of leaves a dry exterior frequently hides a wet interior. The leaves will maintain moisture after the adjacent pavement has dried.

Smoke Causes Accident.

In residential districts the smoke from burning leaves occasionally causes an accident. A pedestrian will be hidden by the smoke or two cars headed toward each other will be veiled from each other.

As autumn advances fogs become more common. Special lights are a little help, but there are no lamps that can whip this menace to all forms of transportation.

"The point," said Mr. Williams, "is that motorists should be aware of the special hazard at this time of the year. An alertness to danger will reduce the risk."

P. M. C. IN TIE.

Chester, Pa., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Pennsylvania Military college upset St. Joseph's college from Philadelphia today by holding it to a scoreless tie. In the last quarter Donnenberg crossed the P. M. C. goal, but the score was voided by an offside penalty.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

DIM YOUR LIGHTS.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—Illinois has a state highway law regarding night driving, which reads that motorists must dim lights to oncoming cars. To all appearances this law is just another one in the books and that its observance is a matter of courtesy and little more.

Must the careful and law-abiding drivers suffer any longer or will it take a few disastrous accidents, as a result of blinding headlights, to bring about statewide enforcement? Many accidents occur yearly which are directly or indirectly attributable to the glare of oncoming bright lights.

On a recent automobile trip through Wisconsin I found the average driver to be more considerate on dimming than the average Illinois motorist. However, truck drivers in both states were very considerate as they realize they thereby make driving more pleasant for themselves and the other fellow.

Let's put on a drive to make the other motorist at least observe the law and lower the number of accidents and fatalities that occur yearly on our state highways.

THOMAS J. MCCALL.

TRI-STATE HIGHWAY BOOSTER.

Clarendon Hills, Ill., Aug. 30.—In your SUNDAY TRIBUNE I was pleased to find such a nice map of the new Tri-State highway because I can copy it and send it to my many friends who intend to use it when coming out west of Chicago. I was both amused and aggravated at the remarks your Mr. Hal Foust made in regards to it. We of the western suburbs feel and know that Mr. Kingery's statement to give the road a chance to become introduced to the public before you call it a "costly project little used" is one worth considering.

Driving along the highway today I read signs such as "Travel at your own risk," "Road under construction," etc., so how can the public feel it is in perfect condition? Just wait and see.

JOHN BAUER.

ROAD HOG.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—At 7 o'clock tonight a car with license 704-829 [issued to William J. Eberline, 6433 Greenwood avenue], was being driven slowly in the inner lane of wide Roosevelt road, just east of Butterfield road. The driver refused to move to the right lane so overtaking automobiles could pass. I had hoped that THE TRIBUNE's recent courtesy campaign had removed this type of pest from the highway.

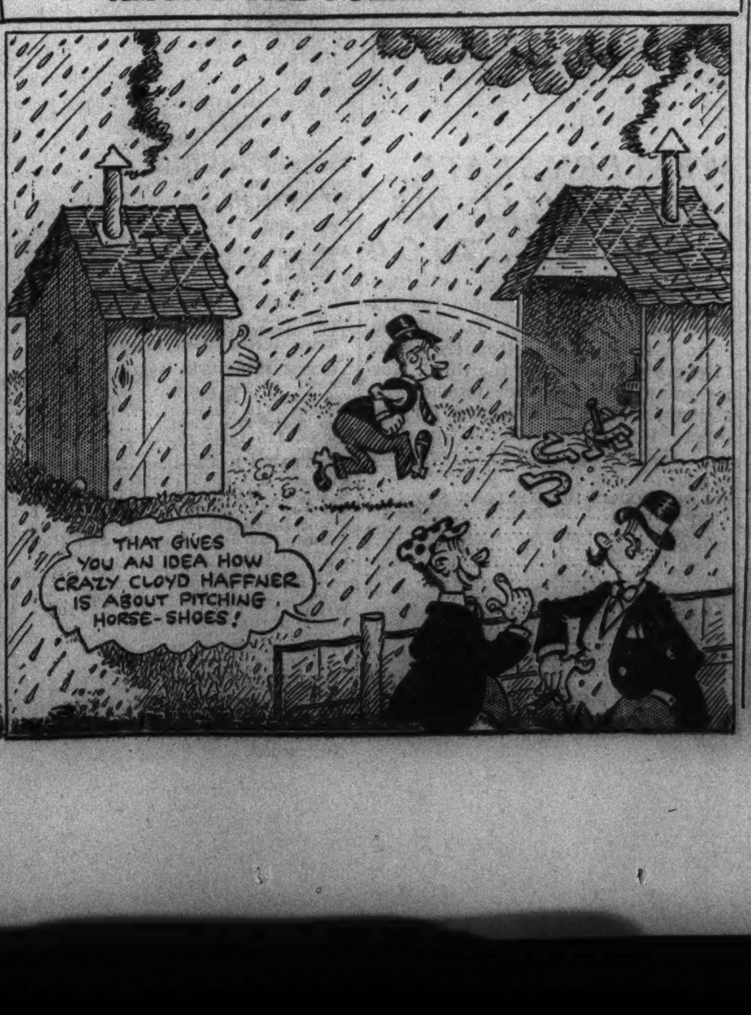
AMONG THE FOLKS IN HISTORY



URGE UNIFORM REGULATIONS FOR TRAILER COACHES

BY HAL FOUST.

A uniform regulation of trailer coaches is advocated by the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators. At its recent annual convention in Cincinnati, O., the association drafted a set of safety rules for the rolling cabins which it is proposing for adoption throughout the United States.

In a few weeks the winter touring season will return to the highways the thousands of towed homes that were seen on the roads in the last three winters. Statutory control of this equipment is as important to other users of the public pavements as it is to the trailer owners themselves.

Popularity Ahead of Design.

The popularity of trailers developed faster than their mechanical designs. A large number of the cabins, probably a majority of them on the road last year, lacked brakes. Hitches with the towing car are sometimes insecure. Lights, stop and turn signals, and rear vision mirrors were often lacking.

A maximum legal speed of 45 miles an hour for a trailer coach was recommended by the motor vehicle administrators. Maximum dimensions under the proposed rules would be 80 inches wide, 108 inches high, and 33 feet long, including the towing automobile.

Brakes would be required on coaches weighing more than 1,500 pounds. They would also be required on trailers of less than 1,500 pounds if the trailer weighs more than 50 per cent of the weight of the towing car. Braking efficiency would be tested by performances, just as Chicago now tests single vehicles.

Must Have Truck Equipment.

The tourist trailer would be required to carry the same stop light, license plate illumination, and clearance lights as are required of truck trailers. In states such as Illinois requiring large trucks to have a mechanical or electrical signal for indicating intention to turn, the same requirement would be made of tour trailers so constructed that a hand signal would be inadequate.

Two rear view mirrors would be required, one on each side of the towing car. In addition to a coupling device of specifications being formulated by the Society of Automotive Engineers, the motor vehicle administrators would also demand an auxliary or emergency hitch consisting of a chain or metal cable.

The committee which drafted these rules further recommended that the motor vehicle administrators familiarize themselves with sanitary regulations for trailers and that they cooperate with health and welfare authorities in the enforcement.

The members of this committee included officials of states where the trailer problem has become most acute. The chairman was Ray Ingels of California. The other members were: Thomas H. Long, Florida; John D. Bingaman, New Mexico; Frank Carney, Michigan, and Arthur W. Magee, New Jersey.

NEWS AND VIEWS

A story and picture of the 1938 Dodge appears in the financial section of today's paper.

Willys-Overland Motors, Inc., announces a schedule to produce 125,000 of its 1938 models which are now on display in dealer show rooms. This output would double the total production of the 1937 model which returned this company into the automobile business.

The appearance of the 1938 model is similar to its immediate predecessor. The sedans include a standard, a de luxe and a new custom type. The coupes include a standard, a de luxe and an economy type. High economy in gasoline consumption is claimed for the Willys.

Seriously bidding for a share of the American market, the Italian Fiat enters the American motor car picture for 1938 with the largest exhibit ever placed in the National Automobile show by a foreign manufacturer.

Pace maker of Fiat's three "Riviera styled" lines is a car which will sell in this country for less than $600 and is said to give gasoline mileage of better than 47 miles to the gallon.

The "500" is available in two body styles, the standard coupe with all-metal body construction and the cabriolet. The latter model has a one-finger sliding top, a feature unique to America, incorporating a new and foolproof principle in convertible top adjustment.

Larger Fiat cars are the Balilla and the "1500" which also feature the European ideal of gasoline economy.

Plymouth's tenth anniversary jubilee opened last week with an advance showing of new models for 1938, staged behind guarded doors in the Sherman hotel. The local meeting was one of 35 Plymouth previews scheduled in important centers throughout the country.

More than 2,100 Plymouth dealers and salesmen from all over Illinois cheered the unveiling of the new birthday model, which climaxes the company's first decade of building automobiles. Details of the new Plymouth will be announced publicly some time this month, according to H. C. Wilson, who acted as master of ceremonies at the preview meeting in Chicago.

The world's first automobiles utilizing what is being called a conditioned air system for winter driving were previewed in Chicago Thursday by Nash dealers and salesmen. More than 600 attended the meeting, which was held at the Eighth Street theater. The public will learn of the cars this month.

STOCKS' SLUMP CUTS 10 BILLION FROM VALUES

Starts Controversies on Business Trend.

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—New York stock values have shrunk about 10 billion dollars in the last two months and provoked some of the liveliest controversy in recent years over the course of business recovery. No such abrupt shrinkage has been experienced since 1931.

The total quoted value of listed shares as calculated by the stock exchange as of Oct. 1 at $49,034,000,000 showed cancellation of the gains since May of 1936. The drop has been sharp enough to renew the dispute over the stock market's ability to forecast economic trends.

Offers Many Explanations.

Wall street's explanations for the slump in stocks are many and varied. Among them are:

1. While business volume in the aggregate remains large, there has been a pronounced falling off in such lines as steel, cotton textile production, and residential building to levels well under a year ago.

2. Although corporate earnings for the first nine months of the year are estimated the largest since 1929, profit margins have lately shown a definite tendency to narrow, what with higher wage and material costs.

3. Washington's efforts in the last year to shut off "inflationary steam" through higher bank reserves and stock margin requirements, and curtailment of "pump priming" expenditures, have cooled some of the rampant bullishness so evident earlier this year.

SEC Disturbs Market.

4. Security and Exchange commission restrictions on speculation have curtailed the activity of professional traders, so that the market has absorbed selling less readily than in the past. In other words, stocks would drop several points on comparatively light selling. Whether this had any fundamental effect other than to make the decline rather precipitous is a moot point.

5. War "scares" probably contributed to the general uneasiness, although the market's response to war talk appears to be subject to the state of sentiment at the time. Not infrequently in the past it has promoted buying of metals and other issues which might benefit from demand for war materials.

In addition to these outstanding points mentioned by market analysis a good deal is being said as to whether the market did not get too high last spring. The rise in the stock market from March, 1935, to March, 1937, was about as steady and persistent as anything that can be found in stock market history.

Business Had Been Gaining.

Business had been improving fairly steadily, with consumer's goods lines feeling the effects of heavy sluicing of government funds into buying channels, including the payment of over $1,000,000,000 in the soldier bonus in the summer of 1936.

Late last year there was a good deal of talk among Washington and Wall street authorities of the need of curbing "boom" psychology to prevent excessive speculation. In the meantime heavy buying of American securities was coming in from Europeans who were disturbed about the outlook at home. The "bull" wave seemed to reach a climax last spring with heavy speculation in London in shares and such commodities as copper inspired by announcement of the big British rearmament program.

Between March and July prices slid off gradually. By late summer Wall street turned to the belief, for one reason and another, that the long bull festival was ended for a time and the last eight weeks of sharply declining prices have been the result.

Any consideration of the meaning of the slump, experts say, should take into consideration that big crops, higher wages, and large business volumes of the last year have provided the biggest base of public buying power in years.

Chain Store Sales Higher.

A tabulation of September sales of thirty large chain store and mail order houses shows a gain of 7.6 per cent over that month a year ago, compared with only 3.7 per cent in August. This gain is, of course, influenced to a considerable extent by higher prices.

A decline in commodity prices such as has occurred in many staples in the last few months, notably cotton and copper, tends to slow business for a time as buyers wait to see how far the decline will go before buying. This is the opposite of the tendency when prices are rising. Then buyers

BANKS, MARKETS TO CLOSE TUESDAY

Chicago banks, security markets, and commodity markets will be closed Tuesday in observance of Columbus day. The New York Stock exchange and other leading commodity and security markets of the nation also will observe the holiday. Business will be transacted as usual at the Chicago stockyards. Outside of continental United States the big European and commodity markets will remain open. The Winnipeg grain market also will be open, but the Buenos Aires grain market will be closed. All Canadian markets will be closed tomorrow in observance of the dominion Thanksgiving day.

Cotton Exported to Five Leading Countries During the Last Five Years

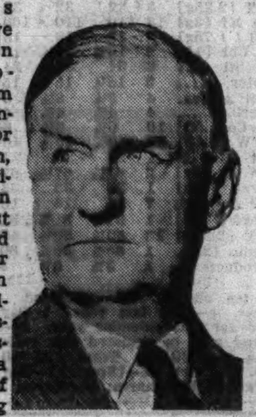
Many Leaders in Committee for Nation Quit

A check-up yesterday disclosed that many prominent industrialists and business men have withdrawn their support from the Committee for the Nation, the organization which last week urged a further devaluation of the dollar to President Roosevelt as a means of checking the decline in prices.



Gen. Robert E. Wood.

The committee once boasted an impressive list of backers which included some of the country's leading manufacturers and corporation executives.

Gen. Robert E. Wood, president, and Lessing Rosenwald, chairman, of Sears Roebuck & Co., are two of the early supporters who have severed all connection with the organization.

Wrigley's Withdrawal Reported.

P. K. Wrigley, president of the William Wrigley Jr. company, is another Chicagoan who no longer is associated with the group, according to his associates.

Confirmation of the withdrawal of support by many former backers was obtained from Dr. E. A. Rumely, secretary of the organization, who was reached at the organization's headquarters in New York.

Rumely said he is making a canvass of former sponsors who wish to renew their support and their names will be made public in ten days. He said he could not make public the names of any of the present backers. Among those who have withdrawn, he mentioned Gen. Wood, Rosenwald, Wrigley, and Vincent Bendix, president of the Bendix Aviation corporation.

Telegram Comes as Surprise.

The telegram sent to President Roosevelt last week came as a surprise to many individuals formerly identified with the committee, some of whom thought the organization was moribund.

Gen. Wood was emphatic in disavowing any connection with the group. He said he withdrew last year and did not know that the committee was still functioning.

The committee recommended to the President that he exercise his statutory power to increase the price of gold from $35 to $41.34 an ounce. This would mean devaluation to 50 per cent of the old gold parity. The Roosevelt devaluation of 1934, fixing the price of gold at $35 an ounce, reduced the dollar to 59.06 per cent of its former parity. The President retained the authority to raise the gold price to $41.34, double the pre-devaluation price.

I. C. C. REOPENS CASE ON CONTROL OF RAIL DELIVERY SERVICE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Scott Brothers case, in which division 5 of the interstate commerce commission decided that the commission has jurisdiction over railroad pickup and delivery service under the motor carrier act, was reopened by the commission for reargument in an order issued today. A hearing was set for Nov. 12 in Washington.

Decision to reopen the case, on which depends whether many thousand small truck operators will be subject to federal regulation, was based on petitions for reconsideration filed by the merchant truckmen's bureau of New York, Cartage Exchange of Chicago, and the western railroads.

The difficulty faced by the commission in deciding the case, which involves the question of whether railroad pickup and delivery services are a continuation of railroad service or something apart from rail activity, was emphasized by the disagreement of all the three petitions on the questions to be decided.

The Cartage Exchange of Chicago held that Scott Brothers is a common carrier like the railroads and must get a permit under the motor carrier act, and differed with the reasoning of both the majority and dissenting opinions of division 5.

U. S. STEEL SHIPS LOWER TONNAGE IN SEPTEMBER

September shipments of finished products by the United States Steel corporation totaled 1,047,862 tons, the company announced yesterday. This compared with shipments of 1,107,858 tons in August and 961,803 tons in September, 1936. Shipments in September, 1935, were 614,933 tons.

September shipments were the highest for that month since 1929, when they amounted to 1,145,244 tons. For the first nine months of this year, shipments totaled 10,956,846 tons, compared with 7,867,707 tons in the same period of 1936.

Production during September of 4,301,869 gross tons of open hearth and Bessemer steel ingots brought the total output in the first nine months of the year to 42,498,769 gross tons, the American Iron & Steel institute announced. September output was 12 per cent below August, when 4,875,671 gross tons were produced.

The total for the nine-month period exceeded by nearly 27 per cent the output of 33,526,142 tons in the corresponding period of 1936, but failed to equal by 2 per cent the total of 43,353,830 tons produced in the first nine months of 1929.

BANKS' STOCKS FALL SHARPLY IN LAST WEEK

Chicago bank stocks were erratic during the last week and closed sharply lower. Continental Illinois stock opened at 112, reacted to a low of 97, and closed at 100 bid and 102 asked, off 12 points. First National ranged between high sales of 252 and a low of 228, closing at 238 bid, 324 asked, a net loss of 14 points.

Northern Trust lost 25 points and Harris Trust 15 points. Merchandise National also dipped 25 points. Chicago Title and Trust sold off to a low of 140 and closed at 140 bid, 144 asked, off 14 points for the week. City National lost 10 points, Lake Shore Trust 5, and Terminal National 1 point.

Seamen to Get Bonus for Trips to War Zone

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—The National Maritime union today announced the signing of an agreement with the Socony-Vacuum Oil company providing that unlicensed employés of the company's oil tankers will receive a $5 a month bonus if the ships enter the Spanish war zone. Heating Firm Shows Gain in 1937 Earnings

The Trane company and its Canadian subsidiary, manufacturers of heating equipment, yesterday reported profit for nine months ended Sept. 30 of $394,733, equal, after preferred dividends, to $1.51 a common share, a gain of 36 per cent over the $288,984, or $1.09 a share on the present capitalization, earned in the corresponding 1936 period.

Sales for the nine months were $3,010,378, against $2,022,568 in the like 1936 period, an increase of 49 per cent. Reuben N. Trane, president, predicted that shipments during the remainder of this year will be heavy, due to the fact that unfilled business "still remains very large."

Railroads Report Results.

The Northern Pacific railroad earned $115,917 in August, against $300,103 in the like 1936 month. Loss for the first eight months of this year, however, decreased to $2,877,381 from the $5,172,097 loss in the corresponding 1936 period.

The Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad reported loss of $47,939 in August, compared with net income of $52,966 in the same 1936 month. The road had net income of $53,652, equal to 21 cents a common share, in the first eight months of this year, against loss of $200,870 in the corresponding period a year ago.

The New York, Ontario and Western railroad lost $161,846 in August, against loss of $12,041 in the same month last year. Loss for the first eight months of this year was $930,849, compared with loss of $80,458 in the corresponding 1936 period.

Copper Concern Earns More.

Roan Antelope Copper Mines, Ltd., a leading foreign producer, reported profit for year ended June 30 of £1,333,808 [about $6,607,250], against profit of £410,987 [about $1,825,926] in the preceding year.

The New York Telephone company, controled by the American Telephone and Telegraph company, had gross revenues of $16,509,911 and net operating income of $2,154,013 in August, against gross of $15,699,131 and net operating income of $2,637,051 in the same 1936 month. In the first eight months of this year gross revenues totaled $138,285,410 and net operating income was $24,427,304, compared with revenues of $131,177,743 and net operating income of $24,424,591 in the corresponding 1936 period.

National Oats Earns Less.

The National Oats company, St. Louis, estimated consolidated net profit for nine months ended Sept. 30 at approximately $61,000, or 61 cents a common share, compared with profit of $168,439, or $1.68 a share, in the corresponding 1936 period.

RCA Communications, Inc., subsidiary of Radio Corporation of America, earned $84,491 in August, compared with $38,480 in the like 1936 month. Net income for the first eight months of 1937 was $722,028, against $175,837 in the same 1936 period.

The net asset value of the preferred stock of the Chicago corporation, an investment company, declined to $65.24 a share as of Sept. 30, from $70.25 a month before and $79.25 on Dec. 31, 1936. The drop was attributed to the general fall in security prices.

SHARE MARKET MOVES NARROW; LEADERS FIRMER

Prices Stiffen After Early Irregularity.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 9.—Stocks moved within a narrow range today but managed to record slight gains in the more prominent issues. Less active shares also held their own. Trading was light at 488,980 shares, against 285,220 shares a week ago.

The list as a whole avoided the sinking spells to which it was subject yesterday. Atchison was one exception, breaking through to another new low for the year at 48¼, and closing at 48⅜, off 1½, as pressure on the issue continued. Other rails, however, found ready buyers.

Steels and motors showed minor changes, but mostly for the better. There was steady improvement through the session, as opening transactions had displayed considerable irregularity.

Steels Recover Early Losses.

United States Steel was off ¼ point on an opening deal of only 1,500 shares, but gained momentum and realized a net gain of ¾ point for the day. Other steels followed a similar course. Bethlehem advanced ⅞ and Republic gained ⅝. American Smelting was ⅞ lower at the opening, but closed ⅛ higher at 62 after touching 63.

Even in the higher priced specialties overnight changes were measured by fractions. J. I. Case, for example, sold off ¾ early, but picked up a 1 point gain by the close.

Douglas Aircraft made an impressive showing between 38⅛ and 39⅞, closing at its best level for an advance of 2 points. Western Union sold at 32, up 1 point.

Chief Motor Shares Advance.

Some of the coppers and retail merchandising issues sold slightly lower. International Nickel receded 1 point.

In the motor sector, Chrysler pushed ahead 1⅛ and General Motors gained ⅝, but Packard ran contrary to the trend with a fractional loss.

Standard Oil of New Jersey was freely supplied early and ran into some trouble, but support developed with the result that the day's loss was only negligible.

Traders and brokers alike expressed the opinion that the market is in an oversold position and that a technical rally is to be expected.

Amsterdam Market Lower.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Stocks again closed lower on the Amsterdam bourse today despite a mid-morning rally which erased part of the losses incurred at the opening. The list was depressed by the weakness late Friday in Wall street, traders said. Domestic issues were off as much as 11 guilders—about $6—a share. Most other European security markets, including the big London and Paris exchanges, are still closed on Saturdays.

LIFE INSURANCE MEETINGS WILL OPEN TOMORROW

Representatives of 141 life insurance companies from thirty-eight states, the District of Columbia, and three Canadian provinces will attend the four day American Life convention starting tomorrow at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

The legal section will meet tomorrow. On Tuesday the legal, financial, and industrial sections will meet. The annual meeting of the group, the general session, and the executive session are scheduled for Wednesday. On Thursday the conferences will be completed by another general session and the annual dinner-dance in the evening.

Among the speakers before the financial section will be Dr. Melchior Palyi, University of Chicago economist, who will talk on "International Monetary Conditions," and Donald D. Conn, Chicago, executive vice president of the Transportation Association of America, who will speak on "The Transportation Crisis from a Public Viewpoint."

FEDERAL AID REQUESTED FOR POTATO MARKET

Delegates attending the eight-state potato conference here yesterday asked the government to divert from commercial channels an amount of potatoes from this year's surplus crop sufficient to maintain the purchasing power of producers.

As an immediate measure, the delegates recommended that a program for diverting potatoes to live stock feed to be made available for all areas in the late potato producing sections which desire it.

The action came at the close of a three day conference of growers, shippers, and state extension service and department of agriculture officials, called by Secretary Wallace to discuss problems created by this year's surplus.

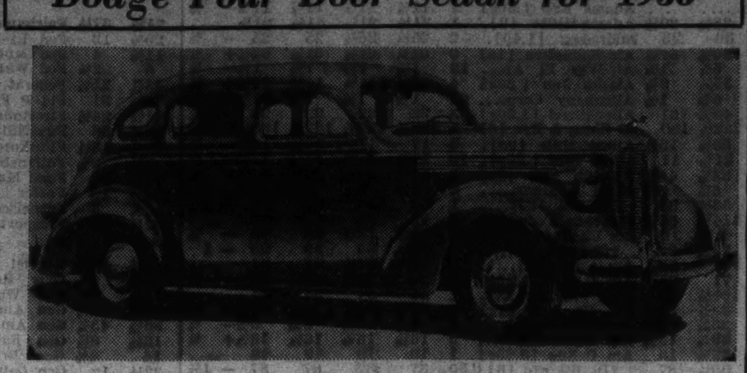
Dodge Four Door Sedan for 1938



This is the 1938 Dodge, which the company, in its first announcement today, says has forty-seven improvements over its immediate predecessor. Some of these changes, those affecting appearance, may be noted in the picture. This is the four door sedan.

Dodge Offers 1938 Auto to Public Today

BY HAL FOUST.

The 1938 Dodge car is entering the motor market today with the company announcing that the new models incorporate 47 improvements affecting appearance, comfort and performance.

The changes are refinements in the power plant, transmission, brakes, steering machanism, clutch, wheels and other vital components. There are no radical innovations.

Chief Changes Listed.

New also are hood louvres, fenders and their mountings, windshield, instrument panel, seat adjustment, head lamps, door and luggage compartment locks, brake drums, engine impulse neutralizer, muffler, clutch facings, clutch baffle and release bearings, generator and interior treatment.

This itemization may seem a bit bewildering. However, the 1938 Dodge still is a conventional automobile, with every detail subjected to engineering research for betterments.

Other Improvements Made.

The diameter of brake drums has been increased from 10 to 11 inches. A new type of compression ring is used in the pistons. The engine mounting is new. Several improvements have been made in the clutch. Exhaust noises have been suppressed. Body insulation against sound has been perfected. Less pressure is required to operate the starting pedal.

That's the 1938 Dodge—an assembly of improved parts.

SEVERAL FIRMS REPORT LARGER SALES THIS YEAR

Safeway Stores yesterday reported sales for the four weeks ended Oct. 2 amounted to $31,683,983, compared with sales of $28,180,768 in the corresponding weeks of 1936, an increase of 12.4 per cent. Sales for the 40 weeks ended Oct. 2 totaled $293,288,700, against $258,618,005 in the same period last year.

Remington Rand had September sales of $4,100,000, an increase of 12 per cent over sales of $3,600,000 in September, 1936. Sales for the 12 months ended Sept. 30 amounted to $51,000,000, an increase of 18 per cent over sales of $43,457,000 in the preceding 12 month period.

September sales of $1,204,132 were reported by the Schiff company, compared with sales of $1,031,982 in September 1936, an increase of 16.6 per cent. Sales for the nine months ended Sept. 30 amounted to $9,498,217, against $8,929,134 in the corresponding period a year ago, an increase of 6.3 per cent.

WURLITZER HAS PLAN TO CLEAR ALL ARREARAGE

Preferred stockholders of the Rudolph Wurlitzer company, Cincinnati, O., musical instrument makers, yesterday received a plan for the clearing of arrearages of the 7 per cent preferred stock amounting to $36.75 a share as of Oct. 1.

Directors proposed offering $6.75 cash and one and one-half share of common stock in lieu of the total accumulations in cash. The method is intended to conserve the company's cash. Directors will meet on Nov. 1 to declare the dividends, provided a sufficient percentage of preferred stockholders has agreed to the plan.

Celotex Buys Control of American Gypsum Co.

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—The Celotex corporation has purchased a controling interest in the American Gypsum company, with a plant at Port Clinton, O., for an undisclosed cash sum. On July 31 American Gypsum had total assets of $1,059,000 and current assets of $316,000.

AUTO INDUSTRY PUTS MANY MORE MILLIONS IN RECOVERY DRIVE

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The motorcar industry, which many of its leaders have long regarded as the major factor in the restoration of industrial prosperity, has invested another $150,000,000 in its campaign to make 1938 a year of wider distribution and larger profit.

The figure is an approximation of the amount invested in the installation of new tools and other commitments incident to the preparation of new models, almost the sole topic of discussion in automotive manufacturing and merchandising circles at the moment.

General Motors, Ford, and Chrysler, as the three leading volume producers head the group of manufacturers whose present commitments are aimed at a volume of business next year that they hope will have a wholesale value of more than 3 billion dollars. Conceding that a major part of this sum will go back into wages and raw material purchases, the majority of the producers expect operations to be on a slightly better profit level in 1938 because of increases in retail unit prices.

The millions involved in blue printing, tooling, and producing a new model motor vehicle to be assembled to the extent of probably more than 5,000,000 units next year do not take into account the additional millions the industry continues to spend in plant expansion.

ILLINOIS' NEW OIL FIELD SHOWS LARGE GROWTH

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Theron Wasson, chief geologist of the Pure Oil company, Chicago, announced today that the new Illinois oil fields now cover an area of about 1,800 square miles in Wayne, Clay, Richland, Jasper, and Cumberland counties.

Speaking at the closing session of the fifth annual Illinois mineral industries conference, Wasson discussed for the first time the bed rock structures responsible for accumulation of oil in that part of the state where his company has leased 250,000 acres. He said the structure is a long arch in the earth's crust, located after nine years of geological studies.

Alfred H. Bell of the state geological survey said seven new fields had increased Illinois petroleum output 120 per cent over 1936 and probably would reach 1,000,000 barrels a month by the end of December. He said there were 117 producing wells in the new fields and 50 more were being drilled, some as deep as 4,000 feet.

TRADE CHAMBER TO STUDY HOME BUILDING LETUP

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—(AP)—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States said today it would call a "building industry conference" soon to learn why residential construction is slowing down, and to find methods for stimulating this building.

George H. Davis, the chamber president, said an increase in private residential construction "must depend upon private enterprise."

"At the beginning of 1937," he said, "it was the general opinion that there would be an increase this year of 50 to 60 per cent. In the last few months, however, the rate of increase has materially slackened so that it now appears that the increase will scarcely be more than half of that predicted."

Davis said the government's slum clearance program "at most can provide only a small fraction of the total dwellings required." He set government building at 35,000 to 40,000 units annually for the next three years compared with total annual requirements of "several hundred thousand."

EGG PRICES SINK IN SCRAMBLE TO DUMP HOLDINGS

Heavy Receipts, Big Stocks Factors.

Successive waves of selling attributed to distress liquidation yesterday carried egg prices down 1 to 1⅛ cents a dozen to new low ground for the year or longer on the Chicago Mercantile exchange. Trading totaled 8,340,000 dozens, an unusually heavy volume for Saturday.

The break climaxed heavy selling in progress all week as a result of large receipts at leading markets, heavy storage holdings, small demand in important wholesale markets, and weakness in other commodities. The decline in prices forced some heavily margined traders to offer contracts at almost any price, it was reported.

Close at Lowest Level.

All contracts closed at the low marks of the day, with October eggs off 1⅛ cents at 18⅞ cents a dozen, November eggs 1 cent lower at 19 cents, and December eggs 1 cent lower at 19¼ cents. The price of the November delivery was a new low since 1933.

Traders described the session as the wildest for any Saturday in recent years. A lower opening was followed by an outbreak of heavy selling. Prices improved in mid-session, only to receive another jolt at the close.

Losses for the week amounted to as much as $375 a carlot of 12,000 dozens. The October contract closed eight cents a dozen, or $960 a carlot, under the pea kprice for the year, and $660 a carlot under a year ago. In the last 10 days 59,376,000 dozens have been traded.

Cash Egg Prices Lower.

Cash egg prices were ¼ to ½ cent a dozen lower on the day. Chicago receipts were only 400 cases heavier than a year ago, but New York arrivals increased about 7,000 cases.

Butter futures also tumbled again. November contracts closed ¾ cent lower at 33 cents a pound after touching 32⅞ cents, lowest level since Aug. 10. December contracts also closed at 33 cents a pound, off ⅝ cent. Cash butter was unchanged to ½ cent a pound lower for standards.

JAEGER MACHINE VOTES $1.25 ON COMMON SHARES

Directors of Jaeger Machine company, Columbus, O., manufacturer of pumps and road building machinery, yesterday declared a dividend of $1.25 on the common stock of the company. Previously this year the company paid dividends of 25 cents each in March, June, and September.

Schwitzer-Cummins, pump and automotive parts maker, declared a dividend of 37½ cents on its capital stock. Previously quarterly payments of 25 cents each were made.

Dividends declared yesterday, with rate, period, and payment and record dates, follow:

Am Invest Ill, pfd, 50c q....	Nov 1	Oct 20
Bullock Fund, 30c q..........	Nov 1	Oct 15
DistCorp-Sgrams, pf, $1.25 q.	Nov 1	Oct 20

Kress, S H, 40c q............	Nov 1	Oct 20
Schwitzer-Cummins, 37½c ...	Nov 1	Oct 20

In the table, the letter "q" refers to regular quarterly dividends.

INDUSTRY INDEX NEAR LOWEST LEVEL OF YEAR

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Industrial activity declined sharply this week to within a fraction of the year's low in the widest break since 1934. The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index slumped 2.8 points to 99.2 per cent of the 1929-'30 average. The latest figure was only slightly above the corresponding level a year ago, 96.2.

The index, with its seasonally adjusted components based on 1929-'30 as 100, compared as follows:

WHEAT RALLIES FROM DECLINE; CORN IS LOWER

Sharp Rise in Liverpool Bolsters Prices.

CHICAGO GRAIN FUTURES

Closing prices on the December delivery of principal grains on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday:

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Year ago.
Wheat	$1.00½	$ .99½	$1.16¾
Corn	.58⅝	.59¼	.95⅜
Oats	.29⅛	.29¼	.41⅞
Rye	.74⅝	.73⅝	.82⅜
Soy beans	.93½	.92⅝	1.26½

The downward movement in wheat futures which had been under way for the last week came to a halt yesterday and prices in leading markets advanced about a cent a bushel.

Corn, however, after an early period of firmness, declined nearly 1¼ cents from the top figure into new low ground for the season, the December delivery touching 58⅝ cents at the extreme, with the close ⅛ to ½ cent a bushel lower. Rye and soy beans were as much as 1 cent a bushel higher.

There was a marked shrinkage in the heavy liquidating sales of wheat futures so much in evidence earlier in the week, and houses with cash and export connections were fair buyers.

Wheat Rises in Liverpool.

Part of yesterday's strength was a reflection of an unexpected upturn of ⅝ to 1⅜ cents in the Liverpool market, which ignored the weakness in North American markets late Friday. An advance of 3 cents a bushel in the asking price for Russian wheat following sales of approximately 1,000,000 bushels to Switzerland led to short covering in the English market.

Only scattered export business was reported yesterday in American hard winter wheat, but sales of 750,000 bushels of Canadian grain were reported. Winnipeg showed more strength than American markets. Buenos Aires closed ⅝ cent a bushel higher.

Eastern Kansas Gets Rain.

Eastern Kansas received good rains overnight, but the western part of that state, which is suffering severely from drouth, received little precipitation. However, the trade assumed that the outlook for the new wheat crop in that state and in Oklahoma had been improved and the July delivery in Chicago showed a relatively weak undertone.

The late weakness in corn futures was attributed by pit brokers to selling by several commission houses which disclosed a lack of aggressive support. Cash corn prices declined 1 to 3 cents a bushel, although country offerings for deferred shipment were smaller. Rains over Illinois, Iowa, and Missouri were expected to delay the movement. Some American rye was reported to have been sold for export.

STOCKS' SLUMP CUTS 10 BILLION FROM VALUES

Stirs Controversy Over Business Trend.

rush to buy before prices go higher.

Whether the adjustments now occurring will be accomplished without serious affect on general business volumes remains to be seen, but observers say preparations are steadily going forward for active sales in coming months. Although there has been a lull in building, analyses mention a huge accumulated demand for durable goods which has not been filled in a recovery program chiefly designed to rebuild purchasing power for everyday requirements.

More Credit Will Be Needed.

Replenishing of durable goods such as homes, industrial plants, and buildings will require growing use of credit and capital by industry. Withdrawal of the government from the capital markets, where it has been borrowing billions, may help, if present discussions of balancing the budget by the 1938-'39 fiscal year bear fruit.

In the last five years little more than $3,000,000,000 of new corporation capital has been provided, compared with $28,000,000,000 in the five years ended with 1929. However, the treasury has borrowed close to $20,000,000,000.

Bankers have been urging a balanced budget to restore "confidence" in long term investments and thus make a good capital market for business. Economists point out transition to a balanced budget stage is something of an undertaking, tending to remove stimulating effects of government spending and to curtail national income through increased taxes. Yet it has been hoped this could be accomplished in a period of expanding business without important serious reactions. How much progress will be made toward balancing the budget will depend upon what congress does next year with taxes and appropriations.

STOCK EXCHANGE BROADENS PROBE OF PRICE BREAK

New York, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Broadening its inquiry into transactions on the New York Stock exchange during the recent slump, the committee on business conduct of the exchange today called on members for details of sales and purchases of American Telephone and Telegraph, General Motors, New York Central, and Standard Oil Company of New Jersey stocks.

The inquiry will cover the period between Sept. 7, when one of the severest breaks in years occurred, and Sept. 25. Previously the committee had under scrutiny transactions in United States Steel common.

Master Approves $120,450 Fees in Hotels Receivership

Master in Chancery Jacob Grossman of federal court yesterday filed a report with Judge James H. Wilkerson approving fees of $120,450 in the receivership of the Hotel Sherman and the Ambassador East hotel. The lawyers and others associated with the 77-B receivership asked a total of $200,000. Master Grossman's report showed that nineteen individuals and firms will share in the fees. Winston, Strawn & Shaw, law firm, are on the report for the largest amount, [illegible]. The report will come up tomorrow for Judge Wilkerson's approval.

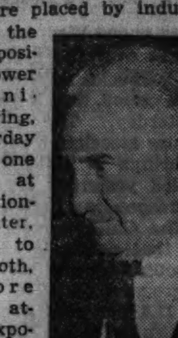
ESTIMATE SALES IN POWER SHOW AT 10 MILLIONS

Electricity Does Tricks at Demonstration.

More than 10 million dollars worth of orders were placed by industrial buyers at the Chicago Exposition of Power and Mechanical Engineering, which yesterday ended a one week stand at the International amphitheater, according to Charles F. Roth, manager. More than 50,000 attended the exposition, Chicago's first power show.



Dr. Phillips Thomas, research engineer.

The 153 exhibitors from 31 states were virtually unanimous in calling the venture a technical and business success. Many expressed the hope that the exposition would be continued in Chicago as a biennial event. Roth, representing the International Exposition company of New York, which directed the power show, said a decision on future shows would be made later. New York City has had a biannual power show for a number of years.

Lecture Is Highlight.

One of the highlights of the show was a demonstration lecture Thursday night by Dr. Phillips Thomas, research engineer of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, who explained and demonstrated "Adventures in Electricity" to 500 engineers and chemists.

The meeting was sponsored by the American Society of Mechanical Engineering, Western Society of Engineers, Chicago Chemists club, and American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

Water ran uphill, bullets were stopped in flight, a one pound magnet lifted 20 pounds, and electric lights were blown out by a man's breath, as Dr. Thomas put his $10,000 worth of equipment through its paces.

Shows Magnetic Air Cleaner.

He also demonstrated a newly developed magnetic air filer which purifies air virtually 100 per cent by magnetizing such fine particles as pollen and cigarette smoke, that sift through ordinary mechanical filters. Dr. Thomas used his sample magnetic filter to draw cigarette smoke out of the air, and pointed out its practical application as a relief for asthma and hay fever victims.

By merely blowing on a supersensitive electric plate, Dr. Thomas extinguished all the lights in the room, and then proceeded to turn them on again by striking a match which dried the moisture on the plate deposited by his breath. He said this principle ultimately may be used to eliminate light switches.

Magnet Made in Japan.

With a one pound magnet, made of an aluminum nickel alloy as brittle as glass, Dr. Thomas lifted a 20 pound block of steel. The magnetic alloy, developed in Japan, will retain its magnetic properties almost indefinitly, he said.

Using a miniature camera with a rubber ball as bullet, Dr. Thomas fired a light flash from an ignitron gun which let the audience see the bullet, traveling 250 miles an hour, as if it were suspended in midair. This device enables photographers to take "dead stop" pictures of objects moving at high speed.

CHICAGO STOCKS DECLINE IN MORE ACTIVE TRADING

Stocks again moved lower on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday in a fairly active week-end session. Of the seventy-seven issues traded thirty-seven declined, only eleven advanced, and twenty-nine were unchanged. THE TRIBUNE average of twenty stocks closed at 13.89, down, 0.04, after touching 13.83, a new low for the move. A total of 21,000 shares changed hands, compared with 8,000 on the preceding Saturday.

Among the issues losing fractions to 1 point were Borg Warner, Butler Brothers common, Commonwealth Edison, Cord corporation, Swift International, Lion Oil, and Walgreen. Zenith Radio, Utah Radio, and Quaker Oats finished with gains.

Issues traded during the week totaled 184 shares, of which 129 declined, 24 advanced, and 31 were unchanged. THE TRIBUNE average of twenty stocks dipped 1.15 during the week.

The volume of trading for the week was 198,000 shares, compared with 193,000 shares last week and 430,000 shares in the corresponding week in 1936.

BUSINESS BITS

E. Hope Norton has been elected president of International Products company, it was announced yesterday. Jonathan S. Raymond, who has been acting president and a director, will leave the company on Oct. 15 to become vice president of the Mellon National bank in Pittsburgh.

E. N. Granquist, who for the last six years has been an assistant cashier in charge of the credit department of Liberty National Bank of Chicago, has been appointed vice president.

P. A. Caswell yesterday announced the formation of Caswell & Co. as successor to Mitten, Caswell & Co., unlisted securities and real estate bond dealers.

The Continental Illinois Bank club will hold its annual golf tournament at Crystal Lake Country club Tuesday, Columbus day.

Joint Ownership—2.

Q.—If a stock now is issued under the husband's name only can the certificate be changed to joint tenancy as above. What is the correct procedure and what are the fees?

A.—Yes. If the security is listed there will be no transfer fee, with a few exceptions. There may be a small transfer tax. In such a case the wise thing to do is to learn the corporation's attitude by writing the transfer agent. Then go to your broker and have him guarantee your signature in making the transfer. Sometimes it is necessary to transfer the stock to a third party, who will transfer it to the joint tenants because of question of the legality of making a transfer from yourself to yourself and another party.

Q.—If there is a child in the family how would this be handled in case of the joint tenants' deaths.

A.—Unless the child also is made a joint tenant along with its father and mother the stock must pass through probate.

In any event, it may be wise in creating a joint tenancy to make out a separate agreement in writing covering the facts of the joint tenancy. This paper should be kept with the stock certificate in case any questions should arise as to the legality of the joint tenancy.

COTTON PRICES MOVE HIGHER ON SHORT COVERING

Report More Liberal Loans Considered.

Cotton prices swept sharply higher yesterday on a report that a more liberal cotton loan policy was being considered by the Agricultural Adjustment administration in an effort to divert a substantial part of this season's cotton crop, which is estimated at 17,573,000 bales, from commercial channels into warehouses. This report and expectation of more stringent control of 1938 production started a short covering movement in futures.

Hedging sales and selling credited to Bombay, India, caused a recession in prices early, but the close was near the top.

Chicago Prices Higher.

Prices on the Chicago Board of Trade showed an advance of 0.18 to 0.31 cent a pound, or 90 cents to $1.55 a bale. Other American markets were 0.16 to 0.26 cent higher.

Announcement was made yesterday that, effective Jan. 1, 1938, the New York Cotton exchange would lower the minimum margin requirements on speculative trades in cotton to 1 cent a pound, or $5 a bale.

Spot cotton closed 0.25 to 0.30 cent higher, with New Orleans at 8 cents, New York 8.30 cents, Galveston 7.75 cents, and Houston 7.80 cents.

STRIKE OF MEAT USERS CUTS LIVE STOCK VALUES

Worth of Animals Still on Farms Slashed.

The strike of kosher butcher shops in New York and the meat boycott that swept the nation last week cost farmers many millions of dollars. It was estimated at the Chicago stockyards yesterday that the aggregate value of animals still on farms shrank more than $350,000,000 as markets for meat and live stock bogged down.

Farmers at the twenty leading markets were paid approximately $32,500,000 for 973,000 cattle, hogs, and sheep. The same number of animals at the preceding week's scale of prices was worth $35,150,000. Full 25,000 pound carloads of top steers declined from $4,975 in the preceding week to $4,625 last week.

Top loads of hogs worth $3,112 at the best time of the preceding week closed at $2,812. Loads of lambs that brought $2,725 previously closed at $2,687.

Hogs and Pork Decline.

Although the boycott and strikes were precipitated by beef prices, the restricted demand affected hogs and pork about as much as it did beef and cattle.

At the close of the week top light pork loins sold to butcher shops in Chicago at $22 per hundred pounds, a decline of $3 during the week. The price was $11 under the 1937 high of three weeks ago and lower than in 1936 and 1935. Final pork quotations were $1 to $2 under a year ago and mostly $4 lower than two years ago, when the processing tax on hogs was in effect.

The week's average hog price at $10.60, lowest since the middle of May, indicated a drop of 80 cents. The top sale at the close at $11.25 was $1.20 under the previous week's high spot.

Eastern Demand Small.

Eastern demand was at low ebb, taking only 12 per cent of the Chicago hog receipts, compared with 16 per cent a week ago, 14 per cent a year ago, and 25 per cent two years ago.

The week's steer average declined $1.25 to $12.65, the lowest since the week ended June 26 and $1.75 under the 1937 high week. Top steers tumbled from $19.90 to $18.50 in eight days. At the close of the week most steers were unevenly 50 cents to $1.50 lower than a week ago. Yearlings were off 50 cents to $1.

Most beef cows and hefers fell 25 to 40 cents, but medium grades of grass hefers were only weak to 25 cents lower, and cheaper grades worth down from $6.50 were slightly higher. An attempt by smaller local butchers to hold down live costs accounted for the strength in these lower priced cattle. Veal calves closed steady, with heavy calves 25 to 50 cents lower.

Lambs Also Lower.

An uneven break of 15 to 45 cents brought the week's lamb average down to $10.25, equaling the lowest since May. Wholesale markets for dressed lamb meat finished steady to 50 cents lower than a week ago and $2 to $3 under a month ago. All meats, except a few cuts of pork, still are selling higher than a year ago, however.

Practically all cattle and hogs received yesterday were billed direct to packers.

REFRIGERATOR SALES TOP 1936.

The Edison Electric institute announced sales of household model electric refrigerators during August totaled 120,543 units against 192,906 in July and 106,975 in August last year. For the eight months sales were 2,019,199 units, against 1,753,632 a year ago.

CLOSING PRICES OF COMMODITIES SHADE HIGHER

Record General Declines in Last Week.

Commodity prices closed slightly higher yesterday, offsetting little of one of their sharpest and broadest setbacks of the year recorded earlier last week. The downturn was caused by general liquidation attributed to concern over lighter industrial demand in recent months.

As measured by the Associated Press index, new low ground for the year was reached by commodity prices on five of the six market days. The Dow-Jones index registered new lows four times and was unchanged at the end of one session. Both indices were higher yesterday.

The Associated Press index lost 2.43 for the week to close at 83.03. The Dow-Jones index fell 3.22 points to 57.07 during the period.

Lose Spring Upturn.

Rubber, silk, hides, cottonseed oil, cotton, and cocoa were among the staples whch declined the most. As the week ended, nearly all staples had lost practically all gains made in the spring rise. Domestic copper, for example, at 12 cents a pound was at the level of the start of the year.

Custom smelters were quoting domestic copper at 12 cents a pound as the week ended, down ¾ cent from the preceding Saturday, but leading producers still were asking 13 cents a pound. Export copper finished at 11.95 cents a pound, unchanged from Friday, but 0.32 cent below a week ago.

Copper futures closed 0.05 to 0.16 cent a pound lower yesterady, near bottom levels for the movement. Loss for the week amounted to more than ¾ cent a pound. Futures were said to have been sold on reports that lower domestic copper prices have failed to stimulate sales.

Zinc Market Quiet.

Zinc for immediate delivery was quiet as the week ended. A cut of 0.25 cent a pound Friday failed to stimulate demand in view of reports that production has been rising to pre-depression levels. Statistics issued late in the week showed that stocks of prime western grade showed their first increase in 2½ years.

Cottonseed oil, which fell to new lows for the year Friday on the markup in estimated production, was 0.01 to 0.05 cent a pound higher yesterday.

Loss for the week in rubber contracts amounted to about 0.85 cent a pound despite an improvement in the week-end session of 0.03 to 0.09 cent a pound.

Hide Futures Fall.

Hide futures fell 1.67 to 1.70 cents a pound during the week despite a recovery of 0.03 to 0.8 cent a pound yesterday.

Coffee, one of the few commodities to make small gains during the week in the New York futures market, declined a minor fraction of a cent yesterday.

Wool tops were marked down 2½ cents at 99 cents a pound in the New York cash market yesterday. Futures prices rose 1.7 to 1.5 cent but all futures contracts still are well below the cash prices. Wool tops for immediate delivery declined 7 cents a pound during the week.

CANADIAN GOLD IS ENGAGED FOR SHIPMENT TO U. S.

Engagment of $2,497,000 of gold in Canada for shipment to the United States was reported yesterday to the New York Reserve bank. The engagement was the first made in several days. The price of gold in London yesterday remained at the equivalent of $34.82 an ounce, or 5 cents above the theoretical price at which shipments may be made profitably to this country.

Foreign currencies improved in relation to the dollar in the exchange market yesterday. The French franc rose 0.0125 of a cent to 3.3125 cents. The British pound closed unchanged at $4.95⅝. Other currencies showed moderate gains.

RECORD FOR ORE TO DEPEND ON LAKE NAVIGATION

Weather Is Chief Factor in Movement.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Weather conditions and not steel plant consumption will determine whether a new all-time record for ore shipments will be established this season, shippers and vessel owners agreed today after checking the movement to Oct. 1. The all-time record movement of 65,204,600 tons was established in 1929.

Figures compiled by the Lake Superior Iron Ore association revealed that 9,173,991 tons were moved down the lakes last month, bringing shipments for the season to 54,612,122 tons. The movement in September, last year, totaled 7,481,071 tons and shipments for the season up to Oct. 1 aggregated 33,762,588 tons, or 20,849,534 tons less than this year.

Last month's movement was the largest for September since 1929, when 9,547,040 tons were moved down the lakes. The all-time high for the month was established in 1926, when the fleet loaded 9,621,756 tons.

Shippers Analyze Situation.

Shippers and fleet operators reported that it has been customary in former years for the October and November combined movement to equal September shipments.

During December, last year, ore shipments ceased entirely because of the early freeze. If cold weather sets in early next month and ice fields begin to form, there will be no opportunity to break the record. But if the lakes and rivers remain navigable until the second week in December or later, a new record is almost a certainty.

Bituminous coal shipments are smaller than they were in the same period last year, but cargoes are plentiful and no appreciable decrease in the movement is expected this month. Vessels loaded 1,246,835 tons in the week ended Oct. 4, against 1,457,656 tons in the corresponding week a year ago. Shipments for the season up to Oct. 4 totaled 34,546,454 tons, compared with 32,586,128 tons in the same period last year, 26,622,234 tons in 1935, and 27,662,032 tons in 1934.

More Fuel Coal Loaded.

With considerably more freighters in commission than last season, vessels loaded 1,322,822 tons of fuel coal, against 1,073,899 tons last year, 861,394 tons in 1935, and 899,249 tons in 1934.

The late September increase in grain shipments failed to materialize, elevators at Fort William and Port Arthur sending down only 3,757,299 bushels of wheat in the week ended Oct. 2, compared with 6,870,504 bushels in the same week last year. Receipts aggregated 5,016,480 bushels, against 7,747,670 bushels a year ago.

Shipments of other grains were as follows: 144,790 bushels of oats and 585,348 bushels of barley.

BENSON & RIXON STATE ST. STORE TO OPEN TUESDAY

The new six story air conditioned building of the Benson & Rixon company, clothiers, at the southwest corner of Quincy and State streets, will be opened Tuesday, George R. Benson, president, announced yesterday. The building has been described as State street's "first streamlined windowless structure."

The structure is the first large building project on State street in years. It was reported to have cost $375,000 and the site $650,000.

Opening of the new store will mark another step in the company's expansion. It opened its first store in 1887 at 1301 Milwaukee avenue. Other stores are operated at 4824 Broadway and 1040 Lake street, Oak Park.

M'Williams Dredging Gets War Department Contract

McWilliams Dredging company has been awarded a contract by the war department for excavating approximately 22,100,000 cubic yards of material in the Wax lake outlet channel from Six Mile lake through Wax lake, an arm of the Gulf of Mexico, it was announced yesterday. The amount of the contract is approximately $1,750,000.

Savings and Loan Assets Climb to $3,893,695,000

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—(AP)—Gross assets of home loan and savings institutions belonging to the Federal Home Loan bank system reached $3,893,695,000 on Oct. 1, officials said today. Member institutions have increased from 119 at the end of 1932 to 3,915.

Canadian Freight Trafic Dips, but Exceeds 1936

Car loadings of revenue freight by Canadian railroads in the week ended Oct. 2, totaled 62,330 cars, compared with 63,539 in the preceding week, and 59,835 in the like week of 1936, the dominion bureau of statistics reported yesterday.

Studebaker Auto Sales 15.9 Per Cent Above 1936

September sales of Studebaker passenger cars and trucks totaled 9,541 units bringing the total for the year to 73,335 units, compared with 63,293 in the same period last year, an increase of 15.9 per cent, the company announced yesterday.

COMMON TRUST FINDING FAVOR AS INVESTMENT

Termed Good Medium for "Little Fellow."

BY CHARLES KINTER.

How can a man with a few thousand dollars find an investment which combines safety of principal with a fair rate of return, plus adequate diversification? Investment experts have for many years sought an answer to the investment problems of the "little fellow." One of the most promising solutions, Chicago Trust company officials assert, is the common trust fund.

Common trust funds represent the pooling capital of a group of small investors into a fund large enough for profitable handling by a trust company. Trust companies say that they cannot afford to supervise funds smaller than $25,000.

Common Trusts Live Study.

Common trust funds are a live subject among trust company men. The trust division of the American Bankers' association has appointed a special committee to study this form of investment. The chairman of the committee, Carl W. Fenninger, vice president of the Provident Trust company, Philadelpha, will make a report to trust company men during the convention of the American Bankers' association beginning tomorrow at Boston.

States which have already passed laws permitting common trust funds are New York, Delaware, Indiana, Ohio, Oregon, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania. Such funds are not possible in Illinois.

A set of regulations governing common trust funds is being prepared by the federal reserve board, according to announcement from Washington.

Tax Laws Aid Move.

Encouragement was given to development of common trust funds by provisions of section 169, title 1 of the federal revenue act of 1936, which recognized that properly qualified common trust funds should not be classed as corporations for federal income tax purposes. This means that common trust funds are exempt from payment of regular corporation income taxes before distribution of earnings of the funds.

Biggest problem facing trust funds is taxation. The new federal revenue law eliminates part of the tax problem, but there is still much discussion as to how a number of other taxes should be shared by participants in the fund. Use of participation certificates is considered one of the most likely ways of solving the problem of entrance or withdrawal.

Laws Specify Investments.

Several new state laws governing common trust funds specify the type of investment that can be made and limit the size of investments in any one security. Other laws merely say that common trust funds shall be subject to the same regulations that govern investments of trust companies for the accounts of individuals.

The common trust fund is similar to the investment trust in the sense of making diversified investments available to individuals with small resources. Investment trusts, however, usually buy common and preferred stocks. Common trust funds, on the other hand, more often are invested in high grade bonds and mortgages.

BONDS DECLINE; JAP AND ITALIAN ISSUES WEAKEST

Secondary Rail Liens Also Move Downward.

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—A fresh attack on obligations of Japanese and Italian origin during the final hour of trading featured trading in bonds today during the short session. Virtually all of the Japanese and Italian issues were forced to the lowest level in several years, the former yielding fractions to four points, while the latter yielded one to three points.

Japanese 5½ per cent bonds and Tokio Electric Light 6s were among the weak spots in the foreign list. The government issue was off more than a point and the Tokio Electric lien dipped 3½ points at one time. Among the Italian issues Rome 6½s dropped 3 points to a new low.

Corporation Bonds Lower.

While the weakness in the foreign issues overshadowed other developments in the market, domestic corporation bonds again worked irregularly lower under the leadership of secondary railroad loans. The latter gave up fractions to about two points in relatively quiet dealings.

A mixed trend characterized other major groups in the corporate section. Issues that lost ground included Southern Pacific, off 1½, Pennsylvania Railway 4½s, down 1, and Southern Railway 4s, off ¾.

United States government bonds continued in the doldrums as prices backed and filled within narrow limits. On a turnover of $145,700, the list showed at the close declines of 1-32 to 3-32 and advances of 1-32 to 4-32 point, with the former trend predominating.

Averages Show Declines.

The average prices of the railroad, industrial, and foreign bonds touched the lowest levels in nearly two years.

The average closing price of twenty railroad issues, compiled by the Associated Press, dropped 0.2 of a point to 82.9, the lowest point since Nov. 20, 1935, when the average stood at 82.4.

Fluctuations in utility and industrial obligations were narrow. The average for ten industrials closed 0.1 lower at 100.4, the lowest since 1935. The foreign bond index dropped 0.3 of a point to a two year low point.

Total transactions today aggregated $3,371,700, compared with $3,289,000 last Saturday.

Federal Supply Awards Near 6½ Million in Week

Federal supply awards under Walsh-Healey act for the week ended Oct. 7 totaled $6,470,527. Ninety-three contracts were let.

Stocks vs. Bonds—2.

High grade bonds fluctuate in price, but not widely as a rule. They are rated high grade because of the issuer's apparent ability to meet its obligations to bondholders without difficulty. Changes in money rates are the principal reasons for price fluctuations in top grade bonds.

Yields now are low, which is another way of saying prices are high in relation to interest paid. If money rates rise, prices of bonds may be expected to fall somewhat.

Another argument against bonds is the threat of further inflation. In periods of drastic inflation, the man who owns bonds is at a disadvantage as is any person with a fixed income, whether it be salary, annuity, or interest coupons.

The reason for this is that prices of goods rise sharply during a period of inflation. The same number of dollars buys less meat, groceries, clothing or other goods.

This consideration also applies to the principal amount invested in bonds. Even if you can sell your bonds for as much or a little more than you paid for them, the cash received will not buy as much as it would at the time it was invested—before the effects of inflation began to be felt. Bond prices do not rise in proportion to the rise in commodity prices as inflation runs its course.

Stocks tend to rise more rapidly than bonds in periods of inflation. Accordingly, along with real estate and commodities, they have been recommended over bonds as a partial hedge against inflation.

Neither can one predict how much, if any, more inflation is in store for the United States.

For reasons presented in this and last Sunday's articles, Investors' Guide still is inclined to stick to its position that good bonds form a safer medium of investment than stocks for the small investor.

We do not mean to infer that there are not excellent stocks or that stocks do not present good profit possibilities, but there still are unlimited opportunities to pick the wrong stocks. Drastic inflation does not present a pretty picture, no matter how you look at it. The investor is almost sure to suffer some, but we are inclined to believe that the average small investor will suffer less, on the whole, if he stays with good bonds rather than dabbling in stocks. Perhaps the safest thing for him to do is to buy a home, or—if he already owns one—to pay off the mortgage on it.

OIL TRIAL JURY LOCKED UP FOR FIRST WEEK-END

Madison, Wis., Oct. 9.—(AP)—A federal court jury trying twenty-three oil companies, three trade publications, and forty-six individuals on charges of conspiracy to raise and fix wholesale gasoline prices was locked up today for the first of what may be a long series of week-ends.

Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone, recessing court late yesterday until Monday, said at the conclusion of the first week of the trial, "We're only scratching the surface." Court observers estimated the case will last three or four months.

Carl Beroth of Chicago, president of the Acme Petroleum company, an independent concern, was the only witness to testify during the week. He will return to the stand Monday for further cross-examination. From his testimony the jury received primary lessons in the workings of the oil industry.

RAYON INDUSTRY OBJECTS TO FAIR PRACTICE CODE

A proposed code of fair practices for the rayon industry ran into numerous objections at a final hearing before the federal trade commission.

Although expressing willingness to identify their products as rayon to distinguish them from silk and other fabrics, manufacturers protested what they described as an attempt to single them out for "punitive action" in the commission's campaign for clear identification of fabrics.

Matthew H. O'Brien of the Celanese Corporation of America attacked the whole set of proposed rules because "as they are now written they seem to imply that the synthetic yarn industry is a gigantic fraud."

USE OF CHECKS INDICATES RISE IN TRADE TOTAL

Volume Runs Below Year Ago, However.

Business transacted by bank checks in the Chicago reserve district in the week ended Wednesday showed an increase over the preceding week, but a decline from the corresponding 1936 period, banking statistics showed yesterday. The Chicago Clearing House association reported that bank clearings in Chicago for the week ended yesterday increased over the corresponding period last year.

The Chicago reserve bank reported that debits to individual deposit accounts [checks cashed] in the week aggregated $1,300,896,000, an increase of 11.4 per cent over the preceding week's total of $1,167,356,000. Compared with the total of $1,327,518,000 reported a year ago, there was a decline of 2 per cent.

Two Periods Differ.

The week ended Wednesday included the last day of September, but the corresponding period last year comprised the first seven days of October. Transfers are heaviest early in the month.

Increases over last year were reported in many of the cities in the district although the Chicago total was sharply lower, totaling $768,266,000, against $861,462,000. Milwaukee's total increased to $68,973,000 from $66,273,000; Detroit reported $217,674,000, against $178,765,000. Other cities which had gains were Indianapolis, Grand Rapids, and South Bend. Des Moines showed a decline.

The federal reserve board reported debits for the entire country last week totaled $9,500,418,000, against $8,163,596,000 in the preceding week and $9,515,009,000 in the corresponding period last year.

Chicago Bank Clearings.

Chicago banks cleared a total of $311,900,000 last week, against $306,800,000 a year ago. The daily record of clearings follows:

	Clearings.	Balance.
Monday	$ 50,400,000	$ 4,600,000
Tuesday	53,400,000	7,500,000
Wednesday	53,300,000	6,200,000
Thursday	50,000,000	5,400,000
Friday	54,200,000	5,700,000
Saturday	50,600,000	4,200,000
Total for week	$311,900,000	$ 33,600,000
Corresp last year	$306,800,000	$ 28,600,000

The New York clearing house reported clearings of member banks for the week ended yesterday were $3,065,671,000, against $3,745,241,000 a year ago.

DEACONESS HOME TO MARK 50TH YEAR

WRECKER'S AX SOUNDS REQUIEM OF LITTLE ITALY

Families Move West to Better Homes.

Like the exodus of the people of Israel from Egypt, so the population of northwest side Little Italy is on the move.

This neighborhood, surrounding Grand avenue and Halsted street, which for three generations has been a copy of a southern Italian village, is tumbling down. Gradually throughout the years the factories of an industrialized Chicago have crept up on the cottages and flats that at one time housed a population of 70,000 to a square mile. Today there are only 40,000 residents in the same area.

As the warped tenements stagger and sag on their foundations, Little Italy is packing up and moving out. The residents are settling to the westward along Grand avenue, and farther toward the northwest.

200 Buildings Torn Down.

In the last two years more than 200 houses have been torn down in the demolition program in which several agencies, including the Metropolitan Housing council, are taking part. According to Miss Lea D. Taylor, head resident of the Chicago Commons, 955 West Grand avenue, 500 families living within a few blocks of the settlement house have moved in the last year.

"The settlement has been fighting for years to have some of these tenements razed because they are unfit for human habitation," Miss Taylor said. "Finally, thanks to the demolition program, they are being torn down.

"Many had no inside plumbing, no water, and sometimes no heat. In each case the landlord has consented to the demolition. As a result of this program there is more sunshine in the neighborhood, and I mean that literally.

Keep Italian Customs.

"The people are largely Italian and have throughout the years made this neighborhood one of the most picturesque in the city. They come for the most part from the provinces of southern Italy and have kept many of their customs. It is hard on the old people who have lived here most of their lives to move into a strange neighborhood.

"But the people realize that the demolition program is inevitable. They know that the neighborhood is not zoned for homes, but for industry. Even when they move they still retain their connections with the old neighborhood, because most of them come to the Commons and participate in the activities just as they used to.

"We at the Commons have fought for five years to have one particular 24 flat tenement torn down. The place was an old building when the Commons was started 42 years ago.

Home at Its Worst.

"It was a breeding ground for tuberculosis germs. The walls were damp and scaly. It had no running water and no plumbing. The windows were knocked out and the place was overrun with rats and vermin. The health department condemned it time and time again, but hesitated to drive out the tenants because they had no place else to go.

"For years we couldn't even locate the owner," Miss Taylor said. "Finally we traced the ownership to an estate in England. Nobody paid rent, even if he could afford it, because nobody knew whom to pay. Well, after five years of fighting, the place was razed. We don't know who is responsible, but we are thankful to whoever got the proper authorization."

CHURCH RECALLS 25 YEAR GROWTH IN RITES TODAY

Ascension Lutheran church, Lincoln street and Cornelia avenue, will celebrate its 25th anniversary this morning and evening, with the Rev. A. M. Knudsen, general superintendent of the Board of American Missions, speaking at the morning service, and the Rev. J. F. Seibert, assistant executive secretary of the missions board, in the pulpit this evening. Dr. Seibert was instrumental in organizing the congregation. The Rev. E. O. Wannagat is pastor of the church.

The Rev. E. O. Wannagat.

Ascension Lutheran church held its first meetings in a storeroom at 2023 Roscoe street, but soon outgrew its quarters and began construction of the present building. The cornerstone was laid Sept. 24, 1912, and the $25,000 church was dedicated Feb. 22, 1914.

A homecoming will be held Tuesday evening in the church hall. The Rev. K. E. Irvin, S. T. D., will speak. Regular church services are held at 11 o'clock and 8 o'clock each Sunday. Bible school meets at 9:45.

In Sherwood Tale of the Lonely Southwest

Songs sung long ago by a poet of the vagabonds still have a magic potency—a power to lift thoughts on wings that soar beyond the lonely roads and desert waste places. Alan, the wandering philosopher, and the talented young Gabrielle of the wayside inn in "The Petrified Forest" are here portrayed by Joseph Shippen and Miss Kay Rush of the Threshold Players of Glencoe. Mr. Shippen is understudy for James Witherell in the Alan Sanger role, which Leslie Howard played in the original production and later in the screen version. The north shore group is opening the season with Sherwood's play next Friday at Glencoe school auditorium. Nancy Pershall is directing. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

CIVIC LEADERS ASKED TO AID PARKS SURVEY

Will Study Results of Consolidation.

Civic leaders throughout the city were invited last week to help a newly appointed citizens' committee to shape its investigation of operations and expenditures of the Chicago park district. The invitations were issued by Max Murdock, chairman.

Eight men and women serve with Mr. Murdock on the committee, which was appointed by Robert J. Dunham, president of the park district. Their assignment is to proceed in any manner they see fit to determine whether park consolidation has fulfilled its intended purpose and to formulate a long range plan for the district.

Lists Type of Suggestions.

Murdock called upon Chicagoans to suggest immediately to him or other members of the committee:

1. Facts bearing on any phase of park activity which should be investigated or called to public attention.
2. Criticism of park policies as to construction or maintenance.
3. Ideas for improvement or economy in park services.

The information thus gathered is to be passed along to Maj. William A. Welch, chief engineer of the Palisades Interstate Park commission of Bear Mountain, N. Y., and L. H. Weir, an authority on public recreation, who head the staf employed in making the survey here. The men will incorporate the suggestions in a report they will soon make to the investigating committee.

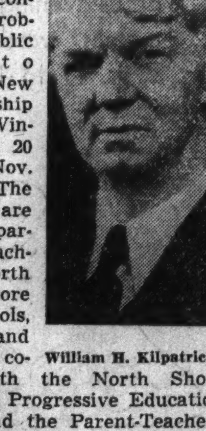
Club Representatives Named.

Mr. Murdock is chairman of the public affairs committee of the Union League club. Other club representatives on the investigating committee are Herbert Bebb, president of the City Club of Chicago; Mrs. W. H. Hermsdorf, president of the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Organizations, and George B. McKibbin of the Commercial Club of Chicago.

The five other committee members are John C. Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor; John O. Rees, director of the committee on public expenditures; Dr. Philip L. Seman, chairman of the Chicago recreation commission; Douglas Sutherland, executive secretary of the Civic Federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency, and Miss Harriett Vittum, head resident of the Northwestern University settlement.

PROF. W. H. KILPATRICK TO SPEAK AT PUBLIC EDUCATION SESSIONS

William Heard Kilpatrick, visiting professor at Northwestern university's school of education, will be the principal speaker in a conference on "Problems of Public Education" to be held at New Trier Township High school, Winnetka, Oct. 20 and 27 and Nov. 3 and 10. The meetings are sponsored by parents and teachers of the North Shore, and more than 70 schools, both public and parochial, are coöperating with the North Shore branch of the Progressive Education association and the Parent-Teachers association of District 21, according to E. T. McSwain, in charge of arrangements. Prof. Kilpatrick was at Columbia university on the staf of the teachers college from 1907 until his retirement this year.



William H. Kilpatrick.

HOOSIER SALON PATRONS TO OPEN EXHIBIT TUESDAY

The Hoosier Salon Patrons' association will open the fall exhibition season with a reception, program and tea to be held at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday at the Galleries, 211 West Wacker drive. The exhibiting artists, both of of whom will be present, are Miss Mattie Lietz of La Grange, Ill., and C. Curry Bohm of Brown county, Ind.

Among the patrons who will be hostesses at the tea are Mrs. Edward E. Ames, Mrs. Mary A. Dies, Mrs. G. L. Grawols, all of Evanston, and Mrs. Harry H. Herron of Winnetka.

North Shore Book Club to Hear Reviews Friday

The North Shore Book club will meet Friday afternoon in the home of Mrs. G. F. Krupka, 6333 Lakewood avenue, for a discussion of current literature under the leadership of Mrs. Sherman R. Barnett of Glencoe. Mrs. Robert Wienecke of Glencoe, Mrs. Newcomb Diehl of Evanston, and Mrs. Donald Bean of 6151 North Hamilton avenue, will give book reviews. The club is headed this year by Mrs. W. W. Weld, 239 Custer avenue, Evanston.

THRESHOLD PLAY GROUP TO OPEN SEASON FRIDAY

'Petrified Forest' Has Newcomer in Lead.

One of the most popular plays of recent years, Robert E. Sherwood's "The Petrified Forest," will be given Friday evening in the theater of the Glencoe school by the Threshold Players of Glencoe. It will be the opening production of their fifteenth season. Nancy Pershall directs.

The feminine lead, Gabrielle, will be taken by Miss Kay Rush of Evanston. Miss Rush, a graduate of Ward-Belmont college, is a newcomer to the north shore. She is a native of Bartlesville, Okla., where she was head of her own dramatic studio.

Has Radio Experience.

She has had professional stage and radio experience with the National Producing company of Kansas City, Mo.; the University of Chicago Broadcasting council, and the radio department of the Northwestern university school of speech.

Playing opposite her, in the part created by Leslie Howard, that of Leslie Squier, will be James Witherell, star of other Threshold productions. He is from Evanston also.

Frank Morre, president of the Threshold Players, will portray the menacing "Duke" Mantee, Arizona's public enemy No. 1.

Others Taking Rôles.

Others in the cast include John Lasier, Elmer Bushnell, Grant Phillips, Robert Clerk, Spero Mann, Laura Browning, Henry Durkee, Lloyd Faxon, Harriet Harris, Carl Berning, Percy McCollough, James Lamkin, Albert Childs, Beecher Hungerford, James McCormick, Sidney Pyne, and R. B. Gillespie.

"The Petrified Forest" has just been released for use by little theater groups this year. Mr. Sherwood is also the author of last season's success, "Idiot's Delight."

North Side Y. M. C. A. Zoop Ball Contests Started

Zoop ball elimination contests will be held each Saturday morning for the next month at north side Y. M. C. A.s, with the winner from each eligible for the Chicagoland championship tournament. Nineteen "Y"s throughout the city and suburbs are coöperating, according to Nelson Thomas, boys' work secretary at the Central Y. M. C. A., and about 10,000 boys and girls have entered the contests. North side centers represented include the Evanston, Lincoln-Belmont, North Avenue-Larabee, Rogers Park, Wilson Avenue and Central Y. M. C. A.s.

AGNES HEARN NAMED IMMACULATA SCHOOL ALUMNAE PRESIDENT

Miss Agnes Hearn, 6439 North Hamilton street, has been named president of the Immaculata High school alumnae association. She was graduated in 1926. Other officers are Miss Ruth Tanguey, '31, first vice president; Miss Veronica Campbell, '27, second vice president; Miss Alice Du Plantes, '31, corresponding secretary; Miss Geraldine Fuerstal, '35, recording secretary, and Miss Marcella O'Neil, '26, treasurer. The alumnae fall homecoming party will be held Dec. 12 at the school, 640 Irving Park road. The annual formal dance will be given Dec. 29.

Miss Agnes Hearn.

RABBI SHULMAN TO TALK ON TRIP TO PALESTINE

Rabbi Charles E. Shulman of North Shore Congregation Israel, Glencoe, will speak before an open meeting of the League for Labor Palestine at 8:30 o'clock tonight in room 825 of the Fine Arts building, 410 South Michigan avenue.

Rabbi Shulman, who recently returned from a trip to Palestine, will discuss conditions there and probable future developments. He will show motion pictures of his Palestine visit. The program also will include a talk, "Land of the Landless," by Eli Bortniker. Mr. Bortniker lately visited Palestine and the World Zionist congress at Zurich, Switzerland.

Dr. Leo Honor, director of the Jewish board of education, will report on the Jewish National fund. Harold Stein will preside.

St. Henry's Benevolent Group to Give Card Party

The Ladies' Catholic Benevolent association of St. Henry's church will give a card party tomorrow night at the parish clubhouse, Devon and Ridge avenues. The president, Miss Eleanor M. Rozek of 6337 North Hermitage avenue, is collaborating on arrangements with the secretary, Mrs. Rose Kleist, 6425 North Paulina street.

GAMMA PHI BETA AT N. U. TO MARK 49TH YEAR AT TEA

Epsilon Celebration to Be Held Friday.

The granting of its charter 49 years ago will be recalled by Epsilon chapter of Gamma Phi Beta sorority at an anniversary tea Friday at the Northwestern university chapter house, 640 Emerson street, Evanston. Preparations are under the direction of Mrs. Cyrus H. Williams of Glencoe.

The fête is planned by the house board as an "acquaintance" party for Mrs. Gladys Simons, who has come from Ames, Ia., to assume the duties of house mother, and the chapter's twenty-two new pledges. House mothers and counselors of other sororities on the campus have been invited.

Mrs. Duane L. Peterson of Highland Park, who is president of the house board, and Miss Marjory Listing and Miss Jean Winter, who, respectively, are house president and chapter president, will support Mrs. Simons in the receiving line.

Those newly pledged to membership are Miss Nane Braelsford, Miss Virginia Boaz, Miss Jane Boyce, Miss Marian Bogue, Miss Patty Dorsey, Miss Peggy Dunn, Miss Phylis Graham, Miss Shirley Johnson, Miss June Jaeger, Miss Wilma Jennings, Miss Monnet Mott, Miss Josephine Murphy, Miss Loreene Nash, Miss Suzanne Mauer, Miss Margaret McBroom, Miss Betty Kellog, Miss Kathlyn Patton, Miss Helen LaVuey, Miss Ann Thrower, Miss Marilyn Thurin, Miss Sue Thomas, and Miss Marian Young.

State Architect Hammond to Speak on New Salem

Charles Herrick Hammond, state architect, who aided his father, Charles Lyman Hammond, in the restoration of the Lincoln monument at Springfield, will speak on "New Salem," Lincoln's home from 1831-37, at 5 o'clock next Sunday afternoon in the studio of the North Shore Art league, Winnetka. The talk will be illustrated with slides. There will be an exhibition of summer sketches at 4:30 o'clock, and a tea will follow Mr. Hammond's lecture.

Kenilworth Club to Hold Dinner-Dance on Friday

The opening dinner-dance of the Kenilworth club's fall season will be held Friday evening. Miss Virginia Little is in charge of reservations.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

IT is very disturbing for an Our Town editor who is none too sure of his English to learn that 2 year old Donald Freeman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Freeman, 4839 North Ashland avenue, not only speaks pretty fair English but also can express himself in Italian and knows a number of Swedish words. The young linguist picked up English about a year ago and since has learned Italian from his mother and Swedish from his father. Donald also counts to 100 with no trouble at all and has memorized about a dozen children's stories. All in all it makes the Our Town editor feel a bit stupid and somewhat resentful.

Donald Freeman.

MISS DOROTHEA SCHEER, 4611 Magnolia avenue, was thrilled by all the fuss over the Outer drive link bridge last Tuesday because she used to live in a house just north of the site of the new span. She hadn't been back in her old neighborhood for years, so she took a speedboat ride down the river to see how things looked. She was impressed and satisfied.

Miss Scheer, who is 72, was born in Germany and returned for a visit a few years ago, doing most of her European traveling by air. She prefers this country to the Germany of today, because she says she is "outspoken" and wishes to avoid any chance of being silenced.

Miss Scheer's father was night watchman for the Meyer Planing mill, which used to be near the mouth of the river, and when the Meyer people sent men to paint the rooms Miss Scheer, then a good many years younger, was told to direct them. She did. The rooms were each painted a different color, including one blue and one pink one. As she remembers it her parents didn't object.

Her most vivid picture of the Chicago fire is of her mother rushing into their blazing home to salvage the feathers from the beds because they were hand plucked in Europe.

FLORENCE KIRSCH, 457 Oakdale avenue, who will be heard Dec. 21 as piano soloist in the Adult Education council's musical art series at Orchestra hall, recently returned to the north side from Lake Como, Italy. Miss Hirsch is 21 years old and was graduated from the Francis Parker High school. She was playing the piano at the age of 3, although not so well as she does now, and at 11 made an appearance with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. She has since studied in Berlin and at Lake Como. Many other noted pianists will appear on the series also.

Another college office has been captured by an Our Towner. Miss Mary Huck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. Huck, 605 Essex road, has been elected second vice president of the Y. W. C. A. at Ward-Belmont school, Nashville, Tenn. She is a freshman in the junior college department.

Miss Lucille Jacobsen, 1938 Sherman avenue, Evanston, recently returned from a 9,000 mile trip through the United States and western Canada.

Howard Stein, 19 years old, who was graduated from Wright Junior college last February, has been given a scholarship in the Chicago Mummers theater training school. He will study both acting and technical problems. Howard is the son of Mrs. John J. Stein, 3035 North Racine avenue.

WITH the opening of Lake Forest college, faculty members came trooping into town from widely scattered vacation points. President and Mrs. Herbert McComb Moore spent their summer at Rhinelander, Wis. Dr. Donald Boal Williams, head of the romance languages department, traveled in Italy, France, and the British Isles. Victor Davey of the same department studied at museums in France and England, and Richard Widmark of the school of speech made motion pictures of the Nazi youth movement in Germany.

Dr. Fletcher Coffin of the chemistry department and Franklin Perry of the history department went to Massachusetts. Coach Ralph Jones was at his summer home in Rock Mountain National park. Louis Palmer of the music staf attended the University of Colorado and Dr. Bruce Lineburg of the department of biology sought rocks and fossils through northern United States.

North Shore Young People Open Member Drive Today

The fall membership drive of the North Shore Young People's league will start at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon with an open house at Agudath Achim North Shore congregation, 5029 North Kenmore avenue. A social program will follow installation of officers by Rabbi Israel H. Weisfeld. Officers are William Glassburg, president; Dave Akes, vice president; Mrs. Dave Akes, secretary; Joseph Friedman, treasurer, and Henry Salita, sergeant-at-arms.

Sunset Club Frolic

The Sunset Social Athletic and Charitable club of Chicago will hold its fall frolic and jamboree this evening at St. Mary's ballroom, Bloomingdale and North Hermitage avenues.

CALLED MOTHER OF METHODIST WELFARE WORK

Dinner to Celebrate Anniversary Oct. 19.

Chicago Methodists are uniting to observe the fiftieth anniversary of the Chicago Deaconess home, 22 West Erie street, with a banquet Tuesday evening, Oct. 19, at the Union League club. The home is the mother of all Methodist welfare institutions in the city and of the Methodist deaconess movement throughout the country.

The Deaconess Aid society, an organization of lay members which has contributed to the home's support almost since its founding, will be hostess. Headed by their president, Mrs. H. G. Stephenson, 3300 Lake Shore drive, members in the receiving line will wear costumes of 1887, the year when the deaconess home was established.

Dr. Newton E. Davis of Columbus, O., executive secretary of the Methodist Board of Homes, Hospitals, and Deaconess Work, and Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf, head of the church in the Chicago area, will make the anniversary addresses.

Music of Fifty Years Ago.

Dr. Frank G. Bruner, president of the board of trustees since 1916, and Miss Flora A. Sorber, who has been superintendent of the home for fifteen years, also will have places at the speakers' table. Francis Moore, music director at the Oak Park First Methodist church, will present a program of songs of fifty years ago.

Methodist deaconess work in Chicago, and America, began in the summer of 1887 when eight graduates of the Chicago Training school, now a part of Garrett Biblical institute, decided to spend their summer in welfare work in the city instead of resting before going out to missionary posts.

The need they found was so great that two of the girls, Isabella Reeves and Mary Hilton, sought permission to stay. During the summer the girls had lived at the school, but incoming students crowded them out in the fall.

With the help of Mr. and Mrs. J. Shelby Meyer, the superintendents of the school, they found friends to aid in the support of the project and rented a flat at 16 West Erie street.

Seek Needy in Streets.

Social service was almost completely unorganized in those days. Like others engaged in the work, the girls walked through the streets seeking out the sick and the needy and giving assistance as well as they could.

Nursing had been a part of their missionary training, so their first efforts were devoted almost exclusively to care of the sick. As others joined them they divided the group into two parts: Those who had no nurse's training became visiting deaconesses who covered definite areas, and the nurses went out on the cases they reported.

In 1888 one of the deaconess home trustees attended the church's general conference in New York, intending to bring up the work being done in Chicago. Bishop James M. Thoburn had just come back from India with a similar idea to present. They pooled their ideas and through the eloquence and persistence of Bishop Thoburn were successful in making deaconess work a recognized part of church activity.

Second Home Opened.

That same year, through the aid of the Gamble family, the second deaconess home in the United States was opened in Cincinnati. In 1889 homes were established in Detroit; Newark, N. J.; New York City, and Washington, D. C.

At present there are forty-six deaconess homes in the country, with approximately 1,000 workers in the field. The Rock river conference has 45 workers, eight work from the home at 22 West Erie street, and the others are connected with the various institutions, such as Wesley hospital.

Soon after Bishop Thoburn began his championship of the deaconess cause, his sister, Isabella Thoburn, the first woman to serve as missionary in India, came home and to Chicago to work with the deaconesses here. Her experience helped the workers organize their plans, and her fame helped news of the work to spread.

Early in deaconess history the girls found many cases that needed hospitalization and could induce no hospital to take them. To meet that need four rooms in the training school building were equipped for hospital use. Thus Wesley hospital was founded. Mary Jefferson, the third girl to become a deaconess, was made matron and Mr. Meyer served as superintendent.

Orphans Are Problem.

In the same way, to fill a need found by the deaconesses, other welfare institutions were established. Orphaned children presented a problem almost from the first day of deaconess work. At first the workers tried to find homes for them, but as the number increased that became impossible.

The crisis came one evening when an employé of the Northwestern depot came to the home one evening

'FATHER' SELDEN CLOSES 35 YEAR PULPIT CAREER

Ravenswood Church Will Fete Minister.

Ravenswood Presbyterian church, 4300 North Hermitage avenue, has been known to residents of the community as "Sunshine Corner" for quite a while. It may, for old times' sake, be known as "Sunshine Corner" for quite a while to come, but no matter what they call it, it won't be the same after next Sunday, because "Father" is going away.

"Father" is the Rev. Frederick L. Seldon, pastor of the church almost since its founding, May 4, 1902. He has been the only pastor. During his thirty-five years he has received more than 3,000 members into the church, baptized 1,200 children and adults, married 900 couples, and performed the final service for 850 of his flock. Next Sunday he will occupy the familiar pulpit for the last time.

Neighbors to Pay Respects.

A neighborhood service, honoring Dr. Selden, will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Participants will be the Rev. H. W. Dinkmeyer, Bethany Evangelical church; the Rev. F. H. Farrington, Ravenswood Baptist; the Rev. Allison A. McCracken, Ravenswood Methodist Episcopal; the Rev. F. E. Bernard, All-Saints' Episcopal; the Rev. Henry Orr Lietman, Fifth United Presbyterian; the Rev. William Price, Ravenswood Christian; the Rev. J. Morriston Thomas, Ravenswood Congregational, and J. Dewey Lutes, superintendent of the Ravenswood hospital. A reception for Dr. Selden will follow the service, and Tuesday evening there is to be a banquet honoring him.

Dr. Selden was born in Cambria, Wis., in 1869. He was graduated from Ripon college, Ripon, Wis., in 1894, and received his degree from McCormick [now Presbyterian] Theological seminary, Chicago, in 1898. He was married the same year. His first pastorate was at Horicon, Wis., 1898-'99, and his second at Perseverence Presbyterian church, Milwaukee, 1899-1902. He accepted a call to the Ravenswood Presbyterian church in 1902, and assumed the pastorate Oct. 12 of that year.

Build Chapel in 1907.

The church was then meeting in Library hall, Hermitage and Montrose avenues. A chapel on the present site was built in 1907, and the present building was erected in 1915. Two years later a pastor's secretary was added to the staf, and a little later a young people's worker was engaged.

Dr. Selden has been honored with the degree of doctor of divinity from Jamestown college, Jamestown, N. D., and from Ripon college. He was moderator of the Milwaukee Presbytery, 1901-'02, and of the Chicago Presbytery, 1912-'13. He has served seven times as commissioner to the Presbyterian church assembly and was nominated for moderator of the general assembly in 1936.

He is a director of the church extension board of the Chicago Presbytery, a member of the board of trustees of Ripon college, of the Wisconsin society, and of the Sons of the American Revolution.

Following his retirement Dr. Selden will make a trip to South America. He will make his home in Ripon on his return.

Unveil Rabbi's Portrait Today

MME. PERKINS, FRANK TO OPEN LECTURE SERIES

Forum Also to Feature Rabbi Wise.

Anshe Emet synagogue, Pine Grove avenue and Grace street, has completed plans for its dedication forum to be held in the new community center, which will bring to the north side such speakers as Dr. Glenn Frank, former president of the University of Wisconsin; Frances Perkins, secretary of labor; Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, United States Senator Gerald P. Nye, and a number of others.

Dr. Frank will appear Tuesday evening, Nov. 9, with Prof. Paul H. Douglas of the University of Chicago and James G. McDonald of the staf of the New York Times, in a symposium on "The Society of Tomorrow." Mr. McDonald is also former league of nations high commissioner for German refugees.

Mme. Perkins, who will speak Tuesday, Nov. 16, will tell of "The New Challenge to Industry." Others in the Tuesday night series are:

Nov. 23, Dr. Wise, subject to be announced later; Nov. 30, Marvin Lowenthal, author and traveler, "The Stepchildren of Europe," a discussion of national minorities; Dec. 7, Lord Marley, deputy speaker of the English house of lords, on "British Politics"; Dec. 14, Senator Nye, "The Munitions Racket"; Jan. 4, Ludwig Lewisohn, author and critic, "The Great Novelists: Huxley, Maugham, and Thomas Mann."

Jan. 11, Maurice Samuel, lecturer on Jewish problems, subject to be announced; Jan. 18, Dr. Ernest F. Tittle, First Methodist Episcopal church of Evanston, "Education and Religion"; Jan. 25, Julien Bryan, camera reporter for "March of Time," on "History in the Making — in Manchukuo and Japan"; Feb. 1, Prof. Harry Overstreet, College of the City of New York, philosopher and psychologist, "The Art of Being Grownup," and Feb. 8, Maurice Hindus, traveler and author, "Stalin and Hitler."

Tickets for the series or for individual programs may be obtained from the synagogue office. Rabbi Solomon Goldman is spiritual leader of Anshe Emet.

Kiwanis Contest.

The North Central and Rogers Park Kiwanis clubs are holding an attendance contest for the last quarter of the year.

BENEFIT LEADER

Under the directing chairmanship of Mrs. Martin Rosendahl, 2011 Orrington avenue, Evanston, the North Shore group of Chicago Alumnae of Alpha Omicron Pi is completing preparations for its annual benefit in support of the Frontier Nursing service in Kentucky. The party, a supper-dance, is to be given Saturday night at Shawnee Country club in Wilmette. [J. D. Toloff Photo.]

LAWSON 'Y' GIVES LECTURE SERIES ON ECONOMICS

The second in a series of weekly lectures on economics, sponsored by the general program section of the Lawson Y. M. C. A., 30 West Chicago avenue, will be given Wednesday evening by Prof. G. F. Hurley of the De Paul university law school. His topic is "The Period of Colonial Expansion." Dr. A. P. Haake, former head of the economics department of Rutgers college, is again coöperating with the arrangements committee.

Other lectures in the series are:

Oct. 20—"Institutional Economics I.," F. R. Axley, Chicago lawyer.

Oct. 27—"When Labor Becomes Management," Dr. Haake.

Nov. 3—Industrial Economics I.," Dr. F. S. Warner, formerly professor at the University of Pennsylvania.

Nov. 10—"Investment Problems in a Changing Economic System," Vergil Liptray, First National bank.

Nov. 17—"Political Economics II.," Prof. Hurley.

Dec. 1—"Institutional Economics I.," Mr. Axley.

Dec. 15—"An Economic Philosophy for the Modern American," Dr. Haake.

DEACONESS HOME TO OBSERVE 50TH YEAR ON OCT. 19

with a 5 year old boy who was tagged with the name and address of the home. She told the superintendent that he arrived on an early train from a small downstate town.

Mr. Meyer took that problem to Mrs. James B. Hobbs, who had often proved a friend of the deaconess work, and she offered to pay the rent on a home if the deaconesses could manage it. A cottage was rented in Lake Bluff, and from that small beginning grew the present Lake Bluff orphanage, that cares for hundreds of children.

Aged Also Find Help.

A homeless old woman, brought to the deaconess home by one of the workers when she could find no other place for her, brought forth the need for a home for the aged. A gift of $20,000 from William H. Bush started the Methodist Old People's home at 1415 Foster avenue.

Work in the Juvenile court has been an important contribution of deaconess activity for many years. Miss Jennie Beardsley had charge of that division for many years, and it is now carried on by Miss Margaret Brooks.

Miss Isabelle Horton, who drew from her experiences to write "Ted of McCorbles' Alley"; "The Burden of the City," one of the first books on social service, and "High Adventure," a description of the training college and its activities, was another deaconess who became well known.

Probably most famous of them all was little Miss Lucy Hall, who worked for years in the fight against white slavery. Her achievements were recognized by her selection as a delegate to the international purity congress, held in London.

Story Lady Aids Ill.

The "Story Lady," Miss Mabel Best, is probably the best known of the deaconesses now working in Chicago. Thousands of children who have spent agonizing weeks at various Chicago hospitals remember her visit as one of the bright spots of their hospital stay. Physicians have told her that her stories are probably as important in the children's recovery as their medical skill.

WILMETTE CLUB TO VIEW HARDING ART GALLERIES

Group Also Plans Visit to Goodman Theater.

Perhaps the October landscapes with their first splashes of autumn color awaken a mood for symphonic canvases, but, whatever the motivating inspiration, the Woman's club of Wilmette will sally forth from the clubhouse in a caravan of members' cars at 10:15 o'clock tomorrow morning on an art pilgrimage, its objective the George F. Harding galleries on the south side.

Mrs. Paul K. Robertson. [Moffett Photo.]

En route the party will stop at the Goodman theater to learn something of lighting, costuming, makeup and other back stage aspects of theatrical production, and again at International house on the University of Chicago's Midway for lunch.

Mrs. Paul K. Robertson has charge of the tour, which is sponsored by the ways and means committee, under Mrs. Howard Ringholm's chairmanship.

Reservations may be made with Mrs. Robertson or any member of her committee: Mrs. W. F. Ayer, Mrs. H. M. Rose, Mrs. D. H. Zick, Mrs. H. L. Grider, Mrs. L. H. Vogel, Mrs. C. L. Banker, Mrs. N. C. Deno, Mrs. A. W. Farrall, Mrs. R. C. Ferguson, and Mrs. W. E. Burgoyne.

Drama Club of Evanston.

The group will ring up the fall curtain at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday at the Woman's club on a festive scene—a luncheon celebrating its 30th anniversary. Former presidents and members of the original Riley circle, parent group of the Drama club, will be present as special guests. Messages are expected from the four honorary professional members—Mr. and Mrs. George Arliss, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, and William Faversham.

One of the principal speakers will be Mrs. John W. Meaker, who holds an honorary membership; from her the assembly will hear an account of memorable incidents in the club's early history. The program chairman, Mrs. Hal Foust, will preside as toastmistress.

In the morning, at 10:30 o'clock, the educational committee, which Miss Greta Goffee heads, will present Miss Marguerite Stokes, a graduate of the Northwestern university school of speech, in a reading of James McBride's "Storm Over Patsy."

Glencoe D. A. R.

The fall season will open for Glencoe chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution tomorrow. Members will gather at the home of Mrs. C. Lysle Smith, 1127 Skokie Ridge drive, to be greeted by their regent, Mrs. Charles C. Bulkley, and her staf. Miss Ethel Mills, who was in England when King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth were crowned, will entertain with stereoptician slides and a verbal account of the coronation. Mrs. Arthur H. Brayton and Mrs. Theron W. Childs will assist the hostess.

Succeeding meetings on the second Monday of each month will bring before the group as speakers Stewart W. McClelland of Lincoln university, Harrington, Tenn.; Mrs. Vinton Sisson, national defense chairman, and Mrs. G. E. Harbert, state chairman of the good citizenship award pilgrimage of high school girls to the national capital.

Evanston B. & P. Club.

It is a triple treat program—bridge, book reviews, and fashions—that the Business and Professional Woman's Club of Evanston has planned for its annual card party Friday night at the Woman's club. An outstanding social event of the season, the party is given by the finance committee, of which Mrs. Virginia Foucht Staley is chairman and the following assisting members: Miss Laura D. Batterman, Miss Irene E. Flesner, Miss Mary E. Holmes, Miss Clara M. Jacobsen, Miss Laura M. Knaggs, Miss Helen McElligott, and Miss Marie E. Stosskopf.

Miss Mary Beimfohr will give the commentary on new fall books. In the troupe of club members whom one of the local shops will bedeck in latest modes and present in the style parade will be Miss Mary Pressly, Miss Jeannette E. Nichols, Miss Florence R. Stewart, Mrs. Irene Frehner, Miss Clara M. Jacobsen, Miss Ethel Miller, Miss Gertrude Morse, Miss Katharine P. Crane, and Mrs. Esther Rutan Hatton. They will display their finery to a piano accompaniment by Mrs. Edith Grimm Malone.

Evanston Catholic Club.

Designating the opening session Wednesday afternoon as Presidents' day, the club will fête its active head, Mrs. A. H. Witthoft, and her predecessors in office—Mrs. John F. Hahn, Mrs. George A. Kearney, Mrs. George W. Walsh, Mrs. P. V. E. B. Ward, Mrs. Scott W. Prime, Mrs. Joseph F. O'Keefe, Mrs. William Schildgen, Mrs. George W. Schwartz, and Miss Margaret Hayes.

Mrs. J. W. Kehoe, program chairman, will present as guest artists Jean Pilon, baritone, and Helen Birmingham Kane, pianist.

Waukegan Woman's Club.

Appearing before the Waukegan women for the third successive year, Mrs. Samuel James, immediate past president of the Rogers Park Woman's club, will review Michael Foster's "The American Dream" on a program sponsored by the literature department tomorrow. On the following Monday the group will be hostess to the Lake County Federation of Women's clubs at its first meeting this season.

Woman's Club of Evanston.

Mrs. Wilbur Helm, vice president and hospitality chairman, is directing arrangements for the president's day reception Tuesday afternoon in compliment to Mrs. William C. Gilbert—the fete that will open the club's 48th season.

Those named to the hostess committee are: Mrs. George S. Ballard, Mrs. H. S. Campbell, Mrs. William Sherman Carson, Mrs. George Fravel Barry, Mrs. Hugh C. Beelman, Mrs. Cassius F. Biggert, Mrs. Arthur Davenport Black, Mrs. James G. Carr, Mrs. Irving S. Cutter, Mrs. John Dolese, Mrs. Edward R. Gilmore, Mrs. James P. Grier, Mrs. John R. Guilliams, Mrs. Kirk D. Holland, Mrs. Adolph Jahn, Mrs. Hervey S. Knight, Mrs. John C. Langtry, Mrs. W. Lawrence J. Lawson, Miss Zella Marshall, Mrs. Charles R. Morrison, Mrs. Orlando Noble, Mrs. J. P. O'Connor, Mrs. John G. Orchard, Mrs. William R. Parkes, Mrs. Charles E. Parkhill, Mrs. Samuel D. Pryce, Mrs. Philip A. Rising, Mrs. John C. Rundall, Mrs. Edward L. Schaub, Mrs. Walter Dill Scott, Mrs. Eugene E. Shutterly, Mrs. James Roy Skiles, Mrs. Floyd E. Thompson, Mrs. Gair Tourtellot, Mrs. Frank H. Tuthill, Mrs. H. W. Whitehead, Mrs. Edward B. Whitehead, and Mrs. Carl S. Williams.

French classes under the instruction of Joseph Sigel will open Friday morning, the beginners meeting at 9:30 o'clock, and the advanced students an hour later. The garden group, headed by Mrs. Harry W. Hadley, will make a study of tulips Friday afternoon.

Methodist Guilds.

At an annual hospital day observance Wednesday, the social service committee will present a speaker from Wesley Memorial hospital before the Guild of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Evanston. The program is planned by Mrs. George H. Davis and Mrs. Kirk Holland.

With Mrs. Earl J. Cooper as hostess, the Service guild will have its October luncheon meeting at 12:45 o'clock tomorrow in the community house. The Rev. Arthur T. Clark will speak and Miss Ruth Robbins will play the piano.

McInerny, and Congressman James McAndrews.

Judge Cornelius J. Harrington is general chairman of the city-wide committee. Tickets will be sold on the north side, among other channels, through parochial school children. Mr. Lyman has promised a new bicycle to the boy and girl selling the largest number.

'Broadway Bound' to Open Wilson 'Y' Play Season

"Broadway Bound," a comedy by Jean Lee Latham, will open the fifth season of the Wilson "Y" Players, according to Miss Barbara Meindl, president. The group meets Tuesday evenings at the Wilson Avenue Y. M. C. A., 1725 Wilson avenue, and north side young people interested in little theater work are invited to join. Associate directors are Jay De Witt, sponsor; Miss Bernice Burmeister, Miss Vista Garrity, Miss Greta Carlson, and Leslie Elliott. No date has been named for "Broadway Bound."

EVANSTON CHEST PASSES $100,000 IN THIRD WEEK

Confidence that the $150,000 goal of the Evanston community chest campaign would be reached was expressed yesterday by Joseph A. Rushton, general chairman, who reported that more than $100,000 had already been subscribed as the drive nears the end of its third week. This is in excess of the total collected in last year's unsuccessful campaign.

The residential division, with 10,000 prospective contributors to be called upon, is concentrating the work of 1,200 men and women on the coming week.

The last phase of the drive is being directed by Robert Laas, chairman of the residential division; John F. Kimbark, business division; Mrs. Frank Parker Davis, women's division; Dr. Samuel N. Stevens, educational division, and Edwin S. Millis, men's special gifts committee. Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes and George Dryden also have helped in the campaign.

GLENOLA WOMEN OPEN 17TH CLUB SEASON TUESDAY

Initial Meeting to Fete Executive Staf.

From the more distant horizons that lure them away during the summer months, thousands of north side women will return this week to seek the home paths leading to the clubhouse.

Among the many organizations resuming activities is the Glenola club, which, with 600 names on its roster, is third in membership in the Tenth district federation. The opening meeting, Tuesday afternoon at Loyola Community theater, is to be a fête for the officers.

The club begins its seventeenth season under a new president—Mrs. George W. Hanson. Mrs. Hanson has garnered wide executive experience both in the Glenola group and other organizations with which she is associated. Of the latter, the Catholic Woman's league numbers her among its past presidents.

With her on the Glenola staf are Mrs. James W. O'Hara, as vice president; Mrs. Cyril M. Brennan, second vice president; Mrs. James A. Toohey, Mrs. Daniel O'Hara, and Mrs. William J. Garrity, who respectively hold the recording, corresponding and financial secretaryships, and Miss Theresa Ryan, treasurer.

Tuesday's program, arranged by Mrs. Thomas W. Burns, will bring the Rosalind trio, with Beverly Kirk, coloratura soprano, as guest soloist.

Mrs. Harry G. Gilbraith is to have charge of arrangements for the annual retreat, scheduled for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 3, 4 and 5, in the chapel of St. Ignatius church, and of the "day of recollection" that will be observed in March at the Cenacle, 513 Fullerton parkway.

Discourse on Writers.

On Tuesday, Nov. 9, the club will hear Dr. S. S. Stewart of the Loyola university English department on Thomas Mann, Gertrude Stein and other famous writers whom he visited on his summer travels in Europe. The art committee, under Mrs. Louis J. Ronder's chairmanship, has planned a tour of the John H. Vanderpool gallery in Beverly Hills for the following Friday, and in April the group will present Helen Parker of the Chicago Art institute in a lecture on "Great Pictures and How to Apreciate Them."

As chairman of literature, Mrs. Susanne Loughran will preside at book circles on the third Tuesday of each month, and her group will present the Rev. R. A. Gallagher S. J., on Tuesday, Jan. 4, in a lecture on "Delinquency in American Youth." Study classes in current affairs and public speaking, with Mrs. Maurice H. Lieber as instructor, will be introduced this season. The first session will be at 2 o'clock Tuesday, Nov. 30.

The social committee, headed by Mrs. A. Ralph Konle, will serve tea at each regular meeting and at the book circles.

Rogers Park Catholics.

The Catholic Woman's club of Rogers Park will fête the leaders of city and state women's organizations at its opening reciprocity day reception at 1 o'clock tomorrow at the Rogers Park Woman's clubhouse.

Appearing as principal speaker on a program arranged by Mrs. P. T. Bowler, Mrs. Clifton K. Timmons will outline the federation's campaign against trafic in narcotics. Martha Flack, accompanied by Stanley Winters, will sing.

Lake Shore Woman's Club.

Resuming activities Wednesday, members will gather for a bridge luncheon at 12:30 o'clock at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Mrs. Patrick J. Cummings, president, and Mrs. William H. Hoffman, social chairman, will be supported in the receiving line by Mrs. Joseph O'Donnell, Mrs. Fred Brummel, Mrs. Francis Sullivan and Mrs. Timothy Murtaugh.

North End Woman's Club.

The membership committee is planning a party for the club and guests at 9 o'clock Saturday night at the clubhouse; there will be cards and dancing. At class day tomorrow the civics and education group will present Mrs. Roy Martindale at 1:30 o'clock in a lecture on "Citizenship," and Mrs. J. E. Cook will appear later under auspices of the American home group to give an art talk.

Peoples Church Group.

The Women's club of the People's church will hold its opening fall luncheon tomorrow at the Edgewater Beach hotel, with Mrs. W. Fred Pape presiding. The program will include a song group by Olga Bane, former member of the Chicago Civic Opera company.

Garden Apartments Group.

Fall activities will open for the Woman's club of the Marshall Field Garden apartments at 8:15 o'clock Tuesday night in the auditorium of the building with motion pictures and accompanying lecture, "Twenty-two Hundred Miles to the Arctic," by John J. Fuller of Evanston. Mr. Fuller will appear under Mrs. Clarence W. Pahl's auspices.

At the head of the club this year is Mrs. Charles A. Pardee. Other new executives are Mrs. Pahl, who is vice president and program chairman; Mrs. Thomas B. Tanner, secretary, and Mrs. Charles P. Cogswell, treasurer.

Argyle Park Portia Club.

With Mrs. Edward Jerome Dies presiding, the group will hold its opening study session at 9:45 o'clock Wednesday morning at Mrs. W. L. Donaldson's, 2322 Central Park avenue, Evanston. "England" will be the theme of the program, to which Mrs. George C. Rice will contribute a talk on "Royal Residences," and Mrs. David A. Stevens, a paper entitled, "A Literary Pilgrimage."

North Shore Woman's Club.

Entering upon its twenty-sixth year, the North Shore Woman's club will hold a reception at 2 o'clock Thursday at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Among the special guests will be Mrs. Henry Rhode, state federation president; Mrs. George McCorkle, who heads the School Children's Aid society, and Mrs. Byron Boswell, president of the club's junior auxiliary. The program, arranged by Mrs. Albert J. Cox, will bring Hortense Moritz in a group of violin solos, and Ann Birk Kuper in dramatic readings.

The Auxiliary.

Prospective members will be the guests of the junior auxiliary of the North Shore club at an opening bridge tea tomorrow afternoon in the Edgewater Beach hotel. Mrs. Byron Boswell will preside.

Silver Jubilee.

In a one act play, "Reminiscence of the Past Twenty-five Years of Club Life," former presidents will offer flashbacks of the groups history when on Tuesday afternoon the Woman's Neighborhood club of Rogers Park celebrates its silver jubilee. Mrs. Arthur Washo, the active president, is to officiate at the lighting of the twenty-five candles on the birthday cake.

Mrs. Walter Pratt is directing the play. In the cast are Mrs. James Lee Kirkland, Mrs. John Hunter Smith, Mrs. William De Long, Mrs. James O'Shea, Mrs. P. Q. Wray, Mrs. J. Wilson Coffey, Mrs. Albert Strohm, and Mrs. Charles Harder.

Edgemere Woman's Club.

A letter from Carrie Jacobs Bond, sent to the club after Mrs. F. C. Justice, the music chairman, had visited the composer at her home in Hollywood this summer, will be read at a music study class Tuesday morning at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Mrs. Justice will read a paper on Mrs. Bond, and Miss Maxine Lagerstrom will sing a group of her songs. After lunch, there will be cards. Mrs. J. G. Waters will preside.

Hamlin Park Woman's Club.

A reception in compliment to the new president, Mrs. John Hanck, who succeeds Mrs. Peter G. La Bouvie to office, will open the group's 45th season Thursday.

Serving on Mrs. Hanck's staf this year are: Mrs. Lloyd Van Dermark, who, in addition to the vice presidency, holds the revisions, program, international relations, and press and publicity chairmanships; Mrs. Walter Marshall, second vice president; Mrs. J. L. Bluemer, recording secretary; Mrs. La Bouvie, treasurer and reception chairman; Mrs. F. J. Krueger, visiting chairman; Mrs. Lillian Ford, social and house chairman; Mrs. E. T. Rysell, music chairman, and Mrs. Anthony Biagi, ways and means chairman.

Also as department heads: Mrs. Edward McClain, law observance and legislation; Mrs. Logan Bole, civil service; Mrs. Lola Frankenberg, American home; Mrs. Frank Cillian, art; Mrs. Harry Wieder, public welfare; Mrs. J. E. Montgomery, education; Mrs. John Huster, gardens; Mrs. Karl Plath, public health and child hygiene; Mrs. Joseph Angelica, radio, and Mrs Walter Carlson, motion pictures.

Rogers Park Woman's Club.

The seven former presidents—Mrs. Reginald Ford, Mrs. Harry S. Gradle, Mrs. David J. McCammon, Mrs. Sarkis H. Nahigian, Mrs. George Shrader, Mrs. Louis G. Wetzel, and Mrs. Earl G. Witaker—upon who the club recently conferred honorary memberships, all having been affiliated with the organization for twenty or more years and each having an outstanding record of service, will be fêted at Tuesday's regular meeting.

The day will bring one of the major programs—"Scarlet and Gray," a costume recital of folk songs, stories and dances, by the young Australian artists, Joan and Betty Rayner.

At the 10:30 o'clock morning period the American home division, of which Mrs. A. M. Harder is chairman, will present a fashion review in which the costumes will be modeled by Mrs. Homer Black, Mrs. Ford, Mrs. Charles H. Jaap, Mrs. Glenn E. Morre, Mrs. Charles O. Tapp and Mrs. Pickett L. Warren.

Glenola Junior Club.

"Modern Kitchen Magic," a cooking demonstration, will be the program following a regular business session at 8 o'clock Thursday night.

Rogers Park Juniors.

The junior membership of the Rogers Park Woman's club will assemble at 8 o'clock tomorrow night for the first program of the season, which will include a current book review by Marie Niergarth Zander and music by Raymond Hanson, pianist. Mrs. Walter B. Roe, president, will introduce members of the board of directors: Mrs. Kenneth Ford, vice president; Mrs. Dale Turnbull, secretary; Miss Marion Brown, treasurer; Mrs. Alan Suddarth, program chairman; Miss Jane Damon, social chairman; Mrs. J. Ellsworth Hellgren, philanthropy chairman; Miss Betty Graves, membership chairman; Mrs. Edwin Rose, house chairman, and Mrs. Theodore Beck, revisions chairman.

Edgewater Catholics.

A harvest card party is planned for Tuesday night by the Edgewater Catholic Woman's club. It will be held at Mrs. William Barr's home, 6220 Broadway. Mrs. Jean V. Wormser is the chairman.

Ravenswood Civic League.

Youth and its problems will be the theme of a lecture, "God's Geometry," by Carle A. Christensen when next Friday afternoon he appears under Mrs. Lester W. Wolfe's auspices before the Ravenswood Civic league at the Wilson Avenue Y. M. C. A.

JUNIOR PRESIDENT

Under the presidency of Mrs. Walter B. Roe the junior membership of the Rogers Park Woman's club will open its season tomorrow night. Mrs. Roe will introduce her board of directors.

Women of Glencoe Temple to Hear Facts on Europe

Foregoing the customary gaieties of reunion, the Sisterhood of North Shore Congregation Israel will spend an afternoon in serious thought when it assembles at 2:15 o'clock Monday, Oct. 18, at the temple in Glencoe to hear, at its opening session, a sobering story of conditions in Europe from Rabbi and Mrs. Charles E. Shulman.

Mrs. C. E. Shulman.
[Kossuth Photo.]

During a summer of travel through Palestine, Rumania, Austria, Poland, and Switzerland, Rabbi Shulman made a study of the effects of the war on Jewish life in particular and national attitudes in general, and it is of the aftermath of disquiet and confusion which he found prevalent that he will discourse, taking for the title of his lecture, "Humanity in Chaos."

Mrs. Shulman, whose writings and lectures have made her almost as well known as her husband, has been in Palestine for six months.

The sisterhood opens the season with Mrs. Benjamin Leo Steif at its head. Other members of the executive committee are Mrs. H. F. Anstach, Mrs. Arthur K. Leby, and Mrs. William Berger, first, second, and third vice presidents, respectively; Mrs. M. J. Klee, corresponding; Mrs. Milton Grauer, recording, and Mrs. Marc Newman, financial secretary, and Mrs. Julius S. Friedlander, treasurer.

Sisterhood B'nai Zion.

Plans are under way for a fashion revue at 1:30 o'clock Monday, Oct. 18, at the Sovereign hotel. Those recruited from the membership to serve as mannequins are Mrs. E. M. Mendelson, Mrs. Mark D. Yellon, Mrs. Abner J. Weiss, Mrs. Gertrude Russakov, Mrs. Philip Cobin, Mrs. Harold I. Chayes, Mrs. Myrtle Hayden, Mrs. Shirley Geis, Mrs. Beverly Becker, Miss Jean Finkelstein, Mrs. Rose Kane, Miss Eleanor Gordon, Miss Natalie Wenig, Miss Judith Chayes, Miss Roslyn Adolph, Miss Lorraine Gettleman, Miss Cyrelle Zacks, and Miss Audrey Ruth Berg.

Ner Tamid Women.

Mrs. Isadore Simon, president, has called a special meeting of the Sisterhood of Ner Tamid Congregation of North Town for 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at American Legion headquarters, 6433 North California avenue.

Hadassah.

The north side district of Hadassah will be entertained at a 12:30 o'clock breakfast-luncheon Wednesday at the home of Mrs. David Russakov, 3270 Lake Shore drive.

Consumptive Aid.

A membership tea and fashion show will be given from 2 to 5 o'clock today at the Edgewater Beach hotel by the north shore juniors of the Chicago Consumptive Aid society.

D. of Z. Welfare Group.

The Welfare auxiliary of the Daughters of Zion Infant Home and Day nursery will hold its opening rally at 8 o'clock tomorrow night at the home, California avenue and Hirsch street.

CATHOLIC VIEW TO BE PRESENTED BY NEW FORUM

Gov. Murphy Will Launch Series Oct. 24.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Organization of the Charles Carroll forum to discuss topics of current interest from the Catholic viewpoint was announced last week by the Rev. James A. Magner, chairman, who is a member of the faculty at Quigley Preparatory seminary. More than a dozen discourses during the 1937-'38 season will be presented by authorities known internationally in their field, and all sessions, which will be open to the general public, will be held in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer house.

Father Magner.

"The forum is a cultural project to present to the public the best in contemporary Catholic thought," Father Magner said. "No special course of study is planned, but leaders and writers, who are qualified to present a Christian point of view on a matter of general concern, will discuss a wide range of subjects. Thus current events, national and international, human relations, literature, and ethics will be covered in the series by lecturers with participation by the audience."

Named for Patriot.

On Sunday, Sept. 19, was observed the 200th anniversary of the birth of the patriot after whom the forum is named, Charles Carroll of Carrollton. He was born at Annapolis, Md., was a member of the Continental congress and a signer of the Declaration of Independence.

The first forum speaker will be Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan, who will speak, Oct. 24, on "Government and Industrial Relations." Other speakers announced are Donald Attwater of London, who will talk, Nov. 16, on "The Catholic Church in Europe Today," and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Peter Guilday of the Catholic University of America in Washington, D. C., who will discuss "Charles Carroll and His Times" on the first Sunday in December.

To aid ministers, church leaders, and religious social workers in dealing with personal problems through the newer techniques in psychiatry and social service, the Chicago Church federation and the Council of Social Agencies jointly are sponsoring a study course of four lecture-discussions on consecutive Monday afternoons at the Central Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street, beginning to morrow at 1 o'clock. The presiding officer will be Wilfred S. Reynolds, director of the council. The theme will be "Personality Problems Viewed in the Combined Light of Psychiatry and Religion."

JUDGES TO TALK ON PALESTINE AT MIZPAH CLUB

A symposium on "The Partition of Palestine" will be held tomorrow evening at Temple Mizpah, 1615 Morse avenue, under the sponsorship of the Mizpah Men's club, Eugene J. Solomon is president. Speakers will include Judge John P. McGoorty and Judge Harry M. Fisher, and Ennio Bolognini, first cellist with Chicago Symphony orchestra, will play.

Arrangements are being made by Jules Berinstein, Nathan Gilbert, Charles Simon, Michael A. Goldberg, Joseph M. Rosenstein, Ned Becker, William Krause, M. H. Silverman, Dr. Louis Morris, Max Green, Sol Eisenstein, Joseph Kadison, David Pierce, Paul Klink, Philip Weinstein, Henry Posner, S. L. Kotchever, Jesse H. Brown, Charles Greener, Joseph Roth, Philip Reinisch, Dr. Simon Aberman, Reuben Don, Dr. T. H. Perlman, Morey Kalish and Ben L. Cohn. Louis L Perlman is publicity chairman.

Friday evening services will be resumed this week at Congregation B'nai Zion with a sermon by Rabbi A. L. Lassen and synagogue melodies by a choir under direction of Ben Pollock.

Recently nominated officers of the Men's club are S. R. Friedman, president; Louis H. Kahn, vice president; E. Sydney Feinstein, secretary, and Hy Skolnik, treasurer.

Temple Sholom Men's club will again hold the Sunday morning discussion hours which proved popular last year. The speaker next Sunday is E. H. Harvey, Ph. C., M. A., Ch. E., Ph. D., of Highland Park, who will give an illustrated talk on "Our Newer Knowledge of Nutrition."

PI KAPPA ALPHA TO GREET WIVES AND MOTHERS

Club to Meet at N. U. House Tomorrow.

The newly completed $40,000 Northwestern university chapter house of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity on Lincoln street, Evanston, will have its welcome mat out tomorrow afternoon for the Mothers and Wives' club, the group having been invited to make its first fall meeting a tour of inspection.

It was the club's treasury that supplied drapes and curtains. Mrs. Hans Matson of Evanston headed the committee that selected materials and made them. The fraternity hosts, extending the students' traditional supreme gesture of appreciation, will serve its visitors refreshments.

Mrs. Olive Shabino of Wilmette, secretary of the club, will present the new members—the mothers of freshmen who have been pledged by the fraternity this semester. Mrs. John Rygel of Winnetka is president.

Kappa Alpha Theta.

Alumnæ of Evanston and the north shore are deep in preparations for the annual student loan and fellowship fund benefit, which is to be given on Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 27, at Shawnee Country club in Wilmette. The party is to be a bridge and style show. Mrs. H. A. Morrison, the president, has appointed Mrs. Charles E. Brandriff of 1313 Oak avenue, Evanston, to take general charge.

The ticket committee has been organized under a three way captaincy, Mrs. George Huth directing the Evanston campaign, Mrs. William C. Henning taking charge in other north shore suburbs, and Mrs. George M. Lawler directing sales in Chicago.

Active Evanston participants are Mrs. Arthur L. Reincke, Mrs. W. E. Schroeder, Mrs. Leslie A. Wood, Mrs. Fred G. Bauer, Miss Helen Sargent, Mrs. Gordon M. Jones, Mrs. W. S. Martens, Mrs. Duncan O. Welty Jr., Mrs. Lyle Fisher, and Miss Frances Bryan. Other suburbs are represented by Mrs. Walter C. Vaaler of Niles Center, Mrs. Walter J. Goettsch, and Mrs. L. E. Mitten of Kenilworth, Mrs. Court W. Toel of Wilmette, Mrs. T. B. McMartin of Winnetka, Mrs. George E. Schumacher of Glencoe, and Mrs. Richard S. Carr of Highland Park.

Phi Omega Pi.

The Northwestern Alumnæ club will hold open house at 4 o'clock today at the chapter house in Evanston.

Phi Gamma Delta.

Mrs. John E. Nilson has been elected president of the woman's auxiliary of the Northwestern university chapter. Others of the staf voted into office are Mrs. Arcule G. Sheasby, vice president; Mrs. Kurt Stoehr, secretary; Mrs. R. Fayerweather Babcock, treasurer; Mrs. Harold G. Roberts, hospitality and membership chairman; Mrs. J. Pearce Cline, ways and means chairman; Mrs. Irene De Kieffer, house chairman; Mrs. M. Fobes, social chairman, and Mrs. Oliver R. Aspegren, program and publicity chairman.

Phi Delta Delta.

The sorority [Central Y. M. C. A. college] will meet at 4 o'clock today at the home of Miss Sylvia Light, 3161 Ainslie street, to install the following: President, Miss Ann Casper; vice president, Miss Lillian Vilatzer; secretary, Miss Light; treasurer, Miss Annette Lessack; pledge mistress, Miss Bernice Spear; and co-chairmen of publicity, Miss Doris Pozen and Miss Margery Kraus.

LIMESTONE ADDS NEW CHARACTER TO MODERN HOME

Mirrors Enhance Lighting from Wide Windows.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

This new home of Mr. and Mrs. William Lowe in River Forest is a finely executed and unusual structure. Its architecture is modern, with sharply defined, carefully balanced wall masses, functional design, large window areas, and roof decks and terraces for outdoor living.

With this ultranew and frankly extreme form there is an exterior wall surfacing of beautifully textured, softly toned limestone. Not often do we see a modern home with walls of stone.

The architect, William Cramer, 624 Clarence avenue, Oak Park, has shown restraint both in the design and the handling of the house, and has employed sturdy construction throughout. He has backed up the stone surfacing with lightweight concrete masonry units, insulated the walls, and embedded 6 inches of mineral wool in the roof.

One Family's Solution.

The interior is as unusual as the exterior in a number of ways; yet, in spite of the fact that it departs from the traditional in certain respects, it gives no impression that an attempt has been made to be "different" or to follow the modern just because it is modern. Rather this home creates the definite impression that it is a strongly personal and happy solution for one family's desire for a functional, convenient, and attractive dwelling.

First, there is the large L shaped living room, distinctive in that a curve forms an inside line rather than the expected right angle. A specially designed divan fits into this curve, adding to the appearance of spaciousness in the room. The "top" of the "L" is used for dining purposes.

Mirrors over Fireplace.

The vogue for a fireplace with an overmantel mirror is growing; sometimes built-in mirrors even surround the fireplace. In this living room the simple fireplace has three mirror panels above it. These reflect two yellow Chinese vases on the small mantel and blend with the golden drapes lined with silver at the windows.

In the library-den on the second floor an illusion of greater space and more abundant outdoor light has been created by a long mirror on a wall space between two small windows. Placed directly opposite is a long rectangular window which helps to light the interior by reflection, for sunlight streaming through a window can be diffused with a cleverly hung mirror.

On this second floor there are, in all, two bedrooms, two bathrooms, and the library-den. Both bedrooms have access to a large roof deck for summer living, and the hall end leads out to a second roof deck terrace.

Generous use of glass in a number of its different and most modern forms is seen in the home. Glass, in its new shapes and guises, is playing a conspicuous part in modern architecture and design.

On this second floor there are, in all, two bedrooms, two bathrooms, and the library-den. Both bedrooms have access to a large roof deck for summer living and the hall end leads out to a second roof deck terrace.

COUNTY RESERVE OFFICERS TO JOIN IN CONTACT CAMP

The Reserve Officers' association of Cook county will sponsor a contact camp for the 4,000 reserve officers in the county next Saturday at Fort Sheridan. During the morning the regular army stationed there will participate in a special parade, and the afternoon program will consist of pistol and saber competitions and addresses by prominent officers. The reserve officers will be served mess at noon.

The first contact camp ever held for reserve officers only has been arranged through the coöperation of Brig. Gen. Philip B. Peyton, commandant at Fort Sheridan. The idea of contact camps, however, was first conceived by Maj. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, the new commander of the 6th corps area, who will attend.

Capt. W. L. Immer has charge of arrangements for the Cook county chapter of the Reserve Officers' association, which is the largest chapter in the United States.

R. O. T. C. AT LANE TECH TO BE LED BY ENGELHARDT

Wins Cadet Lieutenant Colonel's Rank.

Frank J. Engelhardt has been promoted from cadet captain to cadet lieutenant colonel and commanding officer of the Lane Technical High school R. O. T. C., it was announced last week by Sergt. Gillman R. Carle, military instructor. With an enrollment of 920 cadets, this is the largest unit in the city. Other promotions are those of Cadet Maj. Harold Tichnecker, executive officer; Cadet Maj. Hugh Newman, commander of the first battalion; Cadet Maj. Edward Reese, commander of the second battalion; Cadet Maj. Harold Rubel, commander of the third battalion, and Cadet Capt. Joseph Des Roches, regimental adjutant. The first three formerly held the rank of cadet captain, Rubel was a cadet first lieutenant, and Des Roches was a cadet second lieutenant.

Frank J. Engelhardt.

Cadet Second Lieut. Horace Davies won the recruiting medal for the school, enrolling 60 new R. O. T. C. students, Sergt. Carle announced.

After an elimination contest in rifle firing in the prone and kneeling positions among all the cadets who wished to take part, 13 were selected for the rifle team by Cadet Maj. Newman, captain, and Cadet Capt. Ray Angelini, manager.

They are Cadet Capt. Edwin Le Lave, Cadet First Lieut. James Fisher, Cadet Second Lieut. Davies, Cadet Sergts. Rudolph Riska, Martin Bussert, Howard Klein, Robert Lewis, William Puetz, and Don Shaffer, Cadet Corporals George Lings and Fred Oberle, Cadet First Class Rudy Seifert, and Cadet Henry Janecki.

N. U. NAVY CADETS CHANGE OFFICER STAF THIS WEEK

Will Drill Thursday in Full Dress.

Under the command of a temporary group of officers, Northwestern university naval R. O. T. C. cadets will drill in full dress every Thursday afternoon on the meadow north of Patten gymnasium.

For the last three weeks, one set of officers has been in charge, but another group will be in command this week, in keeping with the policy of Capt. Edward D. Washburn Jr., professor of naval science and tactics, to give every senior a chance as an officer.

First Set of Officers.

Those who have served during the last three weeks are W. L. Roberts, battalion commander; R. G. Breeden, battalion subcommander; B. W. Pattishall, adjutant; W. M. Smedley, commissary and quartermaster; N. W. Landis, battalion chief petty officer, and Lieut. P. A. Moore, buglemaster.

Lieut. F. A. Canker was commander of the first company, and Lieut. R. E. Schlecht and Ensign E. W. Elliot headed the platoons.

Officers of the second company were Lieut. R. A. Carney, commander, and Lieut. B. C. West and, Ensign D. R. Sanborn, platoon commanders.

Third Company Command.

In charge of drill for the third company were Lieut. C. H. Johnson, commander, and Lieut. R. C. Bonekemper and Ensign A. A. Schiller, platoon commanders.

Freshmen who enlisted in the battalion have already begun target practice, and all must hit a target three times at a distance of 50 feet before they will be eligible for promotion.

ILLINOIS R. O. T. C. ENROLLS 4,323 FOR NEW RECORD

The University of Illinois R. O. T. C. unit, the largest among colleges in the United States, has broken all enrollment records this semester with 4,323 cadets, including many from Chicagoland. This is a gain of 115 over last year, when the previous high mark was set. The brigade and the university will celebrate their seventieth birthdays this year. The R. O. T. C. listed only 75 cadets its first year, but today it is divided into six units—field artillery, coast artillery, infantry, cavalry, engineers, and signal corps.

Waller

Cadet First Class Allan Andresen is leading in the recruiting campaign for the Waller High school R. O. T. C., it was announced last week by Sergt. Ralph J. Reedy, military instructor.

Waukegan

The officers' club of the Waukegan Township High school R. O. T. C. has undertaken the organization of a state society of junior R. O. T. C. officers on a platform of national defense, it was announced last week by Cadet Maj. William Coonce, newly elected president of the club. The new organization will be similar to Scabbard and Blade, national society among college R. O. T. C. units.

Other officers elected at the meeting of the officers' club are Cadet Maj. Franklin Ford, vice president, and Cadet First Lieut. Robert Terlap, secretary-treasurer. Committees were appointed also for the routine activities of the club.

A large representation from Company C turned out last Wednesday in respect to Cadet Warren Harding, who died Monday after a serious operation. Cadet Harding wore the R. O. T. C. uniform, and the pallbearers were cadets from his squad. The firing squad attended also, and taps were played.

Cadet Maj. Franklin Ford and Cadet Capt. William Woodard have been appointed to command the guard detail at the football field, it was announced by Sergt. John Holly, military instructor.

Sullivan

A color guard of five cadet officers represented the Sullivan High school R. O. T. C. at a dinner given by Joyce Kilmer post of the American Legion last week in the Limehouse restaurant.

Members of the guard were Cadet Captain Hobart Scott, commander; Cadet First Lieutenants Louis Michels and Morton Ex, and Cadet Second Lieutenants Frank Novak and William Kinkade.

The second military ball, Dec. 10, will be presented in the Michigan room of the Edgewater Beach hotel, it was announced last week by Cadet First Lieutenant Ex, committee chairman.

Lake View High Alumni to Give Card Party Friday

The Lake View High school alumni association will give a card party Friday evening at the Great Northern hotel. Arrangements are being made by Herta Walland, chairman; Don Heldt, ticket manager; Miss Alice Benson, George Roesner, Miss Bernice Schonenberger, Miss Lorraine Anderson, John Kuehl, Jo Kuehl, Miss Sylvia Walland, and Carl Heldt.

Senn

Cadet Major David Dean of the Senn High school R. O. T. C. band recently was awarded the first prize of $25 and a gold medal for winning the state American Legion essay contest. The award was made at the state Legion convention.

He had previously won the gold medal in the Nicholas Senn essay contest, sponsored by North Shore post 21 of the American Legion. The subject of his essay was "The Functions of the Supreme court of the United States."

LEGION NOTES

Officers recently installed by Indian Boundary post are John J. Gallagher, commander; Ed E. Stritzel, vice commander; John Keiffer, junior vice commander; Irving Herring adjutant; Adolph Bebber, finance officer; M. J. Kuhnen and Ray Kent, service officers, and Francis Bishop, sergeant at arms.

LEANDER STONE P.-T. A. TO HOLD FATHERS' NIGHT

Park Ridge Pastor Will Speak Tomorrow.

Leander Stone Parent-Teacher association has planned a Fathers' night celebration for its opening meeting at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening at the school. The Rev. John B. Hubbard of St. Mary Episcopal church of Park Ridge will address the group on the subject "New Family Controls for the Present." Mrs. J. L. Leininger, a member of the association, will sing a group of songs. A play, "Let the Next Generation Be My Client," will be given by a group of students under the direction of Miss Annabelle Daugherty. A social hour will follow the meeting. Mrs. William J. Wenrich, president, will preside, and Mrs. Edward G. Chase, program chairman, will introduce the speaker.

The annual Hobby-Craft show sponsored by the association will be held Friday afternoon and evening at the school. Among the exhibits to be shown will be model boats, airplanes, and radios made during the summer months by the boys, and articles knitted and hand woven by the girls. Parents also will participate in the show and awards will be presented to winners in both the child and adult groups. Refreshments will be served during the evening. Mrs. E. A. Greer, chairman of the ways and means committee, is in charge of arrangements, assisted by Mrs. Harry Striblen, social chairman.

A membership enrollment drive is being launched this week under the direction of Mrs. J. P. Schewe, membership chairman, assisted by Mrs. H. W. Kastor, room mother chairman and her committee.

Members of Hayt P.-T. A. board will be hostesses at the opening meeting of the association at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday in the school auditorium. The guest speaker will be Miss Florence Arquin, who will talk on "Art Education in the United States as Fostered by the Federal Art Project." The lecture will be illustrated with slides.

Members of the board are Mrs. Richard M. Carpenter, president; Mrs. C. K. Sutton, first vice president; Mrs. Francis Buchholz, second vice president; Mrs. M. R. Behr, third vice president; Mrs. A. O. Sorensen, recording secretary; Mrs. J. J. Boesiger, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. B. R. Borgeson, treasurer.

David M. Davidson, principal of Nicholas Senn High school, will address members of the P.-T. A. at their first meeting at 1:15 o'clock Thursday at the school. His subject will be "Changes in the Curriculum." Miss Mary Cavanaugh, student advisor, also will speak. A reception to new members will be held during the social hour which will follow the meeting.

Activities will be resumed by the Le Moyne unit this week when it meets for the first time at 1:30 o'clock Friday. The program will include a reading by Mrs. Joseph Koplin entitled "Why Parents Should Visit School," and an exhibit of radio work done by the pupils. Mrs. Mabel Golinkin and mothers of second grade pupils will be hostesses.

The guest speaker at the opening meeting of Brentano association at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow will be Mrs. C. B. Woolsey who will talk on "Benefiting Youth Through Parent-Teacher Membership."

Hamilton P.-T. A. will hold its opening meeting at 1:15 o'clock tomorrow at the school. Greetings will be extended by Mrs. Charles Schiemann, president, after which Miss Margaret Fitzgerald, principal, will talk on "School and Home a Partnership." A social hour will follow with Mrs. Harold Aichele in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Duncan Campbell will speak on "Nonpolitical Work of the League of Nations Today" at the Trumbull P.-T. A. meeting at 1:15 o'clock tomorrow in the assembly hall of the school. The Mothersingers chorus will sing. Mrs. George Hessenick will have charge of the social hour following the program.

Mrs. John C. Jansson, ways and means chairman, is in charge of a food demonstration and card party to be held Tuesday afternoon at 326 West Madison street. Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Jansson or any board member.

A motion picture, "The Eighty Years," will be shown at the meeting of the Goethe P.-T. A. at 1:15 o'clock Thursday in the P.-T. A. room of the school. Refreshments will be served following the meeting.

Fathers' night will be celebrated at the opening meeting of Agassiz association at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening at the school. A talk on "Indoor Sports for Winter" will be given by Al E. Bergman.

Dr. Frank Fitch, psychologist and member of the board of the Illinois Social Hygiene league, will speak at the first meeting of Eugene Field unit at 1:15 o'clock tomorrow. His subject will be "Teaching Social Hygiene." A group of songs will be sung by Mrs. Jack M. Cohen, accompanied by Mrs. Ben Zernes. A reception and tea will be held at the close of the program.

Blaine association will give a luncheon for the faculty of the school on Saturday at the Lincoln-Belmont Y. M. C. A., 3333 North Marshfield avenue at 1 o'clock. Mrs. W. O. Yocum is in charge of arrangements.

Peter C. Boling has been elected president of the Gale Community chorus, sponsored by the Gale P.-T. A. and directed by G. K. Haycock. Other officers are Mrs. Lee L. Wandell, vice president; Mrs. Myrtle Matlack Ries, secretary; P. J. Boots, treasurer; Mrs. C. A. Madsen, librarian; Mrs. O. H. Clermont, assistant librarian; Mrs. Wilford Schilderink, ways and means chairman; Mrs. William A. Patterson, membership chairman, and G. E. Holmquist, in charge of publicity.

The North Side Council of Parent-Teacher Associations will conduct a membership drive during the coming week. The group is composed of 33 elementary school units, the newest one being the Wicker Park organization.

Mrs. D. D. Barnett, food economist, will conduct a food demonstration at 1:15 o'clock Thursday at 4738 North Wolcott avenue, for members of the McPherson P.-T. A. homemaking class. Mrs. R. M. Switzer is chairman of the group.

The parent education group of Armstrong unit will meet at 1:30 tomorrow in room 100 of the school. Miss Flora Dunning, principal, will speak on "New Plans for Armstrong." Mrs. L. G. Dahl is chairman.

620 CHURCH STREET

GROUP OF NEW MUTUAL SHOWS TO START TODAY

Jessel, Talmadge, Welles, Miss Wicker Featured.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

While NBC and CBS launched the majority of their new fall offerings during the last fortnight the Mutual system, with W-G-N as local outlet, has many of its new programs starting today and this week.

Three new Mutual offerings have premières scheduled between 4 and 5:30 this afternoon. Ireene Wicker, the Singing Lady, is to introduce a series of half hour musical plays between 4 and 4:30. These will be drafted along lines similar to the Friday afternoon series last season on NBC.

The vehicle for today is Verdi's "Il Trovatore" featuring Miss Wicker as Leonora and Charles Warburton and James Meighan in supporting parts. Milton Cross will be the narrator. Between today and Christmas Miss Wicker is to present "Aida," "Martha," "Oberon," and Rossini's "Cinderella." In addition there are to be several original musical plays, "Alice in Wonderland" and others.

It's a series of extraordinary promise for children, presented at a convenient hour.

Orson Welles as "Shadow."

Orson Welles, who recently "projected" "Les Miserables" over the Mutual net, returns today as the leading man of "The Shadow." The series will feature 24 separate adventures of Lamont Granston, millionaire playboy, who as the Shadow furthers the forces of law and order against kidnapers, robbers, and other criminals.

Jessel and Talmadge.

A program from the west coast titled, "Thirty Minutes in Hollywood," featuring George Jessel, the comedian, master of ceremonies and movie producer, and his wife, Norma Talmadge, is to be launched over W-G-N-MBS coast to coast today from 5 to 5:30 p. m.

The programs, originating each week in the movie colony, will feature the music of Tommy Tucker's orchestra and his songstress Amy Arnell. Screen celebrities are to appear from time to time, too, as guests.

Singing Canaries Return.

At 10:45 this morning the Singing Canaries will open their 8th year of broadcasting, after a vacation of several months for growing brand new winter feathers.

Five of them—Tony, Jimmie, Duffy, Bing, and the villain Oscar, with the deep bass voice—will be back.

The Warblers will be heard each Sunday at the same time over the Mutual network, the program originating in W-G-N's Chicago studios.

Lone Trail Opry House.

The Lone Trail Opry House, a full hour Monday through Friday variety show fashioned after the productions of the old western opera house, will be aired over W-G-N for the first time from 4 to 5 tomorrow. Col. Tex Thompson will run the show which is to feature a variety of western and hill billy performers. A tabloid western drama is to be presented each day, too, the first one being "The Angel and the Bandit."

Included in the various specialty acts will be the Rhythm Rangers, who were featured on W-G-N last year, the Cactus Crooners, a group of cowboy and hill billy minstrels, Arizona Nell, singer of comedy songs, Little Pinto, Philo, and Gordy, Marfa Mack, Lew and Wes, and Slim Tapper, a dancer.

ARE YOU A MISSING HEIR? THIS PROGRAM MAY INTEREST YOU

Are you the heir to $50,000?

Are you one of America's missing heirs?

This is the question raised by one of the season's new radio programs, the "Court of Missing Heirs," which makes its debut over WBBM-CBS from 6 to 6:30 p. m. tomorrow.

The "Court of Missing Heirs" dramatizes the lives of real people who actually lived and died, leaving unclaimed estates. In addition to offering unusual entertainment, it is hoped that the program will help locate missing heirs. The amounts of money thus awaiting rightful claimants runs into the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The program is based on court records, the research having been done by Al Shebel and James Waters. It is being produced, under supervision of Kirby Hawkes, by Fritz Blocki, radio and stage writer and producer. The show requires a cast of twenty of radio's best known actors and actresses, and a special orchestra under direction of Peter Cavallo Jr.

RADIO BRIDE

On Tuesday a mythical romance will reach a happy conclusion on the radio when Ruth Ann Dexter and Dr. Bob Graham, two of the characters of the W-G-N and Mutual network dramatic show "Bachelor's Children," are married. The wedding will take place on the broadcast at 10:15 a. m. The roles of Ruth Ann Dexter and Dr. Bob Graham are played by Margery Hannon (shown above) and Hugh Studebaker.

VIRGINIA LERAE WILL BE SOLOIST ON MELODY HOUR

Miss Virginia LeRae, American coloratura soprano, is to make a guest appearance on Henry Weber's Pageant of Melody to be aired from W-G-N's audience studio at 9:45 tomorrow night. Miss LeRae will be cofeatured with Attilio Baggiore, tenor, and Mark Love, basso.

Miss LeRae, formerly with the Civic Opera and San Carlo companies, returned recently from a concert and radio tour of South America.

Thursday at 9:30 themes from Schubert will be featured at the "Concert revue" directed by Mr. Weber and featuring Kathryn Witwer, soprano, William Miller, tenor, Mark Love, basso; Adolf Hoffman, cellist and the concert orchestra and chorus.

Friday at 9:30 p. m., Janet Logan will be starred in the playlet "This is Good Bye," by Laura Standish, on the "Curtain Time" broadcast under the direction of Blair Walliser. Miss Logan obtained her first W-G-N part several months ago when she won a Curtain Time audition and since then has become one of the most popular of local actresses. She is a graduate of the Goodman players and stock and is featured in the W-G-N script show "Wife vs. Secretary." Other visible shows:

9:30 tonight—Rhythm and Romance, with Harold Stokes, the W-G-N Dance orchestra and chorus, Edna O'Dell and Arthur Wright.

9:30 p. m. Tuesday—The Northerners, with Berenice Rickman, soprano, as guest soloist.

9:30 p. m. Wednesday—Melodies from the Sky, with the W-G-N Dance orchestra, under the direction of Harold Stokes, Jess Kirkpatrick, Arthur Wright, Berenice Taylor, and the Glee club.

"Tim and Irene"

Tim and Irene Ryan, stars of the W-G-N and Mutual network show "Fun in Swingtime," heard at 5:30 p. m. every Sunday over W-G-N-MBS. Tim Ryan is one of radio's largest men and his wife is one of radio's smallest girls. They were caught in a typical pose just before a recent broadcast.

Europe's Press Will Be Review Stand Subject

Northwestern university's Reviewing Stand, heard each Sunday at 10 a. m. over W-G-N and a Mutual network, will today present a discussion of "Europe's Press."

Featured on the program are Jay Allen, former foreign correspondent, and Kenneth E. Olson, dean of the school of Journalism at Northwestern university. The discussion will center around the freedom of the press in this country and the dictator controled press of many European countries. The Reviewing Stand is under the sponsorship of the University Broadcasting council.

LUCREZIA BORI SOLOIST WITH ITURBI TONIGHT

Lucrezia Bori, noted operatic soprano, will be guest soloist on the Sunday Hour over WBBM-Columbia from 8 to 9 tonight. The symphony orchestra and the 24 voice chorus will be under the direction of José Iturbi.

Highlighting Miss Bori's vocal offerings will be the excerpt "Connais tu le pays," from Thomas' opera, "Mignon"; Arditi's familiar "Il Bacio" [The Kiss], and for contrast the popular American ballad, "Home, Sweet Home." Other selections to be sung by Miss Bori will be Huerter's "Pirate Dreams," Coleridge Taylor's "Life and Death," and a popular Spanish song, "El Tumba y le," by Obradors.

The orchestral selections will include such perennial light classical favorites as Von Suppe's "Poet and Peasant" overture, Ravel's "Bolero," the pantomime and ritual fire dance from De Falla's "El Amor Brujo," and in conclusion Haydn's hymn, "The Spacious Firmament on High," in which the audience will take part. W. J. Cameron will speak briefly during the intermission.

Wilbur Evans, talented concert baritone, will be heard singing opposite Jeanette MacDonald during several of the Open House programs over WBBM-CBS at 6 p. m. Sundays. Evans will appear with Miss MacDonald tonight.

Miss MacDonald and Evans will be heard in varied musical programs of condensed operettas, favorite song ballads, and scenes from the soprano's outstanding screen successes. They will be assisted by Josef Pasternack's orchestra and chorus.

JERITZA, STRAUS HEADLINERS OF VIENNESE NIGHT

Oscar Straus, noted composer-conductor, will be guest director of the Symphony orchestra at 7 tonight over WENR-NBC. Titled "Viennese Night," the program will be the first of a series of "nights" which will attempt to convey musically that which the title suggests. Maria Jeritza, soprano, and Joseph Schmidt, tenor, two members of the permanent concert company, will be soloists.

Erno Rapee, permanent conductor of the seventy piece symphony orchestra, will introduce Straus to the radio audience. The composer of the favorite comic opera, "The Chocolate Soldier," will conduct a medley of his own works including selections from "The Waltz Dream" and "The Chocolate Soldier."

The orchestra, with Rapee conducting, will open the brilliant exposition of the Vienna influence in music by playing J. Strauss' waltz, "Wine, Women, and Song." Rapee also will conduct the ballet music from Schubert's "Rosamunde," Kreisler's "Caprice Viennois," and waltzes from R. Strauss' "Der Rosenkavalier."

Maria Jeritza and Schmidt will offer the duet from J. Strauss' "The Gypsy Baron" and Miss Jeritza will sing "Vienna, City of Dreams" and "Omnipotence." Schmidt will be heard in Korngold's "Lied Zu Lante" and Schubert's "Ungeduld."

The medley which Straus will conduct and which will feature Miss Jeritza, Schmidt, and the chorus, includes "Softly, Just Softly" and "O Du Liebe" from "The Waltz Dream," and "The Bulgarians Are Coming" and "My Hero," both from "The Chocolate Soldier."

Sibelius Symphony Series Will Be Launched Today

The seven symphonies of Sibelius, great Finnish composer, will be played by the Radio City Music Hall Symphony orchestra during the seven Music Hall on the Air programs, beginning at 11:30 a. m. today over WENR-NBC.

STOP LOSING SLEEP

BECAUSE OF GAS PAINS, INDIGESTION, HEADACHE, NERVOUSNESS

DUE TO FAULTY ELIMINATION

BONKORA PROMISES RELIEF—OR NO PAY!

BonKora has brought priceless relief to many run-down, nervous, pale folks who couldn't sleep—who had no appetite, and suffered from headaches, biliousness, gas pains, and other unpleasantness due to retention of waste in the digestive system. These relieved sufferers are loud in their praise of BonKora. We know what BonKora has done for so many others who suffered from the nervous, run-down, sleepless condition brought on by faulty elimination or colonic stasis. So—here's a proposition that you'll hardly ignore. Get a bottle of BonKora from your druggist at once. Drink a glass of orange juice mixed with a tablespoonful of BonKora half an hour before breakfast each morning—and at the end of one week you must be sleeping better, feeling better, looking better—or we lose. You risk nothing.

YOU WIN—OR WE LOSE!

If you don't go to sleep quickly—sleep soundly—feel better—look better—at the end of one week, your money will be promptly returned without a word. No delay. No argument. You are the sole judge. You must be satisfied with BonKora results or we lose.

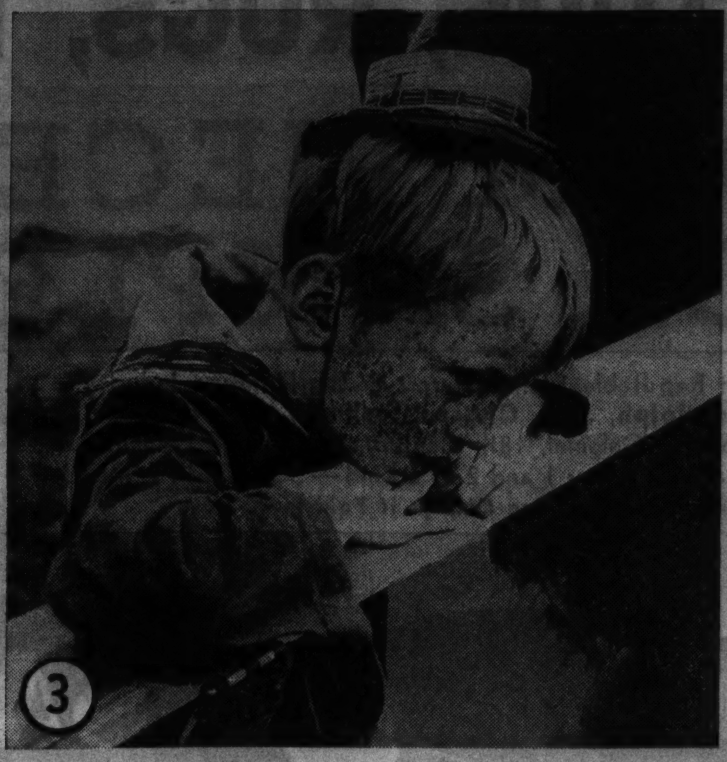
What the Debutante Should and Should Not Do—New Yorkers See the Sights at a County Fair

[Acme Photo.]

TEACHING A DEBUTANTE—Charlotte Sage (left), member of 1936 Debutantes' club of Atlanta, Ga., advising Helen Aycock of the 1937 group, to keep an engagement book to avoid last minute haste.

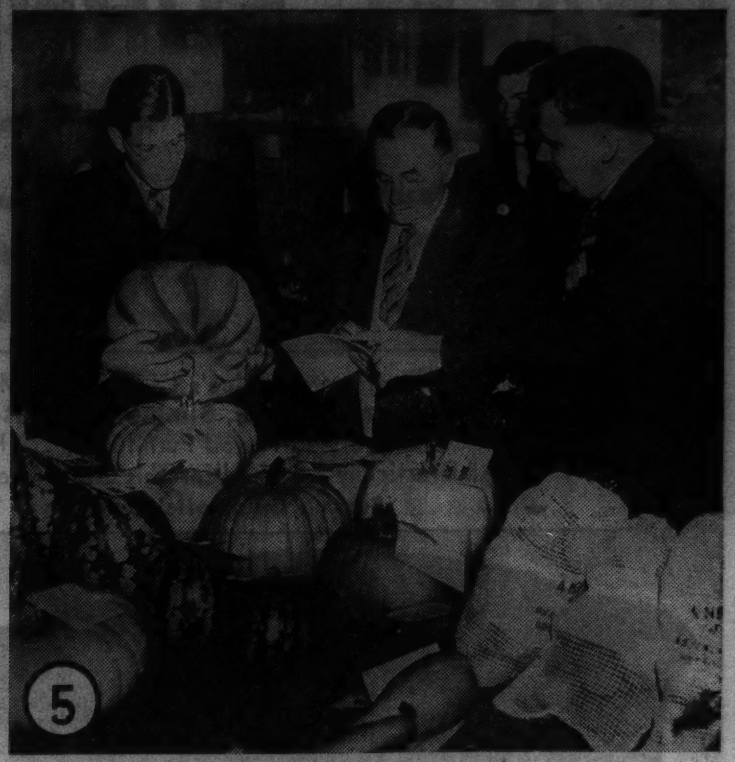
[Acme Photo.]

"AND IT'S ONLY A DIME, FOLKS"—The cry of the barker had the same effect on New Yorkers attending the suburban Mineola county fair as on middlewesterners. The fair revealed that the city dwellers are little different than their country cousins when entertainment is offered.



[Acme Photo.]

DON'T COUNT THE FRECKLES—If this lad hadn't told the photographer he was from the Bronx that fact would not have been known. He had just bought a trick straw hat and was watching the pig judging.



[Acme Photo.]

PUMPKINS ON DISPLAY—These were grown by suburbanites and entered in the fair. The keenness of the competition was reflected in the expressions of the three judges making comparisons of the entries.

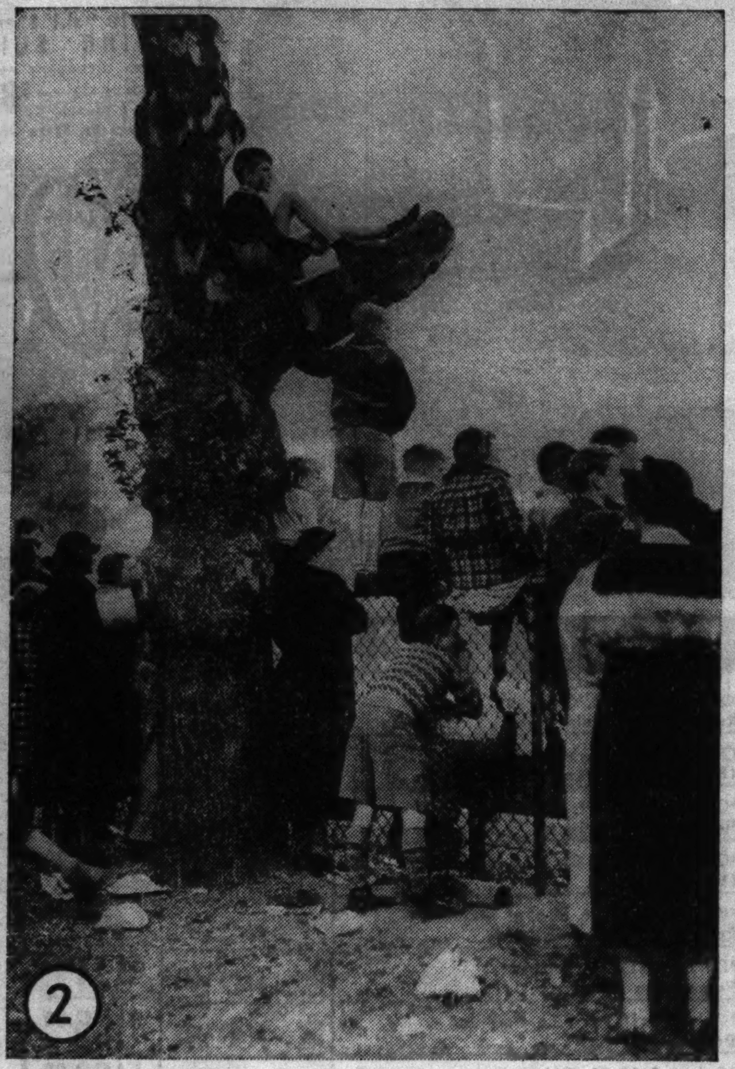
[Acme Photo.]

THE BALLOONS ARE NO BIGGER—A few seconds later this balloon broke, even as balloons broke for hundreds of other boys at country fairs. New York children especially were attracted to the Mineola fair.

THEY LEARNED ABOUT COWS FROM THESE—If any of the city dwellers attending the fair didn't know what a cow looked like he soon found out. Children who may not see another cow until next year's fair were attracted to these. [Acme Photo.]

[Acme Photo.]

ADVICE ON MEN—Catherine Campbell (left) of 1936 tells Anne Atkins to go out with as many different young men as possible. She feels the reason for a debut is to meet people.



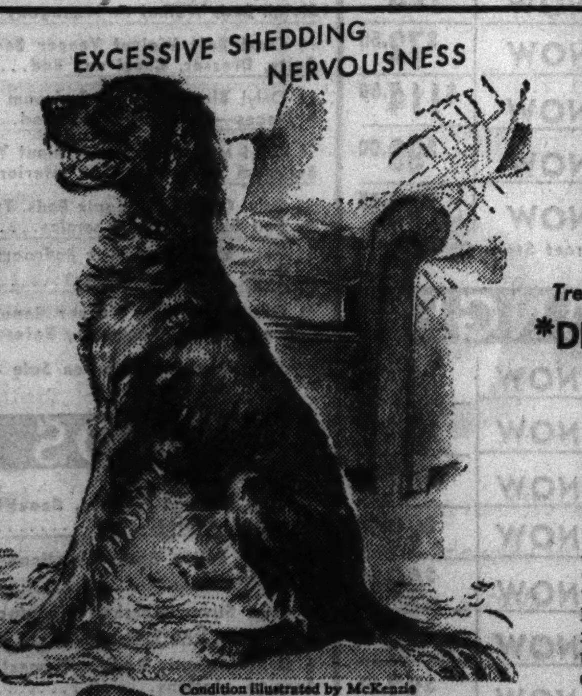
THERE THE TROTTERS GO—Railbirds are familiar sights at county fairs, and again the New Yorkers proved they like the same races preferred in Iowa. Many sought vantage points beside the dirt track. [Acme Photo.]

[Acme Photo.]

DON'T OVEREAT—Martha De Golian, who is helping 1936 debs pass on useful information to this year's group, demonstrates the necessity for guarding against overeating at parties.

Veterinarians Crusade against Hit-or-Miss Dog Feeding

CASE HISTORIES PRESENTED BY SWIFT AND COMPANY World-Famous Purveyors of Fine Foods



Condition illustrated by McKenzie

Treated by

DR. A. C. M____.

The veterinarian reported the case of this Irish setter (see photo at right) thus: "The symptoms displayed, excessive shedding of hair and a nervous condition, are common in my practice. All too often they indicate really serious deeper-lying troubles, caused by incorrect feeding." Today, like Dr. M........, foremost veterinarians everywhere are crusading against hit-or-miss feeding of dogs, especially against the feeding of nutritionally deficient food. (This setter's symptoms have vanished on an exclusive diet of Pard, Swift's canine-tested feeding formula.)

PARD.. SWIFT'S CANINE-TESTED FEEDING FORMULA

A PURE MEAT DIET is fine for coyotes . . . and would be for your dog, too, if he lived a wild, savage life. But instead, his habits are quiet and civilized. His lack of exercise must be compensated for in his diet . . . a delicate nutritional problem.

Swift & Company has now solved this problem, after years of research. In PARD, Swift offers a formula that has been fed as an exclusive diet to 4 generations of fine, healthy dogs. Pard is made of fresh beef meat food products, balanced with seven other top-quality ingredients. Safeguard your dog's health—put him on Pard. Swift & Company, Chicago.

MAKE YOUR CAR LIVE LONGER BY INSURING IT WITH PENNZOIL

OIL CITY, PENNSYLVANIA, is the home of PENNZOIL, the largest organization in the world devoted exclusively to the production, refining and marketing of Pennsylvania oil.

DEATH VALLEY TORTURE TEST. Ted Ellis drove a Pontiac 6 for 5,008 miles in blistering Death Valley. He used Pennzoil SAE 10—and only 2 quarts, 4 ounces of that!

Imagine buying insurance that makes you live longer! Yet that's exactly what you can do for your car by using Pennzoil Motor Oil.

Pennzoil insures you against wear because it penetrates to every moving part, protects it with tough-film oil. It insures you against heat because Pennzoil flows faster—keeps hot spots cooler. It insures you against valve and piston ring troubles because Pennzoil resists sludge 30 to 60 times longer than plain oils.

Get this "longer life" insurance from your nearest bonded Pennzoil dealer!

GREAT JUPITER, NEELY, YOU HAD A LOT OF NERVE COMING HERE TO VISIT ME. THEY MIGHTA PINCHED YOU!
YEAH? THEY DON'T SUSPECT ME! ANYWAY - I HAD TO TAKE A CHANCE. I'VE GOT BAD NEWS.
LISTEN, JERRY, THE REPORT IN THE MORNING PAPER SAYS DANNY SUPEENA DIED LAST NIGHT!
FROM THE SHOTS HE GOT IN THAT MOVIE HOUSE CAPTURE, EH?
VISITORS KEEP HANDS OFF MESH
WHY THE - IF I COULD GET OUT OF HERE, WHAT I WOULDN'T DO TO THAT FLATFOOT THAT DRILLED HIM!
SHUT UP.
WHAT DO YOU FIGURE THEY'LL NAIL YOU FOR?
THE MOUTHPIECE TELLS ME IT'LL MEAN ABOUT FIVE YEARS UP THE RIVER, AT LEAST.
LISTEN - AIN'T THERE ANYTHING I CAN DO FOR YOU, JERRY.
NO - NOT A THING.
AH! YES, NEELY! THERE IS A THING. JUST ONE THING!
WHAT'S THAT?
I THINK YOU KNOW WHAT I'M THINKING -
YEAH - I THINK I DO, JERRY.

Sally Scrubhard Solves a Sit down Strike!

The "MIRACLE OF IRIUM" is in BOTH Pepsodent Powder and Pepsodent Paste!

Remarkable New Tooth Cleanser Reveals Dazzling, Brilliant Teeth to Millions!

● BE THRILLED! . . . as millions are who have long sought sparkling, brighter teeth! Give up that old-fashioned dentifrice that has never seemed to improve the looks of your teeth, and start at once with Pepsodent Tooth Paste or Pepsodent Tooth Powder containing IRIUM—the remarkable new luster discovery! . . . You see, proper brushing is only half the secret of teeth that gleam and glisten with their full natural radiance. The other half is the right dentifrice. So do as millions are doing . . . use Pepsodent containing IRIUM twice a day. Then you'll quickly bid goodbye to dull surface-stains that hide the true luster of your teeth.

But remember, Pepsodent Tooth Paste and Pepsodent Tooth Powder alone contain IRIUM. . . . Pepsodent containing IRIUM is Safe! Contains NO GRIT, NO PUMICE. It speedily loosens surface-stains, then gently brushes them away . . . revealing natural pearly luster in record time!

Try it at OUR EXPENSE and see for yourself! See how quickly Pepsodent containing IRIUM gets your teeth far brighter. See how Pepsodent shows up any other dentifrice you've ever used—BAR NONE!

Mail the coupon for a FREE 7-day supply. Do it now—before you forget! Check whether you want Pepsodent Tooth Paste or Pepsodent Tooth Powder. Both contain remarkable, patented IRIUM.

FREE..7-DAY SUPPLY

Prove, at OUR COST, what IRIUM can do for your teeth!

Streaky
by Loy Byrnes
Streaky has left ol' Mike's barge to avoid any further meetings with Doris Dawson. He leaves behind a confusing note, asking forgiveness for what he has done. The old man's life savings have disappeared and he of course suspects Streaky of taking his money. When Mike explains the situation to Doris she breaks out in a fit of laughing
Oh-ho-ho-ho ha-ha - that's funny! Oh - dear - that is funny!
I don't be seein' anything funny missdinged if I do!
So you had your money folded in a bundle of old magazines piled in a corner - and - and - I threw them overboard - oh dear - ha ha-ha -
You - you what?!
The other day I came here and finding nobody home I decided to clean the place up a bit. Thinking it was just a lot of old trash gathering dust, I threw the whole business overboard
At the same time, Streaky, unaware of having been suspected and cleared, in a distant part of the city
Well, I'll be a hammer-headed ol' fool!! So that's what happened! Come on, let's get a grappling hook
Sure enough - here she be! An' me thinkin' he stole me money. Sure, I'm that ashamed I could kick m'self all around th' waterfront
See -
Yep - all safe and sound. Just a bit damp. The tightly packed magazines kept 'em from gettin' water soaked
I'm goin' right out an' find him an' apologize an' explain -
Yes, the money is explained - but it doesn't explain that note. I'm wondering what he meant by it

Soap and Water are not enough to prevent perspiration odor

A DAILY BATH is a grand idea, of course—but it isn't magic. Your bath can do just one thing—cleanse the skin of past perspiration. It can't possibly prevent perspiration odor later in the day.

To do that, give underarms special care after your bath. With Mum!

Just half a minute to use Mum. A quick fingertipful smoothed under each arm—that's all there is to using Mum! Then you're safe for the whole strenuous day.

Mum soothes and cools skin. Prove this by using Mum right after shaving the underarms. Even a "touchy" skin doesn't mind!

Harmless to clothing. Use Mum any time, even after you're dressed, for it does not injure fabrics.

Does not prevent perspiration. Mum does just what you want it to do—prevents the odor of perspiration and not the perspiration itself.

Use Mum after your daily bath and perspiration odor will never cause people to avoid you! Bristol-Myers Co., 630 Fifth Ave., New York.

AFTER YOUR BATH USE MUM!

MUM TAKES THE ODOR OUT OF PERSPIRATION

START TODAY TO CLEAR UP YOUR SKIN Join the Murray-Go-Rounds... Dance Your Way to MORE GOOD TIMES

Easy to Join—It's easy as ABC to become a Murray-Go-Round!

All you do is save the labels from the 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast you eat every day. Ask your grocer for a free Murray-Go-Round Card. Paste your labels on—3 each day for 27 days. Then, send it in for your free Murray-Go-Round Ring, new Arthur Murray Dance Lessons and "50 Party Ideas"!

Today, girls and boys everywhere are finding Fleischmann's fresh Yeast a simple, effective help in clearing up the pimples that so often come during adolescence and spoil good looks and good times. Eat 3 cakes daily. Give it a real chance to help you, just as it has helped so many others.

And remember—save every label! You need only 81 of them to join the Murray-Go-Rounds, the new dance set that is taking the country by storm!

Get your Murray-Go-Round Card from your grocer today. Start pasting your yeast labels on it now.

If your grocer has no Murray-Go-Round Cards—save 81 yeast labels and send them in pasted on plain paper, or just put them in an envelope. Be sure to include your name, address and size ring you wear. Mail to Fleischmann's Yeast, 305 East 45th Street, New York City.

DON'T LET ADOLESCENT HICKIES PUT A STOP TO YOUR GOOD TIMES—

You can't get up much dancing spirit—if the effect of your loveliest dress or best white tie is spoiled by a pimply face!

Unfortunately many girls and boys are troubled this way. Their skin gets sensitive. Waste poisons in the blood irritate this sensitive skin, and pimples break out.

Young people by the thousands now eat Fleischmann's fresh Yeast to help clear their skin. Eat 3 cakes every day—a cake about ½ hour before each meal—plain or in a little water.

MARINELLO

OCTOBER 10, 1937.

AN OPEN LETTER TO AMBITIOUS GIRLS:

Fear is mankind's greatest enemy. Not fear of physical injury, but fear of the future, fear of failure, and doubts of one's own ability. The only cure for fear of failure is to take steps to eliminate this possibility. In other words, achieve the position of a trained expert in some line. The field that offers the greatest rewards for ambitious girls and women is modern scientific Beauty Culture.

Beauty Culture, as Marinello teaches it, is not simply a matter of giving permanent waves, setting hair, manicuring, and the other mechanical operations that are the basic principles of Beauty Culture. It is much more than that. A Marinello graduate is, of course, expert in all the mechanical operations. But she is also trained in hair styling, in creating modes of hairdressing, and in the business principles which prepare her to fill a position as sales representative, instructor, supervisor, specialist, manager or beauty shop owner. She is more than just another beauty shop operator. She is an expert in her line, embarking on a career.

You owe it to yourself to investigate the marvelous opportunities beauty Culture offers you. It will be to your advantage to have a personal talk with me at Marinello [National School of Cosmeticians, Inc.], 108 N. State-st., Chicago, the foremost school of Beauty Culture in the world today. Day and evening classes at Marinello must necessarily be limited, therefore it will pay you to visit our school tomorrow. If you cannot do this write or phone State 5057 for National Descriptive Manual.

LOUIS A. PERRAUD, DEAN.

AIR CONDITIONING
AND REFRIGERATION
TRAINED MEN ARE NEEDED AT ONCE.
Air Conditioning and refrigeration are setting up new records in all branches of the industry — railroads, office buildings, theaters, restaurants, stores, hotels, professional offices, factories and residences. These installations necessitate an army of trained men for manufacture and sale of equipment, designing, estimating, installation, maintenance, servicing and repair.
To meet this demand a nationwide institution, Thermo Air Conditioning Institute, is opening as a fully equipped residential school at 129 W. Hubbard-street [cor. N. La Salle]. If you're 18 years old, ambitious to better yourself or want further references as to your fitness for this work, send for free booklet, entitled "The Air You Breathe."

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

An Aristocratic Sheep

Oct. 9, 1937.

THE trim, good looking Southdown ram that recently arrived at the experimental farm ought to have no complaints about life. He's treated like a privileged animal guest and is given roomy quarters. When we looked at this aristocratic member of the sheep family we were impressed by his smart groomed appearance, his friendliness, and the excellence of his conformation.

The flockmaster had the ram pose for us so that we could look him over carefully. The animal stood as quietly as a perfectly trained dog in a show. He looks every inch a blue blood, and he has a long pedigree story of ancestors that have won and posed in the show ring for the benefit of the judges. But the feature of this fine ram that doubtless will impress every one who sees it is his back. It has been trimmed perfectly so that it is as flat and smooth as a billiard table.

Curious Partnership.

The guinea hens that like to hunt for their food in the sheep pastures had strange company this week. The birds were in the field, picking up everything from seeds of wild plants to insects that had survived the light frost, when they were joined by several crows.

Apparently the crows were smart enough to realize that the guineas were finding something worth while to eat, so down they swooped into the sheep pasture to take advantage of the tip. When we were watching this curious partnership the flockmaster remarked about the difference in the growth between the guinea hens that stay in the fields finding food throughout the day and the ones that spend their time around the barnyard, making noise when anybody arrives. The birds in the field have developed faster and now weigh more than those in the barnyard.

This difference between barnyard birds and those that forage for food in the open also is noticeable among the Muscovy ducks. The Muscovys on the ponds seem to thrive on the exercise taken during the course of finding natural food in and around the water.

If a few more high bush cranberry plants could be located on the farm the families would have their own home grown cranberry jelly for Thanksgiving turkey dinners. A few days ago clusters of bright red berries on bushes in the lower woods attracted attention. Upon investigation this fruit proved to be that of the wild high bush cranberry — a plant that produces berries usually liked by rural dwellers. The berries are bright red and round and quite acid in flavor. The clusters of berries that were found were immediately taken to one of the farm kitchens. The jelly which was made from them is delicious and appetizing, with a true cranberry flavor.

Turkey Hen Admonished.

What the flockmaster hopes is the last turkey nest of the season has been found in the woods. He has been trying to discourage the birds from making late nests and in laying eggs, because it's too late in the year for them to raise poults. The other day we found a nest with two eggs in it. The nest and the eggs were destroyed and the foolish old turkey hen that owned both was told by various kinds of gestures to get back to the barnyard where she belonged.

The heavy rain which fell several days ago made workers on the farm feel better about fall plowing and proved beneficial to the rye, which is showing above the ground. The soil was so dry before the rain that the plows were turning over piles of dust instead of rich black earth. All the farmers in the Wheaton area had given up the fall plowing job to wait for rain.

Start Million Dollar Apartment Building Program on Far South Side

J. E. COLNON & CO TO BUILD FORTY TWO FLAT UNITS

Small Homes Announced for Markham.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Two large residential building projects were announced yesterday, one for the far south side and the other in the suburb of Markham. The city program, announced by John E. Colnon & Co., will involve an approximate million dollar investment in land and buildings. The suburban program, although starting out with no definite number of homes planned, may run well above a million dollars if the public reaction is satisfactory.

The building program of John E. Colnon & Co. calls for the erection of at least forty apartment buildings of two suites each. They will occupy all of the west side of the two blocks in Emerald avenue, between West 111th and 113th streets, and the east side of Emerald, between West 112th and 113th, comprising a total of 1,800 feet frontage.

Two Buildings Completed.

As each two flat building will cost an average of $18,000, the investment in construction alone will be approximately $720,000. With the land, the total expenditure probably will be more than a million dollars.

Two units, comprising four apartments, have been completed at 11207 and 11211 South Emerald avenue. The building at No. 11211 was sold to Albert J. Isherwood, a manufacturer, for $16,000, all cash. The suites have five rooms each. Many of the remaining thirty-eight buildings will have six rooms and two baths.

Work will start on several more of the contemplated forty about Nov. 1, it was asserted.

Recalls Boom Days.

H. W. Alm & Associates yesterday outlined, through Arch C. Johnson a building program for a total of nearly 1,000 lots in the eastern part of Markham. The territory is bounded by the Illinois Central railroad on the east, 161st street [dividing line between Harvey and Markham] on the north, Dixie highway on the west, and 167th street on the south.

This is part of the large area put on the market during the boom days by G. Frank Croissant. In the area in which Alm is operating, improvements are in and paid for. A few of the streets are paved.

Seven Under Way.

The first unit of a building program which, if public interest is shown, probably will total seventy-five houses during the next year, according to Johnson, will number ten residences. Work already has been started on seven. By April 1 three more will be under way, Johnson said.

Sites for all ten are on Lincoln and Honore streets, between 161st and 163d streets. Three are expected to be finished by Jan. 1 and all of them are scheduled for completion by April 1.

Financed with Federal Housing administration insured mortgages, they will sell from $8,000 to $9,750. With down payments of $2,500 they will be amortized in 19½ years through monthly payments of approximately $55. They will have five and six rooms. Willard C. Walker is architect.

BASKIN RENEWS STATE STREET LEASE TO 1947

Fred H. Fischl, president of Baskin's, men's clothiers, yesterday signed a new lease for the four story building at 131-33 South State street. The new lease will be for eight years and three months, beginning Jan. 31, 1939 and ending Apr. 30, 1947.

The company, one of the largest dealers in Hart, Schaffner & Marx clothing in the country, occupies 30,000 square feet of space, divided into three selling floors, a shipping and storeroom floor and a basement.

Fischl said numerous improvements have been made to the property, the latest being an air conditioning system completed in July. Further changes, inside and out, are contemplated. The company also operates a store at 77 West Washington street, in the Chicago Temple building.

Spring Coiling Company Builds $50,000 Factory

The Automatic Spring Coiling company bought 40,000 square feet of vacant land on the south side of Thorndale avenue, 400 feet west of Pulaski road, in the Peterson industrial district, and is having a one story factory erected by Holton, Seelye & Co., at a reported cost of $50,000. N. Ray Miller of Chandler & Montague was broker.

Woman Sells Apartments at Claremont and Glenlake

Anna Steinmetz sold the ten apartment building at the northwest corner of Claremont and Glenlake avenues to Henning G. Stake for an undisclosed all cash price. John J. Kern, Inc., was broker.

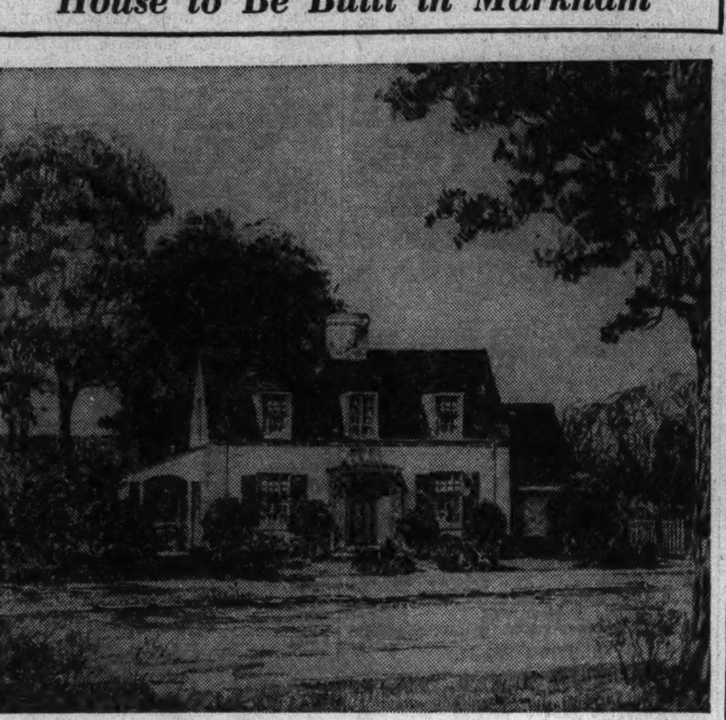
First Units in South Side Project

B. Albert Comm is architect of the above pair of two flat buildings erected at 11207 and 11211 South Emerald avenue by John E. Colnon & Co. as the first units in a million dollar building program involving the erection of forty structures, all with two suites. Some will contain five rooms and one bath and the balance six rooms and two baths. The above buildings occupy lots 35 by 125. They are set back fifteen feet from the sidewalk and each has a two car garage. Albert J. Isherwood, a manufacturer, bought the building on the right for $16,000 cash and will occupy one apartment.

House to Be Built in Markham



Willard C. Walker is architect of the above Georgian type residence, one of ten new homes to be erected in the east part of Markham by H. W. Alm & Associates as the first group in a building program calling for a minimum of seventy-five homes in the next year.

HIGHLAND PARK TO HAVE $125,000 BUSINESS BLOCK

Bids are now being taken on a three story store and apartment building in Highland Park, at the northwest corner of Judson avenue and Roger Williams avenue, which it is expected will cost $125,000. The owner is represented by Paul Phelps, Inc. Designed by Armstrong, Furst & Tilton, the new building will be of colonial type, exterior walls of common brick painted white, with green shutters and iron balconies. It will have seven stores and twenty apartments of one, two and four rooms each. It will front 159 feet on Roger Williams avenue and sixty feet on Judson avenue.

Contractors' Supply Co. Buys Industrial Building

The Advance Contractors Supply company bought the industrial building at the southeast corner of Ohio street and Marshfield avenue, containing 10,000 sq. ft., from Edward J. and Nellie R. Meyers, for an undisclosed price. Frederick E. Hummel & Co. were brokers.

PITTSFIELD BUILDING WILL AIR CONDITION 4 FLOORS OF SHOPS

Installation of the first unit of an air conditioning system which eventually may cover the entire forty story Pittsfield building, at Wabash and Washington, was begun yesterday by the estate of Marshall Field. The initial temperature control unit will supply cool air in summer and warm air in winter to all of the shops from the second to the fifth floors inclusive, according to Frank M. Whiston, manager of the building.

The system being installed, he said, is so planned that it can be enlarged as much as demand warants. The initial development will be ready for operation by Dec. 31, it was asserted.

"Temperature differences between indoors and outdoors will be maintained on a sliding scale, with a maximum difference of 15 degrees in hot weather and a minimum of 74 in winter," said Whiston.

"Automatic filters will clean the air distributed through the system and manually operated devices will control the amount of air furnished to individual spaces in order that proper temperatures can be maintained under varied occupancy and working condiitons."

FORMER KARPEN ESTATE AT LAKE GENEVA IS SOLD

Two more Lake Geneva estates were sold last week. The M. Karpen east shore property of ten acres, with a large residence, was purchased by J. E. Swanson of Chicago. He formerly lived on the east shore, but his house burned and he has been residing near his former place. The house just bought was built by Albert S. Keep and later owned by E. J. Doering and still later by O. P. Curran, from whom Karpen bought it.

The other sale was the George Spies residence on the north shore, near Cisco beach, with 50-foot frontage, a large stone house, garage, gymnasium and other buildings. W. F. Best, real estate broker, bought it. The sale of the Karpen estate was made through W. F. Best & Son.

BUILDING PACE SLACKENING IN SUBURBAN TOWNS

Fewer Homes Are Erected During September.

Building construction of all kinds, and home building in particular, showed declines during September as compared with the preceding month. Permits were issued last month for buildings valued at $2,463,834, compared with $4,102,379 in August. The camparison with September, last year, shows a slight increase, there being $2,425,641 in permits in that month of 1936.

When it is remembered that during August, this year, permits for three big industrial plants were taken out in the suburbs, which boosted the total above the four million dollar mark, the decrease in the September total is not so significant.

Home Building Declines.

Home building, long the mainstay of suburban construction, showed a shrinkage in September, this year, as compared with a big increase in September, 1936, over the preceding month, reaching the lowest level since last February. Permits for 211 homes, valued at $1,424,392, were issued last month. This compares with 239 homes, with a value of $1,674,217, in August, and with 220 in September, 1936, valued at $1,650,497.

Despite the decline in home building last month, the total for the first nine months of this year shows a big gain over the same period last year. So far this year permits for home building valued at $15,004,276 were issued, compared with $8,839,315 for the same nine months of last year.

Nine Months Show Gain.

Comparison of all types of building, both residential and non-residential, for the first nine months of this year with the same period last year, also shows an encouraging increase. So far this year the total is $27,508,628, compared with $19,666,187 for the same nine months of 1936 and with $10,619,409 in the 1935 period.

Remodeling and repair work continue to be an important factor in suburban building totals. So far this year, permits for this type of building have totaled $2,983,810.

Communities which report five or more new homes, or home values with a total of more than $35,000, are Evanston with seven residences valued at $149,000; Gary, 33 homes, $122,000; Wilmette, 10 homes, $117,000; Highland Park, 6 homes, $94,000; Hammond, 21 homes, $88,000; Mount Prospect, 7 homes, $59,000, and Northfield, 6 homes, $59,000.

Wilmette Leads All Suburbs.

Other suburbs and the number of permits and value of homes are: Lake Forest, 3, $55,000; Berwyn, 6, $49,000; River Forest, 3, $46,000; Elmhurst, 3, $42,000; Aurora, 7, $36,000; Park Ridge, 3, $31,000; Waukegan, 12, $22,000; Elgin, 5, $21,000; Joliet, 8, $20,000, and Blue Island, 10, $14,000.

Wilmette led all suburbs in its total of all classes of building with permits issued for $400,000. Evanston was next with $205,000, and Gary third with $198,000.

Wilmette's big total was caused by a permit issued by Building Commissioner W. A. Wolff for a $280,000 building to be used as a retreat house for retired members of the order of Sisters of Charity.

Greenebaum Makes Survey.

The survey of suburban building is made this month for the first time by the Greenebaum Sons Investment company. For several years it was compiled by the Straus Securities company.

The taking over of the survey by the Greenebaum company represents one of its new activities following the recent financial reorganization of the company, according to Edgar N. Greenebaum, its president.

Contracts Awarded

Contracts awarded in Chicago during the week Oct. 1 to 7, according to figures supplied by the F. W. Dodge corporation, totaled 28, with a combined cost of $1,513,200. For the corresponding week last year there were 35 contracts totaling $545,058. So far this year the total cost of contracts is $45,462,483, compared with $36,025,255 for the same period last year.

News of the Architects

The October meeting of the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects will consist of a preview of the Julia Lathrop Homes, federal housing project, at Diversey and the river, at 4 p. m. next Tuesday. It will be followed by a dinner at Zum Goldener Ochsen, 1578 Clybourn avenue.

Realty Board Election Will Be Held Nov. 3

Unless a new ticket enters the field prior to Oct. 28 Arthur Kruggel will be elected president of the Chicago Real Estate board at the annual election on Nov. 3. As announced at the recent monthly meeting of the board, Walter R. Drennan is on the Kruggel ticket as first vice president, Joseph B. Ford as secretary, and George J. Eckhoff as treasurer.

The other vice presidential nominees, comprising the board of governors, each of them the head of a division, are John H. Southman, chairman of the renting and management division; Orlo O. Montague, industrial division; William C. F. Kolmar, brokers' division; Paul D. Angell, home builders and land developers' division; Ernest H. Lyons, appraisers' division; Ferd Kramer, mortgage and finance division, and Robert E. L. Brooks, Torrens division.

Name Division Members.

The following members have been named for the seven divisions: Renting and management, north, Burt R. Kiely and Fredric P. Kirschner; northwest, Ralph H. Beesley and S. O. Stone; west, J. W. McNichols and Albert F. Keeney; southwest, Grant D. Dazey and Floyd G. Dana; south, Henry T. Holsman and Oscar H. Boenicke; central, Edward J. Lindall and James W. Belanger.

Louis B. Beardslee will be on the industrial division. The brokers' division will comprise Hugh W. Croxton, Phil R. Kaleth, J. W. McNichols, Robert C. Graham, John P. Quigley, and William C. Regelin.

Karl M. Zander and Arthur T. McIntosh are members of the home builders and land developers' division. On the appraisers' division are Percy E. Wagner, Newton C. Farr, and George R. Hanson. William J. Bryar and Charles H. Binney are on the mortgage and finance division.

Roy E. Knauer, James H. Martin, and William C. Bender are members of the Torrens division.

Six New Directors.

Six new directors are named on the ticket. They are Elmer E. Stults, Irving Gillick, Cary E. DeButts, Leonard C. Mattson, Morgan L. Fitch, and Henry George Slavik.

New members on three committees are voted on at the election. Harold H. Egan, Hugh C. Michels, and Harry A. Bollman are on the membership committee; Fred M. Lorish and George W. Busch on the reference and arbitration committee. The appraisal committee has the following names: Frank Slosson, A. R. Hult, F. H. Halvorsen, Edward J. Scott, Clyde B. Reed, Harold V. Jacobs, John F. Jones, and Archibald C. Jennings.

DOBROTH & CO. COMPLETES SIX NEW RESIDENCES

R. Dobroth & Co., Inc., home builders since 1895, during which time they have erected several thousand residences, announce a building program of twelve dwellings. This is their first activity since 1929. Six of the new homes have been built in the Kedzie-Bryn Mawr area, and four have been sold. Three of the houses are at 5710, 5812, and 5829 North Drake avenue. Work will start shortly on the remaining six, it was said, with the expectation of having them ready for occupancy by May.

All of the homes have six rooms with insulated side walls and roof and air conditioned gas heat. All have studio living rooms 15 by 22, with ceilings 18 feet high, a breakfast room, tiled kitchen, two tiled baths, two wood burning fireplaces, seven clothes closets, and other features.

According to E. W. Dobroth the four homes have been sold at $11,500 each.

Build $30,000 Macaroni Factory on North Racine

Work is under way on a two story fireproof macaroni factory at 451 North Racine avenue, by Traficanti Brothers, from plans by Anthony J. Del Bianco, with Capraro & Komar associate architects. Costing $30,000, it will occupy the site of the company's plant which burned last January.

MOVING OFFICE OF HARVESTER IS RECORD JOB

Takes 300 Truck Trips to Complete Task.

One of Chicago's largest moving jobs, transferring the International Harvester company's general offices from the fifteen story building at Michigan and Harrison, to the 23 story Lake-Michigan building, nine blocks north, is scheduled for completion this afternoon.

With the aid of 160 men more than 300 van loads of furniture and equipment for an office personnel of approximately 1,000 will have been moved during Friday and Saturday nights and this morning.

Paid $2,400,000 Cash.

The Lake-Michigan building, which beginning tomorrow will be known as the Harvester building, was purchased by International Harvester for $2,400,000 cash in February, 1936. In the last few months the new owners remodeled the interior for more efficient use of floor space, and for comfort and health of employés.

The improvements include installation of modern heating and ventilation, sound proofing, lighting, and general operating equipment.

The Harvester company, which used 120,000 square feet of space in the fifteen story building at Michigan and Harrison, will have about 150,000 square feet gross floor space in its new location, occupying fifteen entire stories, from the fifth to the nineteenth, inclusive.

Third Michigan Avenue Site.

This is the Harvester company's third Michigan avenue location. The first, 1902 to 1907, was at the northwest corner of Monroe street, now the site of the University club. The second, at Harrison street, has been occupied under a thirty year lease since the building was erected for the Harvester company in 1907.

The new Harvester building site is only a short distance from the site of the factory built in 1847 by Cyrus Hall McCormick. Just east of the present Michigan avenue bridge on the north bank of the river, it was destroyed by the Chicago fire of 1871. It is from that factory that International Harvester traces its lineage as one of the oldest Chicago business institutions.

Five Floors Leased.

Five of the lower floors of the present Harvester building, at Harrison and Michigan have been leased by Fairbanks, Morse & Co., who will start remodeling as soon as International Harvester moves out, with the expectation of moving in Jan. 1.

The building at the northeast corner of Lake and Michigan, diagonally across from the new Harvester headquarters, was for many years known as the Lake Michigan building. The name was given up when the 23 story Lake-Michigan building was erected in 1927. Winston & Co., agents of the property, said yesterday that now that all question of confusion is eliminated, the six story structure will be renamed the Lake-Michigan building.

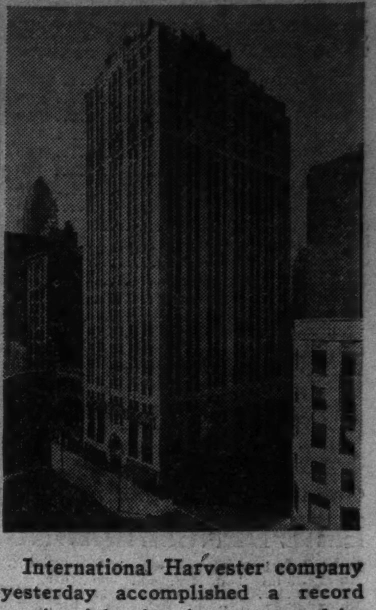
Restaurant Chain Leases Space at 3 North Clark St.

Wimpy Grills, Inc., leased the store at 3 North Clark street for ten years at a term rental reported to be more than $100,000. The lessee has eighteen restaurants, including one already in the loop. The new unit will be air-conditioned. Ross, Browne & Fleming represented the lessee. The Chicago Title and Trust company acted for the Edward Morrison estate, owner of the building.

BUYS RANDOLPH STREET WAREHOUSE.

Herbert Hinchcliffe sold the four story warehouse at 1043 West Randolph street, 50 by 150, to the 1043 Randolph Building corporation, for an undisclosed price. Erwin L. Marcus was attorney for the buyer.

Harvester's New Home



International Harvester company yesterday accomplished a record moving job when it transported its general offices from Michigan and Harrison, nine blocks north, to the southwest corner of Michigan and Lake. The 23 story Lake-Michigan building, shown above, has been renamed the Harvester building.

At the Realty Boards

Hobart Brady of Wichita, Kas., will speak on "Real Estate the Best Buy" at the fall festival, smoker, and dinner of the brokers' division of the Chicago Real Estate board, next Friday evening, Oct. 15, in the main dining room of the board, 32 West Randolph street. Colored moving pictures of northern fishing will be shown and there will be a bait casting exhibition.

Paul Pullen, manager of business promotion of the Chicago Title and Trust company, will speak before the North Side Real Estate board on "Looking Up with Real Estate" next Tuesday at noon, in the New Lawrence hotel.

George L. Willman will speak on "Principles of Salesmanship as Applied to Real Estate" before the Northwest Real Estate board, at its next regular meeting, tomorrow night at the Irving Park Y. M. C. A.

J. Soule Warterfield, vice president of the Starrett Construction company, will speak on "The West Side Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" before the West Side Real Estate board at the Graemere hotel, tomorrow noon.

Brokers' Notes

John T. Wheeler & Co., with main offices in the First National Bank building, will open a branch office about Oct. 20 at 1221 Devon avenue and do a general real estate business. Ralph J. Hovey will be in charge of the sales division. Wheeler has been active in real estate for twenty-five years, having promoted and built many properties.

Enderlin Realty, Inc., had a formal opening of its new offices at 6325 North Clark street yesterday.

Women's Features

INSPIRED BY FRENCH ORIGINALS

● A. Chanel's net and lace dress, unquestionably the most alluringly feminine of all the showing. The wide, full skirt of fine net trimmed with bands of matching lace magically slenderizes even though it boasts yards of the material. The bodice is intricately cut and fitted with a very narrow front panel and a slenderizing vee shaped decolletage. A waist deep jacket has unusual long sleeves and lace edging. ● B. One of the most beautiful of new dinner dresses, as slender as a Greek column and exquisitely fitted. Uncompromisingly stark across the neckline is a square cut top, at the back a deep vee strap. Around the hemline is a band of filmy black net. A simple belt of the velvet accents the normal waistline. ● C. Cool tobacco brown, fine net is used for this fluttering dance dress. Yards of the net fashions the gathered full skirt. The bodice is a mere fitted affair with a very low cut backline. Narrow straps over the shoulder and immense bow knots of shining brown paillettes make decorative motifs for the skirt. A very thin, long scarf of the net ties at one side over the shoulder. ● D. Molyneaux stunning daytime suit of formal manner. The skimpy wool dress has, below the elbow, short sleeves held in position with a row of plain black buttons. The neckline is shallow and high. At the side are double rows of buttons and applied to the gently flaring skirt are shaped panels of smooth Persian lamb. The jacket, a simple boyish affair of the same black wool as the dress, with long sleeves, a round collar of fur, and a row of buttons down the front. The gay hat is of black felt and matching Persian lamb trim. ● E. A brand new dinner coat to wear over slinky jersey or crepe dinner gowns or evening models of similar draping. It is a dull black duvetyn coat made with double clips at neck and hem. There is a gathered band of silver fox around the lower hem and a repeat idea at the collar line. It comes lined with either black or contrasting colors. Notice the restrained front silhouette and the swinging semi-full backline, typically new this fall.

Winter Fashions Are Provocatively Feminine in Lines

By Rhea Seeger.

IMPORTS and American adaptations of fine French originals each new season change and vary fashions; they're the significant trends that mark the newest clothes worn by smart women everywhere. New streamlines, a shorter or longer skirtline, sleeves, necklines, even fabrics are introduced and sponsored, stressed, and sold to a clothes conscious crowd of money spenders.

Coats, suits, fur coats, gowns and ensembles, dinner costumes, hats and accessories, all conceived in the minds of famous French designers, are launched here to be approved and worn by appreciative shoppers. Even though the originals are sometimes considerably changed to suit American needs, the adaptations are still exquisitely French, still breath-takingly new, and sometimes daringly different . . . thus the new fashions.

Fall and early winter fashions of 1937 are so provocatively feminine as to start a new wave of interest. Street and daytime dresses are starkly simple, sheaths of fabrics that cling to the figure, beautifully made of fine materials, skilfully cut and seamed and detailed as only French fingers can achieve. Suits are lavishly trimmed with furs, but fur so knowingly applied that any hint of unwanted bulkiness is removed. Short, naive looking jackets end at the waistline or a few scant inches below, sleeves are simple, and collar lines are youthfully round. Dresses that are worn with these jackets are just as unadorned, just as brief and young, with skirts that are snappily short and made with a gentle flare.

Coats look like tubes of fabric, with dress parade models still pencil straight even when loaded with fur. Zippers streak up and down the front of heavy winter fur trimmed coats, as well as in suits, costume dresses, and evening gowns. Flat bands of Persian trim the most exciting of both suits and coats, with blue fox, red fox, and cross fox giving the rather dated silver fox a good run for popularity on dress parade coats.

Taffeta, thick rich dull crêpes, thin woolens with luxurious textures similar to hand woven effects, record breaking yards of velvet, and fabulously beautiful heavy satins and silks are used for this year's showings. Lace, net, and combines of lace, net, and velvet are new contrasts that make particularly feminine costumes.

Whether one fancies sequins and all the glittering paillettes enough to enjoy the fashion frenzy now raging over such sparkling stuff is up to the individual clothes collector. There are plenty of unglittered finds in all the shops; stunning, effective gowns and costumes without a shining band anywhere . . . while quantities of sequin strewn bolero, wide midriff belts, collars, hem bands, and entire dresses are ready for the buyers that like such spotlight glitters.

Dress parade clothes are siren things . . . you can float around the ballrooms this winter in skirts with yards and yards of material, filmy ethereal laces and nets, billowing rustling yards of changeable taffeta, hoop skirted velvet robes, and stiff picturesque brocades, or you can decorate any festive occasion with sheath dresses of unbelievable splendor, banded brocades, shimmering lamés, silver and gold metal cloths that look like liquid metal.

Black first for both daytime and evening, coppery browns, stunning greens, and old golds next in line, with all the rich glowing colors of a fall landscape available for the color enthusiasts. Matching your accessories has become the easiest part of a wardrobe collecting binge. Remember when it was the most exasperating? Now, because of all kinds of bags, gloves, hosiery, hats, belts, and costume jewelry, simultaneously displayed as soon as the first of the newest clothes are unpacked, the matching hazards have been reduced to minimum.

More important than matched accessories, more important than the new clothes, are the streamlines to be maintained; for the loveliest gown, the most beautifully detailed draping or silhouette shirring is completely lost without the meticulously fitted underlayer, the girdle corset or all-in-one of bungle smoothing details, sleek fitting models of satin and elastic panels, especially designed to wear under all these form revealing clothes.

No matter how costly the gowns, how individual the fitting, the entire effect is lost if you wear them over last year's model or, worse yet, try them without any restraining underlayer. Even the billowing beauties, the wide skirted dance dresses, lose most of their charm when the neat, narrow, smooth waistline is lost in successive rounds of unconfined bulges or ridges.

So, after the initial purchase of a perfect underlayer, the wardrobe collecting becomes the best excitement of the year. Gowns, suits, ensembles, and important sheath type new coats all fit as they were originally designed to be worn; every bit of lure, every bit of fitting magic is preserved.

Sense of Neatness May Be Developed in Your Children

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

"DO you think orderliness is an important character trait in children?" is a question that is often put to me.

Like so many things connected with the training of children, there is no hard and fast answer, no black and white of right and wrong. A trait like honesty is another story; of course that is an important aspect of character. But orderliness is quite a different matter.

To begin with, there's orderliness and orderliness, a platitude, but worth remarking at this point. What's orderliness for me may not constitute orderliness for you, yet each may serve its practical purpose for each of us.

Orderliness is relative and individual.

For example, a mother came in late one afternoon and began bustling about the living room. "The Remingtons are going to stop in; I must get this room in order," she remarked.

"Why, Margaret!" said her sister. "I've just finished doing that very thing and I even got the children to put all their belongings away."

A wife went with her husband one day to call on his sister and after they were out in the street she remarked: "Peggy's a dear, but what a disorderly house she keeps." John laughed. "She's probably spent all day clearing up! You should see the chaotic state her home usually is in.

"But she's as happy as the day is long, and somehow or another can always find what she wants. And Bill is that way, too, and the children. So why should you worry if they don't?"

Another visit of this same wife to a new relative brought forth the comment: "Aunt Julie's house is in such perfect order that it gives me a chill. It looks as if no one lived in it—I mean lived in it and did things in it."

Now step into the business world.

The desks of some executives are always in obvious order; others are a mound of papers, notes, carbons, reports, and so forth, in apparent confusion, yet both may have orderly minds, live comfortably with their system, and be able to put their hand on anything they want.

So all things are relative, even orderliness. To some people orderliness means one thing; to others another thing. There is such a thing as a painful sense of orderliness which is affronted by anything at all out of place.

The children of such parents are certainly unlucky. Even the temporary disorder that accompanies play, painting, carpentry, or making dolls' clothes, or having for the moment the house littered with skating or baseball togs annoys a mother like that who makes a fetish of keeping everything straight and spic and span.

On the other hand, there is such a thing as a disorder that really amounts to a disturbing confusion. I know of two such homes in which there were two little daughters with orderly minds. They were so distressed by the wild disorder that each little 10 year old turned to and put her mother's house to rights every day.

But there are desirable stages of orderliness between these two extremes which can be attained in a family where there are children, and which provide a pretty good example for them, too. This kind of orderliness creates an atmosphere of peace and attractiveness, because surely no house has either charm or a sense of quiet if it is in constant disorder, just as it cannot have warmth and personality if it is so orderly that it is "set." A house should be orderly with what you might call a working order, so that it can serve the purpose of a home, which is, after all, a place to be worked in, played in, lived in, used, and enjoyed.

I have started, as you see, 'way back with the orderliness of parents before talking about the orderliness of children. That is because the degree of order that a child sees around him makes an impression on him; sets an example and a standard. But let us get down now to children.

First, I will say that I do believe in training for orderliness. But I also believe we must take into consideration the fact that some people are naturally orderly and some are not. I've seen people as children and then as nearly grown, and from the very same family, who are examples of this fact. One of these can't tolerate any disorder in his room, for instance, and another can ignore disorder quite calmly, but has a system of periodical clearings-up of his closets, his writing table, and his bureau drawers when he can't find his way around in the confusion. So first you have a natural tendency to deal with.

The next thing I want to tell you is this: You mustn't be horrified when at about 9 or 10 (or perhaps earlier or later) your Joan or your John suddenly drops sweaters, skates, white mice cages, and baby doll blankets all around the house, and keeps his or her belongings in more or less of a scramble. Of course this change may not ever come over your child or

National Council of Jewish Women to Sponsor Ballet Benefit

By Betty Browning.

IT was still pretty much the era of "Kinder, Küche, Kirche" where women were concerned when the governors of the World's Fair of 1893 decided to let women organize a Parliament of Religion as their share in the exposition. From that move resulted the National Council of Jewish Women, which officially begins its 45th year with a brunch tomorrow at the Standard club.

Chief topic of the meeting will be the opening performances of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo to be sponsored by the council Dec. 20, 21, and 22 at the Auditorium theater. This benefit is the most ambitious ever undertaken by the council, one of the most ambitious ever sponsored by a Chicago organization, and, incidentally, illustrates how far women have developed their business capacity since the fair of 1893. The council is working to fill the Auditorium on all three nights.

Guests at the brunch tomorrow will be Mrs. Hannah G. Solomon, 80 year old founder and honorary president of the council, and her cousin, Mrs. Martin Barbe, who will be 81 years old this month.

AS chairman of the Parliament of Religions at the Columbian exposition, Mrs. Charles Henrotin invited Mrs. Solomon, a fellow member of the Chicago Woman's club, to arrange the participation of Jewish women in the event.

Finding no national organization of members of her faith through whom to proceed Mrs. Solomon herself established contact with leading women in various parts of the country. So was laid the foundation for what has since become an international association with 50,000 members in this country and abroad. The Chicago section, the parent group, numbers 1,700 members.

The council's summer camp at Wauconda, one of its principal projects, always has been a particular interest of Mrs. Barbe, who first organized it as a recreation spot for working girls. Since then it has become a model camp for underprivileged mothers and children, with 736 enrolled during the summer just over in five periods of a fortnight each. The Fae Blanke Gordon aid has financed a precamp season for undernourished children in recent years.

THE camp will be among the philanthropies of the council to share in the forthcoming benefit, which

"THE one incontestable yardstick that measures a woman for perfection of grooming is the appropriateness of her apparel." Or, to put it another way: "Making yourself a 'costume plot' of which the central theme is yourself and your activities is the one way to achieve the ultimate goal of smartness!"

The advice comes from Jerome K. Ohrbach in the "Shopping Guide" [McGraw-Hill], a handy compilation of practical pointers for the shopper, by New York's leading merchandising authorities of whom Mr. Ohrbach is one.

Mr. Ohrbach continues: "Be she professional woman, housewife, suburban sportswoman, or private secretary, a woman should plan her gowns for their appropriateness to her pursuits and to her physique. That idea should ever be in the foreground of her mind. In making a choice she should think first of the place of the gown in her scheme. Then choice of line, color, and material may follow!"

WE like Mr. Ohrbach's suggestion to women to go through a few calisthenics when trying on clothes, in the interest of line. Many a dress takes on a different "line" when it is worn sitting down, say, than when one stands in it before a full length mirror.

"To make sure the garment fits properly," we are advised by the clothes expert, "go through a sort of calisthenics drill when you try it. Stand straight. Fold your arms. Does the dress pull across the back? Do you feel any strain in the material at the elbows? Do the armholes bind? Can you detect any unsightly ripples?

"Does the waistline fall at the proper point for grace?

"Seat yourself. Is there plenty of sitting room? Is the line of the dress still good? Perhaps it 'hoops' in front or draws up unpleasantly and exposes too much of the legs?"

If there is not enough fullness where it is needed when you sit, you are warned by our authority, the seams will be strained and will pull out. From bitter experience you may have learned that such seams cannot be mended. Every bit of material you take in to repair the damage makes the matter that much worse.

And, we add, there's always that loss of good posture line when the skirt binds you tightly.

SPEAKING of grouping a wardrobe around a central color scheme, Mr. Ohrbach finds this is to be the "catch" for many women. Too often we are guilty of unwisely selecting a dress simply for its attractive accessories, such as jeweled clip or a cleverly placed bow, only to find that the gown itself is of poor material or cut badly.

"Perhaps, when the wearer is seated, the entire garment loses its fashionable line and wrinkles or bulges in an ugly manner!"

A few other pointers are volunteered us by the same authority by which we may more nearly approach that "well dressed" look for which we strive and spend.

"Don't, carried away by the tremendous attractiveness of some dress or price, buy yourself a white elephant, an outfit that does not fit into your plan of living and is doomed to hang in your closet most of the time, and make you uneasy when you wear it.

"Don't buy a gown that's extreme. It 'dates' too easily.

"Try to figure the trend. It's a poor shopper who, in February, finds her dress purchase of October already out of date.

"Don't be misled by gadgets. If the gown has painted buttons for trim, will the paint chip off? If they're wooden, will they break or fade? If the gown is washable, will the buttons also launder? Is the gay ribbon belt firm enough so that it will not constantly wrinkle and look sloppy? What will happen to that crisp organdy plaiting on the wash dress?

"DON'T be misled by marked sizes. Sizes aren't always all they're marked up to be. Trying on is the only answer.

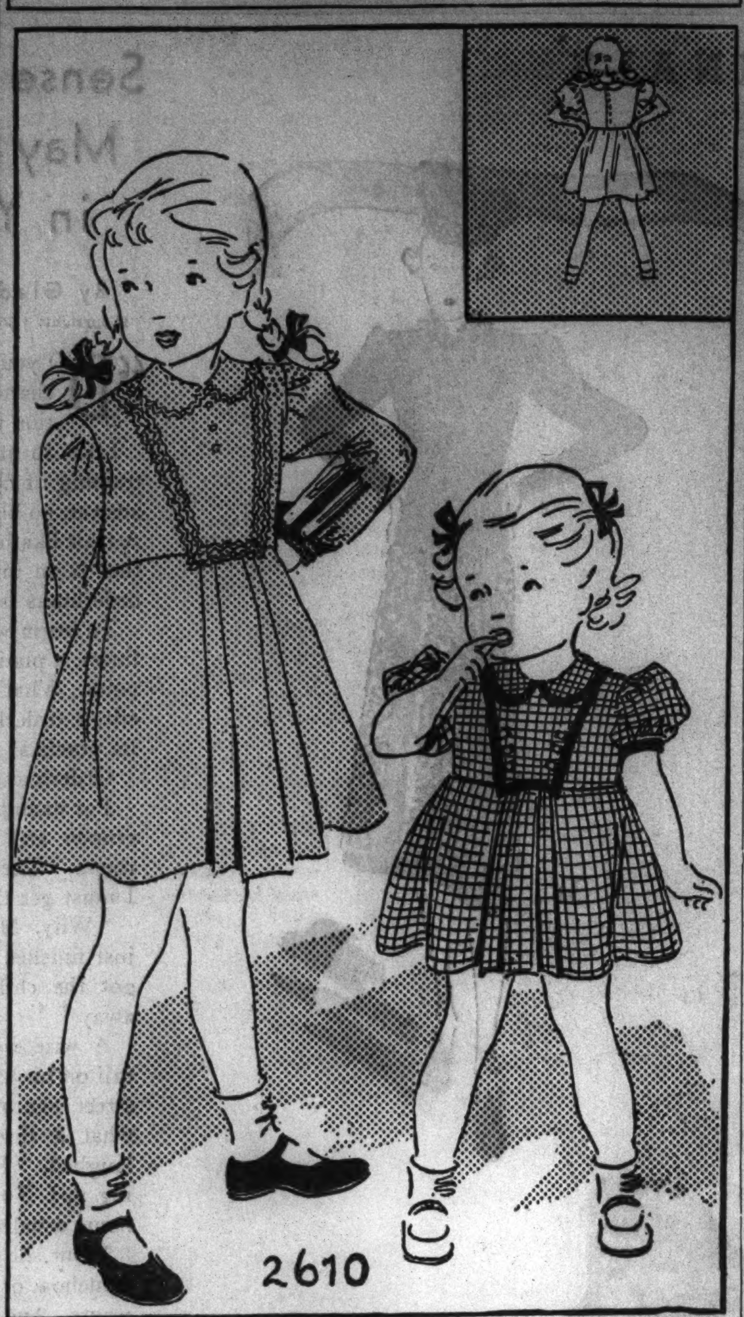
"Be sure the dress is cut the right way of the goods. This is an absolute requisite to maintaining good line.

"Be sure the dress is cut generously, with fullness in the right places to allow ample freedom of movement, sitting, and walking. Beauty of line is obtained by cutting."

He advises the average girl to emulate Elsie De Wolfe, internationally known decorator and society leader who, as Lady Mendl, has been included in many of the "best dressed" lists compiled in recent years. Lady Mendl found, Mr. Ohrbach recalls, that a five-dress wardrobe was the perfect one for her and was equal to all her demands. For the average business girl, Mr. Ohrbach advises a five-dress wardrobe consisting of three sports dresses, one afternoon dress, and an evening gown, all selected with care and grouped around a central color scheme.

Miss Donnelly's authoritative articles, counseling women in matters of beauty and charm, appear every day in the feature pages of the Chicago Tribune.

Clotilde Children's Fashions



THE French influence is apparent in the styling of this juvenile frock, especially in the quaint bodice treatment. There is plenty of sturdy, dependable American designing in this dress, too, of course, as noted in the practical Peter Pan collar, full skirt with box plait, and full sleeves. This is a frock styled for active and husky little girls who love to play but who, nevertheless, often have be "dressed up." You may make this frock for party wear or for school. It will stand plenty of hard wear and always will look fresh and trig.

The original is fashioned of navy and red plaid gingham with navy bias binding on the bodice and collar and with red buttons. For dressier occasions the trimming may be braid or lace.

All types of cottons make up well. Silks and rayon materials are grand possibilities, too, as are woolens, velveteen and challis. The model looks well on both growing youngster and toddler, and when you finish it you may well be proud, because it will look just like an import.

Style No. 2610 is designed for sizes 2, 4, and 6 years. Size 4 requires 2 yards of 39 inch material.

Entertaining at Breakfast Is Delightful

Should the bride-to-be take part in her wedding rehersal? The etiquet and customs of weddings which every bride wants to know are told in the booklet, "Planning the Church Wedding," by Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 3 cents. Postpaid, 5 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

IT is time now to start catching up with the social obligations that have gradually accumulated during the last few months when it has been too warm to keep up with these responsibilities. Even if you haven't any of these aforementioned obligations, plan a few parties and gatherings of friends to get your fall social season swinging along at the proper stride. Use your own initiative and don't wait for others to plan your evenings and week-ends for you. They are too busy arranging their own time.

One of the most delightfully friendly and informal ways of entertaining is the leisurely Sunday breakfast, fun even for the hostess. We recommend it. A company breakfast may be served any time after 9 and before 12. And it is of such an informal nature that invitations may be telephoned if the hostess finds that more convenient. If they are not extended by telephone they may be written on a little double calling card or in the form of a personal note.

GUESTS should be selected with the same care for this type of party as for any other. To insure a pleasant time for all, include only those persons who are amiable. And keep the group fairly small in number and casual. Breakfasts don't seem to lend themselves very well to large numbers, or to people who are inclined to be on the formal, stilted side.

The menu should be confined to the foods that are typical of the breakfast meal. It being a company breakfast, foods may be glorified somewhat, but not to the extent that they become luncheon masterpieces. The sequence of the courses also is the same, with fresh fruit and then a cereal with cream for those that want it. For the principal offering there can be scrambled eggs with crisp bacon or little golden brown pork sausages; waffles or pancakes; popovers, hot muffins, or hot spoonbread; creamed toast, creamed eggs on toast, or chipped beef. There also should be a choice assortment of jelly, jam, or marmalade to suit the tastes of all.

COFFEE is the prime essential. And make it good. With it, of course, rich, thick cream. There should be an inexhaustible quantity because guests will consume cup after cup and linger over their coffee long after the edge has been taken off the appetite and the breakfast considered officially over.

Entertainment will be no problem at all. Pleasant conversation will take care of that. There isn't another type of party on the calendar that makes people more at home or that makes conversation easier than a heart warming breakfast.

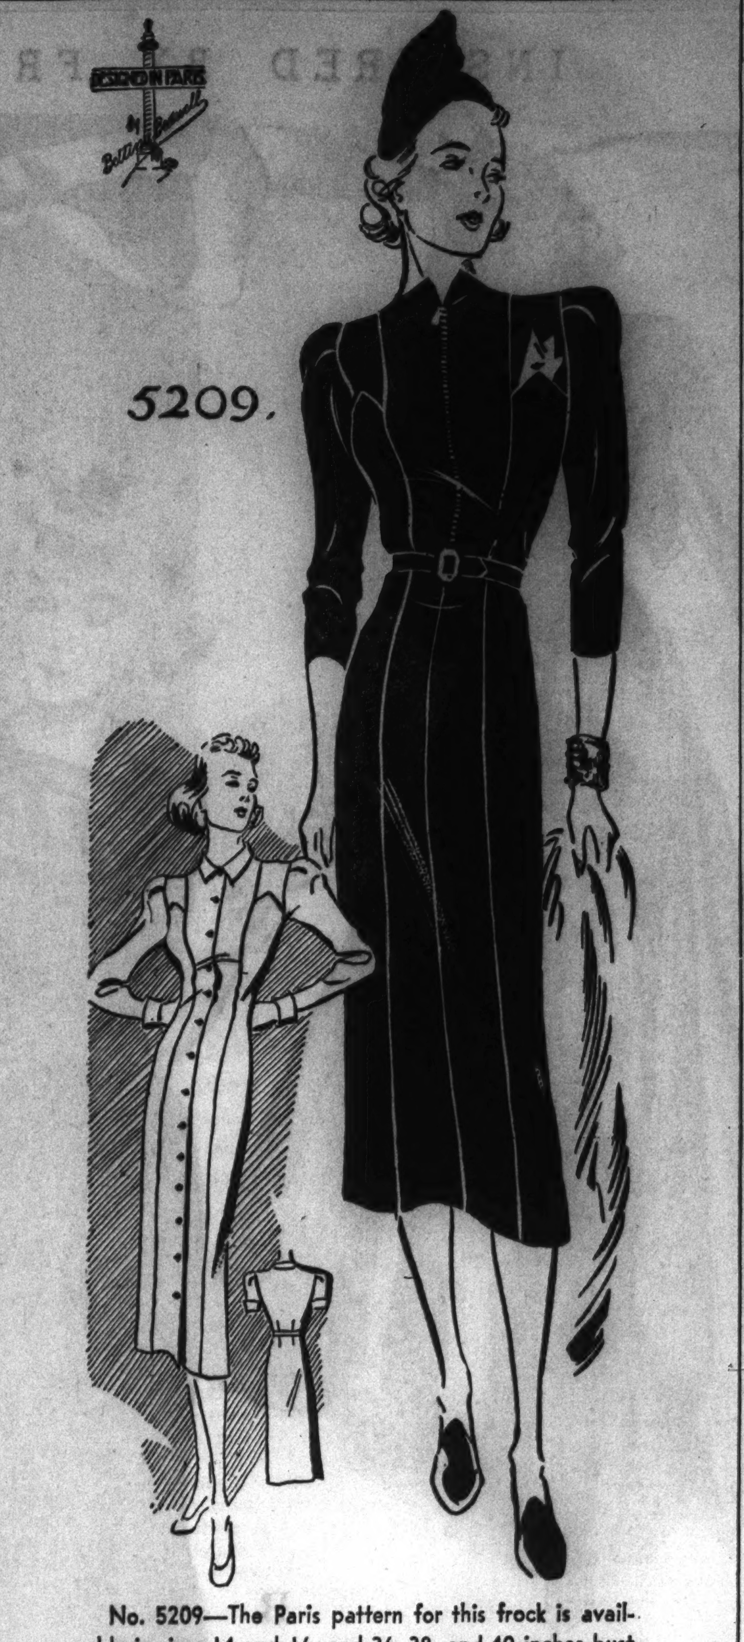
Frock Designed in Paris Caters to Reedlike Figure



No. 5209—The Paris pattern for this frock is available in sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—This pattern, No. 5209, is designed to pamper your sculptured silhouette, that one fashion line that is considered so important these days.

Everything about the frock sponsors the "reedlike" slimness idea: The straight, up-and-down lines; the tiny pointed pockets; the casual neckline that lies up against your throat and creates the most amazingly effective line, especially when the fabric is dark and lush and your throat is white and slender!

If you like you may have a small turned over collar. And instead of a zipper to the waist you may have buttons marching all the way down the center. In any case, your cylinder silhouette cannot be sacrificed, because no matter how you choose to adapt the pattern to your individuality, its basic lines are such that trimming is just a matter of detail, no more important than that.

Teach Child to Appreciate Orderliness

it may not be so marked, but a laxness is pretty sure to crop up with the "in-between" years.

At this time a child loses a certain sort of interest in the small things and home doings because his horizon has widened. But console yourself. Very frequently, when your John gets into his teens and becomes interested in his clothes and his room and his "grooming," and when the same urges come to your Joan and both are having young people their own age at the house, a sense of orderliness will revive.

So it helps us if we will take all these things into consideration when we are trying to put into effect our scheme for helping our child to be reasonably orderly.

And now let's be definite. Here are some points to keep in mind:

Make it reasonably easy for your child to be orderly.

Do so by having a place for everything.

Have those places convenient for your child to reach and use.

Don't expect too much of the children in strict and constant orderliness, but try to hold them to what you do ask them to do.

Don't nag about it. They will need reminding, so do it in a friendly, human sort of way. Praise does a lot.

Appeal to their sense of fairness when they are old enough to understand that this is their share of the family work.

With the little children, if you want them to put away blocks, or tuck their dolls in bed, or lay their clothes in order when they undress, you simply must give them plenty of time. They can't hurry, and if you try to make them everybody gets fussed and unhappy.

And above all be fair about the necessary disorder that follows the doing of things that they should do at home, things like cutting out pictures, sewing, making ship or airplane models, developing photographs, or doing manual work of various kinds. If your house is small, never mind, activities are more important than perfect order.

These and other suggestions are contained in the booklet, "Helping Your Child To Be Orderly." It will be sent to you if your request is accompanied by a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Mrs. Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Mrs. Bevans' column also appears in the Tribune on Monday and every other weekday.

Helpful Hints for Housewives

TO prolong the lives of children's books, apply a thin coat of colorless shellac to the covers.

Small weights sewed on the hems of glass or draw curtains will help keep them hanging straight.

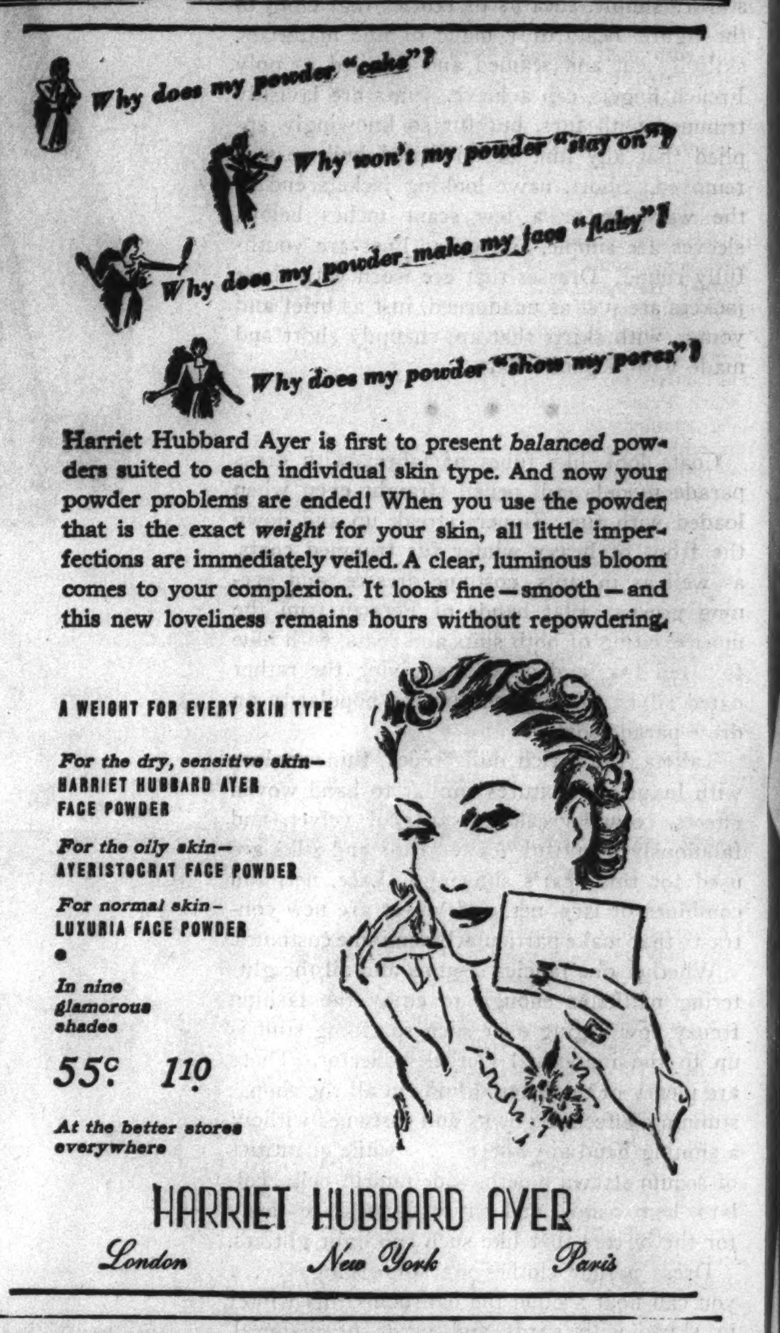
To remove iodine stains, soak the stained area in two cups of warm water and soapsuds in which one tablespoonful of household ammonia has been dropped.

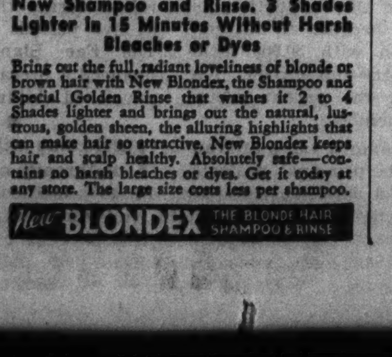
Crocheted Collars, Cuffs Will Revive Old Dresses

By Ellen Bruce.

EVERY woman has at least one dress in her wardrobe that she hates to discard, a garment which looks as good as new but still needs something to give it a touch or freshen it up. Accessories in general are the solution, but the crochet collar with matching cuffs is the particular accessory which does most. Black and white does something for every woman, and a white crochet collar in this clover design is light, lacy, and effective worn with a black sheer wool. The points on the shoulders add that square touch popular at the present time. Cuffs are optional, but they add grace and beauty to the well manicured hand and aid in effecting that lily white loveliness so sought after. Only four balls of white mercerized crocheted cotton No. 60 is all that is required for the complete set. An experienced crochet worker can complete this set in one whole day.

If you wish instructions for crocheting clover design collar and cuff set illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.





Exposition Is Thrill to the Paris Skeptics

By May Birkhead.

The skeptics and the downhearted, so dubious some months ago about the completion and success PARIS of the Paris exposition are confounded by its brilliant attractions. Aided by prolonged summer weather, the attendance, averaging well over 400,000 a day, has beaten all records so far for this truly remarkable spectacle.

Notables are to be seen almost nightly at the chief restaurants. It was rumored that the duke and duchess of Windsor, who reached Paris from Munich one Sunday morning, would be at the Roi George, one of the smartest exposition restaurants, for dinner that evening. But they did not come.

The next night Senator Guffey, dinner guest of Col. and Mme. Jacques Balsan [Consuelo Vanderbilt] at the Roi George, happened to be on the same train that brought the duke and duchess of Windsor to Paris. He overheard an acquaintance say to the duke in the dining car: "Your royal highness, I am struck by the fact that you look ten years younger." The duke replied: "If the photographers and curiosity seekers would leave me alone, I could take off another ten."

THE illumination, exterior and otherwise, of the exposition is one of its lodestones, so to speak. Opposite the Roi George restaurant the fountains with their changing colors are manipulated by an organlike mechanism and they weave an enchantment not only for the diners but the thousands who watch the glowing and ever shifting view from both banks of the Seine.

Among those at the Roi George these recent evenings was John Gade, who came from Brussels to see his brother Herman, and took the latter's daughter to dine there. Also George Blumenthal, who formerly spent much time in Paris, when he was active in the banking firm of Lazard Frères. His first wife, Florence Blumenthal, created a foundation which bears her name and helps deserving artists in painting, sculpture, and letters to get a foothold.

A few years after her death he married Mrs. Clews and she was effective at the dinner party in a black gown without a hat, and with bodice and sleeves covered with shimmering paillletes, such as are being featured for both evening clothes and day wear, even for tailored suits.

With the Blumenthals were Florence Blumenthal's sister, the former Mrs. Elise Stern, and her present husband, Senhor de Souza-Dantas, the Brazilian ambassador. At another table was Countess Kotzebue, the former Mrs. Anson Burchard.

MISS ANNE MORGAN, who took her usual summer cure at Marienbad, got back to Paris about mid-September, in time to arrange special facilities for those wishing to visit the Museum of Franco-American Coöperation, which she and the late Mrs. Dike founded some years ago at Blérancourt. This museum is especially rich in relics of Washington and Lafayette. One Saturday evening Miss Morgan dined with a party at the restaurant of the Italian pavilion.

At Longchamp one Sunday the races were thronged, although the partridge shooting, rather poor this year, accounted for some notable absentees. Jacques Cartier and his wife, the former Nellie Harjes, had as guests the maharajah of Nawanagar and his wife, the maharanee, whom M. Cartier playfully calls Mr. Maharajah. He was one of the guard of honor of four that rode just in front of George VI. at the coronation.

INTERESTED IN DANCING

Miss Betty Vincent is a member of the junior auxiliary of the junior board of the Chicago Home for Convalescent Women and Children which will give its annual benefit next Saturday in the ballroom of the Palmer house. It will be a dinner-dance with the larger title of "a candlelight masque ball."

Softball Sponsored for Women in the Industries

INDUSTRIAL concerns all over the United States are sponsoring the game of softball for women. Bases are closer, the ball is larger, and the drain upon human energy is not nearly as great as in other sports.

Through the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

This is a season when beauty of face isn't enough. The new clothes, with their emphasis on a smooth rounded back, the high bustline and slender hips, demand figure perfection. Exercise, carefully directed and faithfully followed, is the modern way to "sculp" your silhouette. And it brings health dividends, also, of course.
[Tribune Studio Photo.]

TAKE a look, madam, at the new clothes. And then take a long, searching, merciless look at your own figure. Have you the straight back, the slender hips, and, above all, the high, beautiful bust line they demand? And have you the free, rhythmic carriage that does justice to their subtle drapery?

You can spend thousands on your clothes this winter. But what price all that expenditure, if their special emphasis on beauty of figure shows you up as just a rag and a bone and a hank of hair?

THIS year clothes permit the body to have no secrets. Your eagle eyed inspection of fashion photographs must reveal that. You can't help but notice that dramatization of the bustline is important. The low cut sequined gowns, either round or cut to a V in front, are going to present problems to us, a nation of flat chested women as compared to most of our European sisters.

Your back must be beautiful; your arms rounded; your bust firm and high. If you're really fat you must reduce. But this year it's better to be plump than to look like a plucked hen!

It's much easier for the plump to get thin than for the skinny ones to take on curves. The latter takes longer, too, but it can be done.

The first step in developing the figure beautiful when you're a scrawny sort of a bird woman is to look to the status of your health. If there is no underlying organic cause for your lack of weight you're off to a good start. You must diet. You must rest. You must get fresh air. But, above all, if you want curves where before there were none, you must exercise!

VERY special exercises are necessary. Carefully directed exertions and stretchings build up the muscles that improve the bustline. It's slow going, too. Regular, wisely chosen exercises develop shapely calves which once were just spindles. Certain stretching and lifting exercises limber up the too stiff back. Others develop the thighs, improve head posture.

It all takes time and expert direction. The direction is to be found. Chicago boasts some of the best exercise salons in the country. To patronize them is to spend your money wisely. Building up the underdeveloped body is an investment in health as well as beauty.

Eleanor Nangle, "through her looking glass," sees everything that is new in the fascinating realm of beauty aids, and tells you about them daily in The Chicago Tribune.

A Cardigan Will Assure a Successful Country Day

By Jean Macdonald.

A SUCCESSFUL week-end in the country may only be achieved if the feminine visitor has one of the freshly designed hand knitted cardigans in the Cossack manner. Cardigans are always popular, but this unusual type, illustrated today, has all the charm of a new style number plus the comfort of a high neck. This type of neck is becoming to most every person, and the side fastening has always been flattering. The soft yarn from which this sweater is knitted is a brand new angora. Every year yarn manufacturers tell us they have a new angora yarn guaranteed not to shed or fly. This new yarn in a soft ashes of roses shade most closely approximates perfection of the many on the market. It does not fly when worked with, yet it is extremely fine. The warmth and softness of this angora is what every feminine nature loves and every baby must have. Most important of all, the virtues of this yarn is that it is not expensive. The average sized person can make a sweater with eight balls at a cost under $5, and it is practically impossible to buy one ready made for twice the price. The range of colors in this yarn contains all the shades and tones imaginable, and there is scarcely a color mentioned which is not included several times in the color chart.

HOW TO ORDER.

If you wish instructions for knitting the Cossack Cardigan illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

It is necessary that the following measurements be included:

Bust ....
Waist ....
Underarm to waist ....
Length of sleeve from underarm to wrist ....
Top arm ....
Forearm ....
Wrist ....

Jewish Women to Sponsor a Ballet Benefit

first was suggested by Mrs. Harry J. Myerson. Mrs. Myerson is beginning her fourth and final year as president of the council. Increasing demands on the council have necessitated greater revenues than could be obtained through single performances such as those of Heifetz and Serkin which the council has sponsored in other years.

Another philanthropy of the council is its work among the foreign born, particularly recent refugees from Germany who are assisted through a full time caseworker maintained at Hull house.

The council also gives assistance to children blind and hard of hearing, and coöperates with the board of education in supplying volunteer teachers to adult education classes.

Current legislation, particularly that concerning women, is studied and sponsored, and members are kept in touch with world events through a number of classes.

Mrs. Fred Bernstein, second vice president of the council, is chairman of the projected benefit. Other officers are Mrs. Ralph A. Reis, first vice president; Mrs. Samuel L. Herman, treasurer; Mrs. William H. Sahud, recording secretary; Mrs. Benjamin Braude, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Louis Rosenbuth, financial secretary.

Beer Jackets Are Smart Feminine Sports Attire

BEER jackets make smart additions to the fall sports wardrobes of the younger New York set. Inspired by the jackets worn by the students of a famous eastern men's college, they are square box designs with roomy patch pockets. Many are made of corduroy and have slacks and skirts to match.

Four-piece outfits, ready for town or country, are displayed by a number of eastern designers this season. They combine a shadow-plaid wool reefer coat with a plain wool suit which has a second shadow-checked skirt to match the coat. The checked skirt may be worn with sports sweaters.

Lemon halves and slices are apt to give a bitter taste to punch if they are left in it. It is best to wait until serving time to add them.

"Camay's gentle lather will Glorify your Skin"

SAYS THIS CHARMING NEW JERSEY BRIDE

MAPLEWOOD, N. J:

Foolish to have skin that's "just average"—when having really lovely skin makes such a difference in good looks! Camay's gentle lather seems to glorify my skin—keeps it smooth and clear!

Sincerely,
(Signed) DIANA LEWIS
(Mrs. Salim L. Lewis)

September 2, 1937

WHEN the music starts to play and the dancing begins—you'll always notice men gather around the girl with the loveliest skin! "It happens at club dances time after time," says charming Mrs. Lewis. "And I always wonder why every girl doesn't have a lovely skin! It's so easy if you use Camay!"

A charming young bride with an active social life needs a beauty care that's effective, but that's simple, too. "I have no worries when I use Camay!" Mrs. Lewis tells you. "There's no worry about time, no worry about results. Camay always keeps skin smooth."

If you've had any worries about your beauty care, perhaps you don't know this: No soap has the same rich lather Camay has. In every cake are millions of tiny bubbles that were made to get skin clean. Camay removes grime and dirt from deep in the pores.

No beauty soap on the market today is gentler than Camay. Tests have been made against all well-known toilet soaps on every type of skin. And time after time Camay has come out on top—definitely, provably milder.

And though no other beauty soap is better than Camay, you'll find Camay very low in price. Why don't you buy half a dozen cakes today? You'll find what thousands of girls are saying is true... "Camay keeps skin lovely!"

Camay THE SOAP OF BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

Winter Coats Show Signs of Elegance

By Bettina Bedwell.

NOWHERE else is the boom movement of the styles more strikingly evident than in coats. They give us prosperity on the hoof, and are demonstrations of money to throw hither and yon. The new coats are likewise, a chance to show personality and taste no less than mere expensiveness. Women who have mink coats will wear them over their ski clothes in a final fling of the don't-care-what-it-costs spirit. And these same women will be wearing sleek cloth coats with aristocracy sewed into the seams and fur or no fur trimming for their grander doings in town.

Cloth coats trimmed with silver fox, the fur concentrated in the useless places have the new 1937 sophistication, and advertise the car-and-chauffeur means of getting around. They are class distinction in coats.

The cloth coat with grand and luxurious fox around the neckline, and more fox at the bottom or up and down the front will do business at the same old stand. The cloth coat trimmed with flat furs, Alaska sealskin, beaver, Persian lamb, kolinski, and squirrel will be on hand in the snootier emporiums, but the fur will not be used for collars and cuffs alone. It will cut wide swathes the full length of coats, or it will be put on in many vertical strips. An old fur friend—natural lynx—worked in full length stoles on cloth coats comes back this winter.

THE youth movement in the new coats backs the cloth coat with fur trimmings and hood. No hat to bother with, and this kind of coat will be worn by girls for everything from football games to college dances.

Short fur coats, fur jackets, fur capes, and cloth-with-fur capes make the coat program very big this season. Furs dyed in all the colors are used here, blue, red, rust, green, and so on.

Black cloth coats will be socially prominent, but lots of them will flash color in the linings and in details on the outside. There will be thousands of colored cloth coats, and they will contrast with the fur that trims them. A dark green coat trimmed with much red fox, for instance. Dark red coats will be trimmed with beaver or brown seal. and be dressy with silver fox on them. Colors like black currant, blue plum, dark fuchsia, and intense dark blue will be very smart coat colors.

Most town coats will be slender in line and will be fitted or semi-fitted. If you are a one-coat woman this type is the best for you, unless you will be wearing a fur coat, which may be short and unfitted or long and likewise. Molded coats that button down the front will be distinguished—much more so than coats that fasten only at the waistline.

MAINBOCHER'S black cloth coat is as distinguished as the front row in the social register. It buttons down the front from the neckline on fourteen buttons. The silver fox collar keeps clear of the closing. The flaring pie-piece panel of silver fox at the back of this coat—just where the wear and tear is most intense—demonstrates the spare-no-expense attitude that breaks out all over the clothes for fall and winter. This house also comes out on a platform of furless cloth coats, several to each wardrobe, instead of putting all your money on one fur trimmed coat.

Among the snob coats that flourish in high society is one which makes your own car an obligation. Jean Patou designed it, and used plenty of silver fox to trim it but never a gob at the neckline. This model is made of sleek black broadcloth which is one of the most frequently seen coat wools, and the silver fox is ruffled diagonally across the front. Vivid green is used to line this coat, and it makes an appearance at the small collar, and in a streak down the closing.

Paquin's dark plum colored cloth coat is an aristocratic example of the coat that is trimmed with full length panels of short haired fur—this being brown Alaska sealskin which makes the two front panels and the wide one down the back. The collar and cuffs are also of seal. A big muff of the cloth and fur is hung on a chain around the neck of this coat.

Jeanne Lanvin's hooded coat is made of mossy wool in a deep shade of fuchsia, and is trimmed with white caracul fur, which makes wide full-length bands down the front and also the hood. It fastens on big fuchsia colored buttons at the neckline.

Refrigerator Jars Should Be Wiped Well Every Day

JARS and containers left in the refrigerator should be wiped off with a cloth, nearly every day—to prevent them from leaving dark spots and rings on the kitchen table. The moisture which forms on the jars causes the spots and rings. It increases during the summer months.

By Clotilde.

AT the moment you may need an afternoon or "date" frock, or it may be a crisply tailored daytime dress which you require most. The pattern offered today fills both needs and, we think, in an exceedingly smart manner.

Uppermost in our own mind at the moment is the afternoon version of the dress, sketched in the center. The original is made of shimmering satin, and the soft, looped sash is edged with fringe which hangs in flattering cascades almost to the hem. We don't need to tell you how chic fringe is this season, nor do we need to remind you that high necklines and carefully molded contours are prominent in the autumn fashion records. Paneling is the secret of this frock's success. It molds the bodice to the figure and creates a slim skirt through the hipline, one that develops plenty of fulness once the knees are reached. The high neckline rests atop a yoke that lends breadth to the shoulders and extends down into the paneled waist. The sleeves are puffed slightly at the top, but are fitted below the elbow. By the way, the sleeves may be either long or short.

Dull crêpe, roughly surfaced silks, and velvet all are grand possibilities for this dressy version of the frock.

For casual wear you might select a woolen or a novelty silk. Plaids are wonderful. Instead of the clip used on the more formal frock, the neckline employs an ascot scarf in color to match the tailored belt. A zipper does duty and gives decoration up the front of the waist.

Style No. 3178 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 4⅝ yards of 39 inch material.

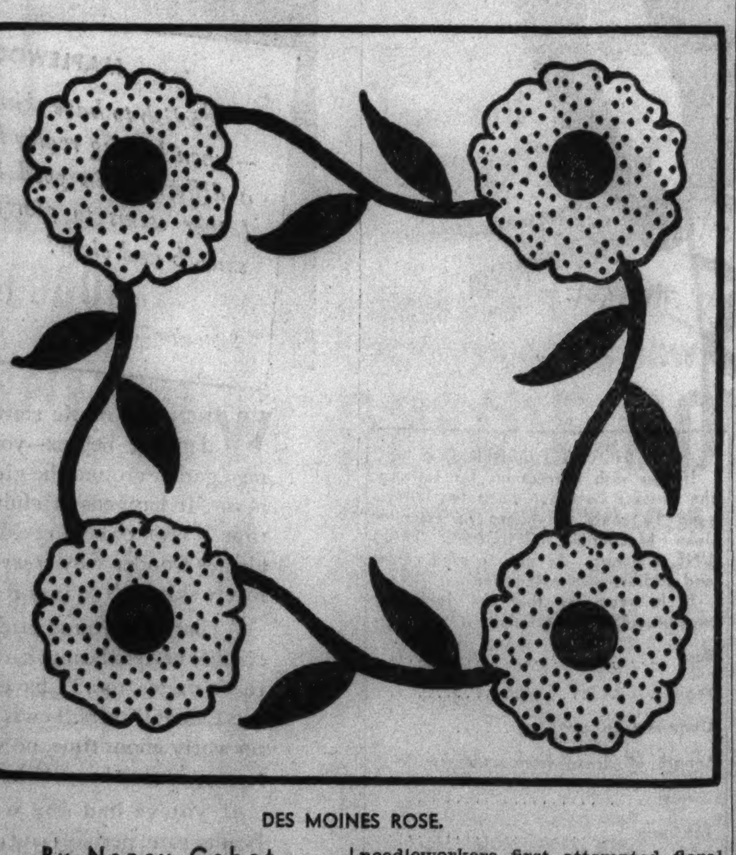
"Des Moines Rose" Applique Quilt Is Easy to Create



DES MOINES ROSE.

By Nancy Cabot.

"DES MOINES ROSE" is a beautiful old applique pattern which is not difficult to sew and one which, at one time, was exceptionally popular. Strange to note, it was not among those present at the Des Moines state fair held in August. Perfect examples of the "Ohio Rose" and "Rose of Sharon" were on display, as well as many other rose patterns. "Des Moines Rose" uses the simple rose design which was popular when needleworkers first attempted floral patterns. The block is large, measuring 17½ inches square, and is set together with fifteen plain blocks in an alternate arrangement and surrounded by a two inch border and a one-half inch green bias binding.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

TODAY we make a special appeal for the numerous elderly persons who are besieging us with pleas for assistance.

The old age pension system admittedly has been unsatisfactory and has worked many hardships on those dependent upon it. Payments have been long delayed, and even if promptly received, the majority of checks is inadequate for more than mere existence. Most elderly persons are frugal by nature, but, even by stinting, many of them are unable to obtain necessities. Repairs for glasses and teeth are out of the question, and radios and warm bedding and other comforts are impossibilities.

Men and women over 50 living on relief find existence equally difficult. The hardships of such existence are trying for all, but particularly so for the elderly and the sickly.

Mr. C. is 74 years old and receiving relief. His wife is in the last stages of an incurable disease, and he is severely afflicted with rheumatism. They have one daughter, who was forced to stop work to care for her mother, who is not expected to live. Can some reader supply this man with warm underwear, a suit and an overcoat, size 36? He is 5 feet 5 inches tall. The address is on the north side.

Mr. A. also is 74 and on straight relief. He is ill and attending a free clinic. He is in need of a suit and warm overcoat, which the organization assisting him cannot supply. He is 5 feet 8 and wears size 44. The address is on the northwest side.

These are but a few of hundreds of similar cases brought to my attention within the last month. Warm clothing of any kind, underwear, sox, pajamas, coats or sweaters can be placed without delay if readers will notify me as to the size and type of clothing to be donated.

Mrs. S. tells of her need:

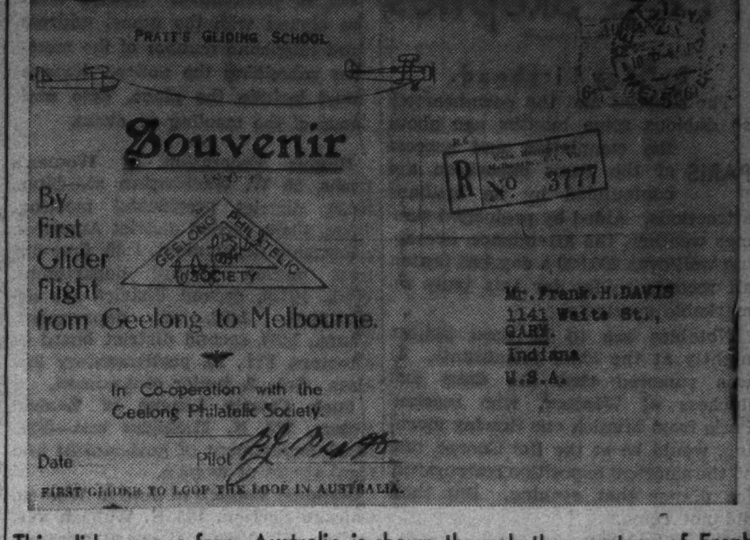
"Dear Miss Brown: I am a woman 66 years old and having a distressing time keeping afloat. I was born here, graduated from a school for nurses, married but now widowed, and am back in nursing work when I can obtain it and illness does not prevent. This summer it has been a desperate struggle to pay a few dollars for rent from week to week in one small room, as I am all alone. Briefly, I write to you because I am terribly in need of clothing, a winter coat, a dress, a long sleeved sweater, and warm underwear of any kind. Arthritis and anemia keep me shivering and aching with cold. Does any one ever offer things of this sort for adults? I know of your lovely work with children and know that you realize that life can be very cruel to little old ladies as well as young folks."

Mrs. S. wears size 32 or 34. Her weight is 91 pounds. The address is on the north side of the city.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning value. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Postage Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.



This glider cover from Australia is shown through the courtesy of Frank Davis of Gary, Ind. It was carried by glider from Geelong to Melbourne, as indicated by the printed cachet. Collectors will note an unusual notation in the registration label which shows that this and similar covers were registered in one lot rather than singly.

DURING the Centennial exposition held in Philadelphia in 1876, the postoffice department provided the first public demonstration of the actual manufacture of any of its stamps. In this case a specially designed envelope stamp was printed on a newly developed machine, and the envelopes were sold at the exposition station nearby.

The stamps, which were of 3 cent denomination, were printed in red and in green and were in the form of a shield showing a mounted postboy and the date 1776, in the upper half, and a fast mail train, a telegraph line and the date 1876, in the lower half. The envelope machine was the then recent development of Horace J. Wickham, of the Plimpton Manufacturing company, which was the current contractor for United States envelopes.

This was the first machine to combine all of the operations of envelope making and stamp printing, and if supplied with sheets of paper of the correct size, as well as ink and gum, would turn out envelopes in packages of 25, ready for banding and boxing. The machine was in operation at the exposition from May 10, to Nov. 10, 1876, and had a capacity of about 2,200 envelopes an hour.

Available records do not indicate that the government provided demonstrations of stamp or envelope manufacture at any of the great expositions which were held between 1893 and 1904. The first time that the public was treated to an exhibition of stamp manufacture was in connection with the international stamp exhibition held in New York City in 1926. Here in the exhibition room, miniature sheets of 25 White Plains commemorative stamps were printed from flat plates, and at adjoining booths, seemingly identical sheets were sold to the public.

The press used for this demonstration was an ordinary hand operated engraving press such as is commonly used for wedding invitations, visiting cards, and the like, and quite different from the power assisted four plate engraving presses in use at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing in Washington. The plate was one of five prepared for the souvenir sheets but none of the impressions made at New York ever came into the hands of collectors, as all were returned to Washington for destruction, while those placed on sale were sent on from Washington, where they were being printed on standard machines using the four other plates.

During a Century of Progress exposition in Chicago in 1933, the treasury department provided a display which included the actual printing of stamps and paper money upon a four plate, power assisted Miehle flat bed press. Stamps were printed under conditions which approximated those prevailing in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, but none were sold, and all were returned to Washington, where it may be assumed they were inspected and ultimately placed in regular stock.

It appears that the Centennial demonstration is the only instance where a collector has been able to see a philatelic item printed and later has been able to buy one of the actual impressions. The supply was augmented by other Centennial envelopes printed in Hartford, Conn., but it is believed that all printed at the exposition were sold in the model postoffice from day to day.

The Constitution stamps which have just been issued were printed from plates 21705 to 21708 inclusive. These plates contain 200 subjects each and are curved for use on the rotary presses. The Constitution design is by A. R. Meissner, using the painting by Stearns, showing the signing of the constitution. The vignette was engraved by J. Eissler, while Carl T. Arlt handled the frame and W. B. Wells, the lettering. The first printing was made on Sept. 10, before a group which included officials of the government and of the constitution sesquicentennial commission.

This Week in the Garden

Monday Oct. 11.

It is a good time to give trees an application of plant food. A complete food is best. Bore holes about two inches in diameter and twelve to eighteen inches deep at intervals around the tree and under the outermost tips of the branches. Fill the holes with one-half pint of food mixed with soil and water well. Allow about one pound of food to each inch of circumference of the tree trunk at four feet above the ground. Fall applications of food will be available when springtime comes. It is time to plant tulips and the great number of varieties will enable every one to gratify the wish to have a fine garden filled with beautiful flowers.

Tuesday, Oct. 12.

Send for a bulb catalog and study the various classes and varieties. There are any number of combinations for color that may be arranged. Bulbs will do much better if some plant food is placed beneath the spots where the bulbs are to go. In springtime the bulbs are ready to grow. A good soil is essential. With good care the results will be impressive. Try a calla lily in the house by planting a tuber now. Keep in full sun. When well established they require much water.

Wednesday, Oct. 13.

Freesias should be potted at once for winter blooming. Keep in a cool place, but darkness is not needed as they root and start into growth immediately. Chrysanthemums that are of doubtful hardiness can be wintered in a coldframe. Some biennials like forget-me-not, English daisies, canterbury bells and others may also be placed in frames for winter protection. Plant the paperwhite narcissi in bowls of pebbles and water, peatmoss or bulb fiber. Place the lower half of the bulbs beneath the material. It is a good plan to allow them to root well before bringing to the light. All cuttings that are well rooted should be potted in soil and kept in a cool place until established. Tender plants, such as coleus, are easy to grow, but they should be kept compact, not over-potted, and in full sun.

Thursday, Oct. 14.

Collect and burn all leaves that are known to have been infested with insects or disease. Rose leaves frequently harbor black spot which remains dormant all winter. Tree and shrub leaves should be saved and piled in an out of the way place for decay. If mixed with soil and watered they will decay much faster than if piled dry. Remove all garden accessories, unless of a permanent nature, to the storehouse for protection during the winter. Lawn mowers should be thoroughly cleaned before storage. Spades and shovels should be scraped free of all soil, washed, and oiled before storing.

Friday, Oct. 15.

Leaves that fall between shrubs should be left to protect the plants. After the first severe freeze mulch the strawberry bed with straw, but do not pile it over the plants deep enough to smother them. Raspberries and blackberries are much benefited by the addition of such a covering. Some of the minor bulbs, such as crocus, glory-of-the-snow [chionodoxa], grape hyacinth [muscari], and squills [scilla] are excellent for naturalizing among the borders. When planted in irregular masses they present a beautiful appearance and their hardiness and dependability make them desirable.

Saturday, Oct. 16.

Lilacs do best when planted at this time. The new hybrids are usually far superior to the oldtime varieties. Protect by mulching after the ground freezes. These plants make a fine screen, and their delightful blooms make them one of our finest shrubs. Lay in a supply of soil for potting before the season is too far advanced. This will be needed in early spring for starting seeds early, for shifting plants, and for all purposes where soil is used in indoor gardening. When growing hyacinths indoors be sure to place them in a cool, dark place until thoroughly rooted, otherwise the leaves will grow at the expense of flowers.

Tables Play Big Role in Room Arrangement

"What's Wrong with Your Rooms," a booklet by Edith Weigle, discusses the best methods of furniture arrangement and answers many puzzlers concerning decoration. Price, 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Edith Weigle.

THE right table in the right place—that's one way of making a room attractive and comfortable. If the couch and chairs are mahogany in the colonial or 18th century English style, then the reading table, chair and couch, side and coffee tables usually are of the same wood and period. This makes for harmony.

However, since the popularity of blond woods many decorators like to vary this rule and introduce a table in pickled pine, or primavera, or bleached mahogany in this scheme. This can be done with pleasing effect if the style of the piece is the same as that of the rest of the furniture.

But it never is in good taste, for example, to place a simple, peasant-like early American maple table in a room with mahogany or walnut, as those woods are more formal in character.

ALSO, it is difficult to mix modern and traditional pieces, although this is done every day by those skilled in interior decoration. When in doubt consult a decorator in the store where you are making your purchase. This service is afforded in almost all the large Chicago stores now, and no charge is made.

Speaking of modern, we saw several excellently styled tables of primavera, a lovely light golden toned Mexican wood, in this style in a Chicago store the other day. One was placed beside a large davenport to hold a lamp and some books. It was square in shape, with rounded corners, a large square of mirror glass inlaid in the top, and it had a lower shelf a few inches from the floor.

This same type of table also is shown with a round top, circular inset of mirror glass, and a center shelf as well as a lower one. The price is most reasonable.

A low coffee table in primavera also was featured in this group. It was of conservative modern style, like those already described, and was rectangular. The mirror glass top would be practical as well as decorative, for, of course, it is stainproof.

For the old fashioned living room that still boasts some pieces of Victorian furniture we discovered a perfectly grand addition—a corner whatnot of mahogany with five shelves and little decorative fretwork sides. It is sold by the same store.

SMALL two and three tier tables, sometimes known as dumbwaiters, are increasing in popularity this season. You'll find them in almost all the stores, usually in mahogany and with a lovely soft old world finish. They are not high in price, either.

Two tables we saw exhibited recently are made in 18th century English style, one being a Chippendale model of the pedestal type and the other a dropleaf Pembroke. Both are of the best grade of mahogany and are superbly made.

The eight sided top of the Chippendale table is a little different from the average, as it is patterned after an old tray, the handles forming the narrow decorative gallery around the edge.

The Pembrooke is manufactured by an eastern firm. It is notable for its charming inlays of satinwood, and is large enough to serve as a reading table. It has a convenient end drawer for playing cards, cigarets, matches, etc.

For information about the furniture mentioned by Miss Weigle, write her enclosing a 3 cent stamp for your reply, or telephone the Tribune Public Service office, Superior 0100.

Best Remedy for Coughs is Easily Mixed at Home

Needs No Cooking. Big Saving.

To get the quickest relief from coughs due to colds, mix your own remedy at home. Once tried, you'll never use any other kind of cough medicine, and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make a full pint of really better medicine than you could buy ready-made for four times the money. It never spoils, and children love its pleasant taste.

And for quick, blessed relief, it has no equal. You can feel it penetrating the air passages in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the inflamed membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

PINEX for Coughs

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

EVERY college wardrobe [and business girl's collection, too] requires at least one frock that is simple enough for any occasion and plain enough to demand little care, so that one may pop into it at a moment's notice. Often, as you busy maidens know, you must go on an informal date right from your last class or from the office, and the dress, therefore, must be simple so that it won't offend the conservative sensibilities of a professor or stodgy employer who has set opinions about women's clothes! All of which leads us to this frock, which we think is a perfectly grand solution to the aforementioned dress problem.

It has a high neckline which may have little peaks standing up straight or gathers pinned down with a smart brooch. The sleeves are puffed at the shoulderline, and this fullness idea is maintained in the gathers found at either side of the front panel, just where the theoretical waistline joins the top. The sleeves are interesting, full at the top and slenderly fitted by means of tucks below the elbow. The frock is absolutely plain in back, buttoning a short way down from the neckline. If you have a slender figure, which you probably have, this dress is wonderful for showing off its soft curves. It gives you plenty of bust emphasis and calls flattering attention to your waistline. The skirt has lots of fullness derived from the ingenious paneling.

Any fabric takes well to this pattern because its lines are so simple. Rough weave crêpes are excellent, and soft woolens are ideal. My own frock is of luscious black silk with a crinkly surface.

Style No. T-8538 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years.

Rolled Umbrella, Queen Mary Type, Is Seen at Races

THE uncertain weather prevailing at the autumn race meets established a vogue for the Queen Mary type of tightly rolled umbrella having a tall crook handle. The races brought out much fur-trimmed black, including suits edged with Persian lamb and having small collars, as well as longer jacket suits slathered with silver fox. Several new-looking coat frocks of black woolen having short, tight, collarless jackets with deep hems of silver fox were also noted.

Women wore much "crazy" millinery. There were many fantastically bent black felts rather nineteen-hundred in inspiration; numbers of plain, large berets were noted; these were very high on the left side and based on a round Scotch tam. There were also high funnel and stove-pipe toques, some having veils.

Several smart women wore new longer than knee-length fur capes, narrow at the shoulders and wide at the hem; one was mink-dyed natural seal shiny as satin.

Accessories were simple; both short and wrinkled wrist gloves were in evidence, the smartest were perfectly plain suede. Handbags were rather plain and large, some had handles, some were in an oblong envelope shape and matched the wearer's shoes.

Quantities of pumps were noted; there were a few new ankle ties with moderate heels and some moccasin-shaped ties cut low with wide low heels.

Clear, Amber Coffee Result of Great Care

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune.]

AN Arabian goatherd of the ninth century is said to have discovered that roasted coffee berries steeped in hot water made an exhilarating drink.

In an ensuing eleven hundred years of coffee-guzzling, comparatively few cooks and housekeepers have discovered a way to make this beverage flavorful, clear, and amber, with a fine, enticing aroma.

In a way, it isn't surprising that most of us can't make good coffee. There are a dozen or more factors which must be taken into consideration—the blend and freshness of the coffee itself, the water used, the length of time the beverage is brewed, the accuracy or inaccuracy of measurement, and the type of coffeemaker used, to mention a few.

WHETHER you buy a cheap or more expensive coffee, it must be fresh if the results are to be fit for the table. Coffee loses flavor and aroma with exposure to air, and once the container has been opened, deterioration is bound to take place whether the coffee jar is kept closely covered or not. It is best to buy coffee in small amounts, enough for a week at a time, if freshness is to be retained.

Measurements should be accurate and always the same. The old fashioned standard was a "heaping tablespoon" of coffee per full cup of water. Since no two heaping tablespoonsful will measure alike, accuracy demands the modern standard of 2 level tablespoons per cup of water. Some persons prefer a weaker coffee than this, and others like it stronger. Individual preferences will dictate any adjustment of this median measurement.

There are dozens of coffeemakers—percolators of several types, electric brewers, drip coffee pots, all kinds of glass utensils, most of them efficient, and many of them beautiful. Whatever type is used, it must be kept scrupulously clean if today's coffee is not to be embittered by yesterday's vestigial remains. Frequent baths in hot soapy water, and occasional exposure to the sun are helpful. Glass coffeemakers usually are quite easy to keep clean, and many persons believe that the beverage made in them is clearer and more flavorful than that made in other types. Most glass utensils are of the drip or vacuum kind.

TO make coffee by any of the most common methods, these instructions may be followed. The first two methods are generally considered inferior to the others in producing a good drink.

BOILED COFFEE.

Measure fresh cold water into the coffee pot with the correct amount of coffee [2 tablespoons per cup of water]. Allow the coffee to come to a boil and to boil very gently for about two minutes. Let settle and carefully pour the coffee off the grounds into a clean, hot receptacle. Serve at once. Rapid or long boiling will result in a bitter coffee, and if the coffee isn't allowed to settle, the beverage will be cloudy. Several tablespoons of beaten egg may be stirred into the coffee before cold water is added and will help to make a clear brew.

STEEPED COFFEE.

Pour boiling water over coffee [both water and coffee having been measured accurately] and let stand for 5 minutes over low heat. Strain coffee through muslin or cheese cloth and serve.

PERCOLATED COFFEE.

The secret of percolated coffee is in gentle brewing. Slow percolation over a period of from 10 to 15 minutes gives best results. Rapid percolation brings out bitterness in coffee. Coffee will be best if the full amount for which the percolator is designed is made. Water should come up over the base of the spout. The time should be counted from the second the first spray of water comes up over the grounds in the valveless type of percolator. Ten minutes is the usual length of time. In the valve type, the time is counted from the moment the sprays become steady rather than spurting. Percolation in the valve type will require fifteen minutes.

DRIP COFFEE.

Use fresh, briskly boiling water, preheat the pot, and allow the coffee to drip through the grounds only once. Then remove upper coffee-basket compartment at once and cover the pot for serving.

IT is wise to follow instructions which come with the coffeemaker you buy in order to be sure of perfect results with that particular type of utensil.

The four rules of good coffeemaking are these.

1. Use a clean utensil, fresh water, and fresh coffee.
2. Measure accurately every time.
3. Never allow coffee to boil or percolate rapidly or for any length of time. The best brews are made with a temperature just under the boiling point.
4. Do not allow coffee to stand once it is made. Serve it immediately.

UPSIDE-DOWN APPLE GINGERBREAD

Fragrant, spicy, delicious

½ cup Spry
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon soda
½ cup sugar
1 egg, unbeaten
1 cup molasses
2½ cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
1 cup boiling water
¾ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
2 cups apples, thinly sliced

Combine Spry, salt, spices and soda. Add sugar gradually and cream until light and fluffy. (So easy with Spry! You'll say it's the creamiest shortening you ever used.) Add egg and beat thoroughly. Add molasses and blend. Sift flour with baking powder 3 times. Add to creamed mixture, blending well. Add boiling water and beat until smooth.

Sprinkle brown sugar on bottom of 10x10x2-inch pan, greased with Spry. Arrange apple slices on sugar and pour batter over all. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 50 to 60 minutes. Serve upside down with whipped cream. See how light and tender. But only Spry will give perfect results in this recipe. Serves 10.

Katharine Cornell's Plans for World Tour Bring Tragedy

Trail Blazer for Actress Meets Death

By Charles Collins.

WHEN Katharine Cornell announced her ambition to make a professional tour of the world last spring Ray Henderson, her press representative and advance agent, became the most envied man in the theatrical business. He was also the happiest. Before Miss Cornell came to a final decision a survey of the contemplated route was necessary, and Henderson, an important member of her executive staf for the last seven years, was commissioned to start immediately on the trail to Mandalay and many other oriental and occidental ports, studying theater sites and transportation schedules. Such an assignment had never been given to the press agent of an American dramatic actress up to that time.

On June 12 he started westward from New York, and presently his newspaper friends and acquaintances began to receive messages from Hawaii, Pago-Pago, Australia, New Zealand, Japan, China, Manila, Calcutta, Bombay, and Cairo. They added a dash of romantic and cosmopolitan color to a dull summer for many a dramatic editor. The last word concerning him, however, was grievous news. On Oct. 1 the aircraft that was to carry him from Alexandria to London crashed into Phaleron bay, near Athens, and his Odyssey came to a brutal end. He was drowned with three other passengers.

A Press Agent Who Told the Truth.

Henderson, whose given names were John Raymond, was an outstanding man in the American legitimate theater. He devoted himself to publicizing the various stars for whom he had worked with a complete sincerity of purpose and a fine feeling for the ethics of journalism. He never gave false or misleading information to the press. He shunned the tricks and fantasies of ballyhoo. He made his work a dignified profession, and his employers benefited largely from the respect that he won from every editor with whom he came in contact.

He was a scholar in theatrical lore, a lucid and interesting writer, and a devotee of the drama as an art rather than a business. His attention to business details, however, was meticulous. Such men are rarely found on the box office side of the theater. Henderson was a variation from type, and an object lesson to his more florid and fallacious colleagues.

His personality was marked by a shyness and reserve which had a definite charm. Miss Cornell's rise to her present commanding position was accomplished during Henderson's promotion of her activities, but no one ever heard him boast of his share in her brilliant success.

Forbes-Robertson Was His First Star.

He was born in Colorado 48 years ago, and began his theatrical career in the box office of a theater at Colorado Springs, with petty press agent duties as a sideline. There he met and entered the employ of Forbes-Robertson, the great English star, then touring in "The Passing of the Third Floor Back." He went to London with Forbes-Robertson and served as his press representative, in both England and America, until the actor's retirement in 1918.

Other stars with whom Henderson was associated were William Faversham, Sir Herbert Tree, Ethel Barrymore, George Arliss, E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe. He also was press representative for Winthrop Ames during part of the latter's distinguished career as a New York producer.

Notes on Current Theatrical Topics.

The Broadway premières of the last week introduced the following plays:

"In Clover"—A comedy, by Allan Scott, with Dennie Moore, Claudia Morgan, Myron McCormick, José Ferrer, Louise Platt, Bertram Thorn, and Joseph Sweeney in the cast. Opened at the Vanderbilt theater Oct. 5.

"To Quito and Back"—A comedy, by Ben Hecht, dealing with a Hollywood scenarist caught in a South American revolution, with Leslie Banks, Sylvia Sidney, Joseph Buol Buolff, Evelyn Varden, Walter N. Greaza, and many others in the cast. This was the Theater Guild's first production of the season. Opened at the Guild theater Oct. 6.

"Susan and God"—A comedy, by Rachel Crothers, with the Oxford religious revival movement as the background of its story. In the cast are Gertrude Lawrence, Paul McGrath, Vera Allen, Edith Atwater, Douglas Gilmore, Eleanor Dudley, Fred Leslie, David Byrne, Nancy Kelly, Katherine Deane, and Bigelow Sayre. The late Osgood Perkins died on the eve of this play's tryout in Washington about a week ago. Paul McGrath has succeeded to his rôle.

John Gielgud's recent launching of a repertory program in London may be taken as suggestive of his plans, in whole or part, for his next American tour, whenever that may be. His principal item, "Richard II.," may not figure in his American ambitions, because Maurice Evans is taking the cream off that classic. His other plays, however, should arouse anticipation in this country. They will be: "The School for Scandal," with Peggy Ashcroft as Lady Teazle and himself as Joseph Surface; "The Three Sisters," authorship not identified in dispatches, but apparently to be attributed to Tchekov, and "The Merchant of Venice," in which Gielgud will act Shylock for the first time, with Miss Ashcroft as Portia. His London season will consist of these four plays, each in a minimum run of eight weeks or a maximum of ten.

Arthur Hammerstein, son of Oscar the impresario, will return to Broadway theatrical production this season after an absence of five years. Before the depression he was one of New York's most active producers of lyric entertainments. He plans to stage the following works:

"One Flight Down," a tragedy adapted from the German, which will deal with a tailor living in a 9th avenue, New York City, basement.

A musical show of elaborate character, based on highlights in the career of Oscar Hammerstein. The libretto will be by Oscar Hammerstein II., with Parker Morrell's biography, "Oscar the First," as its source material. The score will be largely composed by Herbert Stothart.

The loss of $3,000,000, invested in the former Hammerstein theater, New York, caused the interruption of this producer's Broadway career.

Frances Farmer, prominent in the new crop of pretty movie actresses, will make her debut on the Broadway stage in Clifford Odets' new play, "The Manly Art," first announced under the title, "Golden Gloves," on Nov. 4 in New York with the Group Theater company. She polished up her footlight style by recent appearances with summer stock companies in Westport, Conn., and Mount Kisko, N. Y.

Orchestra at Duluth Had Humble Start

FOUR years ago a group of musicians of Duluth, Minn., began rehersing together for the fun of it. They used a garage for their practice hall, and had no economic stability nor powerful backing.

That was the humble beginning of the Duluth Symphony orchestra, which will begin its fifth season on Oct. 20. Its status now is quite different. The community backs the project by a subscription fund of $12,000 a year and the orchestra has taken its place among the most important of Duluth's cultural assets.

It consists now of 80 members. The conductor is Paul Lemay, who resigned his post as assistant conductor of the Minneapolis orchestra to take over the musical burdens of the smaller city. The present associate director is Walter Lange.

Although the Duluth orchestra still runs on what most similar organizations would call a shoestring, the fact remains that the members of the orchestra are actually paid for rehersals and performances. The orchestra, therefore, may be said to have genuine economic soundness and stability. Public interest is considerable.

Each season the Duluth orchestra presents a series of six subscription concerts and makes various other appearances for specific charitable causes. For these latter, the musicians donate their services. There are a few Sunday afternoon "pop" concerts at very low prices and a few out-of-town programs in cities near Duluth.

Among the well known artists who have appeared with the Duluth orchestra are Rose Bampton, Roland Hayes, Rosa Tentoni, Josephine Antoine, Helen Jepson, Percy Grainger, Albert Spalding, and Jascha Heifetz.

Next season's list comprises Mischa Elman, the Don Cossack chorus, Howard Barlow, Marian Anderson, and the piano duo of Elsa Anneke and Miriam Blair.

Chorus Lassie

WHEN June Clifford Grey's father, English librettist and song writer, refused to help her with her theatrical ambitions the 17 year old girl left England last summer, accompanied by a chaperon, determined to become an American chorus girl. She landed in "The Show Is On," now in Chicago.

Miss Grey is alleged to speak five languages, including Dutch, and wants to become an American citizen. Clifford Grey, her father, helped to write "Hit the Deck," "The Three Musketeers," "Lady Butterfly," and other successful musical shows.

Fifth European Tour.

Ruth Posselt, the young American violinist who appeared with the Chicago Symphony orchestra year before last, will embark later this season on her fifth European tour.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson

(Copyright: 1937: By Ely Culbertson.)

"DEAR MR. CULBERTSON: Many thanks for your recent letter and the clear explanations you gave on certain knotty points. I know you must have millions of inquiries from all parts, but it is, I am sure, gratifying to you to find the interest from far away taken in your system and the calling on you to arbitrate on the highlights of bridge. Here is something that occurred the other day which just hadn't happened before. It meant a good deal to us, as it was the deciding factor in a championship.

"I am giving you only the North-South hands, as there was no question of play involved. My inquiry is simply in connection with the correct bidding of the North and South hands, which follow:

NORTH
♠ K J 7 4
♥ A Q 8 2
♦ A Q 10 9 4

SOUTH
♠ A 8 6 2
♣ A K J 10 9 7 6 4 3

"With East and West vulnerable, South, my partner, dealt and bid three clubs. West overcalled with three hearts. We were playing the two-way three bid and all its latest additions. I ask, what would you do on this hand? Anyway, I doubled (as, to my mind a coöperative double), and my partner passed. They were set two, 500. But at the other table (it was duplicate, teams of four) they made a small slam in clubs, which was doubled, and brought them in 1,140. Did my bid deny the strength in the other suits which I held? My partner asked me to write you on this particular point: whether a penalty double in the situation described d e n i e s enough strength to make a strong reply to the three bid. His contention that it did to a certain extent is debatable. I presume your reply will be somewhat to the effect that such a double is always coöperative and can be left in or taken out at the discretion of the partner. That was my view, and with South's hand I would be disinclined to leave such a double in; I think it is doubtful if he could depend upon more than one trick defensively, on the bidding.

"My partner asked: 'How, then, can I distinguish between such a hand as you held and a hand poor in honor tricks but with considerably more trump strength?'

"As it is, I think, an important point, I would like your advice on it. The same principle is involved sometimes in hands which have been opened at the level of one, and also sometimes two. It is not so much the game as compared with a sizable penalty as the question of missing a slam if it is there. Yours truly,

"C. L. EASTGATE,
"Auckland, Australia."

I agree with Mr. Eastgate that a question of general interest is involved and I am therefore making my reply public.

The field of penalty doubles is extremely fertile, but unfortunately it produces a crop of difficulties. Average players are not the only ones afflicted with a headache when it comes to determining two things—first, when to double, and, second (from the other side of the table), when to leave in the double. Many an expert has left in a double and disgustedly found himself the recipient of two or three hundred points, whereas, had he only known it, he could have made from two to five times that amount by going on to his own game or slam.

Much of the confusion in this important department of bridge springs from a conflict between convention and judgment. If you open the bidding with one spade, second hand overcalls with two hearts, and partner doubles, you realize, of course, that the double, conventionally speaking, is for penalties—partner does not want you to interfere with what he judges will be a juicy set. But I call your attention to the exact wording—"partner does not want you to interfere." This statement is literally true. Partner will be displeased if you take out the double. But here is the crux! He will not be displeased because you took out the double, but because of your necessity for taking it out! He would be a darned sight more displeased if you left it in without justification. Thus it is obvious that the conventions surrounding doubles must be more elastic than certain other conventions of bidding and play. In the last analysis almost all doubles are coöperative.

But let us become more specific and attack the problem in the hand shown above. South, not vulnerable, opens with three clubs. West, vulnerable, overcalls with three hearts, and North doubles. Our duty is to examine the merits of North's double and to determine whether South should leave in said double.

The first question is simple—no action by North other than a penalty double is conceivable. North certainly cannot pass with his tremendous strength. To bid no trump when void of partner's suit would be atrocious; to bid three spades woud be entirely misleading—North would make that bid if he held nothing but a long spade suit; four diamonds is even less constructive. North knows that South has seven winners for his opening three bid, but still cannot be sure that a slam is possible, nor, for that matter, can he even guarantee a game, since up to this point he does not even know what the best game contract would be. Even if the opponents were on the same vulnerability basis as North himself, a penalty double would stand out as the logical action. East-West's vulnerability as against North-South's nonvulnerability merely enhances the attractiveness of the double.

And so we come back to South's hand! Should he leave in the double or persist with clubs? The answer is found in South's distribution. South probably reasoned that he had already told partner about his "freak" by opening with a three bid. But here we run into the question of degree. Let's look at it this way:

Suppose I know that a friend of mine is planning to play a set game with a new partner. I, who have played often with the chap, say to my friend: "You'd better look out—this partner of yours is not very good." My friend, who has reason to rate his own game highly and no reason to be scared of his opponents, shrugs and answers: "Thanks. As it happens, my opponents aren't so hot either." It then develops that the player I described as "not very good" turns out to be the world's greatest palooka! Because I warned him only mildly instead of kicking him in the shins, as I should have, my friend will no longer be my friend!

To return to South's hand, there are freaks and freaks. South's opening bid easily could have been based on a mild freak, something like seven clubs and two cards in each of the other suits. The difference between such a distribution and the one actually held is enormous! And South's plain duty is to express that difference. He cannot possibly expect his partner to visualize a distribution that occurs only once in millions of hands. As to South's fear that North's heart double could have been based on nothing but hearts, this was possible but not likely. A good player in the North position, who held practically no strength except in the heart suit, would not double a three bid; in fact, there would be two distinct reasons for him to pass. First, if he remained silent and did not warn the enemy he easily might get the opportunity to double a higher heart contract; second, if he could double only one suit there would be a strong presumption that the opponents could find a better suit. Thus the double indicated strength outside of the heart suit itself. It is true that this strength could have been confined to hearts and diamonds and that South would find nothing in the spade suit, where it was urgently needed. But the playing possibilities of a 9-4 distribution are superb, and South should have had little fear about being able to fulfill a game contract in clubs. Even if a slam were not reached, his score, augmented by the 100 honors, would come to 500 points, which would probably be equal to any penalty that might be exacted. And in addition it would keep the channels open for a s l a m if further developments showed the advisability.

South's correct action was to take out the double with an asking bid in spades. This would have elicited a four no trump response from North, and six clubs then would have become a conservative contract.

Each Monday in The Daily Tribune Mr. Culbertson writes a bridge article especially for beginners. Articles for more advanced players on other days.

Middle Age Frustration Theme of New Anderson Play

"KLART TILL DRABBNING"

A smile to sweeten your Sunday! To you from Sickan Carlsson, who hopes you'll like her in the Julian's Swedish dialog film, "Klart Till Drabbning" (Ready for Action.)

Nelson Eddy Makes Twelve New Records

IT seems as if all the radio songs you have ever heard have been gathered by Victor into its recent Nelson Eddy album. "Trees," "By the Waters of Minnetonka," "A Dream," "Smilin' Through," "Sylvia," "At Dawning," "The Rosary"—all of them are here, and the list is not yet complete. In addition there are "A Perfect Day," "Oh, Promise Me," "The Hills of Home," and "Deep River." MacDowell's "Thy Beaming Eyes" is a sort of extra dividend.

The pieces are presented in a set called "Twelve Beloved American Songs," and are well performed by the handsome young baritone who has made so spectacular a success in radio, the movies, and the concert hall. The accompaniment is the work of Nathaniel Shilkret and his orchestra in ten instances, of Theodore Paxson, Eddy's very capable pianist, in the remaining two.

An extremely important album is Victor's recent pressing of the Tschaikowsky violin concerto. Jascha Heifetz and the London Philharmonic orchestra, under John Barbirolli, join forces here for a notable performance of a work which ranges among the richest in the violinist's répertoire.

The temptation to sentimentalize the Tschaikowsky, even in the first movement, must always be a strong one, but in this recording the artists engaged bend themselves conscientiously to an aristocratic presentation of the music as it is. There is vitality, elation, profound sentiment—never a hint of the sickly nor the maudlin.

Brahms Variations Offered in Two Record Album.

The Brahms Variations on a Theme of Haydn are offered in a small, two record album which bears the imprint of Arturo Toscanini himself and of the New York Philharmonic orchestra. First in point of time of Brahms' major orchestral works, these profoundly beautiful variations have proved in the sixty-odd years of their life that they possess the proud vitality of the four symphonies which were to follow. Splendor of idea and exhaustive workmanship—these qualities are present in the variations as surely as in the larger, later works.

The Boston Symphony orchestra, Serge Koussevitzky conducting, has recorded for Victor the Introduction to Moussorgsky's "Kovantchina." This mysterious and provocative music is part of the manuscript which was left incomplete at the composer's death and which was finished and orchestrated by Rimsky-Korsakoff.

Ria Ginster, the admirable soprano who made her first Chicago appearance season before last, and is scheduled for another engagement with the orchestra this year, records two excerpts from the bewilderingly large and little known treasury of Bach cantatas. In order to retain in these pressings as much as possible of the eighteenth century quality, the accompaniments are confined to flutes and piano.

Beethoven's Second Now Available on New Recording.

The smiling Second symphony of Beethoven is available now in a new Columbia recording by Sir Thomas Beecham and the London Philharmonic orchestra. This most immediately attractive of all Beethoven's larger works is presented in a four disc album in the Masterworks series.

The recording is tonally rich and imbued with all of Sir Thomas' famous vitality. Tempi are consistently good, and all of the delectable themes in which this symphony is so rich are set forth in an effective, yet always musicianly manner.

The patrician art of Joseph Szigeti, Hungarian violinist, is displayed in a recent recording of Handel's fourth sonata for violin. His pianist is Nikita Magaloff. The set comprises two small double-faced records without an album.

Another small classical work, this one offered in a compact little album, is a Mozart piano sonata in B flat [Köckel 570, not the familiar one], played by Walter Gieseking. The recording is a masterpiece of lovely, fluid tone, a startling demonstration of the success of the phonograph companies in their efforts to reproduce on wax the subtle characteristics of this difficult instrument.

For those whose taste runs to the austere, there is a Hindemith sonata for unaccompanied cello played by Emanuel Feuermann. Truth, however, compels one to remark that this work does not seems quite so uncompromising as the sonata for unaccompanied viola which the insurgent German composer himself performed for us here last spring.

"First Legion"

EMMETT LAVERY, whose "First Legion" has been acted in seven languages since its run in Chicago three seasons ago, is now working on a play for Broadway production this winter. "First Legion" is still running in London with Colin Keith-Johnson in the central rôle. Contracts have been signed for a production in Paris.

Combines the Real with the Fantastic

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—The Maxwell Anderson drama continues to be slightly cockeyed and fascinatingly different. His newest play, "The Star-Wagon," obviously written for the particular use of young Burgess Meredith, who did so much for both "Winterset" and "High Tor," is full brother to the latter play in that it also deals with the unreal in terms of the real, combining fantasy with realism in a way that is sometimes a little mystifying but pretty steadily interesting.

You may remember a story O. Henry wrote called "The Roads of Destiny," which Channing Pollock made into a play eighteen years ago. In this the hero, having a second chance at his choice of roads, tried others and came back at last to the one he had taken originally. Or you also may remember Sir James Barrie's "Dear Brutus," in which a magic wood gave all who entered its shade a second try at life. Or John Balderstone's "Berkeley Square," in which the hero was put back in the seventeenth century. "The Star-Wagon" suggests them all.

Mr. Anderson Tells a Story of Embittered Years.

As Mr. Anderson tells it, the Minches, Stephen and Martha, have come upon those years of frustration and embittered contemplation when they begin to question and to magnify the mistakes they have made. Martha is particularly bitter because Stephen, at 60, having let everybody run over him, is still working in a laboratory for $27.50 a week while the men who have stolen his inventions are rolling in wealth. She wishes she had married the successful Paul Reiger when she had the chance, and Stephen should have married the rich Hallie Arlington.

Stephen is happy as he is. He does not live in Martha's world at all. His is one of the imagination. So long as he can be happy doing what he wants to do, nothing else matters. Just at the moment he is entirely wrapped up in a new sort of memory machine that, being set for a particular date, will transport its operators back to that date. Time and space are as nothing. All that has happened is still happening. We don't know it, just as we didn't know that the sensitive antennæ of the radio could pick up a king's cough in Europe before radio was discovered.

The morning of Martha's latest outburst Stephen and his friend Hanus [also a thorn in the protesting Martha's side] are late at the laboratory and are promptly fired. They don't mind that very much, hating their smug and brutal boss as they do, but they are worried about what may happen to Stephen's memory machine. So they hire a couple of burglars to help them get it out of the factory. The burglars try to double-cross them. Fearing they are to lose the machine, Stephen and Hanus decide to try it. Perhaps it won't work, anyway. But it works fast enough and back they go to the Fourth of July picnic thirty-five years before, when Stephen and Martha became engaged.

The Action Then Follows an Expected Course.

The action from then on follows an expected course. In 1902 Stephen and Hanus are fellow employés in a bicycle shop. Stephen sells his invention for a horseless carriage for $500 so he will have money enough to marry Martha, but when it comes to the point of proposing to Martha, Stephen hesitates. That is where he made his first mistake. This time Stephen marries Hallie Arlington, whose father had bought his horseless carriage, and Martha marries the promising young steel man, Paul Reiger.

They all become terribly rich and terribly unhappy after that, cheaters of the government, cheaters of their stockholders, cheaters of life. Pitifully Stephen begs Hanus to start the machine again. It takes a bit of tinkering, but they get it going finally and there they are, back in the Minches' kitchen. They have only been away for a night, while they were recovering the memory machine, but Martha has been frightfully worried. She had been sitting up waiting, and as she waited she had had the strangest dream. That dream had cleared up a lot of things in Martha's mind. She is satisfied now that, perhaps, things are best as they are.

It is all pretty strange to the Minches, but, as Stephen says, who knows? Perhaps the memory machine is no more wonderful than any of the other wonderful things that have been and are being invented. Perhaps one day they will be as common as radio. Perhaps one day the old legend of the bird that flew out of the darkness into a lighted room, and through the room into the darkness again, will be made plain to us. We, too, come out of darkness into light and go again into darkness protestingly and fearfully.

A familiar happy ending of an age-old tale, right enough, but satisfying in this instance because it is treated intelligently and is beautifully played. The defeated boss, who also has had a bad night, missing Stephen and realizing all in a flash, as it were, what Stephen has meant to him and to his business, is in to make amends. He would have Stephen and Hanus come back—Stephen at $200 a week and Hanus at $50. Two hundred a week! That means a piano and a maid for Martha! Stephen is satisfied. Only—it must be understood that he will never again take orders. Not from anybody.

Happiest Moments of the Play Come in Second Act.

The happiest moments of the play, and those that are likely to win a popular success for it, come in the second act, after the memory machine has done its work. The scene is 1902, when bicycle bloomers were a sight, not to say a scandal, and the boys were poking mutton chop sleeves down the sleeves of the girls' jackets.

There is a picnic scene with a morally punctilious choir leader trying to act as an Argus-eyed chaperon and, best of all, there is a choir rehersal, with Martha playing the accompaniment for Stephen to sing "The Holy City." The choir scene is probably the popular high light of the play, having even a hard first night audience in alternate stitches and tears.

"The Star-Wagon" is perfectly acted. Burgess Meredith revels in the wigs and makeup of the various Stephens he plays. Being naturally gifted in character portraiture he relieves this protean exercise of some, though not all, of the monotony such exhibits frequently breed. He has a surprisingly good natural singing voice, which helps the choir scene amazingly.

Lillian Gish is equally sure and fine as both the embittered and the regenerated Martha. None of our younger actresses has made greater strides than she has made the last few seasons. Mildred Natwick is perfectly cast as the choir mistress. Russell Collins, the Johnny Johnson of last year, is impressively consistent as Hanus. Kent Smith, Jane Buchanan, and a half dozen others are helpful.

"French Without Tears" a Chattery English Comedy.

Another of those bright and chattery English comedies, "French Without Tears," is an item of the expanding season. Terence Rattigan wrote it and it has been running in London for months. I doubt if it does so well here. The English do a supremely good job with the writing, casting, and playing of these lightweight pieces, but they naturally have no more than a limited appeal to American audiences. We can laugh at an exaggeration of our own particular character weaknesses, as we laugh at "You Can't Take It With You," but we are no more than mildly interested in the character weaknesses of our jolly old cousins.

There is also little story value in "French Without Tears." That, as you may know, is the title of a textbook edited by Lady Bell and used generally by English school children as soon as they take up French. The play is concerned with a group of English young people who are in the south of France studying French at the pension school of Monsieur Maingot. Several of the young men are preparing for the diplomatic service.

One of the young ladies, Diana Lake by name, is seductive and flirtatious. A sort of college widow, she sets her cap for each newcomer. Having made a catch of Kit, and kept Alan dangling, she goes after Lieut. Rogers. The victims finally combine against her. With a pout and a swish she turns from them and prepares to welcome Lord Heybrook. The joke is on Diana when his lordship marches in, a sturdy young chap, aged 11.

Frank Lawton is the only member of the cast known here. He is the personable juvenile who played for us first in "The Wind and the Rain" and who afterward married Evelyn Laye and went in for pictures. Penelope Dudley Ward is an attractive newcomer playing Diana, and there is a jolly Frenchman, Marcel Vallee, whom everybody likes.

There have been other new plays this week, but none of them worth writing you about. One, a quite terrible piece called "On Location," has already departed. Another, "How Come, Lawd?" is an ambitious Negro theater effort that is more honorable in intention than it is effective in performance. A third is an extravaganza Theresa Telburn wrote a dozen or fifteen years ago and called "A Hero Is Born." This is rather a well written adaptation of an Andrew Lang fairy story having to do with the hero who did not believe in fairies. The WPA Federal theater has given it an elaborate production, thus providing jobs for a couple of hundred idle players, which should have at least renewed their faith in fairies.

Sibelius Broadcast.

The symphonies of Sibelius, all seven of them, will be broadcast this season on the Radio City Music hall programs by Erno Rapee and his orchestra. This is said to be a first presentation on the air of the complete cycle of Sibelius symphonies.

PLAYS NOVELIST IN 'THE WOMEN'

Doris Packer is prominent in the cast of "The Women," at the Erlanger theater, in the role of a novel writer who views her sex with an ironic eye. [Maurice Seymour Photo.]

Drama Contest

OCT. 1 marked the opening of the second play competition of the Bureau of New Plays for awards, fellowships, and scholarships. Headed by Theresa Helburn, this activity is sponsored by seven motion picture companies and aided by the coöperation of Walter Prichard Eaton of Yale, Frederick H. Koch of the University of North Carolina, and Kenneth Rowe of the University of Michigan.

Any one who has attended college as graduate or undergraduate student since Sept. 1, 1931, is eligible. Awards of $500 will be given to the authors of the six best plays submitted.

Night Clubs Change Bills for Autumn

THE Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel celebrated the première of its fall program of cabaret entertainment last Friday night with harvest time decorations. Louise Glenn, ballet and character dancer, and the Di Gatanos, a team of ballroom dancers, are prominent on the bill. Eddie Varzos' American Gypsies remain, playing tangos, rhumbas, and waltzes. Special entertainers in this group are José Bethancourt, marimba expert; Lucio Garcia, singer of Spanish-American songs, and Esther Todd, prima donna.

● The fall and winter season of floor entertainment in the Gold Coast room of the Drake hotel began last night with the arrival of Vincent Lopez's orchestra for a four weeks' engagement. His organization contains a number of soloists, including Louise Etill, a pretty blues singer; Ernest Mathias and Bob Snell, singing comedians, and several trick musicians. Lopez gives frequent demonstrations of his fine gift as a pianist.

● Benny Fields returned to the Chez Paree last Friday night for the third time since his recent renewal of popularity as the star of a completely new floor show. The ballroom dancers are Georges and Jalna, a graceful couple who have been popular in other Chicago engagements. The chief singing girl is Gracie Barrie, formerly of George White's "Scandals" and the New York cast of "The Show Is On." The leading specialty dancer is Dolly Arden, the exceedingly pretty and clever girl who has been the star of the cabaret shows at Villa Venice for two summers. Other principals are Miss Sunny Rice, tap dancer, and Rosita Royce, who appears in a "dove dance." Henry Busse's orchestra continues.

● Wayne King, dance orchestra leader of national reputation, continues his engagement in the Empire room of the Palmer house. A new floor show will start next Thursday night with Alexander Gray, baritone operetta singer of the current bill, as its leading performer. Other principals in the revue will be Pierce and Harris, a comedy dance team; the Three Cossacks, roller skaters new to Chicago, and Fred Craig, in demonstrations of mathematical skill whose "turn" is a novelty in cabaret entertainment. The twelve Abbott ballet girls will have new dances and costumes. Charles Gaylord's orchestra replaces King's on Monday nights. The engagement of the De Marcos, Antonio and Renée, will close next Wednesday night.

● The Continental room of the Stevens hotel started a new program last Wednesday with Sande Williams' orchestra, in its Chicago debut. Pierre and Temple are the ballroom dancers. The Music Hall Boys, singing trio, contribute comic songs. "Hawaii Nights" is the title under which the Continental room gives its current entertainment. Decorations are in the South seas mood.

● The College inn will put a new cabaret program into action next Wednesday night with the following performers: the twelve Boots McKenna dancers; Sam Barton, comic bicyclist; Robert Neller, ventriloquist; the six Dancing Babies; Coleman Clark and Bill Price, table tennis experts; Myrus, mind reader; Carl Marx, clown, and Frankie Masters' orchestra with Donna Dae as soloist.

● Kay Kyser's band will return to the Blackhawk next Wednesday, with Virginia Simms, Sully Mason, Harry Babbitt and "Isch Kabibble" Bogue as its specialists in entertainment. A new floor show will be presented. Joe Sanders gives the last performance of his long run tomorrow.

● The Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel will have a new dancing floor, 1,500 square feet in area, when Orville Tucker's band arrives to open the fall season next Saturday night. Featured singers in this organization will be the Bailey Sisters and Bonnie Baker. A group of ballet girls will give Ruth St. Denis' "Fire Dance" and other numbers.

● The Casino Parisien in the Morrison hotel will be operated under the hotel's management this season, instead of by the French Casino impresarios. The date of the fall opening has not yet been decided.

● The Club Arcada in St. Charles, Ill., opened last Friday night with a harvest home festival. Constantin Dmitri, formerly of the Club El Gaucho in New York, is manager and master of ceremonies. Two floor show programs are given every night.

● Ted Weems continues as orchestra director at the Aragon ballroom, and will have Charles Gaylord's band as auxiliary at today's sessions. . . . Freddy Martin's musicians remain at the Trianon ballroom, with Keith Beecher's as today's helpers.

● The Pan-American Trio, with Tamara Doriva, pretty and clever Mexican girl as star, entertains at the L'Aiglon restaurant. George Bay's orchestra supplies the formal musical programs.

● Dudley Crafts Watson will lecture in the Old Heidelberg restaurant next Thursday afternoon on the topic, "Across Switzerland by Motor." A string ensemble directed by Armand Buisseret gives concerts every Sunday afternoon from 3 to 5:30.

● The King's Jesters [George Howard, John Ravencroft, and Fritz Bastow] continue in the Blue Fountain room of the La Salle hotel, with Marjorie Whitney as associate. Community singing is also on the program.

● The Monte Cristo restaurant has Juan Pineda's orchestra, with Don Fulton as piano and vocal soloist.

● The Club Alabam's show contains Harriet Norris, singer, and the Paramount Trio [Ollie Bugby, Marian Moore, and Carl Villani]; Micky Dunn, tap dancer; Skippy and Marie, dancers; Effie Burton, singer. Dancing to the bands of Chet Robinson, Dave Unell, and Eddie Perry.

● A new revue opened at Harry's New York cabaret last week with Jack Irving, called the "Speaker of the House," as master of ceremonies. The performers include Dorothy Wahl, dancer; Margie Kelly, dancer; Mildred Rock, blues singer; Florence Barlow, acrobatic dancer; a new ballet called Dorothy Keith's Ingénues; Art Buckley, Al Wagner, Billy Meyers, Red Hoffman, and Dorothy Johnson. Music by Charles Engles' band.

● New in the show at the Hi-Hat club is a young tap dancer, Gladys Crane. The star is Armida, a young Mexican singer and dancer from the Hollywood studios, making her first night club appearance. Co-starring is Willie Shore, dancer, comedian, and master of ceremonies. The Hi-Hat ingénues, Sid Lang's dance band, and other entertainers are on the bill. Nan Blakstone, with songs, is scheduled to open on Thursday, Oct. 21.

● The Limehouse café will celebrate its tenth birthday today and all week. A new dance band, Jimmy Green's, and a new floor show starts the fall season.

"BREAKFAST FOR TWO"

Joan Gardner Makes a Hit in New Movie

"FOREVER YOURS."

GOOD Morning!

"WHO is she?"

"Who IS that adorable child?"

"Who's the BLONDE?"

These are questions you'll be asking and you'll hear from others, as "Forever Yours," an English movie, unreels in its quiet, charming way.

Because you will see newcomers, at least to our screens, who are bound to delight you.

The heroine, Joan Gardner—she played in "The Private Life of Don Juan"—is a slim, dark girl whose simplicity and sincerity are most endearing. I don't believe you'd call her beautiful in the common usage of the word—but she's beautiful to you. You're immensely taken with her. You'd like to have her around. And you follow her along the devious paths the scenarist calls upon her to follow with positively personal interest.

Then there's Richard Gofe, the tiny boy who jabbers and smiles his way right into your hearts! He's quite as appealing as Shirley Temple ever was. Completely spontaneous and natural. If he was responding to direction, there's never a sign of such a thing. I LOVED him! And so will you.

The blonde? Well she's Jeanne Stuart, the villainess. But a mighty pretty lady with a lot of manner.

And if you will bear in mind the indisputable fact that great changes from small happenstances develop—you know, the man you meet on the five after bus whom you'd have missed if you'd taken the five to?—you may not find the story of "Forever Yours" too difficult to believe.

The principal characters are a pretty secretary, a young ship's officer with whom she has a brief and disillusioning romance, the catty, fair one who refuses to be cast aside by the forementioned six feet of papa in uniform, a widowed tenor and his tiny, motherless boy. . . .

It is by the oddest chance that the secretary and the tenor are thrown together and their lives merged. . . . Does separation come? Suppose you see the picture for an answer to that query?

It's really a photoplay you'll remember with pleasure—for its appealing acting, its lovely music, its effective settings, some fine photography, and a certain quaint cunning on the part of the director, that keeps your interest animate and your sympathy alert.

See you tomorrow.

"LIFE BEGINS IN COLLEGE"

We hand you this morning Gloria Stuart's latest photograph—and hope you like it. Miss Stuart is a busy lady in "Life Begins in College." The movie's unreeling at the Oriental.

Mae West Is to Do Serious Scene in Film

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—Mae West goes serious for a sequence in her new picture, "Everyday's a Holiday" when she enacts the tragic scene from "Camille." She will do the part in French. By way of contrast on today's filming, she once played a trombone as a member of a trio which, besides the actress, consisted of Charles Winninger at the piano and Charlie Butterworth at the piccolo. They were celebrating a long ago New Year's eve.

Plans for a fall appearance on the New York stage were canceled today by Maurice Hutchison, Paramount's new Broadway importation, as she was cast in a feature rôle in Gladys Swarthout's and John Boles' next co-starring musical, "The Yellow Nightingale." Miss Hutchison, who was grabbed up by the studio after her appearance in "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse" already has a leading film rôle to her credit in "Partners in Crime." She had tentatively arranged with Roland Stebbins, New York producer, to appear in his new Broadway production, "Merely Murder" when the new screen assignment came.

Rebecca Wassem Repeats the Cinderella Story.

Latest Hollywood Cinderella story concerns 22 year old Rebecca Wassem, former Los Angeles high school girl, who was signed to a contract by Paramount. One of the few actresses in recent years to be selected out of the ranks of extra players, the newcomer was chosen from the mob by Frank Lloyd while he was directing "Wells Fargo." Lloyd cast Miss Wassem in the rôle of Lola Montez, famous adventuress of the 1850's, because her striking brunette features [black hair and brown eyes] give her a close resemblance to that character. The former extra was recalled from New York whence she had gone for stage experience.

Unostentatious Wallace Beery is one of the richest men in Hollywood. His fortune is reputed to be somewhere over two million by those in the know.

M.-G.-M. Predicts Success for Lona Massey.

M.-G.-M. is predicting big things for Lona Massey [changed from Ilona Majhassy], the Hungarian singer, who has a part in the forthcoming "Rosalie." A blue-eyed blonde with peaches and cream complexion, the European actress is said to be able to hit "C" above high "C," whatever that is.

One time arch villain of the screen, Noah Beery, reunites with brother Wallace for a small part in "Bad Man of Brimstone."

Actor from Germany.

The German screen and stage player, Fritz Kortner, has come to this country with several plays in which he would like to act for American audiences.

Ina Hutton Leads Bill at the Oriental

INA RAY HUTTON and her orchestra, an all-girl organization, provide stage entertainment at the Oriental theater this week. Miss Hutton leads the band, sings, dances, and displays costumes ranging from formal gowns to pajamas. Girls in the orchestra contribute specialties. Jack Williams and Carter and Holmes provide comedy in interpolated variety acts.

Palace theater audiences are currently witnessing performances of the new dance fad, "The Big Apple." Sixteen Harlem dancers are in this exhibition as part of the revue led by "Fats" Waller and his orchestra. Others on the stage include Ford, Marshall and Janet, the Two Zephyrs, and Myra Johnson.

The stage show at the State-Lake theater is led by Billy and Beverly Bemis, brother and sister dance team. Other acts are given by the Shanghai-Wing troupe of Chinese performers; Paddy Cliff and Patsy Dell, radio entertainers; Joan Britton, singer; Verne Buck and the State-Lake ballet.

The Chicago theater has held over its stage headliners of last week, Alec Templeton, the blind pianist, and Gloria Gilbert, dancer. They are presented in a new revue with Paul Gordon, comedian, and the Evans ballet. Templeton is giving a new program of tunes and improvisations.

June St. Clair has returned to the Rialto theater to remain for several weeks. Carrie Finnell is also prominent in the new song and dance show, which is called "Pennant Winners."

Brahms Performance.

An imposing Brahms cycle is to be a part of this twentieth season of the Cleveland Symphony orchestra. The four symphonies, the two piano concertos, and the violin concerto will all come to performance. Arthur Loesser, Artur Rubinstein, and Georges Enesco are the soloists in the last named works. Artur Rodzinski is beginning his fifth year as conductor of the Cleveland orchestra.

WPA Theatricals

EMMET LAVERY, whose play about the Jesuits called "The First Legion" had a run here with Bert Lytell as the star, has written a comedy called "Ex President," which is in preparation for the Federal Theater Project [WPA] under the direction of Harry Minturn. The play is said to be nonpartisan in its political aspect.

Other new plays on the fall program of the WPA theaters for Chicago are "Seventeen Days in August," by Frederick Schlick, and "Prologue to Glory," by E. P. Conkle. The former is a play of prison life. The latter has Lincoln as its central character.

Music in Berlin.

Music played an important part in Berlin's recent celebration of its seven hundredth anniversary. The Philharmonic orchestra moved to the old Royal castle for two concerts. The first consisted of compositions of Frederick the Great and his contemporaries; the second was a replica of one given in honor of Mozart's widow on Feb. 2, 1796.

Pittsburgh Music Fund.

Pittsburgh's success in its drive to raise an orchestral guaranty fund is practically assured now and residents of the Pennsylvania city are looking forward to a season of thirty-two concerts. The first six will be directed by Otto Klemperer.

Critic Doubts Sincerity of Some Musicians' Antics

Affectations too Common in Performers

By Edward Barry.

IT is hard to watch a pianist toss his mane around, or a conductor make faces at the orchestra, without wondering how much of this sort of thing is necessary and how much of it should be put down to mere affectation or "temperament."

The answer which leaps immediately to mind is that none of it is necessary. Quite a good case might be made out for this belief, but if we try to dismiss the problem in so facile a manner we lose all prospect of getting to its real heart.

It seems to me that capering and grimacing are necessary, or at least highly desirable, in the case of some musicians, unnecessary and undesirable in that of others. The reason for the distinction will be apparent a few paragraphs hence.

Task of Interpreting Music Demands Full Attention.

The task of interpreting music is similar to any other difficult work in that it demands a person's full attention. The interpreter must lose himself as far as possible in the problems and satisfactions of his music. If he does, his nonmusical activities of the moment [bodily contortions and facial twistings] will be completely natural, and will follow unconsciously the succession of mental or emotional states produced by the music. Possibly there will be no nonmusical activities.

For everything depends on the kind of man this interpreter happens to be. Human beings, as Cain used to say to Abel, differ greatly. One is phelgmatic by nature, another volatile. No. 1 cannot act in a volatile manner without conscious effort. Neither can No. 2 conduct himself phlegmatically unless he set himself grimly to the task.

Now, whether you are making a pie or playing a sonata, it is imperative that you give so much attention to the business in hand that no heed can be paid to such irrelevancies as bodily motion or facial expression. This holds true whether the performance is taking place in strict privacy or in a crowded kitchen or concert hall. Your mental and emotional states, whether strictly esthetic or not, should be allowed to reflect themselves in your deportment if you happen to be that kind of person.

To get back to the original question, does it not seem reasonable to believe that a pianist who tosses has mane or a conductor who makes faces at the orchestra should be allowed to continue these harmless activities if he belongs to the general type to which such conduct is perfectly natural? Remember that he could not eradicate a habit of this kind without withdrawing from the music some of the attention which it deserves and directing a part of his consciousness toward the task of keeping his head still or his face in repose.

In Music Vice of Affectedness Is Rampant.

To ask him to modify his external conduct greatly would be every bit as shortsighted as to require of the naturally stolid musician that he learn to throw himself about and to twist his naturally sullen countenance into a dozen novel shapes. In both cases the music would assuredly suffer.

Please do not take this as a defense of all capering and grimacing. Cain and Abel used to discuss also the fact that human beings nearly always want to be something other than what they are. Frequently a man or woman will attempt by main force to make certain alterations in his basic character. If he is smart enough to realize the futility of this he may at least study out and adopt a type of conduct calculated to deceive the unwary into believing that such a change has taken place. Or he may simply try to imitate the mannerisms of a person whom he deems admirable or enviable.

In music, no less than in other fields, the vice of affectedness is rampant. Too often a young or obscure performer will see a successful practitioner of his art indulge in a great many flourishes and will leap too rapidly to the conclusion that the flourishes have something to do with the success. That this is merely another illustration of our lamentable inability to distinguish between actual cause and irrelevant circumstance is clear enough to the detached mind, but such fine philosophical points are usually lost on any one who is suffused with the excitement of his desire for some great artistic or economic good.

So the young or obscure performer begins to roll his eyes, twitch his shoulders, and swing his body about in wide half circles. Sooner or later some cruel person is going to call him affected. When that time comes he cannot justify himself by pointing to the caperings of Musician X, who does exactly the same things, yet has never been called affected.

For, with Mr. X, admittedly an extreme case, these gymnastics are as natural as breathing. A sly fellow who crept to the keyhole of the famous musician's study one night saw him making substantially the same motions with naught but books and furniture for audience. The deeply absorbed X, oblivious of everything except the excitement of his task, was busily building houses with the little X's blocks.

UNIVERSITY CONCERT SOLOIST

Lillian Knowles, contralto, will be featured at Thorne hall a week from Wednesday night in the fourth concert-lecture of Northwestern university's History and Enjoyment of Music course.

Notes of Music and Musicians

The Don Cossack Russian Male chorus [Serge Jaroff, conductor], one of the most popular choral units now before the public, will sing at the Civic Opera house twice today, at 3:30 and at 8:15. The afternoon program is entirely new to the repertoire of the chorus. It includes liturgic works by Kastalsky, Tschaikowsky, Rachmaninoff, and Bortniansky, and a number of secular works and folksongs. The evening program will be a different one, including choruses already familiar to those who have heard the group before. The thirty-six members of the ensemble are former members of the czar's imperial army, who were first organized into a singing group while in a prison camp in 1923.

The Saidenberg Chamber Music players, directed by Daniel Saidenberg, will present the fourth program of Northwestern university's "History and Enjoyment of Music" series at Thorne hall Wednesday evening. Felix Borowski will lecture on "Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, and Their Contemporaries." In addition to Mr. Saidenberg, the artists are Leonard Sorkin and David Moll, violinists; Milton Preves, violist; Domenico Di Caprio, clarinetist, and Clara Siegel, pianist. The program includes a Beethoven quartet, cello sonata, and Bagatelle for piano; a Haydn quartet in G major, and piano pieces by Dussek and Hummel.

Mariona Rakauskas, American born dramatic soprano of the Lithuanian State opera, will sing at the Studebaker theater tonight. Except for arias from "Aïda" and "Pique Dame," the entire program is devoted to music by Lithuanian composers. John Byanskas is the accompanist. Birute Sarpalius, pianist, will contribute a group of solos.

Arthur Schmuhl, 19, Chicago violinist, will give his debut recital in Kimball hall Tuesday evening, playing works by Kreisler, Grieg, Beethoven, Elgar, Schumann, Sarasate, Vieuxtemps, Glinka, and Novacek.

Erika Thimey, dancer, is to appear with her group of ten girls in recital at the Goodman theater tonight. She has prepared a new cycle of eight dances called "Ritual to the Elements." A pupil of Mary Wigman, Miss Thimey has danced and directed two prominent outdoor productions in Chicago, the Chicago Park district's "Undine" at the Buckingham fountain last year and Handel's "Theodora" on the steps of the Field museum the year before.

Olga Pavlova, Cuban soprano; José Lopez, tenor, and Dorothy Sweanay, San Carlo opera dancer, will join in an all-Spanish program today at the Beaux Arts salon in the Medinah club. The concert is a benefit for the Jane Addams Home for Spanish War Orphans in the Pyrenees.

Frederick Farrel, organist, will play his own "Villa Woodruff," dedicated to Mr. and Mrs. George Woodruff, in Kimball hall today. His co-artists in a joint program are Nila Stuart, soprano, and William Donaldson, baritone.

The Saidenberg Symphonietta has rearranged its schedule for the coming season. Jacques Gordon, violinist, will be soloist at the first concert Nov. 5. In Mendelssohn's Octet, a work rarely heard in Chicago, he will play first violin, and Daniel Saidenberg, conductor of the Symphonietta, will leave his stand to play first cello. On Dec. 1 a symphonic program of unusual works will be given. Harold Bauer, pianist, will play on Jan. 4, and Eleanore Block and her group will dance on Feb. 7. The series will be given in the Goodman theater.

Rosa Raisa, soprano, will return from Italy soon to give an Orchestra hall recital Oct. 27, assisted by Patricia Ann Levit, child pianist. Her assignments for the opera season include Santuzza in "Cavalleria Rusticana" and Rachel in "La Juive."

Stock Takes Up Baton for New Season

By Cecil M. Smith.

TOMORROW morning at 10 o'clock the ninety members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra will gather on the stage of Orchestra hall for the first rehersal of the orchestra's forty-seventh consecutive season. This rehearsal and others later in the week will bear fruit in the opening programs of the season at Orchestra hall Thursday evening and Friday afternoon.

Dr. Frederick Stock has returned from his summer home in Ephraim, Wis., to begin his thirty-third year as conductor of the orchestra. From all signs he is amply refreshed and full of eagerness to begin the autumn's work. He has invited all season ticket holders to attend the Thursday morning rehersal at 10:30. At this time he will explain and analyze Reinhold Glière's "Ilia Mourometz" symphony, the principal item on the first program.

America Has Only Three Copies of "Ilia Mourometz."

"Ilia Mourometz," the composer's third symphony, seems to be the almost exclusive property of Dr. Stock. Only three copies of the score and parts exist in America. One belongs to the Detroit Symphony orchestra, which played it under the late Ossip Gabrilowitsch in 1932; a second belongs to the Philadelphia orchestra, which performed it under Leopold Stokowski in Philadelphia and in New York in the 1933-'34 season; the third is held by our own orchestra, which played it under Dr. Stock in 1917 and already has repeated it in eleven seasons.

Both Mr. Gabrilowitsch and Mr. Stokowski failed to turn the symphony into a popular success. To Chicago audiences, familiar both because of its programmatic basis in the folk legend of the Russian brigand Ilia Mourometz and because of its spectacularly rich palette or orchestral color, the failure of these eminent conductors is puzzling.

After twenty years, therefore, it is time for the secret to come out. The symphony we hear is not note for note the symphony Glière wrote and published. Dr. Stock has made a profound and thoroughgoing revision of it. Where it was too long he has cut it. Where it was orchestrally ineffective he rescored it. The gigantic climax in the last movement is more largely by Dr. Stock than by Glière. In short, the Glière-Stock "Ilia Mourometz" is a vastly effective program piece, whereas the original Glière score fails to ring the bell.

Stock Will Include Old Favorites in First Concert.

For his opening concerts Dr. Stock has surrounded this sonorous symphony with tried and true favorites, Brahms' "Academic Festival" overture, Debussy's prelude to "The Afternoon of a Faun," and the Bacchanale and finale from the Paris version of Wagner's "Tannhäuser."

In anticipation of an alert and lively season between now and next April Dr. Stock has released the following striking and progressive list of novelties he promises to perform in the course of the season:

Ballet music from "Casanova"...... Deems Taylor
†Symphony...... Anis Fuleihan
Symphony...... Gardner Read
A Set of Three...... John Powell
Violin concerto...... John Alden Carpenter
†Hymns of Gregorian choral music...... Hoeller
*Suite, "Façade"...... William Walton
*Overture to "La Donna Serpente"...... Alfredo Casella
Two symphonies new to the orchestra...... Jan Sibelius
*Overture in D minor...... Handel-Elgar
*Dances of Galanta...... Zoltán Kodály
Music for strings, harp, and celesta...... Béla Bartók
Symphony No. 15...... Nikolai Miaskowsky
*Four Polish dances...... Alexander Tansman
Violin concerto...... Arnold Schönberg
†Concerto for string quartet and orchestra...... Bohuslav Martinú
Four Inventions...... G. Francesco Malipiero
Philharmonic concert...... Paul Hindemith
Symphonic poem, "Falstaff"...... Edward Elgar
†Variations on a theme by Mozart...... Philippe Jarnach
Suite from "Johnny Spielt Auf"...... Ernst Krenek
"The Creation of the World"...... Darius Milhaud
Overture to "Pinocchio"...... Ernst Toch
Norfolk rhapsody...... Ralph Vaughan Williams
Metamorphosis...... Ottorino Respighi
Poem for orchestra, "Lilacs"...... Edward Burlingame Hill

*Played for the first time locally at Ravinia park last summer.
†By composers not previously represented in the répertoire of the orchestra.

Dr. Stock Gives Principle for Guiding This Season.

Commenting upon the perennial difficulty of building symphony programs to appeal to everybody Dr. Stock has enunciated the principle by which he will be guided this season:

"All things considered, one would be wise in practicing conventionality in program making but beware of becoming pedantic; introduce as many new works and repeat as many unfamiliar ones as the audiences will willingly absorb—and then leave well enough alone."

The Illinois Symphony orchestra, whose regular conductors are Albert Goldberg and Izler Solomon, opens its series of weekly Sunday afternoon concerts at the Great Northern theater today. The guest conductor for the day is Dr. Nikolai Sokoloff, national director of the federal music project.

Dr. Sokoloff's program includes two first Chicago performances—two movements, "The Lone Prairiee" and "The Old Chisholm Trail," from the suite "Horizons," by Arthur Shephard of Cleveland, and John Powell's "The Banjo Picker," transcribed for orchestra by Modeste Altschuler. The symphony is Rachmaninoff's popular second. Weber's overture to "Oberon" will open the concert and Sibelius' "Finlandia" will close it.

The concerts are given at low prices by a competent, live orchestra. Future programs will comprise a goodly number of works new to Chicago and a constant leaven of standard compositions.

America Odd Land, Foreign Students Say

By the Rev. John Evans.

AT MacMurray college, Jacksonville, Ill., were enrolled this fall Candida Rose Colon-Rodriguez and her sister, Concepcion, freshmen from Porto Rico.

Their father, who is a merchant in Coamo, and their mother, who is an educator in the school systems of Porto Rico decided upon a college in the middle west because they considered better English would be spoken here than elsewhere.

Great interest was shown by the girls at the American system of family names. They thought it strange that in this country the last name is that of the father instead of the mother; in their hyphenated surname the mother's family name is last.

Both girls think this climate is extremely cold, but they anticipate with pleasure the first sight of snow. They are somewhat disappointed at the flowers as they lack the vivid coloring of their native land, and they find no variation in fashion styles since the designers of frocks for Coamo are the same as in New York.

Both girls are graduates of Florencio Santiago High school. Candida is taking science, as a premedical course, and Concepcion will study home economics. Both talk English fluently and both will study public speaking.

AMERICAN parents' worship of youth is bad for children, and worse for education, because youth gets the impression that their elders and their schools have the responsiblity for educating them, according to James Weber Linn, professor of English at the University of Chicago.

"We parents have all been trained into the belief that the responsibilities are all on the side of the school, not on the side of the young people. You think of a university not as the servant of truth but as a servant of youth." The result of this attitude of thought, Mr. Linn thinks, is that if undergraduates are not properly educated it is the fault, not of the young people, but of the curriculum.

"In all the years that I have been connected with this university," Mr. Linn continued, "it has done a hundred times more for me than I have done for it, but how? By being itself and putting squarely on me the responsibility for appreciating what it is. Nobody ever told me that the university was responsible for my education and would fail in its duty to me if it did not educate me. I did not go to it to be educated, I went to educate myself."

"A very large proportion of undergraduates," Mr. Linn stated, "are being educated beyond their capacity, are having opportunities forced upon them which they have not the mental power to take advantage of. What is the result? Increasing laziness, an increasing interest in sports and amusements, increasing dislike for manual labor of any sort, increasing demand that youth shall be served at any cost, an increasing appetite for the apples of Hesperides."

Returns to Stage.

Al Shean has returned to the stage after five years in the movies to act in "Father Malachy's Miracle," which Delos Chappell will present on Nov. 8 in New York.

MAJESTY'S RANCHO

By Zane Grey

Lance Sidway Rides Into a Job and Into Romance, but Black Disaster Looms Ahead for Gene Stewart

THE STORY TO DATE

● Lance Sidway, about to leave Hollywood with his horse, Umpqua, to look for a cowboy's job, rescues a blonde co-ed from threatened arrest. Next afternoon Lance waits to meet the girl, whom he knows only as Majesty, but changes his mind when he overhears her talking to Honey Bee Uhl, a gangster, who is pressing an old flirtation on the girl. Lance rides Umpqua to Douglas, Ariz., where, short of funds, he stops to look for work. At a service station on the highway Lance is hailed by a man in a car, whom he recognizes as Uhl. Hoping to get a line on the gangster, Lance agrees to drive an empty covered truck to Tucson for Uhl. He suspects Uhl is using trucks to transport stolen cattle. His job finished, Lance continues on to New Mexico and meets Ren Starr, who owns a garage and who offers to give Lance a letter to Gene Stewart, owner of Majesty's rancho.

ON the way across the street to the hotel Starr said to Lance: "There's shore a lot to tell you about Stewart, his ranch an' all. But I cain't think of everythin' all to oncet. . . . You'll find Mrs. Stewart jest swell. Still handsome an' the nicest woman! I most forgot their daughter. No wonder, 'cause I haven't seen her for nearly four years. She was only a kid then. But could she cock her eye at a man? Had all the cowboys dotty. Me! I reckoned I had the inside track 'cause she let me kiss her onct. But I was wrong, Sid. That girl was a hell-rattler, but straight as a string. Jest full of fem. . . . Wal, Gene told me today that she was comin' home. He was plumb excited over thet. Worships the girl! An' mebbe he was worryin' about her, too. . . . Sid, if I remember thet girl she will keep you awake nights."

"Not much," declared Lance with a laugh. "Boy, I've been in Hollywood for a spell, hobnobbing with the prettiest and slickest girls in the world."

"Hollywood? My Gawd! What will you spring on me next? Sid, you are goin' to relieve the tedium of my days. . . . Did you fall for any of them stars?"

"I fell with a dull thud for three. And not stars, either. Just extras. Harder every fall. And I can't imagine me falling for a ranch girl. No offense, boy. My sister is a ranch girl and she's my pride. But you can get what I mean, if you go to the flickers."

Lance went to bed glowing, excited, and satisfied with the day's happenings and its promise. Particularly was he pleased at finding the ex-cowboy, Starr. Lance thought he would be a fellow to tie to. Luck had attended this adventuring into a new and far country.

AFTER an early breakfast next morning Lance made his first purchases, which consisted of a new riding outfit and a much needed shaving kit and several other articles. His discarded things he tied in his old coat, so that he could carry the bundle conveniently on his saddle. When he presented himself at Starr's garage, that worthy stared in comical surprise.

"Mawnin', Sid," he drawled. "What you been about? All dolled up. My Gawd! I hadn't no idee you was such a handsome galoot. On thet hawse you'll knock 'em cold. Say! I've a hunch you've either seen or heard about Gene Stewart's daughter."

"Nope, I haven't. But I needed some clean duds and a shave," explained Lance. "Couldn't ask for a job looking like a tramp."

"I ain't so shore, Sid," returned Starr, doubtfully. "Gene likes 'em tough. Why, with thet red scarf an' all you look like Buck Jones."

"I bought the least gaudy outfit that storekeeper had," protested Lance. "If you think I should change back to . . ."

"Aw, I was half kiddin'. You look O. K. In fact, you look grand. But no cowpuncher can fool Gene Stewart. He'll see right through you, Sid. An' I'll bet my shop he'll take to you same as I did."

"Well, then, what the hell——"

"Thet's it. What the hell will come off if you run plumb into Gene's daughter? She's on her way home. Gene told my mother so yesterday."

"Ren, isn't what you're steamed up about Miss Stewart's heart?" queried Lance, facetiously.

"Hell no! I'm jest concerned about what'll happen to you, if she sees you. An' in this new outfit you shore stand out from the landscape."

"Like all the cowboys, aren't you?" went on Lance. "O, I knew a lot of them in Hollywood. Swell fellows, but simply nuts on jokes and tricks and girls! . . . Next to that they liked to gamble. I'll bet you five bucks I don't even see your cowgirl queen. . . . Man, I've lived in Hollywood for over a year."

"So you told me before," replied Starr dryly. "Thet bet's on. Heah's your note to Gene Stewart. I shore hope you turn out half as good as my recommendation says you are."

"Thanks, Ren. I'll make good. Now tell me how to find this wonderful ranch."

"Go out the highway east, of course. Take the first road—it's a dirt road—turnin' south. Stick on thet for about five miles, till you come to a bridge over a crick. Lots of green willows. Anyway, it's the first bridge you come to, so you cain't miss it. There's a trail, pard, an' good luck to you."

"How'll I know the ranch when I come to it?"

"Hell! It's the only ranch out there. The house, old Spanish style, sets on a knoll among trees. Walls used to be white. But you can see it from the divide, ten miles away."

In short order Lance was out of Bolton on a gravel road that seemed to climb and lose itself in gray obscurity. Umpqua, scenting something out there, the sage and the open, perhaps, settled down to his fast ground gaining trot.

By noon-day Lance calculated that he had covered at least twenty miles, two-thirds of the distance to Stewart's ranch; and soon he had surmounted the divide Starr had mentioned. The scene was so splendid that Lance halted to gaze and gaze spellbound.

Then his keen eyes sighted the forested knoll and the old Spanish mansion built by Don Carlos. Ten miles away still.

By midafternoon Lance rode into a pretty little Mexican village at the foot of the knoll. Columns of blue smoke arose slowly. The half naked children, the burros and dogs, the natives in colored raiment watching idly from the low porches, all appeared to have a leisurely air. Lance ventured a question to one group. An exceedingly pretty Mexican girl, whose big dark eyes shone bright and roguishly upon Lance, replied to him: "Buenos días, señor."

"No savvy. Can't you talk United States?" asked Lance, mildly, smiling at the girl.

"Yes, cowboy, Mr. Stewart is home."

"Thank you, señorita. I think I'm going to like it here."

Her dusky eyes snapped with mischief, and quick as their flash she retorted: "It didn't take you long, señor."

Lance had not proceeded beyond where the road turned up the wooded knoll when a boy overtook him to inform him that Señor Stewart was at the corrals, toward which he pointed.

Lance rode down a lane of tumbledown poles, to turn into a kind of court, at the immediate right of which stood a blacksmith shop. In front of this were several Mexican riders and a thoroughbred black horse so glossy and well groomed that he did not appear to belong there. Then a tall white man stepped out from behind the horse. He had a superb build, a dark, intent face, deeply lined, piercing dark eyes, and there was white hair over his temples. Lance did not need to be told that this was Gene Stewart. As Lance rode up he caught first a relaxing of this stern face into a smile that warmed it attractively, and then a keen interest in both rider and horse.

"Who . . . what?" stammered Lance. "Are you Gene Stewart?"

"Yes, I'm Stewart. And who're you?"

"Lance Sidway. I want a job."

"Fine. . . . May I ask if you have been recommended by my daughter?"

"No—indeed, sir," replied Lance, recalling Starr's talk, and suddenly filled with dismay. "I don't know your daughter."

"That's quite possible. But might not her return home today have something to do with your asking for a job?" asked Stewart, with a twinkle in his piercing eyes.

"It might, judging from other cowboys I've met," rejoined Lance, recovering coolness at the fun evidently enjoyed at his expense. "But in my case it hasn't."

"Indeed? Well, in your case then I'll listen."

"Here's my letter of introduction," went on Lance, producing it.

• • •

STEWART opened and read it, suddenly to beam upon Lance.

"Pard of Starr's, eh? You sure can't be all Ren says. But if you're any ways near as good——"

"Excuse me, Stewart," interposed Lance, hurriedly. "I'm not sailing under false colors. Starr doesn't know me any better than you do. Met him only last night. We liked each other right off. He told me you might take me on. Offered a letter of introduction."

"I see. That's like Ren. Get down and come in."

Lance stepped out of the saddle to drop the bridle.

"Nels, come out," called Stewart, into the wide open door of an old building. Receiving no answer, he said plaintively: "Nels must be out back with my daughter, looking at her horses. From today on the ranch will go fluey. . . . Cowboy, you'll have hell keeping that horse."

"O, I see," laughed Lance, thrilled at the intimation that the rancher might take him on. "Any girl who loves horses would want Umpqua, naturally. But she'll have to take me with him."

"Old time cowboy spirit! I was that way, once. . . . Where you from?"

Lance briefly told of his home in Oregon, his experience on ranges there, modestly enumerating his abilities and skipping the Hollywood experience.

"I'll be glad to work for my board."

"Are you rich?"

"Lord, no! I have a few dollars in my pocket. And Umpqua. Yes, I should have said I am rich."

"Sidway, I couldn't let you work for nothing."

"But, sir, if it's money don't let that keep you from hiring me," importuned Lance.

"Tell me straight. I'll like you the better if you confess you want this job on account of Madge."

"Madge! Who's she? O, of course, your daughter. . . . Mr. Stewart, on my honor I swear I never heard of her until Starr raved about her last night."

"Don't perjure yourself. . . . I'll take you on, Sidway, and pay you a few dollars a month till the cattle business looks up."

"Thank you. I'll sure do my best for you."

"Did Ren mention he might come back to me?"

"Yes, he did. He wants to. I'll bet he'll come soon as he saves a little more money."

"I hate to ask him. But with you hard riding youngsters to help me and Danny and my vaqueros we might save the herd. You see, Sidway, there's been some queer rustling. . . ."

"Thank you, senorita. I think I'm going to like it here." Her dusky eyes snapped with mischief, and quick as their flash she retorted, "It didn't take you long, senor."

Stewart was interrupted by a sweet high pitched voice that came from round the corner of the porch, down the lane.

"Nels! For Pete's sake look at this black horse! . . . O, what a beauty! O! O!"

Clinking spurs attested to the slow steps of a rider.

"Wal, lass, I never set eyes on thet hawse before," drawled a quaint voice. "You'll shore hate me when I say he's got yore nags beat to a frazzle."

"Nonsense! But he is . . . Nels, I want him. I'll have him at any cost. Dad! Dad!"

Stewart whispered: "Step around and tell her here's one horse she can't buy. It'll be fun."

"Certainly, sir," replied Lance, dubiously. It was his first order from his boss. As he moved to the corner he heard pattering footsteps. Then a vision flashed into sight to plump squarely into his arms.

"O!" she screamed and, staggering, would have fallen had she not caught Lance with swift hands. A girl—bareheaded—golden hair flying—lovely flushed face, strangely familiar—violet eyes widening, darkening! "Who on earth? You! Of all the miracles! If it isn't my hero!"

Lance recognized her. His co-ed of the campus adventure and the mad ride through the streets of Los Angeles. As she enveloped him, with gay trill, and her red lips came up nearer to meet his in cool sweet kiss, his breast seemed to cave in.

IT WAS along about sunset when Gene Stewart drove into the courtyard of his ranch. The drive out from Bolton, despite the old car, had seemed short, and for once he had failed to enjoy the magnificent range that he had loved so well for over thirty years.

Nels, the old Texan who was the last of his great riders of that earlier and wilder day, sat on the porch of the store, smoking and waiting.

"Wal, you're late, Gene, an' come draggin' along like you was on a bogged hawse," remarked Nels.

"Yes, old timer," replied Gene, wearily, as he sat down on the porch, a folded newspaper in his hand.

"What's on yore chest?"

"Things have gone from bad to worse, Nels."

"Heahed from Majesty?" queried the old cowman eagerly.

"Letter and telegram to me. More for Madeline. . . . Madge is on her way home. For good!"

"You don't say? Aw! Then nothin' can be bad," replied Nels, settling back with an air of beautiful relief.

"Bad news from Madge, Nels. But let that go for the moment. There are lesser evils. Lawson has gone into bankruptcy. No hope of the money he owes me. I had banked on that. My creditors are pressing. Money must be raised."

"Any better market for cattle?"

"Gone down to thirty dollars on the hoof."

"Boss, I reckon I'd sell."

"All the herd?" queried Gene, in surprise. Nels would be the last cattleman to sacrifice all his stock. There was not in Arizona a keener judge of matters pertaining to cattle.

"Gene, jest how bad in debt air you?"

"I haven't the nerve to figure it up," replied Stewart, evasively.

"Wal, if you sold oot at thirty you could pay up, an' then tide over until good times come again. If we live that long!"

"I might consider selling half my stock," rejoined Stewart, thoughtfully.

"You're the boss. An' you asked my opinion. I forgot to tell you thet Danny Mains rode up today. He ain't makin' oot with his cattle raisin'. Been losin' too many steers. An' Danny is afeared thet the greasers air doin' the stealin'."

"But how could a few Mexicans, even if they were crooked, get rid of cattle without leaving any sign?"

"I don't know, Gene. But there's shore somethin' doin'. All of Bonita's relatives cain't be good greasers. Some of them won't be good until they're daid. Danny's got a fine wife in Bonita, and shore a dandy girl in their daughter, young Bonita. But thet's aboot all. And he's scared of her relatives. Asked me plumb oot what to do."

"And what'd you say, Nels?"

"Wal, I told him to sell. An' when he bucked on thet I advised him to throw in with you. Then if you hired a couple of good cowhands we could beat this game. At least the stealin' end. Thet's the profit eatin' cussed part of it."

"Not a bad suggestion, Nels. But what'd we pay hired cowhands with?"

"Aw, shucks, Gene! It cain't be thet bad with you," complained Nels, plaintively.

"I'm sorry, old timer. But it is. I hate to face Madeline. And especially with this." Stewart unrolled the newspaper he had twisted in his hands and spread it out over the old cowman's knees. Nels took out his glasses and, adjusting them, he read slowly:

COLLEGE CAMPUS RIOT
Co-ed Expelled for Inciting Riot
Between Students and Police

"Wal, I'll be —— ——!" he ejaculated, jerking up his fine white head. Gene had seen those blue eyes flash fire many times, though hardly ever like this. Nels divined the truth and his affections were attacked.

"Majesty?"

"Yes, I'm damn sorry to say. But read what it says, Nels."

"Aw!"

Gene watched that fine lined face as Nels laboriously read the half column in the newspaper. He had seen Nels face death many times and deal it often, with never a gray shade creep over his features nor a convulsive quiver, such as were visible now for a fleeting instant. And he remembered that it was Nels who loved Madge as well as her own father; it was Nels who had long years ago named the imperious child Majesty; who had put her upon a horse and taught her to ride. Nels folded up the newspaper and handed it back.

"I don't believe a word of thet dirty part. Insinuatin' that she was a wild co-ed, rich, an' as hard a drinker as she was a speed demon. Gene, don't you believe thet, an' fer Gawd's sake don't tell Madeline."

"I'm sort of sunk, Nels. Kind of a last blow. I don't know what to think. Madge's letter admits it. Honest, right out! And her telegrams say she's on the way home to stay."

"Gosh! Thet's the best news I've heahed fer a long time."

"It is good news, Nels. It hurts, though. Looks kind of like disgrace is responsible."

"Aw no, Gene. Why, Majesty loves this range, this house where she was born. It's home."

"I don't know my own girl," sighed Stewart. "Remember, Nels, I haven't laid eyes upon Madge for over three years. You know I was in Mexico the last time she came home. And the summer before that she went to Europe."

"Wal, I have. An' I'm gamblin' on her, Gene. Wild as a young filly, shore she was. But good as gold an' as true as steel. When she was heah last I had some jars, you bet. I had to figger oot thet times had changed since you an' me ran after girls. We've stayed right in one spot, Gene, an' this old world has moved on."

"Right. I'll bet you we have it coming to us. Madge said in her letter she was having a crowd of college friends come to visit her."

"Fine. She did thet last time an' I never had such fun."

"Nels, you're a hopeless old fool. Madge will have you eating out of her hand. But I'm her daddy!"

"Shore. An' I'm gonna have fun oot of you, Gene."

Gene slowly walked up the winding green bordered path toward the ranch house. He felt the fact that the grounds, the great adobe structure, were more beautiful than ever. But the evidence of decay struck Gene most forcibly this evening. The trellises were falling down; the planking of the porches had rotted through in places; the weathering of plaster showed the adobe bricks.

PASSING through the high archway at the rear of the house, Gene entered the patio. It appeared a dusky jungle of dark verdure, running water, drowsy twittering of sleepy birds, and odorous fragrance. A savory smell wafted from the kitchen, where he heard the servants talking in their low voices. When Gene crossed the wide porch to enter Madeline's sitting room, the newspaper to which Nels had objected did not show among the large quantity of mail. Madeline had heard his step on the porch and had come to meet him. Love for this patrician woman who as a girl had forsaken the east to make his country and his life hers, and pride in her well preserved beauty and charm, seemed to be strong and moving emotions at the moment when these disclosures about their only child had to be made. Would Madge be another Madeline? There was gray visible in Madeline's hair and lines had begun to show in the handsome face. But the light in her lustrous eyes appeared as soft and glad as in her youth.

"Gene!" she exclaimed, kissing him. "A whole day late! You look tired—worried."

"Howdy, Madeline," replied Gene, laying the bundles and packets of mail on the table. "Yes, I'm tired—and worried. Bad news, wife. It never rains but it pours. Lawson failed, Madeline. Gone into bankruptcy. No hope of money. I'll have to sell some stock. Nels advises selling all my herd. . . . That's nothing, though. I've got a big surprise for you. Madge is coming home."

"Madge! Coming home? Why? What has she done now, Gene?" rejoined Madeline, quietly.

"Got herself expelled from college," Gene blurted out, knowing that he should have broken the news more gently, but incapable of the guile necessary to spare his wife's feelings.

"O, no! Not on the eve of her graduation?"

"Yes. It's tough, but maybe not so bad as it seems. Here's her letter and telegram to me. Read them before you open yours."

Gene went into his office, which adjoined the sitting room, turned on the lights, and laid all his unopened mail and some business papers upon his table. Then he repaired to his room to wash and change for the evening meal. Presently Madeline called him to supper, and he found her in the dining room. If he had expected her to be cast down he was agreeably surprised.

"I ought to be hungry," he said. "Must forgot to eat in town." And he asked Madeline questions pertaining to the ranch during his absence. Nothing had happened.

• • •

WHEN Gene had finished a hearty meal he suggested that they go into the sitting room and get it over.

"Dear, it will never be over until you change your habit of mind," she replied, sweetly. "You always look upon the dark side."

"Madeline, this time of trouble has brought back the Gene Stewart of other and darker days."

"It should not. You have made me perfectly happy for more than twenty years. Loss of money, for you and me, is nothing."

"Madeline, I could take my losses without. . . . But it's yours that distress me. All your life you have had luxury. You were born to it. This last year and more you've been using your money to pad Madge's bank account. She keeps overdrawing her income and you keep from telling her that her income isn't one with what it was. Now through me and that spendthrift girl of ours you must suffer. When the depression hit us you should have told Madge the truth. That her income had fallen off to a few thousands. Instead of that you never told her—made up the difference yourself. And she spends hundreds like a drunken cowboy does dollars. That is what hurts me."

"Gene, I expected the shrinking of capital and income would be only temporary. I still believe, as my lawyer in New York assures me, that we will recover. Madge's capital is intact and eventually her income will grow normal. That was a wise provision of Helen's. Madge can't spend the capital. . . . And it doesn't make so great difference that her income has dwindled. But now you should tell her!"

"Me!" expostulated Gene, startled. "Not much. Why, I don't know Madge since she grew up. When she was 17—before she left for college, I was scared to death of her. You'll have to tell her."

"That'll be hard. I'm afraid myself of these years she has lived away from us. If I had it to do over I'd not have sent her to college."

"Well, let's forget the financial side of it for the present. Did you read her letters and telegrams?"

"Yes. Madge asked me to reserve judgment until I had heard her side. Evidently she became involved in some kind of a college row, for which she was not responsible, but which resulted in her expulsion. She regretted greatly that she could not graduate."

"Was that all? No regret for the—the disgrace?"

"She never mentioned disgrace. I don't believe that has occurred to her."

"Same old Majesty, eh? She couldn't do any wrong," returned Gene, and there was a tingle of bitterness in his tone. "What else?"

"She said she had invited her college friends to come out here for the summer—for the summer, mind you. That will be after graduation. It worries me more than the fact of her being expelled."

"That's easy. Tell Madge she can't have her friends this summer."

"Could you tell her that?"

"Sure I could," replied Gene, grimly.

"Very well. That will be a relief. For the rest she wired from L. A. she was leaving. And last evening from Yuma."

"Good Lord! Then she drove from L. A. to Yuma all in a day? Not by herself! Madge wouldn't do that."

"Gene, don't excite yourself over probabilities. The fact seems that at that rate she may get here today or tomorrow."

"Madeline, it—it'll be so wonderful to see her again that I almost don't care what she's done," replied Gene, with emotion.

"Gene, she's our problem. She's a composite of you and me."

"Madeline, not much of me?" implored Gene.

"A very good deal of you, her father."

"Suppose she inherited some of that wild blood of mine?" ejaculated Gene, aghast.

"If it hadn't been for that there might have never been any Madge, darling."

"Lord! I always said Madge had your beauty, your sweetness, your intelligence. But if she's got my old devil in her, too—come out in these modern days of freedom for women—what, Maddie, what on earth can we do?"

"I don't know, Gene. Love her, trust her. Make her love her home. Let us agree on that right here, Gene."

"I promise, Madeline. But I'm scared."

"So am I. But not the way you are. I'm scared of a crowd of young college people, just freed from cramping restrictions, let loose upon us here."

"Madeline, do you remember your young crowd—that you had come out here from New York just after you bought this place?"

"Indeed, I do," replied his wife musingly, her eyes shadowed. "My brother, Alfred—his romance with Flo—my sister, Helen—my best friend, Edith Wynne. O, they seem so far away—so long ago. But Alfred has been coming back to us for ten years. . . . Gene, did you ever guess that Helen was in love with you—then, when you were El Capitan?"

"Helen! Why, Maddie, you're crazy," protested Gene.

"No. It's the truth. I never told you. Helen never married, you know. And she left her fortune to Madge—which, after all, has been such a problem—is so yet. . . . Gene, if Madge's friends are like her, we would have a more exciting summer than that one twenty-three years ago."

"I haven't the slightest doubt of that," growled Gene.

"If we only had an El Capitan to tame Madge!"

"Maddie, we don't want a wild hombre like he was."

"Perhaps no other kind could ever win Madge. Gene, my memories are beautiful, always, eternally all-satisfying. Even to this day I can dream of that awful ride down into Mexico to save you from being shot—and revel in the sight of you striding out, as you supposed, to your execution. To meet, instead, me—your wife."

"Well, I find it sweet, too, Madeline. The past would be enough for me. But there is you—our home—and now Madge to think of."

"Gene, it will all come out right."

"Sure it will, dear. I'm an old croaker. Wish I could be like Nels. . . . You'll want to read your mail. And I've a lot of papers to look over."

An Open Letter to Betty Grable

Dear Betty: Your planets show some tough problems for you to meet—mostly within yourself. Probably the chief one is related to ambition and the need for putting it in its place, somewhere below the top spot of your ideals. Marriage versus career is another, or part of the same one. Marriage looks like your best pass. I suggest you let other considerations take second place to being the world's champion wife—and I understand you are not without opportunity in this field. With best wishes,

WYNN.

Chicago Charms Writer Anew on Return

By Cousin Eve

MARVELOUS to be home! Chicago always has a certain something, and Lake Michigan looks bigger and better than ever. The whole American scene, splashed with purple asters and the scarlets of turning leaves, pulls the heartstrings.

The towns and villages, too, have a definite liveliness lacking these many years, an air of returning red corpuscles.

And arriving chez moi, something new under the sun, the St. Luke's Fashion show set for Oct. 19 at the Stevens is going Chinese this year. Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson broke the news that Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, her assistant, and Mrs. John Stevenson are staging as the eleventh annual piece de resistance, a Chinese wedding.

Nothing could be lovelier. After the modern autumnal bride and bridesmaids have come and gone, a Chinese wedding march will rend the air and the magnificent oriental cortege will wend its way. A gorgeous private collection is the background of the show, with ceremonial robes of Emperor Chien Lung, great patron of the arts, and robes of the famous cruel dowager Empress Tzu Hsi, of our times.

Some of the treasures escaped from China just as the bombardment began at Shanghai, and were loaded aboard ship and away under the fire of the heavy guns. It sounds like the most enchanting dress show ever staged for St. Luke's hospital.

I left France at midnight and Paris after dinner. The veil of darkness made the parting easier, hiding queer old streets where I dearly love to ramble. The exposition really cramped one's style by taking all spare time, for fear of missing something, as a second year of Paris fair still is undecided.

The two buildings that, owing to their vast size and situation attracted the most attention, were the sworn enemies, Germany and Russia, which faced one another on the heights, dominating the show. The former had a Nazi eagle perched on top, and Russia a colossal couple all gilded up, apparently rushing somewhere. One of the Paris feuilletons carried the cartoon of a little French boy pointing at the monstrous pair, who asks his father: "Qu'est-ce que c'est, papa?"

"C'est un bolshevik et sa femme, mon fils," says the father.

I inquired of an expert why the right leg of the male statue, which is much, much longer than the other, runs out behind so strangely. And he replied: "That is because, for one step forward, Russia takes two steps backward." Inwardly this building is given over to governmental propaganda and people visit it who like that sort of thing.

All of my friends are frankly mad about the exposition and find it supremely lovely. Building it around the Seine and the Eiffel tower was a great idea, and utilizing the heights of the Trocadero as the main entrance was another. Most people hope it will run another year, opening in March, but that matter is up to the concessionaires themselves.

Travelers to France this year bought a "legitimation" ticket at home which entitled them to half rate fare on the French railways and a three franc gate tarif at the exposition (about 10 cents). Also they had a lot of fun laughing about being "legitimate." Wheel chairs were 60 cents an hour. The chair boys were nice lads, who tried to give you all the news. The restaurants were done with style and excellence. As I never seemed to pay any bills, I am not able to say whether they were expensive or not. The charge for service was usually 15 per cent, and there were cafés for every purse. The Italian pavilion was a favorite and smart place for luncheon, but who wants to fatten up on spaghetti and gnocchi à la Romaine?

Many people are asking me about the famous restaurants of Paris outside the exposition; are they still going? Alas, many are closed forever. Ciro's, Voisin's, Foyot's on the left bank, and a dozen other of those places where there were never any prices marked, died a natural death with the world's easy money. In the Bois de Boulogne, Café de Madrid, Armenenonville, and le pré Catelan still exist. Maxim's is one of three remaining night places, and doing well, and I went twice to "L'Escargot," near Les Halles Centrales, where you are supposed to eat snails. This was so completely full of Americans downstairs and so small that we climbed a tiny spiral stair each time and found it amusing enough, with French people making love in the open, the way they do, and what not. Nor did we eat snails. It seems at best a hazardous business to put these tough little creatures into the tummy. But each party ordered the same dinner—onion soup, frog legs [a specialité de la maison], haricots verts, and fresh raspberries; demi-tasse.

Somebody taxes me with having eaten my way through Europe this year, and I own to having had an unusual number of interesting luncheons and dinners with charming people. My reasons for featuring them were mainly to show that life goes on very much as usual in foreign countries. Nobody over there seems to have a war complex. And they have a lot of fun about our war scares.

Of the three overflowing grand hotels de luxe in Paris, the Ritz, the Meurice, and the George V. in the uptown quarter, are highly fashionable.

The Ritz has a chic location in the Place Vendôme, is overrun with patrons at all times, and has two beautiful garden spaces for luncheons and teas. Things are done there with a great air, and the old servants remember you from year to year.

Recently I saw a tearing swell enter the Ritz dining room, send for the maitre d'hotel, shake hands with him, pass the compliments of the season, then give his orders. After which more hand shaking. It was certainly quaint.

Of the three, the Meurice has the most chic clientèle. It is somehow more French, more exclusive and elegant, though it lacks the gardens and chichi of the Ritz. Alfonso and the Duke of Windsor go to the Meurice, as do other crowned heads who can afford it. New Yorkers specialize on the Meurice and Chicago seems to like the George V. This is on Avenue George V., and my friends who stop there like their rooms on the open court, each having its small terraced garden boxed in petunias.

Still other people like the smaller uptown French hotels and patronize them loyally, and it isn't easy to find one's friends who tuck themselves away at the Raphael, the St. Regis, the Bristol, and a dozen others. Just as in London, Brown's in Dover street is still one of the world's most exclusive and high priced inns.

I WAS all set this year to run up from Paris and spend a week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey in Normandy. But fate willed otherwise. We had arranged it all in Berlin, and I was looking forward to it no end. But unluckily destiny seemed to have it in for the bones of the Dewey family; Charlie Dewey, vaulting youthfully over a net after tennis with his arms full of rackets and balls, caught his shoe and fell to the ground. In his hip pocket was that famous gold cigaret case taken by bandits in Rumania and romantically recovered later, and the net result was a cracked hipbone.

On top of this accident, Peter, the youngest son, was motoring to Paris and when passing through Evreux his car seemed to crumple up, according to witnesses of the smashup. Whether it was tire or engine nobody knew, but it caused a serious skull fracture, and while the lad is recovering nicely in the hospital at Evreux, his parents have had a desperately anxious time. Mrs. Dewey herself broke an ankle last spring on a balmy day on Lake Shore drive and was laid up for months. So my only glimpse of Normany this year was at night by the light of a waning moon.

My boat ride home was most innocuous. I remember thinking how absolutely uninteresting the passengers looked on the Georgic, and that it was a good thing, for it gave one time to pause and consider. But pretty soon people began wearing the glad rags they had acquired abroad, then they looked better. Specially were there attractive New Yorkers aboard, full of pep. And two Laborite M. P.'s coming over to lecture for some of our spare cash. One of them, Morgan-Jones, innocently confided to me that he hoped to earn enough by his lectures to buy a nice little house in Wales for his young family.

So I told him to watch his step and not give us any Red oratory or I would go down in person and throw vegetables at him.

THE customs men were very mad this year at working on Sunday, and took it out on the passengers. The second and third class were full of Jews coming out of Germany, with all their chattels in bales and boxes. and that complicated matters, too. They looked sleek, I thought, and comfortable, these Jews.

A passenger had told me a wild story of a customs adventure in the good old days when women were women and bought jewelry in Paris, and I daresay that filled me with apprehension. The lady saw a brooch in rue de la Paix costing fifty thousand dollars, not francs. She determined to have it. So she told the French jewelry salesman to hold the ornament a while, and she would pay cash for it. She returned from the bank with the money and took the bauble away, never letting her own name appear in the transaction.

On the ship she filled out the usual custom house sheet with the list of her purchases, omitting, however, the jewels. The night before landing the traveler had one of those curious warnings that come occasionally, a dream. In it she saw the leering face of the Frenchman who had sold her the emeralds and diamonds and the face seemed malevolent.

The next day the lady asked for her customs declaration, remarking that she might have forgotten something. She then added the brooch to the inventory. Her family, white with anxiety, were awaiting her arrival. Customs men had been hounding them for days. But one glimpse at the passenger's honest declaration and the examiner remarked, "I see you have declared it." The French jewelry salesman had been doing his bit toward acquiring half the cost price of the jewels, a sum that would have made him affluent for life. The penalty for smuggling is very large, and I daresay the man has become one of those Parisians who don't like Americans. Well, it all sounded very far back, and out of the picture. Fifty thousand dollars for a pin!

CHICAGO, I though, had a new air of awareness, and charming things in the making. My first two luncheons were concerned with the modes: Kitty Meeker's and Aleka's fashion show was really very gay, with men and everything present. Miss Foltz organized the "assistance" which was large and the evening dresses shown had allure and large swirling skirts of tulle which I love.

The other party was at the Casino. Mrs. Ned Ryerson was educating me about the St. Luke's fashion show Oct. 19 in the Stevens ballroom.

Mrs. John W. Gary, the president of the woman's board, was another guest, and Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, who has organized the St. Luke's show for eleven years, and Mrs. Jack Pitcher, who knows it all, too. When luncheon was over I knew that it is the eleventh annual parade of fall fashions to benefit St. Luke's hospital. And that the social service of the hospital is $280,000 richer.

While we were lunching, others were, too. Mary Cramer was having a large party for her sister, Mrs. Horace Gray, and Harriet Welling was entertaining Mrs. John Alden Carpenter. She had just arrived in town from Paris, as proved by her hat, a becoming beret, much slanted up on the left.

The Arts club opened for the season that afternoon with a tea for members only. There were so few people present whom I knew that I felt like Rip Van Winkle, when I saw the dense crowd of faces absolutely strange to me, and others only vaguely familiar. Mrs. J. Ward Thorne was hostess for the day. On her charming blonde head was a souvenir of her early summer in London, a little round white hat, with a ruche of tiny dark blue feathers over the right eye.

Paris has developed that idea this fall. Young things are wearing something looking like a windmill over the right eye, but no hat behind it. At least I saw Barbara Field with such a gadget at the Ritz.

WILL LIVE IN CHICAGO

Mr. and Mrs. Clem Charles Baggott of Dongola, Ill., announce the engagement of their daughter, Frances, to Donald H. Keil of Elmhurst. Miss Baggott attended Gulf Park college and the University of Illinois. Mr. Keil is a graduate of the University of Illinois. The wedding will take place Oct. 23 in Dongola. Mr. Keil and his bride will live in Chicago.

Furs for Evening Ask Perfection in Hair Grooming

EVENING wraps of fur demand gleaming hair, smooth, shiny and groomed to perfection. And eye makeup is something with which every woman who owns beautiful evening clothes should experiment a good deal.

With black and gray furs, ivory powder tones and raspberry lipstick and rouge shades are recommended by experts. Warmer powders, with golden undertones, vivid or carnelian rouges and lipstick are best with brown and beige furs.

Furs and perfume are natural allies, and a fur without perfume is like chili con carne with the chili powder omitted.

With sports furs, like ocelot, raccoon, beaver, nutria, skunk and opossum, sports perfumes with woodsy, spicy tangs are ideal. Light bouquets or the more delicate floral odors are best with kidskin, caracul, squirrel and Alaska seal.

Homage Paid Barrie Reveals Odd Jealousy

By Ann Whittingham.

LONDON Homage to the memory of Sir James Barrie has brought to light a great jealousy on the part of his mother.

When James Barrie was a student at the University of Edinburgh he lodged with a Mr. Edwards in a respectable residential district in Great King street. Just around the corner, at No. 17 Heriot row, lived Robert Louis Stevenson with his family.

Barrie's mother, who was determined that he should be an author, made no secret of her jealousy of Stevenson, and is said to have deprecated the latter's achievements on all occasions. The Stevenson house never has been marked with any sign to distinguish it as the residence of a great man, even though it was there that he spent half his life. It now is the home of Lord Kinross, whose son, David Balfour, was born there and was named after the hero of "Kidnapped."

ON the other hand, to the satisfaction of Sir James Barrie's mother, no doubt, the temporary home of the Edinburgh student is to bear a memorial plaque commemorating his residence.

Dickensians have a chance to buy the original of the Dotheboys Hall of "Nicholas Nickleby." It is Greta Bridge farm, in Yorkshire, whose house once was a famous coaching inn. It never was a school, but Dickens used the building as background atmosphere for Dotheboys Hall. Today it forms part of the Rokeby estate, between the River Tees and the Greta, and it is to be sold. Rokeby Park itself was made famous by Sir Walter Scott, and the Morritt family to whom it belongs, were the owners also of Velasquez's famous Rokeby "Venus," now in the National Gallery in London.

Yorkshire, teeming with historical places and literary inspirations, has been one of the most interesting English counties since the Kingdom of Etman in the sixth century.

It came into prominence recently when the English Place-Name society damaged a few well known theories about the origin of names. Yorkshire is divided into East Riding, West Riding, and North Riding, which might have gotten their names from a postman's rounds or such, since those districts roughly meet at York. A "riding" used to be a "thrithing," or a third part, much as a farthing is a fourth part. So when some one asks why there is no South Riding, it is like asking for a third half, or a fourth third.

IN one of the Yorkshire dales, Langstrothdale, has been found a dialect which agrees more nearly than any other with Chaucerian English as used in the "Reeve's Tale."

Studying, as it does, all the counties of England, the English Place-Name society has long declined to believe that the name of London means either a fort, town by the lake, town of ships or, for that matter, the home of Kind Lud. In other words, the origin of the name is wrapped in mystery. The meaning of the part "Lond" is utterly obscure, but "Londinos" might mean a place belonging to a man of that name or it might mean "londos," which our early ancestors said when they meant "wild."

The principal fun of the English Place-Name society seems to be in the detection of error and make-believe. It, no doubt, was fun to establish beyond doubt that the River Cam was the invention of map makers who took it from Cambridge, which, passing through Chaucer's "Cantebrugge" is a corruption of "Grantebrycg."

The work of the society will be only half finished when it completes the study of the 17 counties they now are working on or have just finished.

THE "mother" of all English women writers was Dame Juliana Berners, and the work for which she is remembered is a treatise on dogs. This all was done in a nunnery in the fifteenth century.

Dame Juliana's book was the first work printed in the English language in which the breeds of dogs were scientifically classified. It is known as "The Book of Dogs and Field Sports" and was published at St. Albans in 1486. The breeds were classified as follows: "Thyse ben the names of houndes, Fyrste there is a Grehound, a Bastard, a Mengrell, a Mastif, a Lemor, a Spanyel, Raches, Kenettys, Teroures, Butcher's houndes, Dunghill dogges, Tyndeltayiles, and Pryckeryd curres, and small ladyes' poppees that bere awaye the flees."

It was another century before any other publication on dogs appeared and then it was by Dr. John Caius in 1576 and it was written in Latin. He added some more breeds to those noted by Dame Juliana.

Sir James Berners, the father of Juliana, was beheaded during the reign of Richard II. She was prioress of Sopewell nunnery near St. Albans. It was there that the book was written. A year after its first appearance she added another section, "A Treatyse perteynynge to Hawkynge, Huntynge and Fysshynge with an Angle." Izaak Walton generally is supposed to be the first writer on angling, but in reality he was preceded by a woman writing in a nunnery a century and a half earlier.

French Hats Go in for Both Low and High Crowns

LOUISEBOURBON is showing a new collection of smart wearable hats which is about evenly divided between high and low crowns. It includes two or three Directoire bonnets and a turban of vivid magenta pink jersey. Many extremely chic models have rather shallow square crowns and visor brims that are flattened against the crown at the sides; at the back they are brimless.

High fez effects actually consist of a snug fitting skull cap with a high "false front." One is of clipped black chenille resembling sealskin. Louisebourbon transforms casquette into a beret, making it of dark blue velvet, and uses red and blue velvet braid for a band and flat bow in front. A high cornucopia is made of alternating diagonal bands of black felt and astrakhan.

On a very "grande dame" black velvet halo, Louisebourbon puts two sprays of rust-red and grape-purple paradise. They sweep off to one side. Fetching for evening is her tiny fringed shawl of black silk mesh, which she ties around the head and knots at the nape of the neck. A small cluster of red flowers is placed at the center front. Bourbon's color combinations are nore beautiful than ever. Alternating bands of purple, emerald and rust silk floss are wound on a purple felt bolero.

Cherry Taffeta Used for Victorian Windows

THE present trend toward the better Victorian styles has resulted in some unusually interesting window treatments. In a living room with old-fashioned high ceiling and plain painted walls two long windows were dressed in the following manner: Cherry taffeta was used for the overdraperies and was looped back with ornamental metal floral tie-backs. The valances were of needlepoint and the long glass curtains were of lace net in a new pattern copied from Victorian days.

Breakfront Bookcase Lends Dignity to Room

THE breakfront bookcase is an excellent piece of furniture to lend dignity and interest to a room. Because of its height and its architectural character, it may well serve as the focus for a room which lacks a fireplace and become the outstanding piece about which other furniture is grouped. In pickled mahogany or pine it introduces a striking accent in a room furnished in the traditional deep toned mahogany.

Mrs. Audrey Field Gives a Wedding Party in London

LONDON Mrs. Audrey Field, or Mrs. James Field, or Mrs. Marshall Field—she leaves it to one's preference what one calls her—gave a wedding breakfast for the second marriage of Patricia, countess of Jersey, when the latter married Robert Filmer Wilson, banker, recently. The decree absolute dissolving the marriage of the earl and countess of Jersey was cold for less than a week when both the earl and the countess had contracted each a second marriage.

Mrs. Field's house in Regent Park provides the ideal setting for ceremonials such as wedding breakfasts. The modern interiors provide beautiful backgrounds for exquisite antiques and the view down the rose walk to the Japanese pagoda, with Regent Park's most enchanting lake in the background, is something few hostesses can equal.

Among the guests at the breakfast were the duke of Rutland, Sir John Milbanke, Sir Anthony Weldon, Viscount Castlereagh, the duchess of Westminster, and Lord and Lady Plunket, who came from their country place near Guilford for the event.

Lady Plunket, who is one of London's fashion barometers, wore a purple coat over a purple and white patterned dress. With these she wore purple shoes and violet colored hat and gloves. The duchess of Westminster wore a white lamb coat over a dark blue frock, on which was patterned a spray of red roses.

Pinch of Soil Is Used in Club Federation Fete

A PINCH of soil from Waiilatpu, Wash., recently was used to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the Pennsylvania Federation of Women's Clubs. The club had requested soil from Washington's "most hallowed spot" and Waiilatpu was selected because the first white home west of the Rocky mountains was established there by the martyred Marcus and Narcissa Whitman.

The world's largest women's organization is the World's Woman's Christian Temperance union.

New PORE MASQUE
Banishes Blackheads
If blackheads are the bane of your existence . . . if your beauty is marred by large, unattractive pores . . . if your skin is excessively oily, you will praise Helena Rubinstein, celebrated beauty authority, for creating her new Special Pore Masque. This marvelous new cream masque cleanses and purifies "soiled skin." The moment it touches your face, you feel its deep-clearing, stimulating action. Feel the masque tightening . . . working over cheek bones and about the nose where the pores are most inclined to open. After 20 minutes, you remove the masque . . . look into your mirror and behold—instead of blackheads and large pores—a skin that is clear, radiant, exquisitely transparent, glowing with loveliness. And you take a new lease on life! Try the Special Pore Masque soon. 2.00.

Local Groups to Observe P.-T. A. Week

THIS is Parent-Teacher Association Week, by proclamation of Gov. Horner. Associations throughout the state individually will observe the occasion with special exercises, and in Chicago tonight Mrs. Arthur R. Williams, president of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, will address the Sunday Evening club at Orchestra hall. The United Mothersingers, who are members of parent-teacher organizations, will sing.

Appropriately, the week will launch a new enterprise of the parent-teacher associations, a series of community children's theaters. Casts made up of young drama students, recent high school graduates, will present a repertory of fairy tale plays at various high schools of the city. "The Sleeping Beauty" will be presented Saturday afternoon at Roosevelt High school, and at the same time "Hansel and Gretel" will be given at Hyde Park, and "Cinderella" at Lindblom. These three plays will be presented in rotation at other high schools during the autumn and winter.

"WE are interested in the children's theater, not only because it offers wholesome entertainment, but because it gives young actors training," Mrs. Clark L. Reed said of the new project. Mrs. Reed, as chairman of Chicago affairs for the Illinois congress is sponsoring the theater.

"Through these productions students earn while they learn. Many who have distinguished themselves in high school dramatics are afforded further opportunity to develop their talent," Mrs. Reed added. "Under Mrs. Agnes Kessler Kahn, director of the theater, they receive coaching free of charge and, at the same time, are paid for each performance."

Little theaters will be discussed by Alice Gerstenberg at the opening meeting of the Chicago branch of the National League of American Pen Women Thursday at the Belmont hotel. The program, which marks the beginning of the branch's ninth season, has been arranged by Mrs. Flora Dingle Jesseph, charter president and program chairman.

A board meeting at 11 o'clock will be followed by luncheon. In addition to Miss Gerstenberg's talk the program will include a group of Eleanor Everest Freer's songs, sung by Evelyn Ewert, and original poems by Bertha Ten Eyck James. Mrs. Freer is honorary president of the branch.

AT the December meeting of the branch Mrs. Frank G. Logan will receive the Edith Ainsfield Wolf award given annually by the branch for the year's outstanding achievement in the field of art. Mrs. Logan's book, "Sanity in Art," earned her this recognition.

Mrs. Edgar Penney, new president of the branch, is a lecturer, writer and contributor to educational and club magazines. Other officers are Mrs. Jesseph, first vice president; Luella M. MacKennan, second vice president; Loise Fernald Rice, third vice president; Edna Allen Phillips, corresponding secretary; Mary Pauline Peeples, recording secretary; Clara E. Adrogna, treasurer; Mabel Alva Sterba, auditor; Leta Dexter Owen, parliamentarian; Caecilie Illing, historian.

Chairmen and co-chairmen of departments include: Pauline Palmer, Violet Beatrice Wenner, art; Elizabeth Guion Hess, Irene Jean Crandall, drama; Florence Croker Comfort, Jane Devlin, poetry; Lillian Boguslawski, Katherine F. Ames, music; Ruth Redheffer, Flora Warren Seymour, books; Polly S. MacManus, Juana Foust, short story; Miriam Whitehead, Peggy Palmer Burrows, features; Betty Taylor, Della Willien, membership; Winona Reeves, publicity; Mrs. Jesseph, program national bulletin; Emma Wilson Emery, radio; Leta Dexter Owen, Alvir Winter Gilmore, lectures.

THE Chicago chapter of the Catholic Poetry Society of America will launch its fourth season tomorrow evening at the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street. The Rev. Ralph McCaffrey, professor of English at Fenwick High school in Oak Park, will speak, and Miss Catherine Martin will give the first of a series of monthly talks on "Rambles in a Book Shop."

Miss Mary R. Ryan heads the chapter, and other officers include Mrs. Daniel B. Hayden, vice president; Mrs. M. E. H. Carr, secretary; Mrs. Joseph Prendergast, treasurer. The Rev. Walter Croarkin, Thomas F. Delaney, James Doyle, the Rev. John McLarney, Miss Alberta Finan, Mrs. Edward Gueroult, Miss Anne Larkin, Miss Rose Mullay, Miss Catherine Ready, Miss Josephine Rice, Miss Mary Synon and Miss Marie Antoinette de Roulet constitute an advisory board.

President's day will mark the opening of the Renaissance's 23d season at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow at 50 East Huron street.

A luncheon and musicale are planned with the Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker, president of the Northwest art association; Emery P. Seidel, president of the Association of Chicago Painters and Sculptors; Jason Whitney, president of the Chicago City Opera company; and John Thut of the American Conservatory of Music as guests. Club and parent-teacher association leaders are being invited to a club workshop from 2 to 3:30 o'clock Thursday at the Hewitt school, 6 North Michigan avenue. "International Affairs and the Individual" will be the topic of another meeting for club leaders to be conducted by Mrs. William H. Spencer at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday at the school.

Youth and its problems will be the topic of a "Courtesy day" program that will bring auxiliary members of B'nai B'rith from all parts of the city next Wednesday afternoon to the Mizpah club, 1615 Morse avenue.

Dr. Abram L. Sachar of the University of Illinois, who is national director of the Hillel Foundation, will speak on the work of the organization, which has as its purpose the training of Jewish university students in leadership and citizenship.

Rabbi Maurice Pekarsky, newly appointed head of the foundation at Northwestern university, and Mrs. Hugo Hartman, Hillel representative of the B'nai B'rith auxiliaries, also will speak. Dr. Jacob Singer will give an invocation, and Lilyan Sachs will sing.

WEDDING DATE IS NEAR

Deborah Club Plans Fete as Benefit Event

LONG before the club season opens, the dates for a number of important benefits are set. The Deborah Woman's club will not hold its first meeting until Thursday, but already the organization has decided on Nov. 30 and Dec. 1 as the dates for the annual fête whereby funds are raised to finance the organization's west side club for underprivileged boys.

One of the oldest groups in the city, the Deborah Woman's club, will celebrate its 65th anniversary at the meeting Thursday afternoon. There will be a program by artists of screen, stage, and radio, with Mrs. Louis Sontag in charge.

It was six years ago that members of the Deborah club, after making a survey to find where the greatest need lay, decided to open an "off the street" club for boys on West Division street. Now more than 1,500 boys between the ages of seven and 16 enjoy the varied program of the club, which includes handicraft classes, athletic, musical, and dramatic activities.

THIS program will be financed largely through proceeds of the two day fête, which will be held in the gold room of the Congress hotel. An office has been opened in the hotel where donations are being received for the various booths that will be conducted during the festival.

Mrs. Charles E. Martin heads the organization. Mrs. Charles King Corsant and Mrs. Joseph Wolf, both active in the organization for more than 30 years, are honorary presidents.

THE Mrs. Frank J. Lewis Milk Fund for Tuberculous Poor, named for the president of the Illinois Club for Catholic Women, will receive the proceeds of the gala tombola to be held Oct. 30 in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel. Dancing, games, and a floor show featuring stage, screen, and radio entertainers are planned for the party.

The Catholic Men's club and junior members of the Illinois Club for Catholic Women are assisting Mrs. George J. Aste, general chairman, with arrangements for this party. The fund provides food, clothing, milk, cod liver oil, and household necessities to those suffering from tuberculosis, or to needy families who have been exposed to the disease.

Another important benefit of the fall season will be the annual card party of the South Side Catholic Woman's club the evening of Oct. 29 in the Boulevard room of the Stevens hotel.

Part of the proceeds will go to Misericordia hospital, and part toward the perpetual scholarship recently pledged to Quigley seminary by the club in memory of its founder, the late Mrs. Charles J. Trainor. Mrs. Frank M. McGurk and Mrs. John J. McEncore are co-chairmen of the party.

The Blind service association has decided on Nov. 13 as the date of its annual fund-raising frolic at the Standard club. This will be a "Torch Light Fiesta," with dancing and a varied program of entertainment. The name was chosen as a symbol of the association's work in behalf of the blind. Mrs. Gottfried D. Bernstein heads the organization.

THE 26th anniversary of the Lawndale Ladies Aid society will be celebrated at a meeting at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday at the Capitol building, State and Randolph streets. An honor luncheon will be given the following day at the Monte Cristo restaurant, 645 St. Clair street.

Plans for enlarging the roster of the Jewish Big Sisters will be discussed at a tea to be given at 2 o'clock tomorrow at the home of Mrs. Samuel S. Hollender, 442 Wellington avenue. Mrs. Hollender, who is membership chairman of the Big Sisters, is inviting members of her committee.

The Woman's Progressive Club of Chicago will open its season with a reception and luncheon Tuesday at the Auditorium hotel. The North Central college chorus and Florence Bourke Ellis, book stylist, will give a program. Mrs. Walter W. Seymour, second vice president of the General Federation of Women's clubs; Mrs. Marion H. Biel, president of the first district, Illinois Federation of Women's clubs; Mrs. Charles S. Clark and Dr. Kathryn Swartz, past president of the Woman's Progressive club, will be special guests.

MRS. GUSTAV A. J. MEYER is president of the club. Other officers are Mrs. Homer A. Jones, first vice president; Mrs. John C. Boernsen, second vice president; Mrs. Ira J. Kuhter, third vice president; Mrs. C. J. A. Carlson, recording secretary; Mrs. Harvey Martling, corresponding secretary; Miss Lucy Atkinson, treasurer.

Mrs. William Dauber, Mrs. Jack Hodgson, Mrs. James J. Johnson, Mrs. Eugene Mancinelli, Mrs. Edwin Mueller, Mrs. Alphonso A. Schultz, Mrs. Arthur Siebecker and Mrs. Basil G. Wyrick are directors.

The opening meeting of the Friday Tea Cup Circle will be held at 2 o'clock Friday at the home of Mrs. A. G. Lange, 1615 Chase avenue. The Harmony Masters will give a program. Mrs. A. R. Graham is the newly elected president.

The first rush party of Delta Omicron Delta legal sorority will be held at 2 o'clock today at the Stevens hotel. Miss Ethel Miller is president.

ENGAGED TO MARRY

New Chest of Drawers Boasts Convertibility

CONVERTIBILITY is the keynote of the new chest of drawers which may be turned into a complete writing desk with stationery compartment, etc., or at its mistress' command quickly becomes a complete vanity, with makeup box and wing mirror. Indirect lights throw illumination on the combination sections, and other secret compartments provide still further services.

Schism Rears Its Head in Plans of Reformation Fete

LONDON

Schism already is evident in the plans for next year's celebration of the fourth centenary of the Reformation and the English Bible.

The "high church" Anglo-Catholic paper, the Church Times, points out with some acidity that there are significant omissions in the organizing committee.

These omissions are the bishops of Bradford, Ely, and St. Albans. Dr. Heywood [bishop of Ely] and Dr. Michael Furse [bishop of St. Albans] were more than conspicuous in their opposition to the new divorce law. Dr. A. F. W. Bradford [bishop of Bradford] is, of course, the cleric whose attack on King Edward for not going to church set the cat among the pigeons and finally led to the king's abdication.

Anglo-Catholics, through their organ, the Church Times, claim that it is a deliberate boycott and "that next year will see an elaborate attempt to pretend that the Reformation in England was something that it certainly was not, and to use the occasion as an excuse for denunciation of the Catholic movement in the Church of England."

Those who are managing next year's celebration, which will be very elaborate, deny that there is any discrimination against any section of the Church of England.

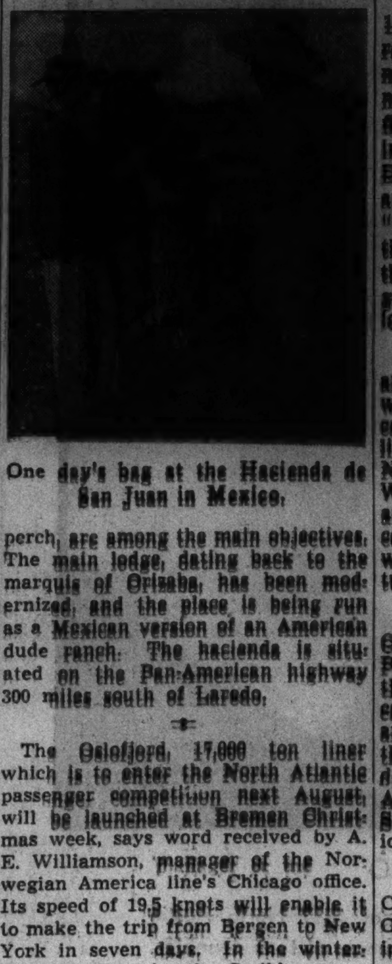
GOING SOMEWHERE?

IN spite of reports that passenger steamship service between New York City and west coast ports by way of the Panama canal might be curtailed, the principal lines in that service last week were still accepting bookings for winter sailings. Chicago officials of the Panama Pacific and Grace Lines said they had not received definite information from their home offices and that reservations were being made for as late as next March. One report was that ships of the two companies would American run. The projected shift did not involve ships of the Dollar Lines.

Cunard-White Star yesterday announced a winter program of twenty-four cruises—all except one of them to points in the West Indies and South America. The Caribbean season will begin Dec. 23 and last until April 10, with the Aquitania, the Georgic, the Berengaria, the Britannic, and the Carinthia pressed into service. On Jan. 6 the Franconia is to leave on a five months' cruise around the world, with 83 ports visited in the course of the 35,500 mile trip.

Joseph MacGaheran, Minneapolis advertising man, and a group of other American sportsmen have tired of city life and have opened up the Hacienda de San Juan down in Mexico. There they and their fellow hunters and anglers go each year for a season of sport. Jaguars, mountain lions, wild pigs, deer, wild turkeys, ducks, and quail, along with trout, bass, and perch, are among the main objectives. The main lodge, dating back to the marquis of Orizaba, has been modernized, and the place is being run as a Mexican version of an American dude ranch. The hacienda is situated on the Pan-American highway 300 miles south of Laredo.



One day's bag at the Hacienda de San Juan in Mexico.

The Oslofjord, 17,000 ton liner which is to enter the North Atlantic passenger competition next August, will be launched at Bremen Christmas week, says word received by A. E. Williamson, manager of the Norwegian America line's Chicago office. Its speed of 19.5 knots will enable it to make the trip from Bergen to New York in seven days. In the winter time it will cruise the Caribbean.

Two travel lectures this week: At 11 a. m. Friday the Pennsylvania railroad will take its passengers, via movies, to Washington, D. C., and northern Michigan, with the seventh floor of the Fair Store as the starting point. At 8:30 p. m. Thursday Dr. Dudley Crafts Watson will appear at the Old Heidelberg inn and discuss "Across Switzerland by Motor." At the Fair Store's first travelogue of the season more than 500 persons gathered to see a color film of Mexico.

Details of the Gripsholm's cruise around South America this winter were received last week at the Chicago office of the Swedish American line. The motorship will sail from New York Jan. 20, sail through the West Indies, down the west coast, and back up the east coast. In the course of the 14,000 mile trip calls will be made at 16 ports. The return is set for March 24.

Manager John C. Pollock of the Chicago and North Western-Union Pacific tour department has arranged three early winter tours from Chicago to California. The starting dates are Dec. 26, Jan. 16, and Jan. 30, and the places to be visited include Boulder dam, Riverside, San Diego, Los Angeles, Hollywood, Catalina Island, San Francisco, and a bit of old Mexico. Each tour is to last two weeks.

The Canadian Travel bureau, the Canadian Pacific railway, and the Canadian National railways are holding a maple leaf contest, with cash prizes for the largest leaves gathered anywhere in the dominion this fall. "There are no restrictions as to the nationality of the contestants," says Tom Wall, C. P. agent in Chicago. "The only provision is that the leaves be found in Canada and sent from a Canadian point."

South American cities which were sprightly capitals when most of North America was an unexplored wilderness are being rediscovered these days by travelers. Cruises and tours are being arranged by the score. The American Express company last week announced a tour leaving New York Nov. 6 on the Munson liner Southern Cross and returning Dec. 20 on the Grace liner Santa Clara. Rio de Janeiro, Sao Paulo, Santos, Montevideo, Buenos Aires, Santiago, Valparaiso, Antofagasta, Callao, Lima, and Guayaquil will be covered.

The Voice of the Traveler

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcomed. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

ANOTHER REVOLUTIONARY FLAG.

Jacksonville, Ill., Oct. 2.—To the Travel Editor: In the Travel Quiz in last Sunday's TRIBUNE it was stated that the only existing American flag known to have been carried in the revolutionary war may be seen at the statehouse in Annapolis.

I can tell you of another flag carried in that war and still in existence. My great-great-grandfather, Abram Markoe of Philadelphia, organized what was known as the Lighthorse troop of Philadelphia, and designed and had made a flag which was carried by that troop. The banner had thirteen stripes, symbolizing the thirteen colonies. The organization escorted Gen. Washington when he went to Cambridge to take command of the army.

There is still a Lighthorse troop of Philadelphia, made up of descendants of the original members, and it is used as an escort of notable people of today. The flag is in possession of the members and is kept in safekeeping in their armory. A replica is on view in Independence hall. [MISS] KATHERINE BARR.

TO THOSE WHO CARE.

Berwyn, Ill., Sept. 26.—To the Travel Editor: Will some kind friends among your readers send cards or letters to a little neighbor of mine who will be a shut-in for many months?

He had a terrible accident, the wheel of a big truck running up the length of his leg from foot to knee. The leg is all opened up. The doctor has an ultra-violet ray light shining on it day and night and is also giving X-ray treatments.

This boy is 14 years old. I know time is heavy on his hands, and hearing from those who care will give him encouragement. The name and address: Arnold Moran, Room 338, Oak Park Hospital, Oak Park, Ill.

I shall write you again of Arnold's condition. His case is going to be a miracle. LOUISE C. MAAS.

MAIL FOR SHUT-INS.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—To the Travel Editor: I am writing for a person who has been bedridden for a month and must remain so for many more months. She would be very happy if some traveler would send her cards from distant cities and countries to make her day brighter. Her address is Mrs. Harold Fisher, 5839 North Natoma avenue, Chicago. She is the mother of five small children, but has had to part with them because of her illness, and feels such a void as a result. GERTRUDE GRIGAL.

Elgin, Ill., Sept. 25.—To the Travel Editor: My husband, E. L. Waterman of 586 North Liberty street, Elgin, has been a shut-in for eight years, and I know he'd be happy to get mail from travelers. Would you please put his name on your list? MRS. WATERMAN.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 2.—To the Travel Editor: Please put the name of Maire Phernambqu, St. Joseph's Sanatorium, Dubuque, Ia., on your list to receive cards from travelers. H. A.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—To the Travel Editor: I am 17 years old and I live at 4332 North Drake avenue. I have been a shut-in for three years. It would make me very happy if you would put my name on your list to receive mail from travelers. MARJORIE WASSMAN.

Deerfield, Ill., Sept. 4.—To the Travel Editor: Will you kindly put me on the list to receive mail from travelers. I am a shut-in and am deeply interested in travel. I will appreciate it very much. My address is 1027 Springfield avenue. LOUISA B. HUEHL.

FINDS READY RESPONSE.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 22.—To the Travel Editor: Permit me to express my sincere appreciation to the Voice of the Traveler. Two days after my son's plea was printed I received thirteen beautiful cards, my lucky number. Thank you a million times. LEONARD L. BORKOWSKI SR.

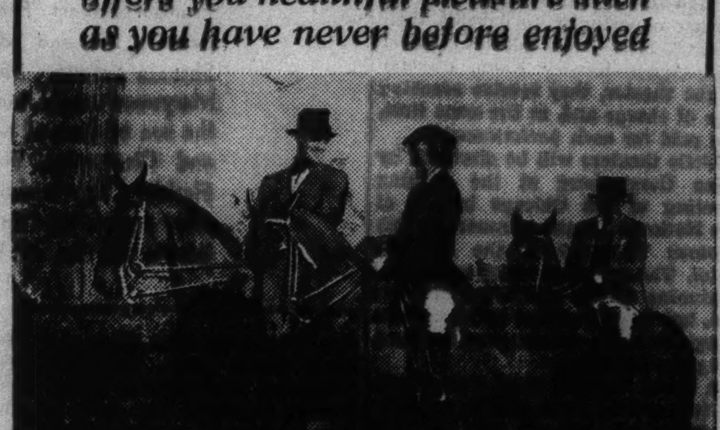
The Great Fall Season At French Lick offers you healthful pleasure such as you have never before enjoyed



Sunshiny days ... cool nights and the famous Pluto Waters and Baths make a "Health Holiday" here that will benefit you for months
NOWHERE is early Fall more glorious than at French Lick Springs. And nowhere can you benefit so much, both mentally and physically, than from a "Health Holiday" spent here.
During the day there is warm sunshine for golf, tennis, skeet and trap shooting, or riding over bridle paths brilliant now with Fall's gayest colors. In the evening there is quiet relaxation—or dancing to the superb music of Jules Duke's famous orchestra.
And right at your very finger tips are the famous Pluto Waters which tone up a sluggish system and the world-renowned Pluto Baths which invigorate body and mind and calm frayed nerves.
If you have never seen French Lick in early Fall, you owe yourself a trip to this famous Spa. Ten days will condition you for the long winter months ahead. And you will leave renewed in spirit and vigor. Write or wire for your reservations at once. Or send for beautifully illustrated booklet.
How To Reach French Lick: Take Monon trains leaving Chicago twice daily—9:15 A.M. and 9:20 P.M. (Central Standard Time). Or Eastern Air Lines via Louisville. Or motor direct. Phone our Chicago Office for further details.

School for Design Will Open Oct. 18

By Eleanor Jewett.

FOR a great many years the Association of Arts and Industries has sought an active expression of its desires in a school of industrial art. The association was founded in Chicago in 1922; ideals and not profit motivate it. For a time it worked with the Chicago Art Institute, but last year the relationship was definitly cast aside and when Marshall Field III. presented his house at 1905 Prairie avenue to the society, the Association of Arts and Industries gladly accepted it for the purpose of turning it into a practical training school of design. The house has been remodeled and the new school will open Oct. 18.

Dr. Walter Gropius, professor of architecture at Harvard university, will act as adviser in all school matters. He was the founder of the world famous art university, the Bauhaus, in Dessau. He first proclaimed the necessity for the closest coöperation of art science and technique in the new art education. The Bauhaus became, under his influence, one of the great forces in the development phases of contemporary art. It has been acknowledged internationally as the outstanding educational institution in design and architecture.

I. MOHOLY-NAGY, formerly professor of the Bauhaus and a most important contributor to the activities radiating from it, a painter and a designer of international reputation, has been appointed the director of the new school. Because Dr. Gropius is confident that Prof. Moholy-Nagy and the members of his staf will continue and extend the best Bauhaus traditions in their teaching in Chicago he has granted permission to use the word "bauhaus" in the name of the new school. So, quite simply, this Prairie avenue residence, through whose rooms much of Chicago hospitality has lavishly poured, will be known in the future as "the New Bauhaus."

This new school is based on the theory that the artist should have close contact with reality. In the words of the Association of Arts and Industries: "Our task is to contrive a new system of education which, along with a specialized training in science and technique leads to a thorough awareness of fundamental human needs and a universal outlook. Thus, our concern is to develop a new type of designer, able to face all kinds of requirements, not because he is a prodigy but because he has the right method of approach. We wish to make him conscious of his own creative power, not afraid of new facts, working independently of recipes."

THEIR educational program voices the wish for students of talent and states that the training will be for creative designers of hand and machine made products; also for exhibition, stage, display, commercial arts, typography, and photography; for sculptors, painters, and achitects.

The program is broad and bold. It is in the hands of a most capable genius, Moholy-Nagy, who has already proved himself in the eyes of the men who know. The school gives every promise of being an outstanding asset to Chicago and an enterprise of incalculable value to the rising generation.

The complete list of the faculty has not been announced yet, but Prof. Moholy-Nagy will lecture in the basic design workshop, with Hin Bredendieck, a graduate of the German Bauhaus, as technician. James Johnson Sweney, associate editor of Transition and lecturer in the fine arts department of the New York university graduate school, will direct the study of the history of art and kindred subjects. George Kepes, chief assistant of the display department of Simpson, Piccadilly, London, will be instructor in the drawing and light studio. Miss Norma K. Stahle, secretary and executive director of the Association of Arts and Industries, is to act as assistant director of the school.

THE Chicago Society of Etchers has a most delightful group of prints on exhibition in the Roullier galleries, Fine Arts building, 410 South Michigan avenue, to October 30. The etchings are those which were entered for the annual $500 prize competition. The winner will be chosen by vote of the active and associate members of the society.

The Chicago galleries, 215 North Michigan avenue, opened its first formal exhibit of the season last Monday with a showing of paintings by Carl Hoerman and Gasper J. Ruffolo. The exhibition is stunning. It will remain open to Oct. 25.

The Photographic Society of America opened an interesting exhibit of prints in the east wing galleries of the Art institute the first of this month. There are about 300 photographs in the show and they are drawn from all over the world. There are landscapes, still life, portraits, marines—nearly every kind of subject. Among those which stand out are "Sous Le Grain," by Henri Fardel; "A Bath for Beulah," by Pat Liveright; "Sturz," by Vadas Erno; "A Song of the Night," by John M. Whitehead; "The Connoisseur," by Jack Herrington; "The Lone Shieling," by Dan Dunlap; "The Window," by Curt von Coll, and "Interchange," by Paul Fripp.

An unusually strong program constitutes the Scammon lecture series offered this year during October in Fullerton hall, Art institute, on Tuesday afternoons at 2:30 o'clock. On Oct. 12, Dr. William Charles White of the Royal Ontario Museum of Art, Toronto, will lecture on "Peking and Its Palaces." Oct. 19, Dr. Herbert J. Spinden, Brooklyn museum, will speak on "Old Civilizations and the Andes." Oct. 26, W. T. Benda, painter and illustrator, will give a lecture-demonstration on "Art Masks."

Mrs. James Ward Thorne's group of exquisite miniature rooms will be installed in gallery I of the Art institute. The gallery is being specially prepared for them and we may expect a most charming setting and a most delightful exhibit. The gallery will open Oct. 15 and the exhibition remain to April 15.

"PLOWING IT UNDER"

This characteristic Thomas Hart Benton is but one of the many amusing, clever, virile, and colorful paintings by him which make up his one man show, that opened Oct. 1 to run to Dec. 1, in the Lakeside Press galleries, 350 East 22d street. It is a stunning exhibit.

Flower Bowls Keep Up with the Seasons

What do you know about china? The booklet, "Learn About China Before You Buy," by Claire Winslow, Tribune stylist in interior decoration, gives brief histories of the most important potters and their works. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower. Price, 3 cents. Postpaid, 5 cents.

By Claire Winslow.

CONTAINERS for flower arrangements are so important that manufacturers change their shapes, their sizes, and their colors frequently. This fall you'll see some beautiful new tones in smooth glazed pottery, among them a luscious pastel tint called celadon green, and a deep red, called ruby. Then there are the lovely soft pinks, the coral hues, and turquoise, as well as the usual green, blue, ivory, and white.

A black shallow bowl or vase makes a stunning contrast to deep crimson and white asters, or flamboyant dahlias. We've seen several excellent pottery flower containers in this somber tone, too.

Other popular colors this fall are gunmetal, brown, and a two-color combination such as white lined with turquoise, or white lined with coral, or black lined with yellow, or brown lined with cream. A set made up of a shallow flower dish and candlesticks in the two hue ware will bring beauty to any table or sideboard, and at small cost, too.

For fruit arrangements we found beautiful, inch high pottery trays with curved sides. They come in blue, cream white, and green. You pile the fruit on them and when placed on the table it is the fruit you see with just a tiny edge of the container acting as a finish. Too often you notice the bowl first and then the fruit.

From Czechoslovakia come some new pieces in cream white with gold trimming. They are unusual, good looking, and not at all expensive. They're of pottery and intended for flowers.

And, remember, it's not necessary to have real flowers if the budget rebels. Artificial ones may be used over and over, and they are most lifelike and artistic. There are long, graceful, drooping sprays of blue larkspur, for example, and branches of canterbury bells in pale peach, lavender, and blue.

Varied Events on Calendar in Pasadena

By Ruth Billheimer.

PASADENA, CAL. Junior league . . . flower show . . . horse show . . . all are bidding for headlines in Pasadena and in Los Angeles this week, for the nearby metropolis sends participants and spectators alike to the two shows. It also exchanges a transfer or two in the Junior league ranks.

The Pasadena league, headed by Mrs. Gordon Fellows Cronkhite, planned a busy year when it met for the first time this fall last Tuesday morning in the picturesque Casita del Arroyo and selected Mrs. Herbert Hoover Jr. and Mrs. Albert Doerr [Harriet Huntington] as delegates to the National Welfare conference of the Association of Junior Leagues of America in Milwaukee Nov. 1.

CHICAGOANS are especially interested in the part taken by Mrs. Hallett Thorne, who is a member of the board of directors, together with Mrs. Hoover, Mrs. Howard Cunningham, Mrs. Morris Miller, and Mrs. Cornelius Willis. To Mrs. Lawrence Washburn, daughter-in-law of a former Chicagoan, Mrs. Edgar Washburn, are assigned the duties this year of arts committee chairman, and Mrs. Hancock Banning Jr., whose name is known across the continent, is a member of the advisory committee which includes also Mrs. Russell Harriman and Mrs. John M. Marble.

A spring dog show and Christmas ball were chief among the transactions of business, and the neophytes' first lecture in the provisional training course is set for Oct. 13.

DR. PHILIP SCHUYLER DOANE still heads the association and Mrs. Doane has again been drafted as the commissary committee head. Mrs. Frank H. Sellers, Mrs. John H. Hardin, and Mrs. Raymond F. Mixsell [nee Skinner], all old time Chicagoans, are working on the music which last year was such a delightful part of the three day showing.

But Mrs. Sellers is dividing her interests just now, for the Hately residence which she and Mr. Sellers bought last spring and have spent the summer remodeling finally is ready for occupancy and they moved in this week.

But back to the South American theme which is, in reality, a gesture in recognition of Dr. Harper Goodspeed's proposed second botanical expedition to the southern continent. A former Chicagoan and cousin of Dr. Edgar J. Goodspeed, he is director of the botanical gardens of the University of California at Berkeley and a professor of botany.

AS always, no horse or dog show is complete without the Hostetter family, and the Flintridge Riding club's amateur show, Oct. 16 and 17, is no exception. Mrs. D. Herbert Hostetter Jr. [Margaret H. Brown] serves the double rôle of luncheon committee woman and party hostess.

Donald Hostetter, Peter Lert [son of Vicki Baum and Dr. Richard Lert] are among the exhibitors registered to date, and Mrs. Cecilia De Mille Calvin of Hollywood, daughter of Cecil Blount De Mille, is to judge saddle horses.

Pasadena society is welcoming back this autumn Dr. and Mrs. Paul Hunter [Betty Hixon] and their family, who deserted their honeymoon house on South Orange Grove avenue many years ago and moved to Pebble Beach. Not the least to be pleased is Mrs. Hunter's mother, Mrs. Joseph M. Hixon.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Dec. 10, 1888.

DEAR JULIA: Never was there such a busy social season as this, it seems to me. Receptions, dinners, luncheons follow in quick succession, and I have gadded about till my head is whirling. I love it and would hate not to be asked, but I find myself tired at the end of the week.

One of the most brilliant parties was a reception at the W. F. McLaughlin home, where, amid a profusion of roses, we heard Prof. Davidson, a guest of the family, recite Scotch dialect poems, mostly Burns. Mr. McLaughlin is a successful coffee merchant and their red brick house, at the southeast corner of Rush and Ontario streets, is one of the handsomest on the street.

A soirée musical at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Caton, 1910 Calumet avenue, was another fine event of the week. Mrs. Augustus N. Eddy, sister of Mrs. Caton, helped her receive and the important people of society were present . . . the Potter Palmers, the W. W. Kimballs, the Reginald De Kovens, the Fairbanks, and many others.

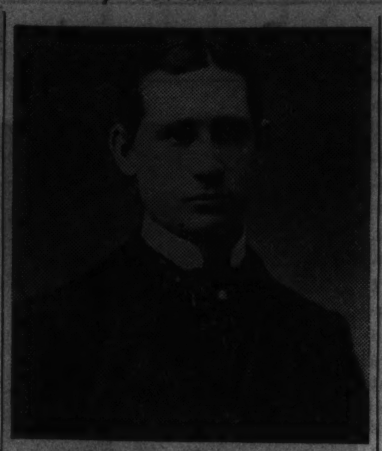
Will and I have just come in from downtown. Michael drove me down to Will's office early in the afternoon and we went shopping, ending by getting a lot of legal blanks. In making our purchases we fell into a long conversation with the pleasant young man, Charles H. Coles, who attended to our wants. Will has known him a long time and purposely went to the store where he is employed, Keene, De Lang & Co., on La Salle street, near Quincy, to give him the business.

Mr. Coles, a young man of about 30, told us of his experience on the night the Chicago fire broke out. That was seventeen years ago . . . it seems only yesterday.

As a boy of 13 he lived near the famous spot on De Koven street where Mrs. O'Leary's cow is reputed to have kicked over the lamp that set Chicago ablaze. Running to the fire, as boys always do, he was there within a few minutes, he told us.

"Was Mrs. O'Leary on hand?" Will asked.

"If she was I didn't see her," laughed Mr. Coles. "But I did see the cow and even touched her with my foot in order to be sure she was dead. She had been smothered by the smoke, but her body wasn't consumed. When I got to my home at 28 Johnson street a neighbor, Mrs. Morgan, asked me to see if her husband's boat, the Elmer Ellsworth, had been burned on the river. What a sight met my eyes as I approached the bank! Masts and decks had been set afire by brands carried by the high wind and the bright flames were reflected in the dark water. But Capt. Morgan had been able to get some one to tow his boat away, so it was saved. I started to work next morning, as usual, but the fire had been there before me, and there was no regular work for some days."



Charles H. Coles, who saw the Chicago fire begin on De Koven street.

Will asked this young business man to tell me some of his experiences, knowing that he had gone to work as a boy of 9. Marshall Field was his employer after the great fire. In the Field store, at that time, there was but one elevator, and young Charles, as errand boy, was expected to keep it clean. Twice a week he took the carpet from the elevator floor, and carrying a broom he went to Dearborn park [northwest corner of Washington street and Michigan avenue] where he swept the carpet vigorously. Sometimes, trustfully leaving the carpet and broom reposing on the ground there, he would run down to the lake for a swim. It wouldn't be safe to do that now, Chicago has grown so large and has so many vicious characters.

As errand boy later for the Mechanics National bank, young Mr. Coles often carried as much as $40,000 from one bank to another. Will says banks aren't quite so trusting nowadays.

Will thinks Mr. Coles is so intelligent and enterprising he will have a business of his own some day.

Now I must dress for dinner, as one of Will's out of town clients is to be here and I want to do him credit.

Lovingly,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

Charles H. Coles, still in active business at 415 South Wells street, is one of the few Chicagoans living who saw the beginning of the great fire of 1871.

Commenting on the tribute to his friend, Lorado Taft, in this column, Horace Spencer Fiske sends us his book, "The Battle of Manila Bay," in which we find a sonnet inspired by Taft's statue of "Despair" in the Art institute. Although we haven't space to quote the entire sonnet we must print the last three lines:

We yet would keep thee in thy sorrow fair,
And thank the gods that thou wast ever born
To make us all in love with deep despair.

E. H., Chicago, reminds us that Charles Havens, organist and director mentioned in this column two weeks ago, composed the music for many well known hymns. "There Is No Name So Sweet" is one of these hymns. Perhaps the most popular was "My Heavenly Home Is Bright and Fair."

Two readers have sent us clippings mentioning the death of Charles Knorr, great Chicago tenor.

READER'S QUERIES.

"Reader" asks: "Can you tell us about the building at 131st street and Indiana avenue? It is about 200 feet west of Indiana avenue, close to the Illinois Central tracks. It was built in 1836, I think." [Can any reader answer this query?] Address Herma Clark, care CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

A BOUQUET OF Bridal Perfumes

CREATED BY Elizabeth Arden

Elizabeth Arden adds new beauty to the modern wedding-day—a new grace to the most graceful of all occasions—her fascinating quintet of bridal fragrances, inspired by the five most fashionable bridal bouquets: Orchideé Blanche, Gardenia de Capri, Jasmin de Minuit, Fleur d'Oranger Algerienne and Muguet de Fontainbleau . . . Here is one moment when you must resist the charm of Blue Grass and Night and Day . . . both are too sophisticated to accord with the atmosphere that surrounds a wedding. These new accents are delicate and haunting as a bridal melody. Use them after the wedding, whenever your mood is particularly romantic.

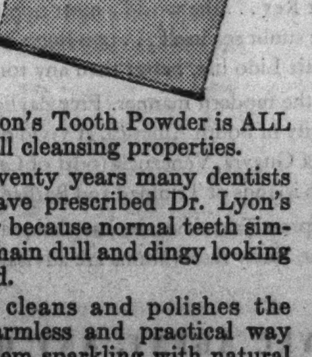
DO AS YOUR DENTIST DOES —USE POWDER

All Cleansing Properties
No Acid, No Grit or Pumice
Cannot possibly injure or scratch
Costs Less to Use



NOTHING else cleans and polishes teeth more quickly and leaves them more naturally white—than POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—almost always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of most dentifrices that cleans, a dentifrice that is all powder just naturally cleans effectively. Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—all cleansing properties.

For over seventy years many dentists everywhere have prescribed Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder because normal teeth simply cannot remain dull and dingy looking when it is used.

Dr. Lyon's cleans and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling with natural brightness. It leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is a special dental powder developed for HOME USE by a distinguished practicing dentist. Free from all acids, grit or pumice, it cannot possibly injure or scratch the tooth enamel as years of constant use have shown.

Even as a neutralizer in acid mouth conditions, Dr. Lyon's is an effective antacid.

Brush your teeth with Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder regularly—consult your dentist periodically—eat a diet rich in minerals and vitamins, and you will be doing all that you can possibly do to protect your teeth.

Dr. Lyon's is more economical to use. In the same size and price class Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder outlasts tooth pastes two to one. Even a small package will last you for months.

THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

FOREIGN TRAVEL

World Cruises to Run Despite Trouble in East

NO matter what the present situation in the far east may lead to, this winter's world cruises will be conducted as originally planned, with only enough changes to insure the passengers against danger in the war zone. Henry S. Woodbridge of Boston, general manager of Raymond-Whitcomb, Inc., made this statement to a group of Chicago steamship and travel agents at a luncheon at the Blackstone hotel Wednesday.

• • •

"As we announced in last Sunday's CHICAGO TRIBUNE," he said, "we have definitly decided to change the itinerary of the Bremen. Because of the unsettled conditions in China and the possibility that it will be months before that country and Japan are again pleasant for travelers, our cruise will pass up both countries and instead will visit Australia, New Zealand, and the South Sea Islands. The Hamburg American Line-North German Lloyd has announced a similar change for its Reliance; the Cunard Line has arranged an alternative program for its Franconia, and the Canadian Pacific has one under consideration for its Empress of Britain. Our Stella Polaris, of course, will not go within hundreds of miles of the affected areas. I am confident that all five cruises will be held, and that they will be unusually successful."

• • •

Bookings for the long cruises are increasing more rapidly in the middle west than in the east, Mr. Woodbridge related. In the fiscal year ending Sept. 31 Raymond-Whitcomb's Chicago office, he said, handled more business than ever before. As an indication of the great strides being made by the travel industry throughout the country, he gave figures showing that his agency's foreign independent travel volume was double that of a year ago and five times as great as that of 1932.

Since 1920, he said, Raymond-Whitcomb has run 118 cruises, on which it has carried 41,388 passengers for a total of 1,335,990 miles and made 2,023 calls at 276 ports.

For the coming season the agency, claiming the honor of being the oldest American travel company, has the most ambitious cruise program in its 58 year history. It will send the Bremen around the world in ninety days, the Normandie to Rio, the Columbus around South America, the Champlain to the Mediterranean and the Adriatic, the Stella Polaris to the South Sea Islands and then on around the world as far as western Europe, the Saturnia to the Mediterranean, and the Paris on four journeys to the West Indies.

Visitors Set New Record at Capital

WASHINGTON.—[U. P.]—Washington's record of 2,864,605 visitors in the last fiscal year sets a new mark for the capital as a national pilgrimage point.

The Smithsonian institution, which receives four out of every five visitors to Washington, recorded 2,291,685 visitors last year, compared with 1,291,685 in the preceding year and 1,841,306 for 1933-'34.

More or Less Personal

SEVENTY year old Jerome Fitzpatrick of Chicago has been blind for the last eighteen years. But each year he goes to sea, and each year his departure and return mark the beginning and ending, respectively, of the hay fever season. He has become recognized as a sort of unofficial barometer for the sneezers. He came back from England last Monday on the United States liner American Shipper, and that served notice to the other fever victims that they could follow suit. This was Mr. Fitzpatrick's sixth crossing on the American Shipper, so he has come to know it as well as any traveler could. He is a consulting engineer and lives at 2340 Clybourn avenue.

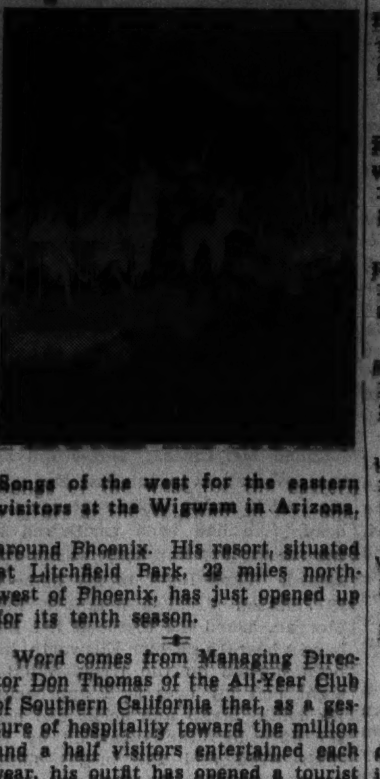
James Findlay, passenger trafic manager of the Furness Bermuda Line, was in town the other day. He let it be known that his company has arranged four special cruises for late fall and early winter. Seven day trips for Bermuda and Nassau will sail from New York Nov. 30, Dec. 9, and Dec. 16, and an eight day one to Bermuda and Havana will begin Jan. 5. . . . E. E. Ferguson has opened up an office at 120 South La Salle street to handle reservations for the Miami Biltmore hotel at Coral Gables, the Roney Plaza at Miami Beach, and the British Colonial at Nassau. He says the $10,000 Miami Biltmore open golf tourney, Dec. 10 to 13, promises to get a nunusually heavy play.

Mrs. Helen Harris, Mrs. Mae Lenney Downey, and the Misses Golda Luster, Ellen Raymond, Florence MacGregor, Ruby Hitchcock, and Gertrude K. Micon will represent the Woman's Trafic Club of Chicago at the Associated Trafic Clubs' convention in St. Louis this week. . . . Steamship and travel agents affiliated with the Bons Vivants will have a Norwegian dinner tomorrow evening at the Chicago Norske club, 2350 North Kedzie avenue.

Dr. Max Thorek of Chicago has returned from Vichy, where he read a paper at the international congress on hepatic insufficiency. While at the famous French spa he found time to indulge in his hobby, photography. He found the light and sky effects there something to write home about, and the Allier and Loire valleys worth miles of film. He spent his sunrise and sunset hours on his hotel balcony, with his camera catching nature's changing moods. Dr. Thorek is president of the Photographic Society of America.

C. K. Dwinell, who left Chicago a year or so ago to manage the French Lick Springs hotel, writes this department that the weather is perfect down there these days, that the two golf courses are in swell shape, and that the horseback riding and trap and skeet shooting are at their best. . . . Ivar W. Neil, manager of the Gray Line in Vancouver, came to town last week and called on Mayor Kelly. He related that his town is having its biggest season, with thousands of Americans stopping there on their way to other Pacific coast points.

Most Chicagoans apparently don't know that Arizona's winters are comparable to Egypt's, with mild temperatures prevailing from November to May. Manager Frank J. Haberl of the Wigwam came in last week to spread the news that California, Florida, and all the other semi-tropical places have nothing on the region around Phoenix. His resort, situated at Litchfield Park, 22 miles northwest of Phoenix, has just opened up for its tenth season.



Songs of the west for the eastern visitors at the Wigwam in Arizona.

Word comes from Managing Director Don Thomas of the All-Year Club of Southern California that, as a gesture of hospitality toward the million and a half visitors entertained each year, his outfit has opened a tourist information bureau in Los Angeles. Spanish costumed girls known as welcomets are on hand to map out tours of all the nearby attractions—including the homes of a hundred or so of the movie stars.

Soaring Hopes Soar.

WARSAW—(AP)—Poland's long dream—a flight to the stratosphere in a Polish balloon—may soon become true. Specifications have been ready since 1935, but money has not been available. The Polish League for Air Defense has started a drive for money so that construction of the balloon can be started soon.

DETOUR . . . . By FREDERIC BABCOCK

TO most Americans Czechoslovakia is merely a political miracle—the rise of a few hundred thousand minority peoples who rebelled against racial oppression and, under the guidance of President Masaryk and his American wife, attained the status of an important European nation. . . . But over there the people think of their new country in more concrete terms. . . . Czechoslovakia's ancient cities, castle crowned hills, and green plains provide the foundation of their national idealism, far more than do any political theories.

● Now that Masaryk is gone, the people like to remember how he gloried in the countryside of his own Bohemia and in the majestic mountains of Slovakia, the country of his mother. . . . They recall his words: "Once I was traveling by train in winter. As we came out of a tunnel I caught sight of a tree which still had its leaves. It was only a glimpse, but it swept over me like a miracle. In that moment I understood pantheism—the deification of nature."

● The founder of the modern Czechoslovak nation lived long enough to see foreigners seeking out his country for holidays both in summer and winter. . . . Hundreds of thousands now go annually from all over Europe and America to visit the Carlsbad and Franzenbad spas and the primeval forests. . . . When October comes, throngs of sportsmen show up for the hunting to be had in the eastern part of the country. . . . Fox and deer are common in Bohemia; wolves, bears, and wild boars in Slovakia.

● Masaryk used to tell of the bear hunts in which he took part years ago at Bystricka, where the animals were destroying the farmers' oats. . . . He allowed his first victim to escape, because he was so fascinated in watching "the gigantic, lovely beast." . . . If any hunter of the present day fears his chances will be lost by the same fascination, he is reminded of Masaryk's remark: "Our bears in Slovakia are good-natured." . . . The inference, apparently, is that they will wait until the man with the gun has ceased to admire them. . . . Then they can be shot in peace and dignity.

Australia and the South Sea Islands

Australia, farthest flung dominion of the British empire, has an area approximately that of the United States. Its population touches seven million. Sydney is a gay and beautiful city of one and one-quarter million people. Melbourne, Brisbane, Adelaide, Perth, and Hobart possess the attractions and comforts of American cities. On your way to Australia you will visit the South Sea Islands, one of the last parts of the globe to be explored, where the twentieth century rubs shoulders with the stone age.

Let the Chicago Tribune Travel Bureau help you plan a trip to Australia and the South Seas, or to any other part of the world which attracts you. This department of the Tribune Public Service Office can supply you with up-to-the-minute information about steamship, railroad, plane, and bus schedules, cost of transportation and accommodations en route for trips and tours everywhere. "Is fear a demon that paralyzes its victims?"

WHAT IS FEAR?

By GUY MURCHIE JR.

WHAT IS FEAR?

What is the nature of this most powerful emotion that can act so unpredictably? Why are certain men, who cheerfully looked death in the face during the World war, afraid to sleep in the same room with a harmless house cat? How can one get rid of the fear of being near the edge when standing at the top of a high precipice or on the roof of a ten-story building?

Is fear something that grips one with unreasoning horror such as that expressed in the face of the girl pictured on this page? Is it a demon that paralyzes its victims, bringing on a cold sweat and the shaking of knees for no useful purpose?

Or is fear a driving force lent by nature in emergencies to enable men better to face disaster? In the famous scene of the sinking of the S. S. Vestris reproduced on this page the almost calm faces of the men seem to hide completely the emotional struggle that must be going on within them. Did fear in this case endow these men with reserves of strength to help them combat forces of nature that threatened to overwhelm them?

To begin at the beginning, fear is an emotion, and, like other emotions, it is experienced in conjunction with certain bodily symptoms, notably a quickening of heart action, breathlessness, goose flesh, paleness, and visceral secretions of the adrenal glands which tend to strengthen the muscles and increase the body's efficiency generally. These symptoms are so closely involved with the emotion of fear, as are very similar symptoms involved with other emotions, that William James, the father of modern psychology, believed that they actually were the immediate cause of the emotion. To his mind, to see a bear, turn pale, and be afraid is a more accurate description of what happens than to see a bear, be afraid, and turn pale.

Most later psychologists disagree with James' theory, but it is a question not easily answered, and today's psychologists and specialists in neurotic disorders still differ on elementary points. The study of fear is not made easy by the fact that there are many and complex kinds of fear, some of them closely allied to or combined with fear's sister emotion, anxiety.

First of all, fear is an instinct. By careful experiments with animals it has been definitly shown that the instinct appears spontaneously in the individual at a certain stage of its growth not long after birth. Newborn chickens, for instance, were found to have no fear and would blindly follow any moving object or sound. Normally the moving object would be a hen and the sound a cluck, but if the hen were removed and a man with a whistle took her place the chicks just as easily learned to follow him and answer the call of the whistle.

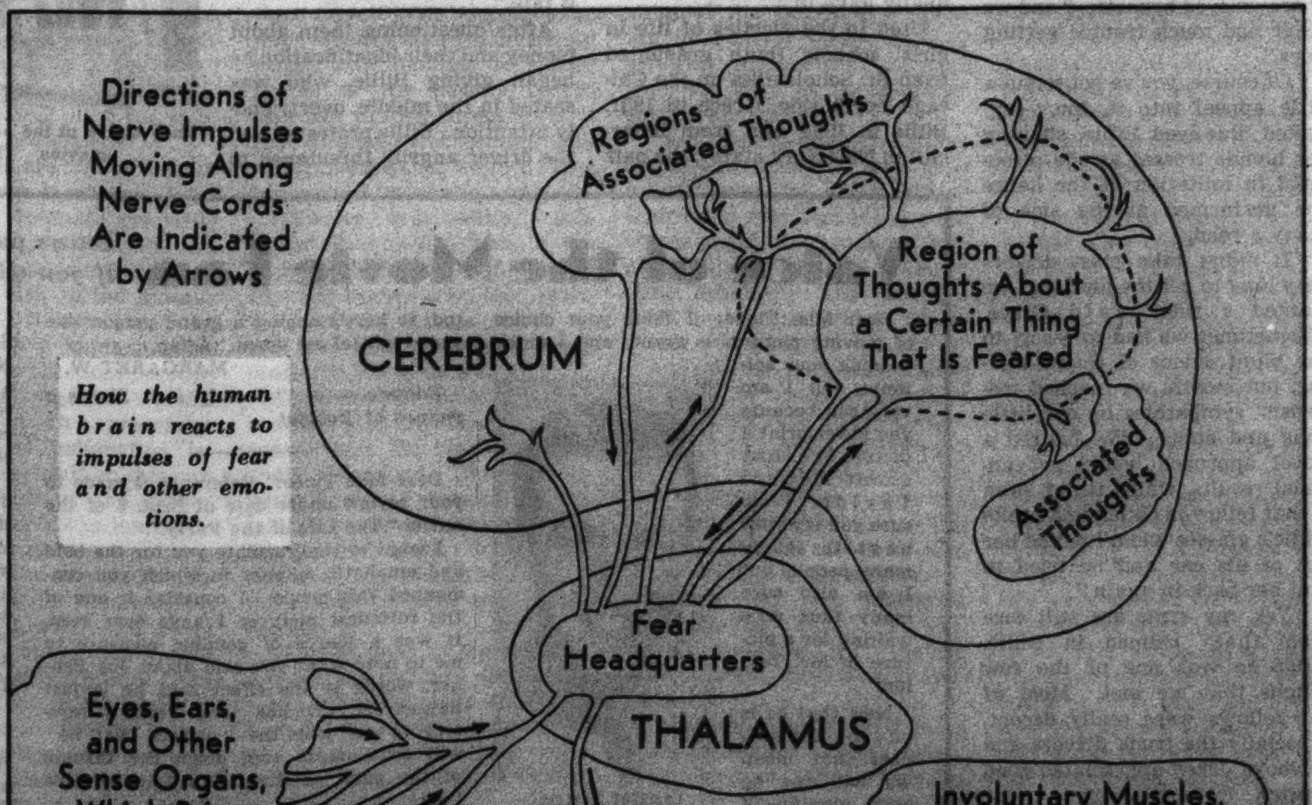
Certain chicks that were kept hooded and isolated from moving objects and sounds remained fearless for about three days, during which time a few that were set loose showed the same instincts as newborn chicks. But those that were set loose on the fourth day all showed a strongly developed fear of both moving objects and sounds, even including their own mother. Overnight they had acquired this new and powerful instinct. Of course, normally the new feeling of fear would be aroused by all sights and sounds except those of the mother hen (to whom the chicks would have had three days in which to become accustomed). Thus the fear instinct would be a protection to the chick, causing it to shun everything but the one thing which experience had taught it to trust.

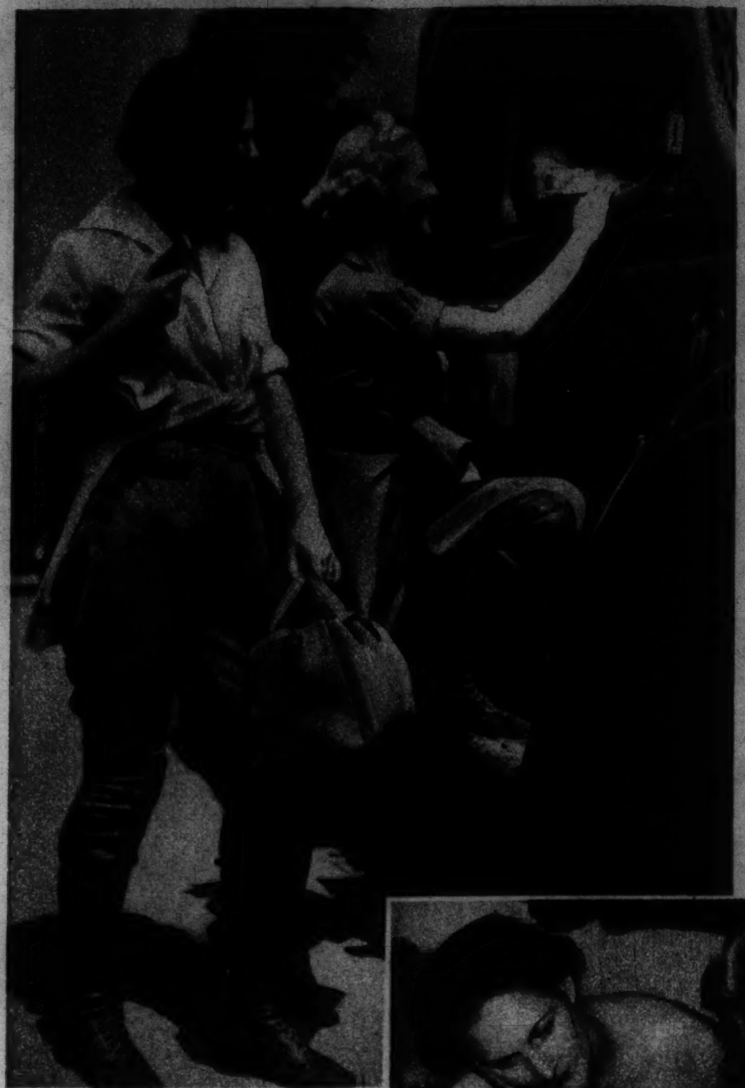
But all fear instincts do not seem to be as beneficial as this one. There is the instinctive and paralyzing dread of high (Continued on page four.)



How the human brain reacts to impulses of fear and other emotions.

Hitch-Hiking to Hollywood to Hunt Jobs

Chicago Sisters Find Dangers on the Road



Grace (left) and Irene (Billie) Goss, hitch-hiking from Chicago to Hollywood, find drivers of trucks accommodating and gentlemanly. They prefer to ride on trucks that have company names painted on them.

By GEORGE SHAFFER

Hollywood, Cal.

THEY hitch-hiked from Chicago to California for the purpose of landing Hollywood movie jobs.

But they didn't get the jobs—that is, at the time this story was written no producers had bargained for their services in the films.

They had thrilling experiences, and on several occasions they found themselves in situations hazardous for girls.

But they got through all right and had a lot of fun on their trip.

Which isn't guaranteeing that the next pair of girls who take to the highroad for Hollywood will be so fortunate. That is another way of saying that this story is not written for the purpose of encouraging girls in any desire to hitch-hike across the country. While 999 out of a thousand men who drive automobiles may be gentlemen, there is always the chance that the girl hitch-hiker may meet the thousandth man some place on the road.

But this is not a sermon. It's a story about two Chicago girls, the sisters Grace and Irene (Billie) Goss, who came from Chicago to California via the hospitality of the open road, their passports being a ukulele and winning smiles.

"I played the uke and Billie sang," explained Grace, a stately brown-eyed brunette, "and we never had much trouble getting rides."

"Of course, you've got to put a little appeal into it, too," suggested blue-eyed Billie, shaking her blonde tresses as she pirouetted in imitation of the dance she performed at the side of many a road.

"It didn't take most drivers very long to get the idea that we wanted a ride," said Grace. "Sometimes we had to resort to the blunt device of thumb-waving, but mostly we reached motorists' sympathies by our little song and dance. We figured a novel approach would get unusual results, which it did, even if that fellow in Oklahoma broke Billie's glasses when I pulled her out of his car and he tried to pull her back in again."

"Yes, my arms are still sore from that," chimed in Billie. "But he was one of the few toughs that we met. Most of the fellows were really decent, especially the truck drivers and cowboys. They appreciated good music."

The two girls—both only a few years out of an eastern finishing school—are daughters of Mrs. Josephine Goss Dehnert and make their home in Chicago with their mother and stepfather, Fred L. Dehnert, a broker, at 6244 North Winthrop avenue. The girls are granddaughters of Fred L. Goss, inventor of the printing press bearing his name. They are making their quarters here temporarily at the Hollywood home of their second cousin, Tom Ricketts, veteran film actor.

"We just got tired of the round of parties and dances at home," 24-year-old Grace sighed, "and decided to get away from it all. The idea of hitch-hiking just popped into our minds. We got the bug at a party one Saturday and were hunting up U. S. highway 101 the next day. The family put up an awful fuss but finally gave in."

Used to the niceties of life in girls' schools (both graduated from St. Scholastika on the Chicago north side, Grace in 1931, Billie in 1934, and from Briarcliff in New York state), the pair found it awkward at first to hail passing cars, and their first attempts went unrewarded. Their self-consciousness in wearing bulgy hiking breeches and woolen shirts did not help them much. A stop for a reassuring cigaret at one of Chicago's outlying intersections, however, changed their luck as a big truck hove in sight and its driver offered them their first lift.

"The business of casually lighting a cigaret was a regular ritual with us after that," said Grace. "Whenever we were going against our luck we always lit up cigarets, and that usually brought about a change."

Until they hit the western prairie country the trip was uneventful.

Between Tulsa and Oklahoma City one morning a sedan bearing two men in the front seat drew alongside and the driver motioned the pair into the back.

"If you girls don't mind," the driver told them after he had driven a few miles, "I'm going to drop this man off at the institution. Then I'll take you farther on."

The "institution" proved to be the state penitentiary and the driver of the car a state officer who was delivering a prisoner to serve sentence. "This is where I am going to make my home for the next few years," the outlaw joked the surprised girls.

• • •

The Oklahoma highway provided an obnoxious host. He no sooner picked up the Chicagoans than he warned:

"Listen, girls, if you get funny I've got a gun, and I can make it talk."

After questioning them about money and their identification he began giving Billie, who was seated in the middle, overfriendly attention. Billie protested and the driver angrily threatened to take their money away from them. Grace heatedly replied, "If you think it'll get you anywhere, go ahead."

"He really got sore when I told him that," laughed Grace. "He stopped the car and again started for Billie, this time without the handicap of one hand on the wheel. I pushed my door open, grabbing Billie by the right arm and shouting, 'Come on, let's get out of here.' The driver hung on to Billie's left arm and we both yanked. Suddenly he quit pulling and got out of the car, circling around the radiator while I extricated Billie. Then he grabbed me, saying, 'I think you look kinda cute when you get mad.' By this time Billie had our bags out of the car and was running up the road. I finally broke loose from the man and started after her. Luckily he didn't follow us, but just stood there and laughed for a while and then drove on."

Occasionally other would-be swains unceremoniously dumped them out in the middle of nowhere. Grace continued:

"If the men got rough we simply asked to be let out, but fellows of this sort were in the minority. We got many of our rides and a lot of valuable advice from the truck drivers, who are real knights of the road so far as we are concerned. We followed the suggestion of one of the first truckers we picked up on our trip. He told us that we'd find the truckers the best fellows on the highway, but never to get into a truck that did not have the name of some company painted on it. Truck drivers get awful lonesome on long trips and pick up hitch-hikers just to have some one to talk to. We always sang for them, and they seemed to like it. At least we never got thrown out for our singing.

"The cowboys were friendly, too. Although grammatically wanting and rough in appearance, they always treated us with respect. After we got into ranching country we seldom had to pay for our meals, because friendly 'punchers' in the eating places always insisted on footing the bill. It seems that those who had to work the hardest for their money were the most liberal in spending it. I think one of the reasons we got such a welcome from the punchers was because of the ukulele. Most of the cowboys were musically inclined and had their own 'geetars,' as they called them. Many had never seen a uke and expressed a lot of interest in ours. One night in Roswell, N. M., we ate at a place where a group of cowboys were entertaining themselves with a violin and 'geetar.' I started playing my uke, and we all wound up in a swing jam that lasted until 2 a. m."

The girls found the spirit on the road a queer mixture of friendliness and distrust. They could always get a ride, but more than once they were "frisked" by their host for guns.

• • •

From Oklahoma on everybody seemed to carry guns. The truckers were armed with rifles, which were always within their grasp on the floor of the driver's seat. On the advice of one of the truckers, Grace almost purchased a gun in Santa Fe, but decided it would be a handicap as much as a help, because people would suspect them when they found they were carrying arms.

Speed is the keynote of a transcontinental highway, the girls found.

"Everybody drives seventy-five and eighty miles an hour," Grace shuddered. "One afternoon a fellow picked us up at Vaughn, N. M., headed for Santa Fe. He said he was in a hurry, and that suited us, for we wanted to get there by nightfall. But when it began to rain, and the driver didn't slacken his speed, we began to think differently. We were on a clay road, and we fairly slid into Santa Fe."

The pair reached Los Angeles almost a month after they had left Chicago. Discounting their stop-overs, they were only twelve days on the road, averaging about 350 miles free riding a day.

Their longest stop-over, nine days, was at Grand Canyon National park. Here they "missed a date with some likable fellows from college" when other lighthearted youths in a nearby cabin stole Grace and Irene's breeches from the cabin wash line because the girls had not dated one of their own group instead. The girls had nothing to wear and had to spend the evening wrapped in blankets. Next day the breeches were returned without explanations.

"Moral," said Billie. "Take two pairs of breeches along if you're going hitch-hiking."

The girls left Chicago with $100 in travelers' checks and arrived in Los Angeles with $10.

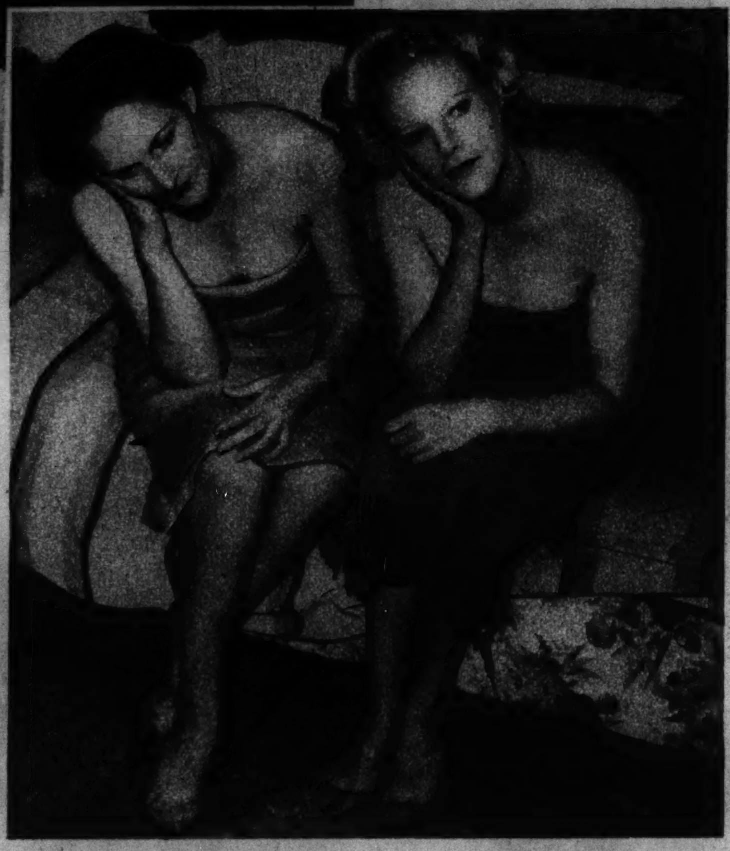
The two have hopes of getting into motion picture work. Grace has acted at a film laboratory where commercial pictures are made. Both girls have modeled for two of Chicago's big department stores.

They are still a little shy on the necessary wardrobe for film careers, but, looking at the women in shorts, slacks, and other bizarre apparel on Hollywood boulevard, Grace and Billie think their rough hiking clothes do not suffer by comparison.

If the films don't open for them they threaten to hitch-hike home via another transcontinental route, going the whole way to New York.

The Goss sisters' real names are Grace and Irene Lueders; their father was Walter Lueders and their paternal grandfather was August Lueders, Cook county commissioner. However, at school in Chicago and Briarcliff and at their former home in Evanston the girls were known as Grace and Irene Dehnert following their mother's remarriage. They use Goss for their "professional" name, meaning the name under which they acted as society girl fashion models in Chicago department stores. They have sought Hollywood screen tests under the name of Goss.

They have one younger sister, Marie Louise Dehnert, 13, at Swift Grammar school in Chicago.



They pose together to show their predicament at the time when joke-playing collegians stole their hiking breeches at the Grand Canyon lodge. Left with only blankets, they had to wait till their garments were returned.

Grace plays the ukulele and Billie dances before a filling station. Their music, dance, and smiles win lifts for them across the country. They seldom have to beg a ride. (Photos by Art Carter.)

They arrive at the edge of Hollywood, to which they have been hitch-hiking in the hope of landing jobs in the movies. The big sign advertising a guide to the homes of movie stars gives them a thrill.

Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: I think your choice of moving pictures is grand, and I enjoy reading your columns, but I am very sad because you never print a picture or a story about Robert Taylor. I am sure you try your best to satisfy many people, but I am also sure many fans are waiting for a picture of Mr. Taylor.

Now that he is off to England, does that mean we will see no more pictures of him for some time? I hope not.

I think his best pictures were "The Magnificent Obsession" and "This Is My Affair." He is a wonderful actor, in my opinion, and I think in many other people's, too, so here's hoping a grand person like you won't let me down. A fan,

MARGARET W.

Editor's note: "Grand," eh? Here's a picture of Robbie!

ROBERT TAYLOR
A fan thinks he is a wonderful actor.

Dear Mae Tinée: Reference is made to your review under date of Sept. 6 of the movie "The Life of the Party."

I want to congratulate you for the bold and emphatic manner in which you condemned this movie. I consider it one of the rottenest pictures I have ever seen. It was a source of genuine pleasure to me to note what you said about Joe Penner, words to the effect that he is just nauseating. It has long been a mystery to me why the "powers that be" will continue to ram down the throats of the public a disgusting actor of this type.

Keep up the good work!

With kind personal regards, and wishing you a merry Christmas and a happy New Year, I am your truly,

A. G. NICHOLSON.

Editor's note: Same to you, suh!

Dear Miss Tinée: Thanks to you and Gwen Russell for the picture and story of Nelson Eddy. I am a constant reader of your column and a sincere fan of yours.

How about a little picture and story of Jeanette MacDonald? I would appreciate it very much; so would many other MacDonald fans. So here's hoping. Thank you.

GRETTLE G.

Editor's note: Jeanette MacDonald was born in Philadelphia, Pa., June 18, 1907. Was educated in Philadelphia. Through the aid of her sister, then playing in New York musical shows, she obtained a job in the chorus of a Ned Wayburn show at the Capitol theater. Next season she had a small part in "Irene," and later a better part was given her in "Tangerine." Her first real rôle came during the following season when she was cast for one of the leading rôles in a Greenwich Village theater production, "Fantastic Fricassee," and her work brought her to the attention of Henry Savage, who placed her under contract. She played the lead in many stage productions. Her first screen rôle was opposite Maurice Chevalier in "The Love Parade." Miss MacDonald's married to Gene Raymond.

You're welcome.

JEANETTE MacDONALD
Born in Philadelphia in 1907

Dear Miss Tinée: I am an admirer of Ray Milland and would be very pleased if you would tell me something about him.

Thank you. ANN EASTMAN.

Editor's note: We are pleased to oblige. Ray Milland, whose real name is Jack Millane, was born in Drogheda, Ireland, Jan. 3, 1905. He's 6 feet 1 inch tall and has black hair and brown eyes. Mr. Milland has appeared in several pictures made in England and many produced in Hollywood. His latest film success is "Easy Living," opposite Jean Arthur.

The Inside Story of the Turkish Harem

Even Great Sultan Had His Woes

By N. M. PENZER

INSTALMENT II.

CONSTANTINOPLE, like Rome, is a city built on seven hills. Of the seven, one hill is more famous than all the others put together. It is the historic site of capitols, ranging from the earliest Byzantine temple to the vast present-day seraglio palace, of which the harem was the most glamorous feature.

As the Acropolis is to Athens and the Capitoline hill to Rome, so is this hill to Constantinople. It is known as the "first hill" and it crowns the end of the finger of land that separates the Sea of Marmora from the inlet called the Golden Horn, the latter being named for its curved shape and its profitableness as an ancient fishing ground.

The population of the city in the early days was partly Athenian and partly Lacedæmonian and, being a natural fortress and a fishing center with a fine deep harbor, it was constantly fought over, sometimes one of these Greek states and sometimes the other being in possession. Also it fell occasionally into the hands of the Macedonians, though during one famous siege an advancing Macedonian army was revealed to the Byzantium sentinels despite the darkness of midnight by a miraculous sudden flash of light in the sky. Whether this was lightning or not, it mystified all who saw it and saved the town—at least for a time. As a memorial to the divine interference, the Byzantines built an altar to torch-bearing Hecate and stamped a crescent on their coins, an emblem which survives on the Turkish flag to this day.

The date 1453 is one of the most important turning points in history, for it marked the final blow to the tottering East Roman empire and the coming to power of the Ottoman Turks in Europe.

The Ottoman Turks, led by Ottoman I., had revolted from their barbaric mother tribe, the Seljuk Turks, some six generations earlier in Asia Minor. Ever since they had been swarming westward, with the conquest of European Constantinople their principal goal.*

*Italics appearing in the text are the editor's explanatory notes.

Foreword

● Mohammed II., sultan of Turkey, leaned over a large map in the throne room of the newly built seraglio palace in Constantinople. His grand vizier stood beside him. On the parchment the capital city of the conquering Ottoman Turks was conspicuously marked. Mohammed eyed it, scratched his prominent chin, and grunted with satisfaction. He himself had led the very army which just ten years before, in 1453, had taken this famous center of the East Roman empire by assault.

● But his majesty had not called for his maps this morning in order to gloat over past conquests. He was studying the caravan trails to Circassia, that primitive country at the opposite end of the Black sea, where the women were said to be the most beautiful in the world. For, now that he had built a secure palace in the most strongly fortified capital in Europe, he could afford to reap some rewards for his success.

● Thus came the harem of the Turkish sultans. It counted its women not singly, nor even by the dozen, but by the hundreds. Only in 1909, when the last of the sultans was deposed, did the institution come to an end. Yet still its story remained untold and was only brought to light with the recent personal investigations by N. M. Penzer, a noted orientalist, into the still guarded seraglio buildings and courtyards.

A parade leaving the imperial gate of the seraglio. (1) Pasha on horseback. (2) Officer of the janizaries. (3) A halberdier or harem servant. (4) Two other varieties of halberdiers. (5) Janizary. (6) Kapici or guard. (7) Chief black eunuch. (8) Sword bearer. (9) Sultan and his kapici. (10) Grand vizier.

The great seraglio built shortly after this time made the city more impregnable than ever. But even before the building of the seraglio, complete seclusion of that whole section of the city was effected by the construction of a high land-wall running right across the hill from the Golden Horn to the Sea of Marmora. (See map.) Protection from the sea—that is to say, on the Marmora coast—was already well provided for, as the ancient Byzantine sea-walls ran right around Seraglio point till they joined the great land walls.

A description of this great fortress surrounding the imperial harem should start at the main gate, which enters into the first court, often known to Europeans as the Court of the Janisaries. The story of the janizaries, the sultan's guards, will be told presently.

This first court was of a semi-public nature, and entry was refused to nobody, whatever his rank or creed. As you entered, to the right were the infirmary, the imperial bakery, and the waterworks; to the left were the great wood yard, the Church of St. Irene, the imperial mint, the privy treasury, the palace storehouse, and two pavilions for members of the outer service. Near the gate at the far end were two "example stones" on which decapitated heads were exhibited on occasion, and the fountain of execution in which the chief executioner and his lieutenant washed their bloody hands.

One rule strongly enforced was that of silence. Nearly all travelers have remarked on the extraordinary silence that was maintained in the different courts with increasing degrees of intensity, until in the third court it was like "the silence of the tomb." A traveler in 1700 wrote:

"Anybody may enter the first court of the seraglio . . . but everything is so still the motion of a fly might be heard; and if anyone should presume to raise his voice ever so little, or show the least want of respect to the mansion place of their emperor, he would instantly have the bastinado by the officers that go the rounds. Nay, the very horses seem to know where they are, and no doubt they are taught to tread softer than in the streets."

At the new bakery in the first court so high a standard of bread was required that even in times of shortage no excuse was taken if the pure whiteness of the royal bread was affected in the smallest degree. The traveler, Bon, who visited the seraglio in 1604, tells us that the bread was of several kinds: very white for the sultans, the pashas and other grandees, moderately good for the middle folk, and black for the gardeners.

One of the most prevalent architectural forms in the outer parts of the seraglio is the kiosk. More than a dozen of these little "summer houses" were built at one time or another and many remain to this day. An example will show the use of these odd pavilions which arose and disappeared with the whims of the luxury-loving sultans.

The Alai kiosk at the most westerly angle of the seraglio wall is fairly typical. It serves both as a sort of secluded nook and as a lookout station. It commands an excellent view in all directions and one could hardly imagine a better place for viewing passing processions.

Many tales are told of the purposes to which it was put in bygone days. Intended primarily as a meeting place for the sultan and his attendants prior to the weekly visit to the mosque on Fridays, it was used by Murad IV. as a vantage point from which to practice his prowess with the arquebus (primitive gun) on the passersby. When popular indignation began to express itself on this particular pastime of the sultan, the royal "bag" was limited to ten heads per diem!

The kiosk also served for public audiences in emergencies, when the petitioners would gather in the street below, each keeping at a safe distance from the other. Thus in the revolt of the janizaries in 1655 the sultan was forced to appear at the window of the Alai kiosk to hear the complaints of the soldiers, and, in order to save his own head, cast headlong into the street the strangled bodies of the chief black and white eunuchs, while on the following day the bodies of nearly all the other principal ministers were handed to the janizaries as a peace offering by the terrified sultan.

Here in the marketplace of Constantinople sit the slaves waiting to be sold. Within the window lolls the shopkeeper. At the left, seemingly little disturbed by her plight, is a girl from the Circassian hills whence came the beautiful women of the sultan's harem. (From a painting by Jean Leon Gerome.)

Another place where the sultans were wont to spend their time in warm weather was the summer palace, which was a sort of super-kiosk built right on the tip of Seraglio point. Its principal feature was its large harem quarters. One of the few visitors ever to see these halls and rooms was a Frenchman named Pouqueville who journeyed there about the year 1803. Of the harem gate he wrote:

"The enormous size of the key and the noise made by the gate grating upon its hinges, united with the solitude and sacredness of the place, seemed at first to strike us all with a sort of awe." I fully appreciate his feelings, and experienced them myself after ascending the worn wooden stairs in the harem proper and standing in silence gazing at the heavily barred bedroom of the harem girls, a spot so sacred and teeming with such romance that when I found my voice it was but a whisper.

"Twelve feet away," continued Pouqueville, "was a second gate—of wood, and between the two gates was the apartment of the female slaves on the first floor, provision being made for 300 women in all."

At the farther end of the court were the apartments of the head eunuch and the black eunuchs under his control. There was an inner courtyard connecting at its farthest point with a kiosk called the Marmor kiosk. It gave entrance to the rooms of the sultan's favorite wife and of his mother.

Now we come to the corps of soldiers whose duty it was to guard all these parts of the seraglio. As mentioned earlier in this instalment, the first court of the seraglio was often known as the Court of the Janisaries, and not without good reason, for throughout its bloody history this corps had been inseparably linked with the seraglio.

In the early days the Turks possessed no standing army, and it was under Sultan Orkhan that a regular paid army was first organized. The result was unsatisfactory, however, because the Turkomans, from whom these troops were recruited, were not used to fighting on foot or to submitting to military discipline. Accordingly in the year 1330, on the advice of one Chenderell Kara Khalil, a system was adopted whereby a certain number of Christian youths—at first 1,000—were every year taken from their parents and, after undergoing a period of apprenticeship, were enrolled as yeni cheri, or "new troops."

The venerable Haji Bektash, founder of the Bektashi dervishes, blessed the corps and promised them victory. He remained ever after the patron saint of the janizaries. Standing in front of their ranks, he stretched the sleeve of his gown over the head of the foremost soldier and cried:

"Let them be called janizaries [from yeni cheri]! May their countenances be ever bright, their hand ever victorious, their sword keen! May their spears always hang over the heads of their enemies! And wheresoever they go may they return with a white face!"

And as the holy man raised his hand in blessing the thick sleeve of his robe hung down in a double fold, and in commemoration of the benediction a cloth flap modeled on the sleeve was henceforth attached to the hat of the janizaries, as can be seen in the accompanying picture.

Recruits for the janizaries were obtained from all conquered countries, but mainly from Albania, Bosnia, and Bulgaria.

The laws were at first most strict, enforcing implicit obedience, absolute concord among the corps, abstinence from all forms of luxury, forbidding marriage or domestic ties of any kind, and demanding observance of all religious laws of Haji Bektash. Members of the corps were not to trade in any way, were to have no pay in peace time, and were to receive arms only in time of war. Their rations were quite inadequate and soon led to the breaking of some of the regulations. As time went on all kinds of abuses occurred, as we shall shortly see.

In 1551 a visitor describes the janizary as being armed with a "scimitar and a dagger, with a little hatchet hanging at his girdle, using also long harquebusses, which they can handle very well." Janizaries were not allowed to wear beards, but, "to the intent that they should seem the more cruel and furious in the aspect of their faces, they let their mustachios grow very long, gross, and thick."

The names of the officers were all connected with the culinary art. Thus the agha was known as the head soup distributor; then came the head cook, followed by the head water carrier. Their standard was emblazoned with a huge kettle, which merits some detailed consideration. It is hard to say exactly when these kettles began to play such an important part in the history of the corps. In actual fact, the kettles were mess caldrons covered with a lid used for the distribution of the food. Each barrack had a large regimental copper, while the ordinary sized kettles were distributed in the proportion of one to every twenty janizaries.

And so the kettles came by degrees to be symbols of military pride and, like our drums, were piled in front of the tent of the agha when the janizaries were in camp. On the march the kettles were carried by recruits in relays, and their loss during a battle was a lasting disgrace. The large regimental copper was borne by older men, and its loss was considered so grave that only some exploit of great daring could efface the stain.

In times of peace the janizaries assembled in the second court after midday prayer every Friday to receive their due allowance of pilaf. The sultan waited in the kiosk between the divan and the gate of felicity

Fear—Demon or Defender?

In Crisis It May Help or Harm

places, for instance, which most people unaccustomed to altitudes feel. At certain crucial moments when a steady head and hand are vital, the uncontrollable dizziness of fear grips the novice mountain climber and greatly increases the danger of his falling.

However, a human being has more acquired traits than instinctive traits, and so most of his fears are either conditioned reflexes or neurotic complexes. A conditioned reflex is merely an acquired subconscious reaction to a stimulus, such as the jerking away of a hand from an approaching red hot poker. It differs from an instinct in that it was acquired by experience rather than having arisen spontaneously like the chicken's instinctive fear of strangers on its fourth day.

A neurotic complex is a condition of mental abnormality in which certain unreasoning, subconscious impulses strongly influence a person's conscious mind. When it takes the form of fear, the victim fully realizes he is afraid and thinks about it yet can't understand why he is afraid. One of the best known complexes is the inferiority complex, in which a person for some reason unknown to himself feels inferior to others—but this does not necessarily involve actual fear.

A fear of water is a fairly common neurotic complex generally caused by a person's having been frightened by being ducked in water as a small child. Although such a person feels terrified at the thought of having to swim, he can't remember his early ducking. If he could recall it clearly, he would probably get over his trouble.

The reason that human fears are more apt to be reflexes and complexes than instincts, whereas fear in primitive animals is largely instinctive, is that the human brain is made very differently from that of the lower animals. The diagram on page one shows how the human brain, unlike that of other animals, has a very greatly developed cerebrum. The cerebrum is the seat of conscious thought, decision, and memory. It consists of vast numbers of nerve cords coming from all over the body, and it is somehow affected as impulses pass through these nerve cords. This affection we know as memory, which is an essential part of any highly developed consciousness. But the cerebrum not only remembers things, it profits by experience. Being a sort of telephone exchange of incoming and outgoing nerve impulses, it can make or break connections between these nerve cords.

There is also a lower part of the brain called the thalamus, which an experimenter (appropriately named Mr. Head) discovered to be the essential center of the emotions, including fear. But there are various connecting channels between this small vestibule of the brain and the large cerebrum above it, which channels greatly complicate matters for the emotions. As the drawing suggests, impulses travel to and from certain thought regions of the cerebrum. If the object of fright is cats, for example, there will be channels of communication between the fear headquarters in the thalamus and the cerebral locality in which thoughts of cats occur. But the thought of cats will undoubtedly be closely associated with other thoughts, such as thoughts of dark hallways or bloody scratches. These allied thoughts may soon, in turn, be as closely involved with the fear as the original thought.

"The instinctive and paralysing dread of high places." This climber in Yellowstone park evidently has conquered that fear.

Thus the fear emotion may be aroused in any number of roundabout ways, either by awareness of the original cause of fear (cats) as sensed through the outward organs of sense, or by merely thinking of it, or by thinking of some allied idea (as a dark hallway), or by outwardly sensing such an allied thing. Even if the victim of a fear succeeds in permanently repressing all thought of the thing feared, as is often the case, he will continue to be troubled by it. For, while he may isolate certain thoughts (as for example within the dotted area in the drawing), keeping them out of his consciousness, they are still in his brain and still influencing his fear headquarters in certain little understood ways. Also the many allied ideas are still free to arouse his fear and the fact that he may have forgotten the original and real cause of the fear makes it all the harder for him ever to get rid of it.

A good illustration of the trouble resulting from fear repression is revealed in the world war records of neurotic cases among British and French troops. In the early part of the war especially there was a marked preponderance of such cases among the British. This, according to Prof. William McDougall, eminent modern psychologist, resulted from the British tradition which taught all boys to believe that to feel or to express fear is cowardice; while the more realistic French tradition permitted French youths to be franker about their emotions. The poilu could joke about his fear, treating it as a natural weakness and taking pride in the fact that his courage could surmount such an obstacle. But the less fortunate Tommy had to repress all fear and in many cases he was so ashamed of seeming afraid that the fear of expressing fear became a great additional strain on his morale.

To make matters worse, after his natural and inevitable fear had been repressed from his conscious thoughts, it would linger in his subconsciousness secretly clamoring for expression. Often this expression came in the form of dreams—violent nightmares in which the poor soldier had to writhe in the throes of all the emotions he had been trying to evade. Sometimes it came in the form of a pronounced physical reaction against something mentally associated with the original cause of fear.

One soldier who had repressed his extreme dread of being bayoneted in the stomach, suddenly developed the idiosyncrasy of collapsing in a semi-faint at the sight of a certain kind of wrist watch. He had no idea of the cause of his peculiar malady and was much worried and ashamed of it until investigation and close questioning disclosed that his original fear came from once seeing a dead soldier with a bayonet piercin his stomach. And on the soldier's wrist was a watch. Although the patient had eliminated from his conscious mind the thought of the bayoneting, the closely allied thought of the wrist watch had meanwhile developed direct channels of contact with the fear headquarters in his thalamus, with the result that the watch had become just as potent a tinder to his fear emotions as the bayoneting ever was—and more difficult to circumvent.

A curious thing about fear is the fact that the human body protects itself against the extreme agony of the emotion by a sort of mental anesthesia. The case of Major Redside is a good example. While in Bengal this British hunter one day stumbled on a rock and dropped his cartridge belt as he was crossing a stream. It was a serious slip, because he was in the heart of a region infested with tigers. Worse still, shortly after he had thrown away his wet ammunition he discovered that he was being stalked by a large tigress.

With no bullets in his rifle he was naturally very frightened and started back toward the stream pale of face and sweating profusely. But before he had gone twenty paces, the emboldened tigress charged out of a thicket, seized him, and dragged him about a quarter of a mile away to where her three cubs were. There, however, she did not kill him. Instead she played "cat and mouse" with him for an hour or more—that evidently being the natural way for feline mothers to train their young.

The amazing thing about Maj. Redside's nightmarish experience though, was the fact (as he remembered afterwards) that he lost all fear after he was once in the clutches of the great beast. By the time his companions arrived on the scene and rescued him he had crept away from the tigress more than a dozen times, only to be dragged back each time while the cubs looked on and playfully tried to copy mamma. By his own account, however, he had felt "comparatively calm compared with half an hour in a dentist's chair," and could recall every detail clearly. He remembered the sunshine and the look in the tigress' eyes and the terrific mental effort of trying to crawl away, as well as a full realization of the extreme danger he was in. Yet he had "no fear, no dread," and remained fully conscious the whole time, being miraculously rescued before he had received any very serious wounds.

Fear repressed often finds expression in horrifying nightmares. Boris Karloff portrays a soldier maddened by unseen dangers.

All fear is not instinctive [illegible] result of horrifying experience. Valerie H[illegible] motion picture scene results from her [illegible] as a prisoner.

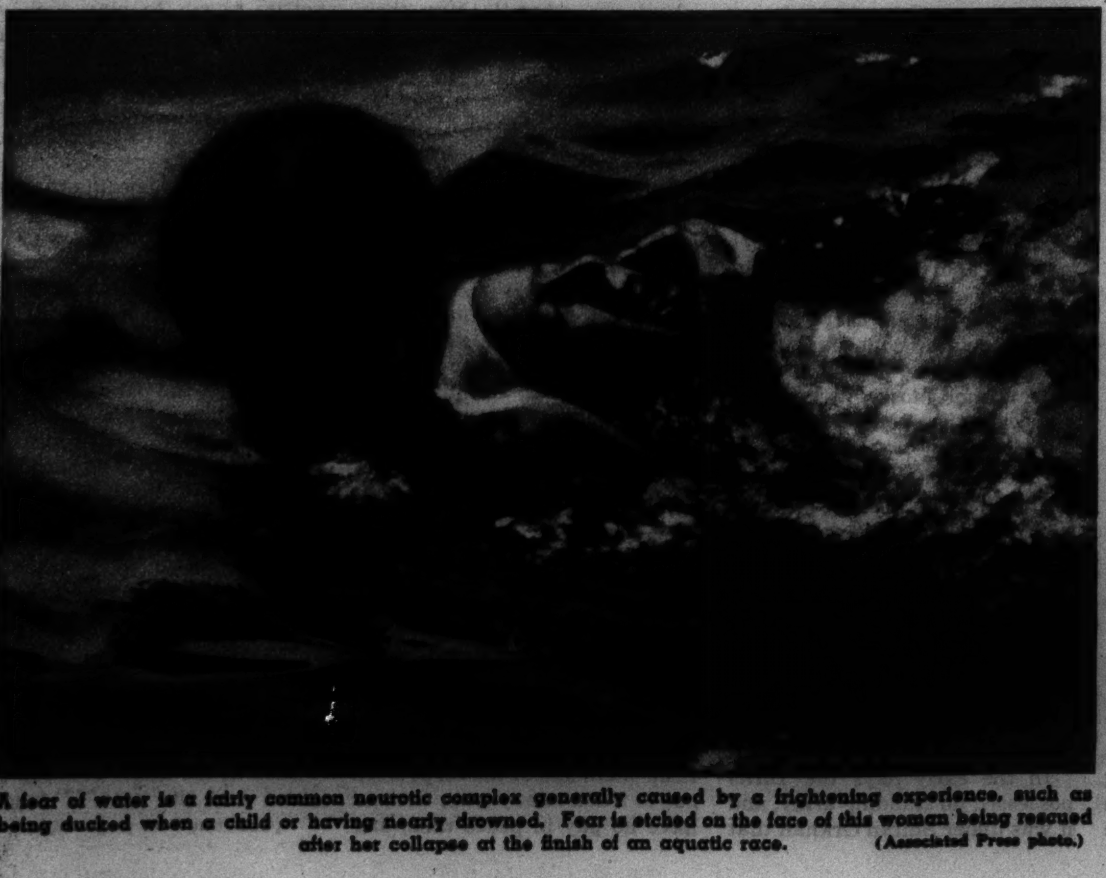
To return to fear complexes, one kind which is common enough to deserve mention is a repressed fear of things associated with sex, and which is most frequently found in young girls who have at an early age been made to feel that sex is dangerous, disgusting, and a totally dreadful subject. If this influence is not counteracted, the growing girl is apt to try to repress thoughts of sex, which later may result in an opposition in her adolescent mind between the forces of desire and the fear of consequences, between desire and conscience or, more broadly, between "egoism" and "idealism." At best the girl is almost certain to misinterpret normal happenings that conflict with her accepted taboo and which, therefore, may in turn induce further complexes and all manner of unreasoning anxieties.

A young married woman living in the tropics experienced an extreme and uncontrollable fear of storms. Taken in hand by a psychiatrist, it was discovered that her sex instinct was strong and that she had had various experiences relating to sex in her early teens all of which tended to make her regard sex as something violent, mysterious, cruel, and terrible. One man whom she had led on too far threatened to strangle her, she said.

After she had at last successfully repressed her sex fear, the fear attached itself to a phenomenon that had very similar attributes to her mind. For, as the patient herself later said, "Sudden violent gusts of emotion, and the sudden onslaught of a tropical storm — they seem so much alike, bursting suddenly, sweeping all before them and leaving an exhausted wreck behind."

It was only after the woman had been made to understand the full symbolic significance of the storm as a substitute fear for the fear she had repressed that her trouble completely vanished. Which fact reaffirms the marvelous truth that virtually any kind of fear can be conquered by looking it straight in the eye and letting "familiarity breed contempt."

NEXT WEEK: The Conquering of Fear.



A fear of water is a fairly common neurotic complex generally caused by a frightening experience, such as being ducked when a child or having nearly drowned. Fear is etched on the face of this woman being rescued after her collapse at the finish of an aquatic race. (Associated Press photo.)

Red Mass—A Colorful Ceremony

Roman Catholic judges kneel at red mass in Westminster cathedral at opening of Michaelmas law sittings in London.

MARKING the end of the summer holiday and the opening of the Michaelmas law sittings, Catholic judges of England's higher courts will assemble Tuesday in Westminster cathedral for the annual red mass.

Attired in their wigs and robes, the jurists will kneel together as they have for years past. (This picture was taken at last year's service.) Following mass they will join other judges in the law courts and march in solemn procession through the central hall.

The red mass is so called because of the red vestments worn by the celebrant, or priest. These vestments are used in masses of the Holy Ghost, usually celebrated at the opening of courts, legislative assemblies, and schools.

Westminster cathedral is not to be confused with Westminster abbey, site of the recent coronation ceremonies. The cathedral is a Roman Catholic church located near the abbey.

One Hour to Dress

From Bath to Rouge, It's Easy

By ELEANOR NANGLE

THE telephone never tinkles when you're sitting around all primped up wishing some one like Robert Taylor would invite you to dinner. O, no. Your Robert Taylor calls at 6 and asks you to dine at 7—on a day when you look a fright.

What can a girl do in one hour to get herself up at least a little like a Garbo?

It's no time to wring your hands. Swing into organized action. Lay out the clothes you're going to wear. Then jump under a shower or into a perfumed tub. Cream your face beforehand. Afterward use your favorite cologne, and don't forget your deodorant.

Use an eye lotion. There's no time for a manicure, but you can change your polish. Next the hairbrush—off with the dust and on with the luster! Give yourself a quick face treatment, stroking the creamed face and neck as you would piano keys. It's a good way to bring up your color. Finish with a cold tonic.

Don't hurry the makeup. A foundation by all means, so your nose won't get shiny over the soup. A little more rouge than you wear for day, and eye shadow carefully blended. Blot your lipstick with tissue so it won't cling to the glassware. The eyes deserve special attention. Mascara, of course, and pencil if your brows need it. It's within the law, too, to use pencil at the eye corners if you do it deftly. Makes your eyes look larger.

1 It's no time to mope when "he" phones that he'll call for you in an hour. There is nothing for you to do but snap into action and pretty yourself as quickly as possible. Lay out the clothes you're going to wear and begin.

2 Cream your face, then hop into the shower or tub. Scrubbing with a bath brush will make your skin tingle and ease tiredness away.

3 A quick facial, creaming your face and neck thoroughly, makes your skin look alive and feel marvelous. A cool tonic erases all traces of cream.

4 Just time enough to change your nail polish, while the cream is still on your face. Take your time so that your nails are not smudgy.

5 Brush your tresses to bring out the luster and make the hair fluffy and soft. Your scalp will feel like new and your hair will shine.

Apply your most seductive perfume to your flesh, not your clothes. Once your dress is over your head (and see that every stitch beneath it is fresh and clean), take a last look in the mirror to see that all's well. Then forget how you look and give yourself five composed minutes to give a poised greeting to your beau when he rings promptly at 7!

6 At last the dress, and then five minutes to compose yourself to give a poised greeting to your beau when he rings at 7.

New Devices Simplify Household Tasks

Clamp Is a Boon to Carver

By MARY MEADE

SCARCELY a household task nowadays isn't simplified and made more enjoyable by the aid of some particular mechanical device. Now the inventor's genius has even come to the rescue of the male head of the family, the carver of the roasts, the parceler out of slabs of light and dark meat at the holiday turkey dinner. For here is a gadget which will hold the pork loin, the roast chicken, even the huge and heavy goose, firmly on the platter during the process of carving.

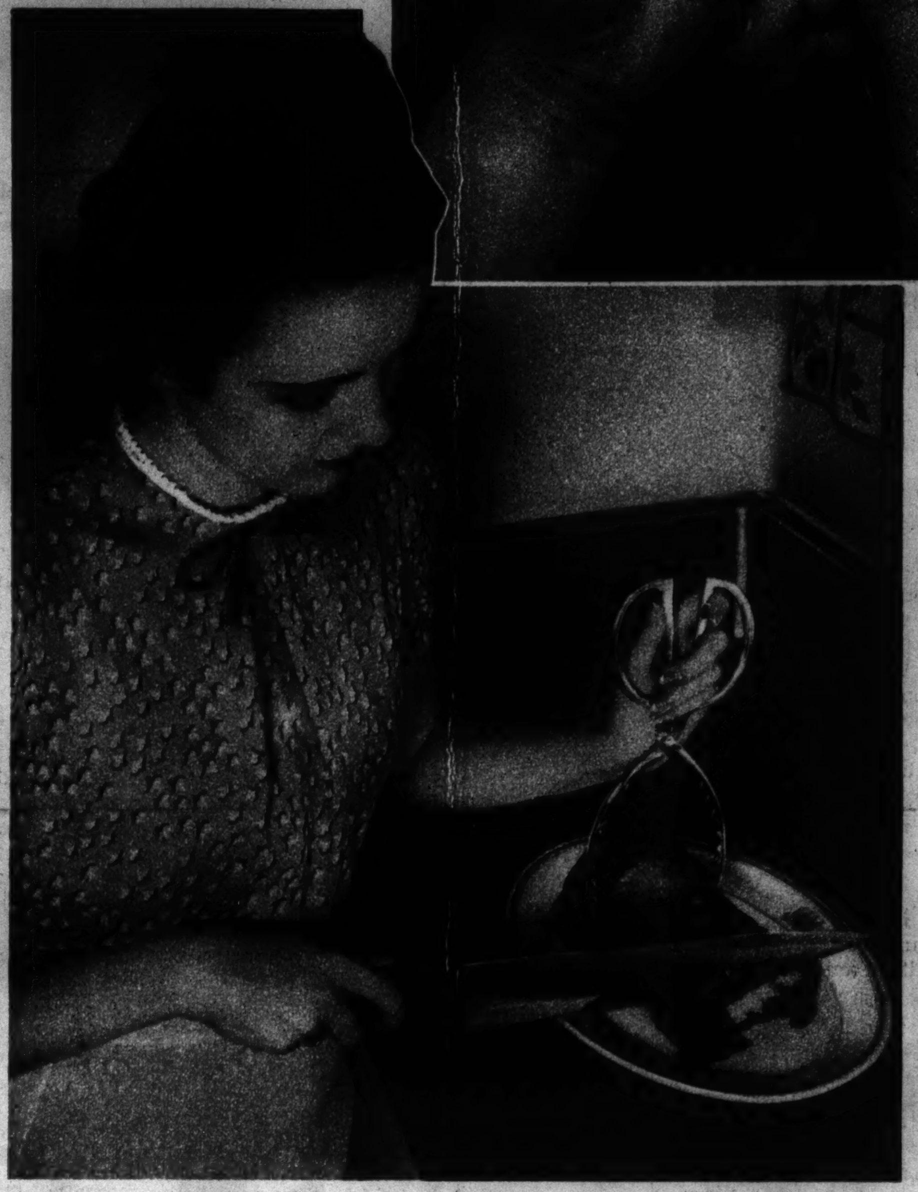
This invention isn't the corrugated, skidproof platter for which many a man has waited many a year. It's even better than that—it's a shear-like clamp, adjustable for any size roast or fowl, and it holds the meat tightly, eliminating any possibility of a slip which might send the whole thing sailing into Uncle Hezekiah's lap.

Another household help, for the cook this time, is a gadget which accurately measures cooking ingredients, from a quarter teaspoon to three tablespoons. It's especially useful when making measurements of salt, sugar, flour, butter, and the like for everyday purposes.

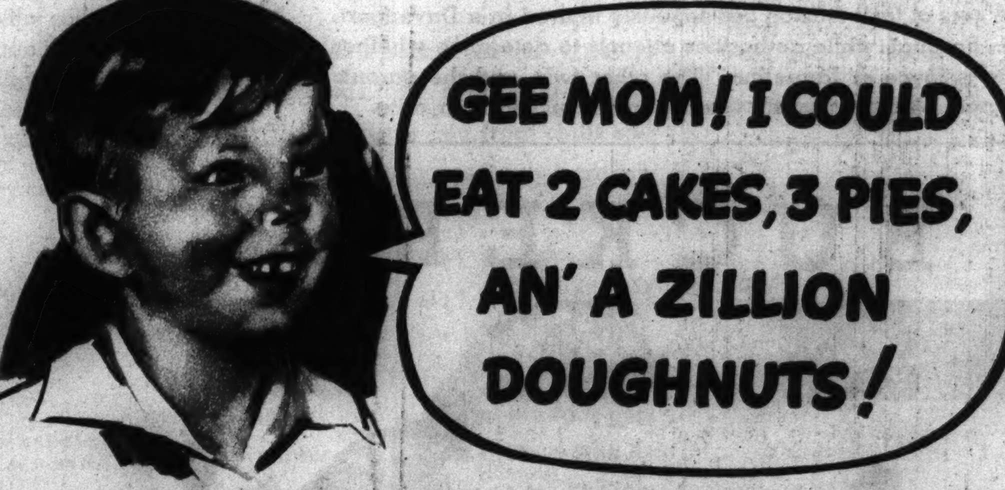
These items were introduced at a recent home furnishings show in the Merchandise Mart.

NEXT WEEK: Harvest Home Pudding.

Above: This device accurately measures cooking ingredients, eliminating many of the common troubles with cakes, breads, and other baked goods.



Left: This clamp holds the roast firmly in its clutches during the process of carving. It's adjustable for various cuts of meat.



Children talk like that when Mother cooks with Crisco—the MIRACLE shortening

Use Crisco, the miracle shortening that's creamed and creamed over and over. Make cakes with miraculous ease. Crisco creams up with sugar and eggs in a few stirs—in 30 seconds. Cakes are lighter, more delicate—they're Miracles of Fluffiness!

Miracle Tenderness in Pies—With fluffy Crisco, pastry is easier to blend—needs less water—needs less handling. Less water and handling give you extra-tender pastry—delicious!

Miracle Fried Foods—Crisco-fried foods are actually as crisp and greaseless as if baked. They are miraculously digestible, too! And that goes for pies, too—why, many doctors now say, "Children can eat grown-up foods cooked wholesomely with Crisco!" An Airplane That Could Fly—but Didn't

Tragic Fate of Langley Machine

By WAYNE THOMIS

THE gusty southwest wind which had been blowing since early morning calmed toward noon. The primitive anemometer registered its strength at 12 miles an hour.

Although this was considered high, the men aboard the little houseboat anchored in the Potomac river opposite Widewater, Va., decided to wait no longer. The moment in which to prove their experiments seemed to have arrived.

Rapidly the work of assembling the great aerodrome was begun under the direction of Charles M. Manly, the engineer in charge. The rigid, strong but light main keel was carried to the launching track on the houseboat roof. Four wings, each 22.5 in length and 11.5 feet in depth, with their surfaces curved to increase the lift, were attached.

tions a minute was bolted in and the shafts which operated twin propellers connected.

All was in readiness. Manly, who had built the engine himself and who had supervised the construction of the ship, took his place in the cockpit.

The motor was started. Quickly it settled to a steady hum. The propellers jerked into motion, then became blurred disks. Manly inspected every fitting, moved his controls, then stared out over the river ahead of him.

The year was 1903, the day Oct. 7. The aerodrome, as it was called, was an airplane designed by Prof. Samuel Pierpont Langley, the eminent scientist and secretary of the Smithsonian institution. It represented the finest machine the engineers associated with Langley and the institution could build. In its construction they had called into service all the knowledge accumulated from their building and flying of model airplanes.

Professor Langley, a large man of irascible temper but great personal charm, had contributed greatly to the new science of aeronautics by the mere lending of his name and commanding presence to experiments in heavier-than-air machines, for at that time thoughts of flight in such devices were much ridiculed.

Beginning his experiments with tiny models which used rubber bands to turn propellers, Professor Langley had progressed until he was able to build models of bamboo, silk, and wire which made long flights through the power developed by flash-boiler steam engines.

On May 6, 1896, model No. 5 constructed by Professor Langley and his assistants was catapulted from a houseboat on the Potomac and flew easily and steadily a distance of 3,000 feet. In November that same year model No. 6 flew 4,200 feet.

• • •

These successes convinced Langley that construction of a man-carrying flying machine was possible. After reporting upon his experiments Langley withdrew, saying:

"I have brought to a close the portion of the work which seemed to be specially mine—the demonstration of the practicability of mechanical flight (as opposed to that of balloons, dirigibles, etc.)—and for the next stage, which is the commercial and practical development of the idea, it is probable that the world may look to others."

But this resolution to withdraw from the experiments was not kept. War department officials became interested in the building of a man-carrying airplane, and an appropriation of $50,000 was set aside for this purpose. Langley was persuaded to undertake its construction.

Viewed in retrospect, the project seemed doomed to failure from the beginning. Every possible obstacle arose. In previous experiments with his models the greatest success had been obtained from tandem-winged biplanes, somewhat like the dragon fly, and so Langley decided to stick to this type in building his man-carrying aerodrome.

The propellers had been placed immediately behind the two bow wings, with the engine in the main keel. At the rear extremity of the keel was a tail structure.

The important item of lateral stability was covered by the cocking of the wings at an angle which placed them in an extremely wide, flat V above the fuselage. Thus it may be seen that lateral stability was expected to be inherent. There were no adjustable ailerons on Langley's models, as there are on modern airplanes.

The first difficulty arose in the construction of the wings. Only 30 pounds was allowed for each of the four wings, and it was found to be almost impossible to provide the proper strength and yet remain within the weight limits.

The bending of the ribs to a curve of 1-12, with the highest point approximately one-quarter of the chord back from the leading edge, provided a fair lifting surface, but not nearly so efficient as the same type of wing being developed about the same time by the then obscure bicycle mechanics, the Wright brothers, Orville and Wilbur, of Dayton, O.

By that time the Wrights had constructed their first wind tunnel, which gave them definite measurements of wing efficiency, while Langley still was basing his calculations upon erroneous results obtained from his twirling tables and from information obtained by pioneers in gliding flight.

But Langley and his men, among whom was the able Manly, persevered. Finally the machine was ready. It weighed 850 pounds, including 125 pounds allowed for the pilot, when fully equipped for flight.

The construction of this machine had taken nearly five years. The difficulties overcome were many. Langley and his associates were forced to build every part in the entire machine and construct a launching apparatus without any accurate information on stresses or knowledge of strains imposed upon propellers, surfaces, engine, or main members of the machine.

No suitable engine existed and no manufacturer was willing to attempt to build one. Professor Langley and Manly modestly asked for a 12-horsepower engine which would weigh about 100 pounds. A manufacturer agreed in December, 1898, to build and deliver such an engine in February, 1899. What they got was an engine which would deliver not quite 4 horsepower for a weight of 150 pounds.

And so Manly took over the job of building the engine. He used a five-cylinder radial type, developed his own carburetor, his own battery ignition system, his own spark plugs, his own cooling methods, new pistons, crankshafts, cylinder heads, and in fact invented a new engine.

The aerodrome in 1914 after it had been repaired and flown successfully on several occasions by Glenn Curtiss and his students.

This was the wonderful 52-horsepower engine which finally was installed in the man-carrying aerodrome. This engine proved itself on the test block, in the disastrous flights which followed, and finally in 1914 succeeded in lifting the restored Langley aerodrome into the air.

Now to return to the scene on the river. The plane rested on the launching car, ready for its own propellers and the heavy springs of the launching catapult to hurl it out over the river.

Manly saw that the river ahead was clear. He gave the signal to release the catapult, and opened the engine throttle. The machine rushed down the 60-foot track and into the air.

But something went wrong. The front wings caught on a projecting pin, the machine was tilted downward, and it dove into the water about 125 feet from the houseboat. It was badly damaged, but Manly pulled himself clear of the plane and popped to the surface, where he quickly was hauled into the rowboat of a press service correspondent.

The plane was hauled out of the water and repaired. The engine, drained of water and cleaned, ran as sweetly as before. And on Dec. 8 the aerodrome was ready for the second attempt.

This day also was gusty, with a shifting variable wind 12 to 18 miles an hour, and a strong tide running. But plucky Manly was ready to try again. Funds were running low and it was felt necessary to make an effort or give up the experiment.

The motor again was started, running better than ever before, according to testimony of witnesses. The signal to release the catapult was given and the machine started on its way.

Just what happened has always been a mystery. A photograph taken at the moment the airplane parted from the catapult car shows that the tail, which was the aerodrome's only control surface, and the rear pair of wings had collapsed.

The forward pair of wings supported the wreckage for a moment as the engine continued to roar at full throttle. Then the machine fell, plunging Manly into the water beneath it.

With his last strength Manly clawed his way to clear water and was rescued.

Professor Langley called a halt. The wrecked machine was salvaged and packed away. Even though he was unable to explain what had happened to his machine, he still believed it was capable of flight. He said:

"Failure in the aerodrome itself or its engine there has been none, and it is believed that it is at the moment of success, and when the engineering problems have been solved a lack of means has prevented a continuance of the work."

In February, 1906, Langley died.

Manly was alive, however, to take part in the final chapter involving the Langley aerodrome.

This came in 1914. It had been suggested, first by Lincoln Beachey, the greatest pilot of his day, that it would be interesting to test the old aerodrome in the light of the later knowledge of flying gained by the Wrights and Glenn Curtiss, who at the time were engaged in a court fight over the wing-warping principle. The Wrights contended that Curtiss had infringed upon their basic patents on the wing-warping control in his use of hinged ailerons.

The Langley aerodrome became an issue in this heated dispute. Curtiss jumped at the chance to fly the old ship and for $2,000 restored it to what he and Manly said was virtually its original condition, with one exception. A set of Curtiss' pontoons was added so the machine could take off and land on the water.

When the work was finished the aerodrome weighed 350 pounds more than when Prof. Langley proposed to launch it by catapult. The motor, damaged by its second immersion in 1903, delivered only 40 horsepower.

Nevertheless on June 2, 1914, the restored machine, with the original engine, moved out on Lake Keuka, near Hammondsport, N. Y., with Curtiss at the controls. It gathered speed, and then, according to seven witnesses, the pontoons broke loose from the water and it lifted several feet in the air.

Then, having proved it would fly, Curtiss removed Manly's engine and installed an 80-horsepower motor of his own. Many of Curtiss' students then flew the ship.

Wilbur Wright had died in 1912, but his brother Orville, alienated from Curtiss and every Curtiss endeavor during the long, expensive lawsuits, condemned the Langley machine heartily. He said of it:

"The failure of the Langley machine was due to faulty design and not to a mere accident in launching. The machine was not a practical one for the following reasons: 1. It was dynamically inefficient. 2. It was structurally weak. 3. It lacked adequate means for obtaining equilibrium. 4. It lacked practical means for launching. 5. It lacked practical means for landing."

The flights made by Curtiss, it was stated by Orville Wright and his aids, were made only after important alterations. This verbal struggle eventually led to the placing of the original Wright airplane, now acknowledged universally to be the first man-carrying airplane, with the Science museum, South Kensington, London, instead of with the Smithsonian institution.

Orville Wright's indignation had been aroused by the placing of a label on Langley's aerodrome as exhibited in the Smithsonian institution which termed it the "first man-carrying aeroplane in the history of the world capable of sustained free flight."

This label later was amended to read: "The original Samuel Pierpont Langley flying machine of 1903, restored."

and watched the proceedings with considerable anxiety. If the kettle bearers fetched the rice from the kitchens at the accustomed signal all was well, but if they stayed in the ranks and turned the kettles upside down it was a symbol of dissatisfaction and possibly revolution.

The immediate action of the sultan depended upon the justness of the complaints and the personal ability of the particular sultan to check insubordination and revolt. The results were often terrible and swift; the gardeners would be summoned, the ringleaders and kettle bearers seized, and a pile of heads would soon appear outside the main gate.

On the other hand, from the seventeenth century onward the power of the janizaries became tremendous, and not less than six sultans were either dethroned or murdered through their agency. The original corps, being composed of Christian captives, soon realized that the sultan was their new father and that everything they had, were, or could ever become was entirely in his hands. So long, therefore, as he led them into battle and retained the warlike spirit of the early sultans the military morale was maintained and the corps became the finest standing army in Europe. But when the sultans exchanged the battlefield for the harem, regulations became lax, the original spirit of the corps was neglected, and all kinds of abuses soon turned this fine body of men into the scourge and bane of the Ottoman empire.

Until 1574 the number never

exceeded 20,000 all told, but irregularities started under Murad III., and by the end of the century the janizaries totaled over 48,000. This was due to several factors, all detrimental to the corps. No longer were the recruits only Christians, but were true Ottomans who had personal ties with the people, and no more did they look upon the sultan as their father. Long intervals of peace had stained the celibate janizaries with all kinds of vices and evil practices, and as soon as they felt their power growing they began to marry, and so became more independent than ever. If money or food was short, a fire could easily be started in the city, when wholesale looting would naturally follow. Thus the janizaries could make good their threats. It is estimated that during the reign of Ahmed III. (1703-'30) no less than 140 such fires occurred.

The married janizaries were allowed to live out of barracks, and soon not only their children, but friends and relations, became enrolled as members of the corps. Thus in time the percentage of utterly useless men and downright scoundrels was very considerable, and early in the nineteenth century the number on the pay roll had reached the enormous figure of over 130,000. The efforts of Selim III. to organize a new force ended in failure, and it remained for Mahmud II. (1808-'39) to crush the corps once and for all. His was no sudden and unpremeditated step, but was the culmination of no less than sixteen years' careful and studied preparation.

Mahmud had already witnessed the appalling horrors of a janizary revolt. This experience engendered in his soul the firm determination to eradicate the entire corps forever, preparing the way by every means possible. Honors and bribes were bestowed in certain quarters, while others who proved troublesome soon found their way to the Bosporus never to appear again. The power of distant pashas was undermined, and the janizaries were thus deprived of the help of discontented provincial allies.

By 1826 Mahmud was ready. The rising had been carefully provoked by the government, and the janizaries marched to the Et-meidan square and reversed their kettles in the usual manner to signify a revolt. Finding that their agha had deserted to the government, they attacked his palace and abused what remained of his harem. Thence they went to the porte and burned the archives and destroyed everything they could lay hands on. But their end was in sight. The seashore was guarded, the seraglio was full of armed gardeners, and the new army was pouring into the city.

The prophet's sacred standard was unfurled, and a curse and sentence of eternal dissolution on the janizaries was pronounced. A spiritual sanction was given to the proceedings, and the attack commenced. The work of the new army was made easy by the corps' returning to the square, and every avenue leading to it was soon occupied by the enemy. After a moment of uncertainty the guns did their work, and the grapeshot played terrible havoc in the crowded, narrow streets. Those who escaped the artillery and the sword were burned in their barracks. But even then Mahmud was not satisfied, and men who had hidden in their homes or escaped out of the city were hunted down and drowned in the Bosporus. Altogether it is estimated that more than 25,000 men perished, and the janizaries were no more.

Queen Victoria's Remarkable John Brown

Heroism During Attack on Sovereign Brings Favor

● Previous instalments of this story have told of the rise of John Brown, gruff, unlettered Highland stableboy, to the position of Queen Victoria's chief attendant and confidant, of his disrespect for her majesty's ministers, and of the violent campaign in the newspapers against him which followed the whisperings among the courtiers of scandalous stories about him and the queen. In this instalment the author tells of an attack upon the sovereign and how John Brown's heroism brought him into public favor.

By E. E. P. TISDALL

(Reprinted by arrangement with the London Express.)

ON THE eve of thanksgiving day, Feb. 27, 1872—the occasion of the royal procession and service in St. Paul's to mark the recovery of the prince of Wales from typhoid—a shabby, gaunt-cheeked, unemployed Irish lad of 18 loitered in the dark shadow of St. Paul's. There he remained all night, his shifty eyes burning with fever, his weak mouth twitching, muttering to himself, pacing endlessly to and fro. In his torn jacket pocket his fingers clenched the butt of the pistol he had bought from a second-hand dealer with some of his scanty shillings. In his breast pocket rested his document—his masterpiece—and at the thought of it his eyes would light with mad pride.

This youth was Arthur O'Connor, a member of the Fenian brotherhood, a band of Irishmen particularly active at that time in the interest of an Irish republic. Ill health, ill luck, poverty, mental suffering, the neurotic dictates of a highly strung imagination combined to make O'Connor half demented. Contempt and ill treatment had turned him into a savage reactionary, and the flaming speeches of the Fenians had so deeply influenced him that at last only one idea burned in his head. He must be the savior of the Fenians. Many dangerous Fenians were at that time in prison, and the government was showing its determination to hunt down the militant sections of the movement. Scraping together a few shillings, O'Connor had tramped to London. He was going to force the queen of England to pardon the Fenians.

In the early morning he managed to slip into St. Paul's unnoticed, but the vergers, thinking him a suspicious character, escorted him out long before the coming of the royal procession. Pushed to and fro in the crowds, he missed any chance of coming near the royal carriage, but, undeterred, he walked to Buckingham, determined to wait until his chance came. Two days later he stood in the small crowd that watched the royal carriage leave the palace.

In the first carriage sat the queen with her two sons, Prince Arthur and Prince Leopold, and Lady Jane Churchill. On the rumble was John Brown. Outriders rode ahead with Lord Charles Fitzroy, and Colonel Hardinge rode behind.

The crowd had gathered around the gate, and while every one, including the policemen, was looking at the queen, O'Connor took his chance to climb over the railings and lower himself into the palace garden.

Luck favored him. He was seen, but not until he reached the garden, when he was mistaken for one of the undergardeners and no one questioned him.

At half past five he heard the cheers rising again from the people waiting at the front of the palace and knew the royal carriage must be returning. As it swept through the garden entrance he rushed forward and reached the side where Lady Churchill sat.

John Brown, on the rumble, saw him, and, thinking him an impertinent gardener pressing forward to have a closer look at the queen, brusquely ordered him to "shift himself." The youth ignored him, and Brown jumped down from the rumble to chase him away. O'Connor slipped around the back, with Brown in pursuit. Before he overtook him the lad had reached the queen's side and thrust his pistol at her head.

• • •

The queen threw herself over to Lady Churchill, crying, "Save me!" for this was not the first attack to be made on her life.

John Brown flung himself on the lad, knocked the pistol from his hand, and grasped him tightly. O'Connor was struggling fiercely, and Prince Arthur and the equerries rushed forward to help. The lad collapsed with Brown on top of him, and while curbing the twisting and turning of his prisoner on the ground Brown found time to shout to the queen, "Are ye hurrt?"

"Not at all," replied the queen.

One of the postilions picked up the pistol and handed it to Colonel Hardinge.

This filled them all with horror. They were white as sheets, Lady Churchill was almost crying, and Prince Leopold looked as if he were going to faint.

Tompkins, the outrider, more excited than Brown now the danger was over, cried out as he glared at O'Connor, "What else have you got about you?"

"I've nothing else."

Equerries, outriders, servants were all crowding around. Some one ran for the police at the palace gate. But Tompkins continued his cross-examination, although Brown was nearly strangling the life out of the lad.

"You can't get away with that. What else have you got about you?"

"I have a pocket knife and a document," the lad gasped.

He was searched and a parchment was found upon him. It was not read in that moment of panic, but this and a pocket knife were truly all he had.

Colonel Hardinge had been looking at the pistol. It was old and primitive. "Is the pistol loaded?" he asked with almost a smile.

"No," cried the wretched boy. "I—I only intended to do it by fright."

"Do what by fright?"

'Make her sign the document."

Arthur O'Connor was handed over into custody, and the surprising document was read as soon as the queen reëntered the palace on the arm of John Brown.

In the form of a declaration by the queen, it stated the case of the Fenians who had been imprisoned following their abortive attempt to "weaken and destroy my power and authority over the Irish nation." Then followed five clauses and a postscript outlining the queen's "desires" in regard to the matter in question.

The first four clauses provided for their immediate release, lifetime freedom from any restraint because of their earlier actions, and the right to travel wherever they chose.

The declaration then continued with the following unusual paragraphs:

"Clause 5. That notwithstanding the fact that my agreeing to the above conditions (is given) only through fear of my life, I will not attempt to depart from any of them on that account, nor upon any other reason, cause, or pretext whatever will I depart or attempt to depart from any of them; neither will I listen to any advice which my ministers may wish to give me toward causing me to depart from my word, or toward the violation of anything above stated, but shall adhere strictly to everything.

"So help me God.

"Signed this, the 27th day of February in the year of grace 1872.

"Witnesed by ——————

"Whereas a person named Arthur O'Connor, residing at 4 Church row, Houndsditch, in the city of London, having committed an outrage against my royal person, has surrendered himself into my hands, he, the said Arthur O'Connor, being perfectly willing to suffer for such offense, now I, the said Victoria, queen of Great Britain and Ireland, do solemnly pledge my royal word to the effect that if the said Arthur O'Connor be found guilty of death by my judges, after a just and fair trial, he, the said Arthur O'Connor, shall not be strangled like a common felon, but shall receive the death which is due him as a Christian, a republican, and as one who never harmed a human being—that is to say, he shall be shot, and after death his body shall be delivered to his friends to be buried wherever they may choose.

"Signed the 27th day of February in the year of grace 1872 by me.

"Witnessed by ——————"

It was rather pathetic, this poor lad with his primitive, unloaded pistol (which was afterward found to have a broken lock) hoping to intimidate England's queen into signing this extraordinary document. That his aim seemed to him worthy is proved by the fact that he tried to get to the queen during the time of thanksgiving service at St. Paul's and, when he failed, continued to wait three days for an opportunity to reach her. But the picture has its reverse, and the queen was not blind to this side of it; John Brown had sprung on the boy when he appeared like a murderer and had thrust himself without hesitation between the royal person and the pointed pistol.

The crowd outside the palace had seen O'Connor taken away by the police, and rumor spread like wildfire. In a few minutes word had gone from man to man that the queen had been shot, that she was dying, that she was dead.

To prevent exaggerated rumors spreading the queen sent Colonel Hardinge to the houses of parliament to give the true version of the affair, and to show how futile the attempt had been he carried the pistol with him.

Earl Granville interrupted a discussion in the house of lords to give the information to the peers of the realm, and when the news got to the press the Irish newspapers were as indignant as any at the attempted outrage.

O'Connor's trial at Bow Street caused a lot of interest. Prince Leopold was called as a witness and took his turn in the witness box, following two of the outriders. A strange experience for one of Queen Victoria's sons.

Afterward at the Criminal court O'Connor said, "I wish to God I had succeeded; then they could have done with me what they pleased."

Queen Victoria, with John Brown in his Highland costume, being cheered by the poor in the east end of London.

Knocks Gun from Hand of Madman

The boy was consumptive, diseased, had suffered head injuries, been operated upon, was scrofulous, and had been in bad health since his sixth year, yet he was a good son and an affectionate brother and said to be very studious.

His solicitor had told him to plead not guilty, so that the whole facts might be brought under the notice of the court. Perhaps he understood this, perhaps he didn't; but, anyway, he took all by surprise by pleading guilty, and the solicitor made his application that the prisoner might be allowed to withdraw his plea. O'Connor had ideas of his own, however sickly he might be.

He was sentenced to a year's hard labor and twenty strokes of the lash.

But even before the trial the queen had rewarded John Brown for the first impulsive and courageous action, and this notice appeared in the Times:

"The queen, who had contemplated instituting a medal as a reward for long and faithful service among her majesty's domestic servants, has inaugurated the institution by conferring on Mr. John Brown, the queen's personal attendant, a medal in gold, together with £5, as a mark of her appreciation of his presence of mind and of his devotion on the occasion of the attack made upon her majesty in Buckingham palace garden on the 29th of February, 1872."

Queen Victoria's own words were more simple. She wrote: "It was to good Brown and his wonderful presence of mind that I greatly owe my safety, for he alone saw the boy rush around and followed him! . . . The pistol had not been loaded, but it easily might have been."

This assault on her majesty, following so quickly on the thanksgiving for the recovery of the prince of Wales from his serious illness, seems to have aroused the whole nation to a new love and better understanding of the widowed queen. After this she regained the popularity she had lost for a time.

When she left Buckingham palace the day after the assault she was greeted by the most uproarious cheering in many years, and she stood in the carriage until it had passed through the gates.

Crowds waited all along the route. Quantities of carriages lined Constitution hill and the park, all along the Serpentine, and up to Princess gate, so that the royal equipage could hardly pass along for all the people who had come to do her honor.

Although the scandalous stories about the queen and John Brown did not come to an end with the O'Connor incident, this nevertheless placed the royal ghillie, whatever his shortcomings, in a far more favorable light with large sections of the community. They realized that here was a man who was ready to give his life for the queen. As the queen herself said, "The pistol was not loaded, but it easily might have been," and people could not forget the fact.

At the trial of O'Connor, which had been very fully reported, John Brown had acted in a simple and unassuming manner, claiming no credit for his action and seeking to have as little said about it as possible, while others strove for the limelight.

Some of the stories which now went the rounds about Brown were of a new type. They said that John Brown had never asked for a day off duty, nor ever been granted one (the latter statement probably an exaggeration), and that the entire time of the celebrated royal servant was spent in a dreary round of duty with never a word of complaint.

Day after day he went for those dismal rides and drives, whatever the weather. Hour after hour he stood by the queen's hand, in case he was wanted. Everybody knew that at all hours of the night he was within call. Moreover, everybody had heard of the severe ways of the queen with her courtiers and ministers, so that it is no wonder that they wondered at the immovable John Brown. But they were more content now to regard his being with resignation. To the people of the early seventies Queen Victoria and John Brown were one identity; speak of the queen and automatically one conjured up the picture of a grim, bearded Highlander in kilt and bonnet beside her, gazing about him with challenging eyes.

There was something pathetically lonely about that group of two as they went on their daily journeys, seemingly lost each in their own thoughts; the sad, ailing queen, a law unto herself, without friend among her court or children, and the proud ghillie, equally a figure apart, whose presence alone seemed to give her peace of mind.

Beets, Potatoes, Coal Now Supplying Rubber

FORTY YEARS AGO practically all of the world's rubber was gathered by natives from trees that grew wild in the forests of the Amazon and the Congo. Ten years ago almost all of it came from domesticated trees on plantations in certain of the British and Dutch East Indian colonies. Now a small but steadily increasing portion is coming from European beet and potato fields, and from American coal mines.

There are two general types of the new synthetic rubbers, and neither is chemically identical with the natural kind. The latter is a polymerized isoprene; that is, its molecules are formed by the linking together of an indefinite but very large number of molecules of a much simpler substance, isoprene, a naphtha-like liquid having the formula C_5H_8. Of the three types of synthetic rubber now being manufactured, the German and Russian types are made by polymerizing butadiene (C_4H_6) or dimethyl butadiene (C_6H_{10}), while the American type is polymerized chloroprene (C_4H_5Cl). The differences as well as the fundamental similarity between these compounds can be seen in the diagram.

The problem of polymerizing isoprene to rubber was first solved simultaneously and independently by a German, Harries, and an Englishman, Perkin, in 1910. At that time the commercial possibilities of the process were nil, since the isoprene from which the rubber was made could be made only from rubber.

Shortly thereafter a method was found for making isoprene from turpentine, a process of questionable value because of the high cost of the starting material. By 1913 the Germans had found out how to make synthetic rubber from butadiene, their present starting material, and had worked out a satisfactory process of producing butadiene from fusel oil, which could be obtained by the fermentation of starch or sugar wastes.

While the cost of fusel oil was too high to permit this synthetic rubber to compete commercially with the natural product, the Germans believed their new product would be a satisfactory substitute in case their imports of natural rubber were shut off by blockade. During the war they were sadly disappointed. Butadiene rubber was a beautiful material as it came from the factory, but after about a month's use it deteriorated into a hard, crumbly substance. Germany could not use it and had to try to get along without rubber.

The trouble was that the rubber was too pure. Pure rubber, either natural or synthetic, is attacked and hardened by the combined action of air and light. Natural rubber contains certain impurities that delay this action. Substances of this type, known as antioxidants, have since been subjected to an exhaustive study in which American chemists have played a principal part, and substances far more potent than the unknown impurities of natural rubber have been found. The remarkable improvement in the durability of rubber since 1920 has been largely due to the increased knowledge of antioxidants.

Antioxidants have made this butadiene rubber not only a usable product but, at least according to the manufacturers' claims, a superior one. If this be true, as it may well be, it is understandable. The impurities in natural rubber, while possessing a certain antioxidant effect, may detract from the material's usefulness in other respects.

The American synthetic rubber, made from chloroprene, has a desirable property not possessed by the others, natural or synthetic. It contains the element chlorine in addition to carbon and hydrogen. This difference has a profound effect on its solubility. It is highly resistant to the action of petroleum oils such as gasoline and fuel oil, which quickly penetrate and destroy the usefulness of other types of rubber.

The starting material for chloroprene is coke, which is first heated in an electric furnace with lime to give calcium carbide (CaC_2). On treatment with water, the carbide gives off an inflammable gas, acetylene (C_2H_2). With the help of a catalyst containing cuprous chloride, two molecules of acetylene combine to form vinyl acetylene (C_4H_4). This compound, a very low boiling liquid, is then combined with hydrochloric acid to give chloroprene (C_4H_5Cl), which can then be polymerized to synthetic rubber.

The actual details of the American process are an industrial secret. Still less is known of the probably similar German and Russian processes. Apparently both countries have had most success by polymerizing butadiene, which is now made, not from fusel oil as the Germans did twenty years ago, but from ordinary alcohol. Alcohol vapor (C_2H_5OH) is passed over a hot catalyst such as aluminum oxide to form ethylene (C_2H_4), a gas. Ethylene, on further treatment with a suitable catalyst, forms hydrogen and butadiene (C_4H_6).

This system is profitable only in countries where its use can be encouraged by government edict. American synthetic rubber as yet has not gone into extensive use as a substitute for natural products, but for special purposes.

Odd Jobs in Science

1 Science in its multitude of branches produces many jobs that are unusual. Miss Frances Mildred Davis of Santa Monica, Cal., is a medical and dental consultant, expert in the use of the X-ray. However, she applies her machine to other investigations, such as finding why a golf ball slices and how many kittens her cat is going to have. Her chief interest is in studying the structure of flowers.

2 Here is an X-ray of a rose, revealing in strangely beautiful detail its veins and petal arrangement. Miss Davis uses great care in "posing" her subjects so as to show to best advantage their inner forms.

3 At left: Still another unusual job is that of Roy C. Graves of the Illinois state board of health. He is a "water smeller," having developed standard tests for tastes and odors in public water supplies as a guide for the use of activated carbon to remove objectionable qualities from water.

Mostly About Dogs

By BOB BECKER

Cocker Spaniel

(Etched by Walter Bohl.)

Starting in this issue this department will present a series of beautiful dog etchings by Walter Bohl, midwestern artist. The first picture, reproduced here, is one of his most popular works. Mr. Bohl has caught the pensive beauty of a black cocker spaniel, a breed that is especially popular at this time of year because of its ability in the hunting field.

Autumn the Heyday of Spaniels

AUTUMN days are spaniel days to many American dog owners who like to go afield with gun and dog. Countless thousands of smart spaniels that make delightful companion dogs in homes are called into the hunting fields when the seasons on pheasants, rabbits, and woodcock are open.

The spaniel family is a large and versatile group of sporting dogs, but only a few of them are known to American homes and American sportsmen. The entire group of recognized breeds numbers eight, including the Brittany, Clumber, cocker, springer, field, Irish, Sussex, and Welsh spaniels. Topping the list in popularity is the little cocker, the smallest of our spaniels. In recent months this breed has led all others in registrations in the American Kennel club. Second most popular spaniel in America today is the good looking, hustling springer. Here is a useful, all-around dog that fits into the home, makes a dandy companion, and also can do a lot of work in the hunting fields either finding or retrieving game.

American dog fanciers have shown comparatively little interest in the other spaniels. The funny looking but capable Irish water spaniel gets few chances to retrieve ducks because of the wide use of Chesapeakes and Labradors in duck blinds. Brittany spaniels are coming along slowly. They are the pointing dogs among the spaniels. The heavy Clumber, which one English writer calls the "alderman" of the spaniel family, may weigh from 55 to 65 pounds and is used very little for hunting in this country.

The cocker has become such a popular house and companion dog that we sometimes fear American outdoor fans may forget what a capable little hunter he is when given enough size and weight plus good training. The cocker is one of the handiest little hunters imaginable. Youatt tells us that in his day he was chiefly used for flushing woodcock and pheasants from thickets. (From the woodcock he takes his name.) We have seen them work singly and in teams in heavy weed thickets and the way they bustle around springing both feathered and furred game is a pleasure to watch. Stout of heart, the cocker will tackle most anything and he'll retrieve game beautifully. If the American sportsman will get a cocker dog with sufficient size and bone he'll enjoy him no end in the hunting field. A pair of them working ahead of the guns is a regular circus.

The springer spaniel, weighing anywhere from 42 to 50 pounds, is a hunting dog of all work. We have had them in the hunting field to flush pheasants, spring rabbits ahead of the guns, retrieve jacksnipe, and also retrieve ducks from a blind. He has the length of leg for plenty of speed in the coverts, is symmetrical in build, strong and combines both beauty and utility in a high degree. A well trained springer that quarters its ground, is obedient, will stand steady to flush and shoot, and knows how to work out every piece of thick cover, is a hunting dog that can give any sportsman a grand day in the field.

After hunting over other spaniels we now are having the opportunity to compare them with the big white Clumbers, since we own one brought in from England. This breed is the largest of all spaniels, the males sometimes weighing 65 pounds. As might be expected from his build and weight he is not as fast as the springer. But he has a good nose, takes readily to water, and makes what you might call a "comfortable shooting dog." As far as looks and dignity are concerned, he is (to quote one English sports writer) the "king of the spaniel race, standing out distinctive and apart with a massive body, creamy white coat, and orange tan head markings."

If the sportsman enjoys the beauty of a hunting scene in October we commend to him the picture we enjoyed last fall. It was a pair of white Clumbers bustling among the brown fern brakes and autumn leaves while the sunshine filtered through yellow birches, red oaks, and brilliant scarlet sumac to light up their coats against the flaming fall colors. When the Clumbers routed a cock pheasant from this background we were looking at about as beautiful a hunting scene as we ever saw in American game fields.

First night out, showing the group on the sidelines with the great sense of humor. They stare and point and laugh at the dancers. Behind them is the couple who dance with their eyes shut.

The bashful pick-up. Despite encouraging smiles and much batting of the eyelids, it took some nerve for Stanley, the shy boy, to ask Helen for a dance. She was sitting with Mamma, humming the dance tune in a throaty quaver that carried way up the boat deck. Mamma is wild about dancing, and when Stanley has slid around once or twice with Helen, Mamma will get him and he will be anchored for hours doing rhumbas and flea-hops.

Between dances at the adjoining bar. He comes from Chicago and is a fast worker. She is just a little slip of a Southern girl and hails from Peapack, N. J. She visits in Baltimore every year, so her cute Southern lingo is authentic. (Says "Dog Gone," "You all," and calls everybody "Honey.") They're having rum collins and have discovered mutual friends in Decatur.

Mr. and Mrs. Claypool Bliss spent all last Spring perfecting themselves in tango and rhumba. And now they are very glad they did.

This girl is asking the orchestra leader to please play her favorite, "When and Where," and he explains that they just played it.

These girls stood it just as long as they could looking on. With no male partners available, they just had to get up and dance. Tomorrow night they'll leave their glasses in the stateroom.

Meet Elsa, who is going to be the life of every party on board the coast liner. She met this insurance executive soon after the boat left the pier, and he said his name was August. Elsa said, "My, that's a hot name," and they were fast friends by mid-afternoon. (Here is Elsa appreciating one of August's racy stories.)

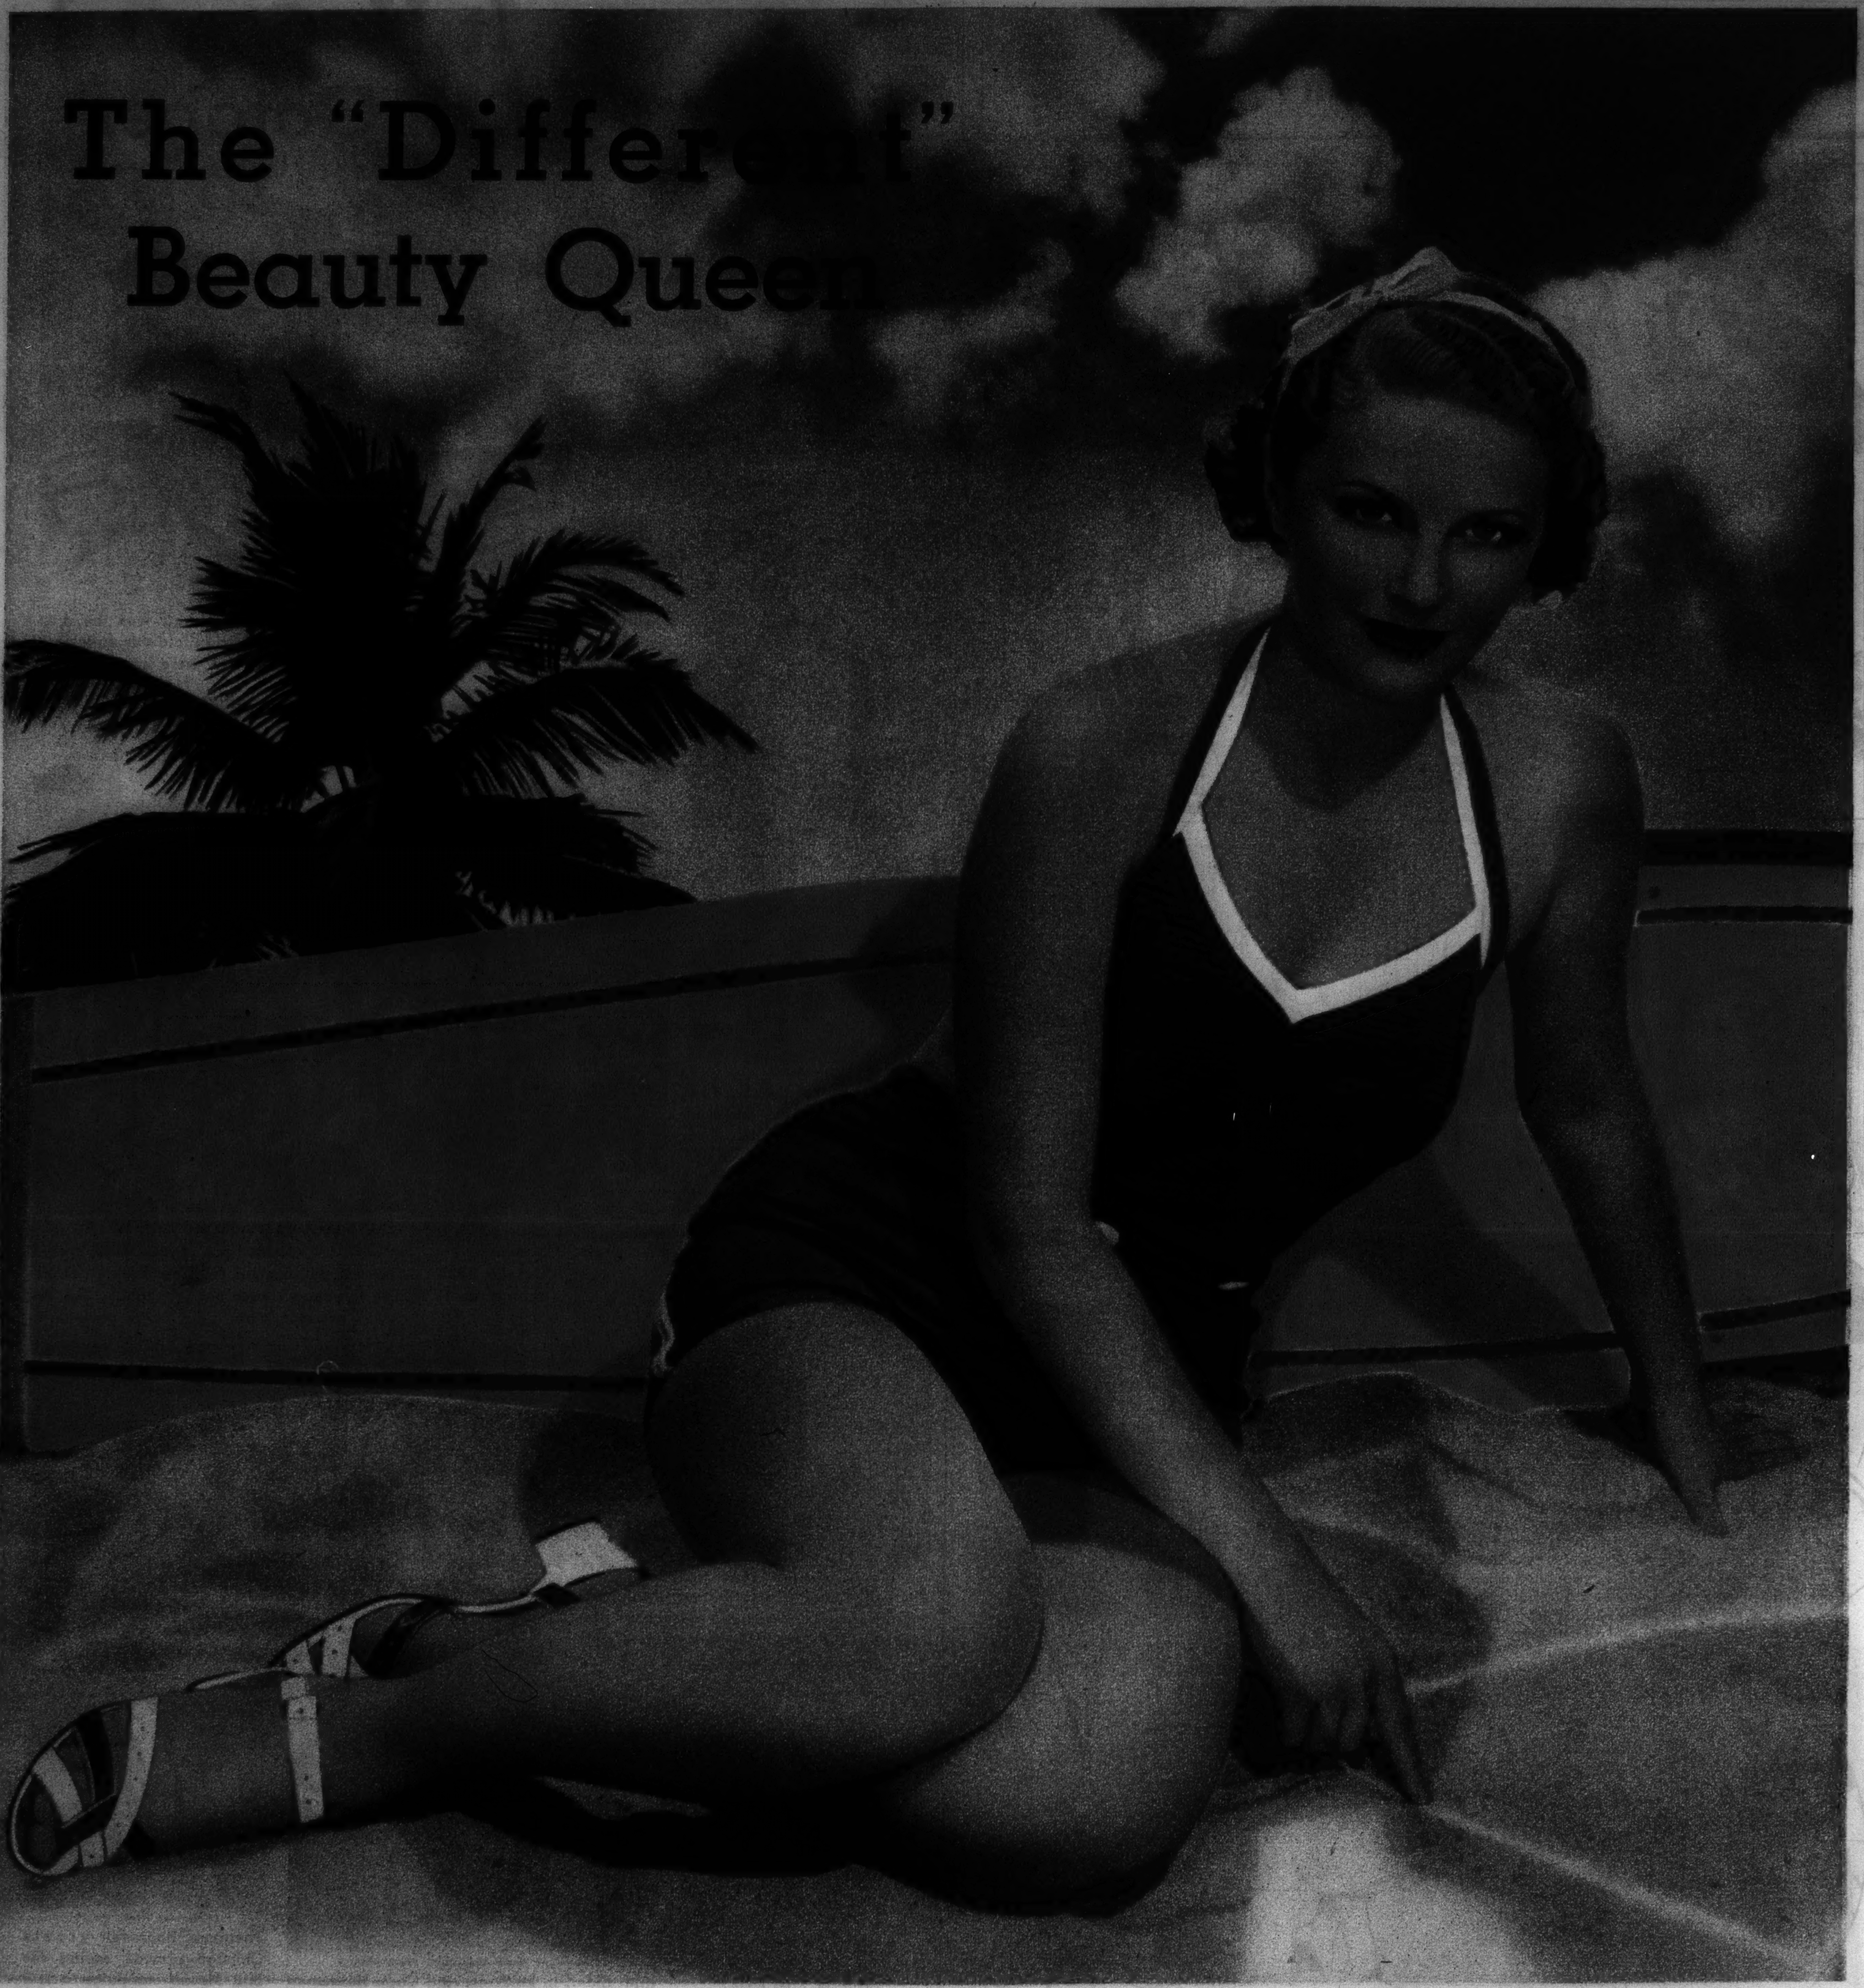
The "Different" Beauty Queen



Jean Chatburn, who reversed the usual process by winning a beauty contest after she already had established herself as a featured player of two years' experience in Hollywood.

By ROSALIND SHAFFER

Hollywood, Cal.

BEAUTY contest winners usually get the amused smile in Hollywood, for few of them ever get any farther than the brief fame that comes to them as contest queens.

Jean Chatburn is different. When she won her beauty contest she had been in films for two years and was under contract at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. McClelland Barclay, the artist, selected her from a group of 200 girls as the most beautiful. This brought her the award of the rôle of Mary Lou, Bill Powell's sweetheart, in "The Great Ziegfeld."

In still another matter Jean was different. After two years in films as a double, a dancing girl, and a featured player she was put in the talent school at M-G-M. Usually the procedure is reversed.

● Jean Chatburn won a beauty title on the basis of these characteristics: Height, 5 feet 3½ inches; weight, 112 pounds; waist, 23 inches; bust, 35; hips, 36; thigh, 18; ankle, 8. Her eyes are gray, her curly hair is gold. Mrs. Frank Orsatti in private life, she keeps her lovely figure by swimming, tennis, and horseback riding and careful eating.

All this beautiful blonde commotion began some twenty-three years ago in a farm home near Hanover, Mich., on Sept. 11. At 5 years of age Jean was brought west by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Chatburn. She was quite delicate, and the outdoor life recommended by the family doctor proved the basis for her present superb beauty.

Jean's schooling was carried on at Mt. St. Mary's, at the Sacred Heart, and at Flintridge academy. She left school at the age of 15, and as she was too young to go on to college, Jean took a whirl at dramatic training. One day she heard a girl who worked in a studio mention that Barbara Stanwyck needed a stand-in. Jean got the job.

After a few months as a dancer she came to the attention of B. P. Schulberg, independent producer for Paramount. March of 1934 saw Jean signed to a contract with him.

Returning from a tour, Miss Chatburn was given a rôle in Greta Garbo's "Painted Veil" at M-G-M, following a series of small parts that led her to a rating as a featured player at Paramount, including "Come On, Marines," with Dick Arlen; minor parts in "Too Much Harmony," "You're Telling Me," and with Sylvia Sidney in "Thirty Day Princess."

The Schulberg contract was replaced with one at Metro in November of 1934. After the "Painted Veil" came a technicolor short, "Memories and Melodies," and intensive dramatic training under Oliver Hinsdell. In 1935 Jean had a rôle with Joan Crawford in "No More Ladies."

Nineteen thirty-five also saw her in "Broadway Melody of 1936," and then the rôle in "The Great Ziegfeld." Her latest part was in "Bad Guy," with Bruce Cabot.

and her hosiery security number is

S-17-12½-8½-9½

You can tell to look at the beautiful Miss B . . . that she does not belong to the wrinkle-at-the-ankle school. Her clothes fit. Her hosiery fits. And she's ready to conquer a new world.

"S—17—12½—8½—9½" is a style number. Briefly translated, it means hosiery that fits in the ankle, calf, around the thigh, and is the right length. That's the new Realsilk Hosiery Idea.

These stockings unroll over the ankle and knee with smooth precision. They're designed for walking and bending (sandal foot for dancing). They cling in the right places. They give a fine gleam to a costume.

Only Realsilk can provide this unusual service because only Realsilk, serving an entire nation of wearers, can produce such a variety of leg proportions.

You get Personal Fit Hosiery from the Realsilk Representative who comes to your home with the style data. You take your measurements with a convenient measuring device which we provide. All this goes on your Hosiery Security Card.

P. S. No—it's not expensive. It costs no more than ordinary good hosiery and wears much, much longer. It is fresh silk hosiery—freshly made and shipped. And it has the famous Grenine twist which reduces the danger of snags fully 50%.

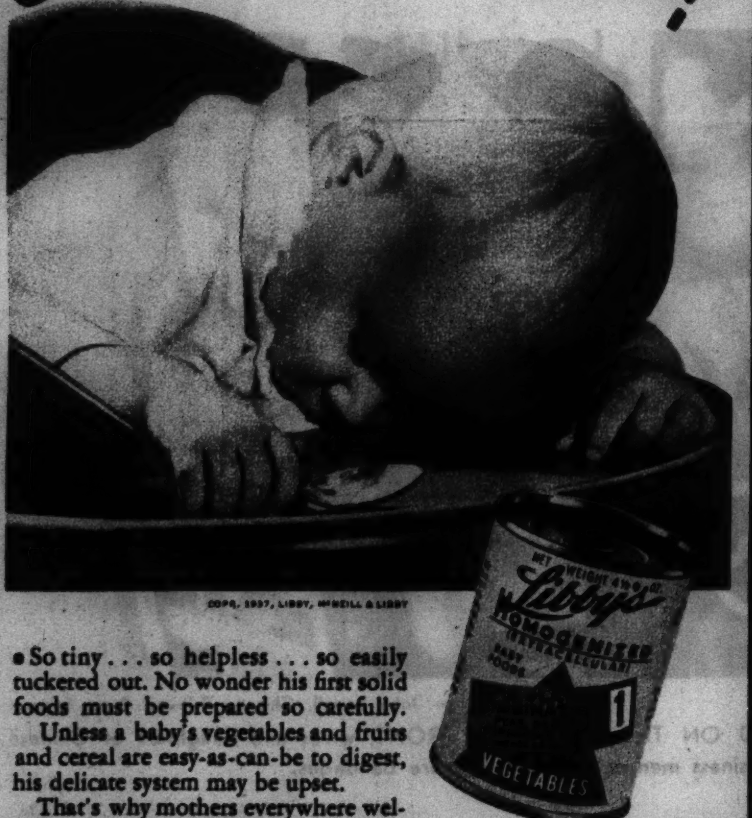
That's why LIBBY'S BABY FOODS ARE Extra easy to digest!



COPR. 1937, LIBBY, McNEILL & LIBBY

● So tiny . . . so helpless . . . so easily tuckered out. No wonder his first solid foods must be prepared so carefully.

Unless a baby's vegetables and fruits and cereal are easy-as-can-be to digest, his delicate system may be upset.

That's why mothers everywhere welcome the news that Libby has discovered a way to make Baby Foods extra easy to digest!

All Libby's Baby Foods are prepared by an exclusive process . . . a special method of homogenization . . . that does something the finest sieve or strainer doesn't do.

It completely breaks up the food cells and fibers in solid foods. It releases nutriment so baby digests it with the very minimum of effort.

Libby's Baby Foods actually digest so easily that many doctors are starting babies on them as early as three months . . . to supplement his milk formula with extra minerals (iron especially) and vitamins.

See your doctor regularly about your baby's diet. Your grocer has Libby's Baby Foods in economical tins . . . or will be glad to get them for you.

Why Libby's Baby Foods digest more easily than strained foods

*Before Homogenization

*After Homogenization

These food cells in solid foods are completely broken up by Libby's special method of homogenization. Nourishment is released. No sieve or strainer can do this.

A VARIED DIET EVERY DAY

Another Libby improvement! Libby's Baby Foods come in special combinations. Three or more foods come in every tin, all blended together. Each of these special combinations gives baby a variety of minerals and vitamins at a single feeding. It's handy to order Libby's combinations by number . . .

"We tried many things before we found Ambrosia. The improvement in her skin — such a short time, too — is almost unbelievable. There's nothing else like Ambrosia!"

All ages praise Ambrosia —for all types of skin

From adolescent girl to grandmother — skins oily or dry — women of all ages hail Ambrosia because it leaves the complexion looking and feeling clean. It helps fight blackheads and blemishes — those enemies of beauty which follow "half-way" methods of cleaning.

Use Ambrosia 5 days and see the difference

Ambrosia is pure and effective — recommended by skin specialists — tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau. Feel its stimulating tingle as it goes after the dirt! See how it leaves the skin refreshed and radiant. It will not clog the pores!

Get a bottle today at your drug or department store. Trial size at all 10-cent stores.

FREE OFFER — Get a 75c box of exquisite, French-perfumed Ambrosia Face Powder by merely sending the booklet from the back of a bottle of Ambrosia Cleanser, Cream or Tightener (with 10c to cover the cost of mailing) to Hinze Ambrosia (Dept.C2), 30 Rockefeller Plaza, N. Y. C. Specify shade — Naturelle, Rachel No. 1 (medium blonde); Rachel No. 2 (brunette); Ocre Rose (warm brunette).

Here's why Ambrosia really cleans.

Magnified cross-section of skin, showing dirt on surface . . .

Greasy cleansing method may clean the surface, but tends to clog pores. Result: gray, coarse skin, enlarged pores, blackheads, pimples.

After cleansing the liquid Ambrosia way, pores are clean, skin is refreshed and glowing.

AMBROSIA the pore-deep liquid cleanser

unless removed Root* and All

WHEN you pare your corns at home you only remove the surface, with risk of severe infection. Soon the corn comes back bigger, uglier, more painful than ever. Use the new double-action Blue-Jay method. Pain stops instantly by removing the pressure, then the entire corn lifts out Root and All in 3 short days (exceptionally severe cases may require a second application).

Blue-Jay is a tiny scientifically medicated plaster. Held snugly in place by Wet-Pruf adhesive. Can't stick to stockings. Doesn't make shoes tight. Get Blue-Jay today. 25c for a package of 6 at all druggists.

Headachy, Logy?... take a laxative that COMBATS GASTRIC ACIDITY, too

1. Lower than a Lizard's Tail — that's how my husband said he felt this morning. Mumbled about a logy headache. But I gave him some Sal Hepatica, and soon . . .

2. PRESTO — things certainly brightened. You see, Sal Hepatica helps two ways—it cleanses the intestinal tract . . . quickly, gently . . . AND it counteracts gastric acidity. Turns a sour stomach sweet again. Chases that lazy, sickish feeling that might otherwise linger. Soon my husband was . . .

3. On Top of the World! That afternoon, my husband felt so good that he made me drop everything and skip out to the country for a hike. "What was that fixer-upper you gave me?" he demanded. "It's sure worth its weight in gold!" So I told him, "Sal Hepatica, m'love—and from now on we're never going to be without Sal Hepatica! Never!"

5 out of every 6 women who compare Wonder Bread with other breads in this famous 1-2-3 store test agree:

"WONDER BREAD IS BEST"

SEE AND FEEL THE DIFFERENCE

Note the tenderer crust, the pure, snowy-white color of Wonder Bread. Then—rub your fingers over a slice. Note how smooth, close-knit and slightly moist it is. No holes, lumps or imperfections. Then—compare this matchless texture with any other bread.

SMELL THE DIFFERENCE

Hold a slice of Wonder Bread close to your nose. Breathe deeply and note that appetizing "wheaty" fragrance . . . so fresh and clean and tempting. Your nose, too, can tell you the remarkable difference between Wonder Bread and any other kind.

TASTE THE DIFFERENCE

Then—compare the flavor. Taste a bite of Wonder Bread slowly. Let it linger in your mouth . . . so that you get all its delicious full-flavored goodness. The Wonder Bakers have spent a fortune to bring you this incomparable slo-baked flavor.

"ACID INDIGESTION" GOES FAST

When You Alkalize Excess Stomach Acids with "PHILLIPS"

With "acid indigestion" it stands to reason that the longer it goes, the worse it gets—and the harder it is to alkalize. Therefore, act at the first sign of distress.

If you would relieve and "head off" nausea, "upset stomach," heartburn, gas, the thing to do is alkalize immediately.

Try this quick-acting way: take two Phillips' Milk of Magnesia tablets — or two teaspoons of the liquid which have the same alkalizing effect. Almost at once you feel "acid indigestion" curbed. "Acid headaches," acid breath, pains from acid indigestion—all are given amazingly fast relief. You feel like a different person.

When you're going out carry your alkalizer with you — always — in tablets. They taste like peppermint. They cost 25¢ for 30. When you buy insist on Genuine Phillips'.

NOW IN TABLET FORM! Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

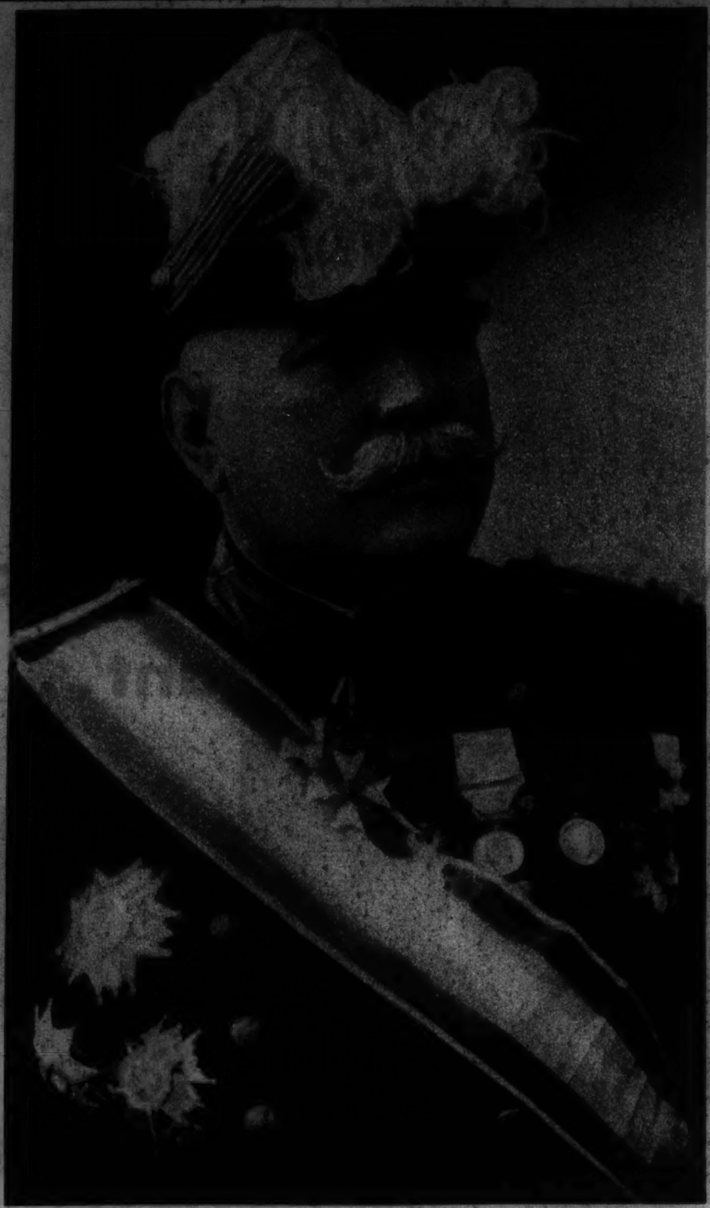
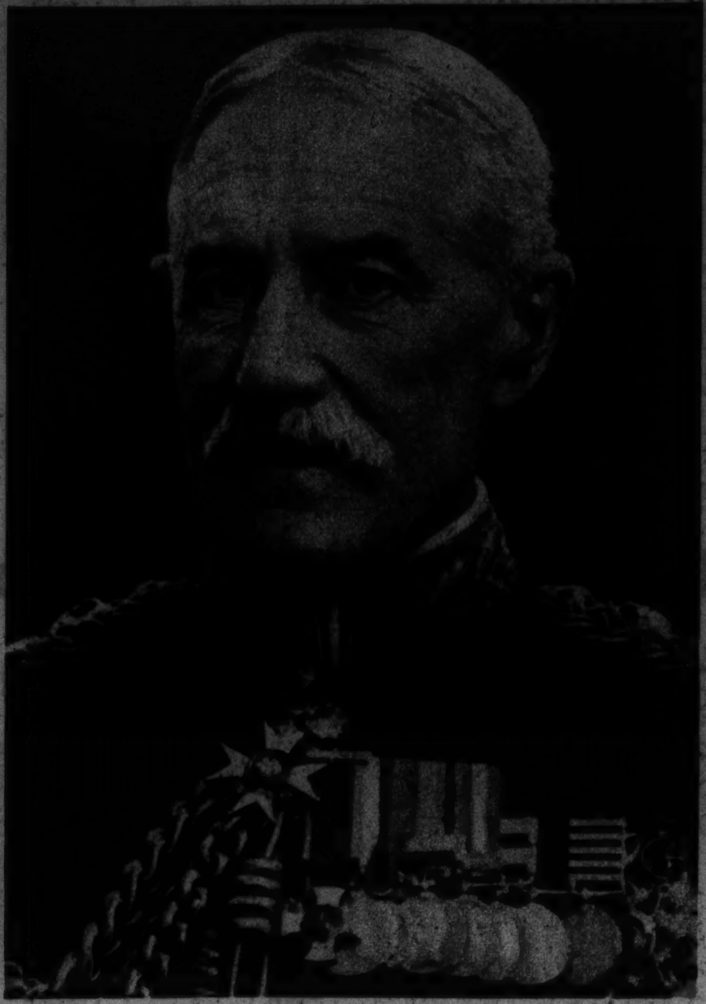
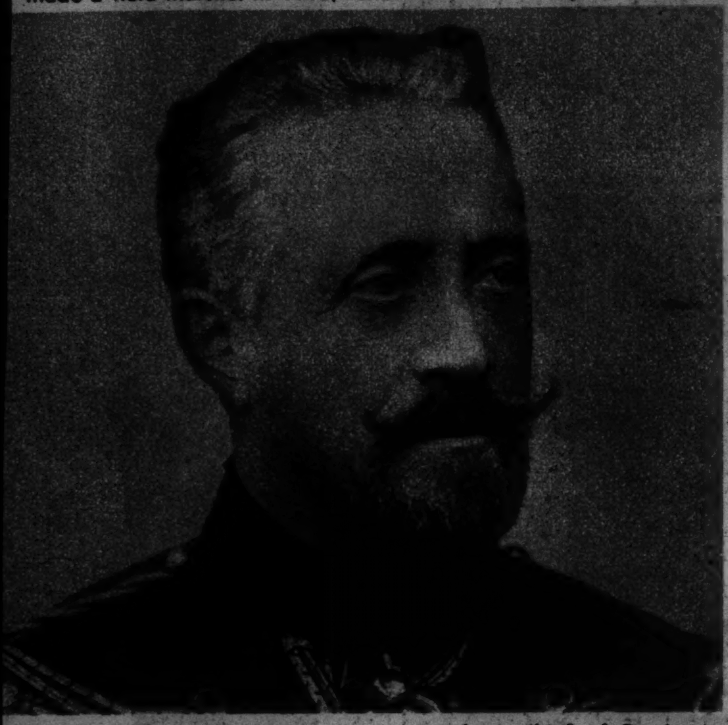
KARL VON BUELOW, commanding the German Second army, was at the head of the 1914 invasion of Belgium and France. The supreme army command held him blameless for the reverse on the Marne, which forced German retreat. Von Buelow was made a field marshal in 1915, retired at his own request in 1916.



MARSHAL JOFFRE, commander-in-chief of French armies at the outbreak of the World war, first commanded the idolatry of the nation but later fell into disfavor as the life blood of France vainly drained away. He was removed from authority in 1916. In 1917 he was lionized in the United States.



GEN. SIR HORACE SMITH-DORRIEN commanded the Second army corps of British "Old Contemptibles," on which the German attack at Mons fell most furiously. At Le Cateau his attack averted disaster for the British. Following difficulties with his commander-in-chief, he was recalled to England in 1915 and given charge of a home defense army.



GRAND DUKE NICHOLAS was commander-in-chief of Russian armies during their early World war disasters; the czar relieved him in August, 1915, assuming supreme command himself. Thereafter Nicholas served in the Caucasus. In 1929 he died in Paris, an emigre.

Typical of Waterman's fine quality pens is the De Luxe Ink-Vue for men. The pen that tells you when to refill. In attractive Emerald-Ray, Copper-Ray and Jet. Pens $8.50—Pencils $4. Other Waterman's Pens, $2.50 to $10. Pencils to match, $1 to $5

IT STARTS at the crack of a gun!

You don't shake it . . . You don't coax it . . . Merely touch it to paper and it begins to write . . . every time.

The reason? It's the famous Waterman's Super Point! This actually passes through 80 separate operations and is hand polished under a magnifying glass before final perfection. It is made throughout of 14-K gold, tipped with hard and costly iridium. Then this Super Point is fitted to Waterman's patented Capillary Feed that keeps the ink always free-flowing, responsive to every writing movement.

Match a Waterman's against any other pen—see how much faster it starts. Match it on any basis. Size for size, price for price, Waterman's Ink-Vue Pens invariably hold more ink because of Waterman's Double-Action Lever that locks without losing ink, thus filling the pen to 100% capacity. And, of course, the ink is always visible in the Waterman's Ink-Vue line.

4 Hours of "Vocal Gymnastics" to Make a Single Scene
HERBERT MARSHALL tells how "voice shading" strains his throat—makes a light smoke important...
1. "IN 'ANGEL', my new Paramount picture," says Mr. Marshall, "The part I play requires that I talk in a reserved manner. With a mere "Oh" or "Yes" or "Thanks", I must express all the excitement of the situation. Now ...
2. "SHADING THE VOICE is often harder on the throat than acting out a line. The above scene took half a day to shoot—4 hours of painstaking voice shading! Yet even under such strains, Luckies are gentle on my throat ...
3. "MOST OF HOLLYWOOD seems to prefer Luckies, too." (Note: Luckies are popular, wherever throats are important, because the "Toasting" process expels certain irritants found in all tobacco.)
4. "IN MY LIVING-ROOM I have 'barometers' that tell the popularity of the different brands ... I mean the cigarette boxes I keep filled for guests. Luckies disappear twice as fast as any other."
HERBERT MARSHALL, famous RKO star, soon to appear in Paramount's "ANGEL", directed by Ernst Lubitsch
WITH MEN WHO KNOW TOBACCO BEST
It's Luckies 2 to 1
SURELY, men who spend their lives buying, selling and handling tobacco are the best judges of tobacco quality.
And now, sworn records available for your inspection show that, among independent tobacco experts, Lucky Strike has twice as many exclusive smokers as have all the other cigarettes combined!
This is the verdict of tobacco men—auctioneers, buyers, warehousemen, etc.—not connected with any cigarette manufacturer. In the honest judgment of the men who know tobacco best ... it's Luckies—2 to 1!
